Fashions

A brown mossy crepe dress that reflects fabric contrast that's so new and smart. The slimming inset band down the front, from neck to hem, is of novelty crepe in coppery red and brown mixture. It will be one of your fall favorites, because it has a practical appeal as well as a "dressy" appeal. It lends itself to almost any occasion. Crepe with glistening satin or wool jersey with crepe are other ideal combinations Of course, this model is also charming in one material. Both long and the short sleeved versions are included in the pattern. The sew simple picture dressmaking instruction chart enables you to sew it very quickly.

Style No. 3375 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years; 32, 34 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. The long-sleeved dress with contrasting inset bands requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 18-inch contrasting material. The dress with cape sleeves requires 3⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

SWIMMING INSTRUCTION

DOROTHY DIX

Mothers Can Be The Most Deadly Rivals Of Young Wives, So A Girl Should Make Sure Her Husband-To-Be Does Not Have Too Much Mother Complex

DEAR MISS DIX—About a year ago I married a young man with whom I was very much in love and who I thought loved me, and we went to live in the home that he had provided for many years for his mother. Being a business girl, and his mother still desiring to be mistress of her son's home, I kept my position in order that she could be in the home alone during the day. This I thought would keep her from feeling that I had taken her place. Soon after we were married my husband began to tell me he would rather stay at home with his mother than go places with me, and whenever we went out he would first ask his mother's permission. If she consented, we went. If she objected, we stayed at home. At night he sits up a couple of hours after I go to bed to entertain his mother. He consults her about everything, and openly says he loves her better than any one else. I left a good home, where I was happy to do my best to increase the happiness in the home of the man I loved. It seems that I have failed completely, and I am so miserably unhappy that I do not know what to do. Is there any remedy for the situation? Will my husband ever change? Could he treat me like this if he really loved me?

LILLIAN.

Answer:

Evidently your husband has a fatal case of mother complex, and there is no cure for that. As long as he lives he will always be tied to his mother's apron strings, and you will never be able to cut them. He will always think that Mother knows best, that his first duty is to Mother, that Mother is closer to him than any other human being, and you will always play second fiddle to her.

It is only too true that a mother can be a more deadly rival to a wife, more completely destroy her happiness, and more utterly break up her home than any platinum blonde vamp or any gold-digging siren, no matter how beautiful and seductive she may be. Indeed, a wife is far more powerless to fight against her mother-in-law than she is against the Other Woman, because a man can never be brought to see what a cruel wrong and injustice he is doing in preferring his mother before his wife. He hurts her just as much when he neglects her for his mother, as if he were neglecting her for some flapper.

Worse still, his wife cannot appeal to his conscience as she could if he were having an affair with a girl because he counts it unto himself for righteousness that he is so devoted to his dear old mother. He considers that it is nothing but selfishness and jealousy that keeps his wife from thinking that she has any right to his time and attention and money, and refuses to sacrifice herself on Mother's altar.

The old saying that a good son makes a good husband is only true when the son and mother stand in a normal relationship to each other, and when they have for each other only a wholesome affection that does not preclude love for others. No other man in the world is so undesirable as a husband as Mother's petted darling whom Mother has spoiled and made selfish, and who to his dying day will cling to Mother's hand as he did in his babyhood.

Such being the case, and your husband's infatuation for his mother being something that you will never be able to overcome, my advice to you is to have a showdown with him on the subject before there are any children to complicate matters. Tell him frankly that he has to decide whether he wants to be married to his mother or you, and that he has to choose between you. If he prefers Mother you will be wise to accept his decision and leave him to his ancestor worship. You are still young enough to make your life over.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a boy 20, living on a farm. I love animals and to see things grow, and my ambition is to own a farm of my own some day. I don't have much spending money, and the girls think me queer, because I don't give them good times, and take them about much. But if I ever get that farm I will have to save my money. Now my problem is this: If I save my money now, will I curse myself the remainder of my life for not having had a goodtime when I was young, and there were lots of pretty girls even if I never got out of debt later on.

WILBERT.

Answer:

I think there is a lot more chance of your cursing yourself later on, Wilbert, if you spend your money on girls and good times now, than there will be if you save it to get a start in life. Nobody ever regrets having money in the bank and being prosperous. And you needn't worry about the pretty girl supply giving out. That's one crop that never fails.

Every poor boy has to make a choice between present pleasure and future goods. If he spends all that he makes as he goes along on girls and parties and payments on a car, he will never get anywhere because he will never have any money on which to go into business for himself or get a share in some paying enterprise. He can't even look for a better job because he can't risk being idle with no money to back him. The door of opportunity only opens to a golden key. Thrift is the basis of every fortune and unless you save when you are young you will be poor when you are old. Whether you are a down-and-outer and living on dole from the Government, or sponging on your children in your old age, or whether you are one of our prominent citizens and living on Easy Street depends absolutely on whether you started out to put a few dimes of your first salary into the savings bank every week, or blew in every bit of it on whoopee parties.

You may say that if you have to deny yourself at one end of your life or the other, you'll do it at the latter end. But this is a mistake. Youth is so full of the joy of living, it is such a bunch of thrills in itself, everything is such fun and excitement that it doesn't need to buy its pleasures. But age needs comforts and luxuries and the respect that is given only to the successful to make it endurable. No people are so unhappy and so much to be pitied as those who have never saved anything for a rainy day, and who are poor and dependent in their old age.

World Picture Of Regatta At Stoney Lake

A guest at the Children's Regatta given last week at the Island summer home on Stoney Lake of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Collins, Peterborough, has written the following delightful word picture which appeared in the Globe and Mail, and has entitled it "Summer."

"Will you come and see a picture with me? It is one of those truly perfect summer days which we have in Ontario. To be exact, it is one day during this last week. It is the day following one of the thunderstormy days we also have in the summer in this Ontario of ours.

But the day following! Can you see with me that lovely freshly washed glow Mother Nature puts on the whole of the out-of-doors? The trees stand out against the blue, blue sky. That clear, clean look the water and the rocks take on! Just the nicest little ripple on the lake! We wonder if, during the night, perhaps the fairies have been at work with scrubbing brushes, and this is the result! Can you see the picture? It is the same on so many of our Ontario lakes. This time I ask you to think of this picture on Stoney Lake, one of the Kawarthas, not far from Peterborough.

We see a crowd of happy children, and a sprinkling of grown-ups arriving in every kind of craft (canoe, rowboat, or motor boat, perhaps an outboard), at the island summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Collins of Peterborough. It is the annual birthday party of Miss Janet Collins, the elder daughter. The guests arrive dressed for the party, in very best shorts, perhaps playsuits, attractive, in bright colors, perhaps some of the younger ones in smocked dresses and the boys in the cleanest of clean shirts. They trip up the rocky path from the dock, greet their hostess, and quickly disappear to adjacent cabins, and out they come "toot sweet," in their bathing suits. And for why? Because this birthday party takes the form of a children's regatta.

Can you see the picture I saw that day—thirty, or perhaps forty, boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 16 standing on the dock waiting for the events within their age limit? Mr. Fred Collins as master of ceremonies armed with a megaphone. Can you see that gorgeous array of brown, yes, truly brown, backs, and equally brown legs and arms? What a store of health for the winter! Our Canadian summer at its best!

Can you see those flashing brown legs and arms as they each in turn dived into that deep, dark, soft water of Stoney Lake, where they took off in the different races and diving tests? Age didn't matter, just the same for 6 or 16.

Then the canoe races, singles and doubles; the rowing races, and the desperate attempts of the contestants in the crab race—all part of the fun. Up they come, all smiles—those wide smiles of the children of today, showing flashing white teeth. A rapid change out of bathing suits, and all are ready to tuck into the birthday tea-party to demolish the luscious birthday cake decorated with marshmallows, and all the accompaniments. What a day!

On to the presentation of medals to the winners of the events, each stepping up smartly to receive the prize. And the littlest ones all get medals! No hurt feelings allowed.

Where do the young guests come from? From various places. All spending a joyous summer on Stoney Lake. Isn't it well worth while? Summer in Canada at its best?

All the young people mixing together have a wonderful time. Some of them (we can mention only a few) whom we notice are the young Tom Crerars from Hamilton, Beresford Hamiltons of Ottawa, three stirring Walters boys from Montreal, the young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Cameron of Toronto, the D. L. McLarens' daughter Christine of Toronto, who won a prize for diving, and her guest, Master David Pope of Toronto, grandson of the late Judge Orde; the Morson Smith boys, Terry and David, from Montreal; the Donald McTavish children from Peterborough; the Willoughby and Prince children from Washington, D.C.; the James Lockhart children from Toronto—young Araby Lockhart wining a medal—and some members of the Collins family of Peterborough; Mr. Robin Collins of Vancouver; Mrs. Denston of Peterborough, and Mrs. Alec Collins of Forest, all supporting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Collins in their efforts to give the children a banner day.

And so ends my picture. We hear much these days of youth movement. Here we have it. Summer! Canada! and healthy, wholesome, happy youth!

Miss Frances O'Brien Is Entertained

Miss Frances O'Brien, who leaves next week to enter the nursing class of St. Joseph's Hospital in Hamilton was guest of honor at a personal shower which was given at the home of Miss Mary Garvey, Driscoll Terrace.

In an amusing interpretation of a doctor and his nurse, Miss Mary Garvey and Mr. Fred Garvey brought in a basket, which proved to be filled with a variety of lovely gifts for the guest of honor. Games were played during the evening, and refreshments served by the hostess.

Honoring Mr. Arnold Parsons and his fiancee, Miss Rhoda Cullen, whose wedding is arranged for the first of September, a presentation took place in the Canadian National Express office Monday afternoon, when members of the staff of the express and freight offices, business associates of the groom-elect, gave Mr. Parsons and Miss Cullen an electric percolator and sandwich toaster.

Former Peterboro Boy Gets Degree

Mr. Sam Westgate, who received a bachelor of science degree from the North Dakota Agricultural college this year, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. S. Westgate, former residents of Peterborough and vicinity. Mrs. Westgate is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bettes, of this city.

Majoring in the school of Civil Engineering, Sam won several honors while attending the Agricultural College. He was named Cadet Colonel in the R.O.T.C. in 1936-37, and holds the state and conference record in the javelin throw. He reached the semi-final in the Olympics try-outs in this event. He was also all-conference end in football in 1935.

While attending college, Westgate worked for a part of his expenses in the Regular army, Hawaii Division, 1931-34; Construction engineer for the new stadium on the NDAC campus, and assistant freshman football coach in 1936.

Sept. 1 The Deadline

When the first of September arrives the amendments to the Criminal Code affecting the operation of slot machines become effective. The meaning of the law has been fully explained in these columns and there can be no misunderstanding regarding the meaning. Slot machines and pin-ball games and all that sort of apparatus are out.

It will save considerable difficulty if those who have been operating such devices would have them removed and out of the way when the change in the law becomes effective.

We are advised that it is not necessary after September first for an order to be issued for police to prosecute because the machines came under exactly the same category as any other breach of the law. What we mean is this — if a person is stealing it is not necessary to issue a special order for an officer to deal with him. The machines come in the same classification.

Several people who have used these machines have informed us they will be glad enough when they are taken out. They claim they put them in because others in the same line of business were doing so. Some people have not found them profitable. They will soon be all on the same basis because September 1 is the deadline.

Like An Open Threat

When nations in Europe desire to see their war machines in operation they gather all together in one place and refer to the result as war games. It is something like our summer camps or mimic warfare but on a much larger scale, so large that we can but faintly appreciate its extent.

Germany has been at it for several days and the display has been so unusual in several ways that it was sufficient to further disturb the peace of Europe. The spot chosen for these displays is not inland where it will not bother any other nation, but generally as near to some international border as it is possible to get.

France is now doing the same thing but on a lesser scale. More war games they say, and France is staging hers on the frontier which faces toward Germany and Italy. And once again the cables start to speak in words which indicate that international fear is being made ragged once more.

If United States were not on good terms with Canada, and if during her war manoeuvres that country decided to bring them off at some point where the border line was open to attack, we would probably regard the move as an affront and a threat as to what might happen to us.

European nations are foolishly in the stage now where they are openly parading their military might as close to the neighbor's fence as possible. There is no good reason why such displays could not be held far inland where the element of threat would be non-existant or at least invisible to those whom it is intended to impress. These war games as carried on in Europe are too much like sending out the challenge "We're ready whenever you give the word."

The Wicked Chinese

Police in Toronto raided several places where Chinese meet on Sunday and where it is charged they indulge in a form of gambling. The Chinese do not bother other people with their gambling but attend to it themselves on their own premises. Wrong of course, and something which is not allowed especially on Sunday. Money and dominoes were found on some of the tables so it looks as though the officers had the goods on the Chinese.

And all that in turn brings to mind the experience of a lady now a resident in that same city of Toronto. She and her husband were invited to a certain home for dinner on Sunday evening and that was pleasant enough. After dinner bridge tables were brought out. This lady and her husband were not in the habit of playing bridge on Sunday, but they did not wish to make themselves conspicuous by refusing to play the game. So they played and much later in the evening when the playing was concluded both husband and wife were handed slips showing how much they were indebted as the game had been on that basis. In how many homes the same thing is done we have no way of knowing and possibly it is none of our business anyway. But the police did not raid the house. It looks as though the Chinese had to obey the law while the nominally native and Christian section of the community could do what they pleased about it.

A Strong Service

M. C. McPhail has been appointed principal of the Kemptville Agricultural School. For some time he has been assistant director of the agricultural representative branch. Mr. McPhail should do well in that new position. He has been in the service long enough to have established his worth; he is above all else reasonable and sincere, and he is capable.

Northumberland County is to have a new agricultural representative Ian McLeod, for a number of years stationed in Huron County. A. H. Martin of Northumberland takes the post vacated by Mr. McPhail, and Northumberland will find it is a case of one good man following another. Mr. McLeod comes from one lakeshore county to another. There would be something wrong with the people of Huron if they were not sorry to see Ian McLeod leaving, and also something wrong with the folk in Northumberland if they do not find McLeod pretty much to their liking.

It has become a recognized fact that the agricultural representative work has attracted to the service a high class of young men. It is no place for a weak or second-rate man, and the result is that one can go into any county and find a capable representative in the Department of Agriculture office.

He Couldn't Stand It

Vincent Colangelo appeared in traffic court at Buffalo and the charge against him was that he had driven through a city street at the rate of 73 miles an hour.

Judge Yeager fined him $100, but thought something else ought to be done to make the accused realize what he had been doing. For that reason he added that the accused should be sentenced to spend one hour in the city morgue. The morgue is where they take the bodies of people who have been killed by violence or accident. A good many of the cases which are taken there are victims of auto traffic.

Vincent Colangelo went into the place and sat down as directed. He did not want to look around so he sat with his eyes covered with his hands and then with his coat sleeves. At the end of 25 minutes he was released because it was stated he was on the verge of a breakdown.

Driving such as he was doing is part of the force which puts people in the Buffalo morgue and elsewhere, but this fast driver could not bear to look at the consequences of what his own variety of driving had been doing. Probably it was a hard sort of sentence, but we have a feeling that Vincent Colangelo will hesitate about driving at 73 miles an hour in the future.

How It Is Done

"For several days there have been stories in your paper telling of a trial in United States where men are charged with having paid money to officials to protect them in the operation of a numbers racket. Apparently it was some sort of a gambling affair, but so far I have not seen anything to show how it worked. Could you tell us something about it.—C.H.D."

The numbers racket originated at the race tracks where the amount which each horse pays is listed on a board following the race. Tickets are sold widely enough for this daily event and to people who never go near the races.

The method of selecting the winning number for the day is to take the total of the figures listed for three races. As an example we selected at random three races listed in the papers to day. The first horse paid $16.45 for a $2 ticket; the second 7.40, and the third 4.15. Those numbers added together produce 28.00. The number at the left of the decimal point (in this case 8) would be the first one selected for the day's winning number. The same process is followed through other races and the number at the left of the decimal point would be placed next to the 8, and so on until the complete winning number for the day had been established. Part of the charges allege that those who operate the boards at the race track have been receiving large sums to so manipulate the winning figures that they will add up to agree with the number which the inside ring has been playing for the day. The thing looks about as crooked as a dog's hind leg and yet those who operated it and scooped in thousands of dollars per day from silly people are said to have been allowed to make contributions to political funds and purchase protection for their swindle.

There Has Been A Change

Magistrate Makins had a youth of 18 in his court at Stratford on the charge of having stolen a tire from a garage. The story behind the theft is interesting because it is similar to one which might be told in a number of cases.

This young man said he did not make much money as he was doing farm work, but now and then he drove his mother's car around at night. The magistrate at Stratford considered the case. He ordered that the tire be returned to its owner; that the young man if he did any driving in a car owned by his mother should take his mother for a ride with him, and also remarked that a young man who made little money would be much better off if he did not drive a car at all.

There was another case in Western Ontario almost the same day where two young men were charged with having stolen some grain from a farmer. The story was they sold the grain in order to buy gasoline and oil. They wanted to do two things, (1) attend a football game at a point 23 miles away, and (2) go to a lakeside resort and participate in a dance later the same evening.

They were wrong from the start, and there can be no excuse for what they did, but there is also in the situation a fair enough picture of the complete change which has come over our life, whether it be urban or rural. When the present generation of adults were young fellows on a farm no one ever thought of going to see a football game 23 miles away or going to a dance in the evening at that distance. The coming of the car has made a great difference in the outlook of young people, and the two cases which recently came to court are of a kind which would never have appeared in former years. The business of going places for amusement was limited by the ability to secure a horse and buggy in the first place, and then limited by the travel range and speed of the horse. Starting off for a drive of 23 miles to see a football game and going from there to a dance farther on and then home would never have come within the range of possibility. The young folk today are thinking in terms which never confront their fathers or grandfathers. The big thing is that they shall be able to think straight and well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Australia boasts a spider which can bark. That's nothing — we have dogs that can do the same thing.

Published pictures of Mussolini create the impression that he is a large man whereas he is not. Heavily built, active and full of energy and health, his height is actually five feet six inches.

Port Arthur reports bush fires which were evidently started by men who wanted work in helping fight the fires. But we doubt if any person in this country wants to hire such men.

General Franco is said to have asked Alfonso to return and wear the crown in Spain. It would be an easy occupation because Franco would be there to tell him what to do.

Officials in Chicago desired to clean out four gambling dens, and to do the work effectively they sent fifty men and each man carried an axe. No odds were posted or quoted on the outcome of that operation.

One German got his fortune of $25,000 out of Germany by putting it inside a bale of hops which was being exported. Of course when a fellow thinks up a scheme like that he naturally just hops to it and puts it across.

President Roosevelt says United States would gladly reduce armament if other nations will do the same thing. That little condition attached at the end is the rut in which all disarmament schemes get stuck.

International Police Congress in Toronto will have placed before its members a demonstration of the lie detector. It might be tried on the chap who is always ready to swear his car could not go over 40 miles an hour down a steep hill.

Young fellow from Thedford, Ont., bought a car for $27 and gave a cheque for that amount. The car may not have been worth anything more, but the cheque turned out to be worth nothing at all.

Picture in the Ottawa Journal shows the people sitting out on the track seats in front of the grandstand performance at the fair. We do the same thing here and the track seat is better than the reserved ones farther back and the cost nothing.

Boys of six and eight years have been caught in the police net at Toronto. So young they are they cannot be brought even to juvenile court. So we may yet see the establishment of a kindergarten department in our intricate system of court procedure.

SURPRISE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Henry is a model jay, and seems to trod his reasoned way, his record's rather good; his wife got word a week ago, an aunt was sinking rather low, she hastened like she should.

¶ She didn't know how long she'd stay, she might be several weeks away, but then she'd hurry home; she feared John Henry might be sad, he's like a helpless little lad, when living there alone.

¶ John Henry's friends came trouping in, they brought old whiskey and some gin, had such a merry time; another time some other friends, for sadness sought to make amends, and brought their choicest wine.

¶ And neighbors heard the laughter there, and turned and said "Well I declare," it seemed so strange to them; John Henry was a model jay, they scarce knew just the thing to say, he'd walked with model men.

¶ Instead of locking up at night, the house was full of life and light, they lost all track of time; at midnight neighbors heard the gang, and wondered why they always sang, about Sweet Adeline.

¶ John Henry's wife came home today, she'd only been five days away, she don't know what to think; cigar stubs littered everywhere, and footmarks on her fancy chair—and bottles in the sink.

British Wheat Has Grown Less

(By F. D. B. in Brantford Expositor)

AT ONE PERIOD during the last Great War, Great Britain was estimated to only have a fortnight's food supply because of the activity of submarines.

In any future struggle, cargo-carrying vessels will be still further menaced by enemy airplanes so that the Government has arranged to meet the situation by laying in large stocks of food in advance, although warehouses would also be subject to bombs from overhead.

These things are noted in an article written for the New York Times Magazine by Clair Price, who also points out that the local agriculturists are only producing two-fifths of the national food supply.

The big crops, wheat, barley, oats and potatoes are all on the decline and more than two and a half million acres of former plowland and pasture have gone back to weeds since 1914.

Agriculture is still the largest single industry in England and Wales, twenty-five million acres out of a total of thirty-seven millions having this classification but less than a third of the land is occupied by crops today.

We are told that the days of the old time squire system have virtually gone. They used to supply their tenants with leadership and cheap capital but that time has passed and the individual tiller of the soil has largely to borrow from banks in order to carry on.

Whereas in the United States and Canada, the occupants of farms of the average size run the premises on a family basis with extra help during the harvesting period the Old Country agriculturist depends much on paid labor.

He figures that it takes about four men to look after one hundred acres of crops and one man for a similar area in pasturage. The total annual pay is not high, it used to be $4.50 a week and has now risen to $9 but lay offs are frequent as occasion requires.

The methods are not so modern or personally intensive as in our lands and thus it is the British farmer sees wheat coming in from Canada and the United States, chilled beef from the Argentine, mutton and lamb form New Zealand, live cattle from Ireland, and butter, bacon and eggs from Denmark.

Producers of other countries can undersell him and by many it is regarded as an essential thing that these imports should take place.

In their view the mercantile marine could not survive without its shiploads of foodstuffs and without such a marine there would be no navy.

In addition it is pointed out that overseas customers can only pay in foodstuffs for the goods they buy and without such an interchange the British manufacturer would have to close down.

For a generation, the Old Country agriculturist has watched British wheat steadily disappearing from British bread, British barley from British beer and British wool from British clothing.

Fresh milk is, in fact, the one item of farm produce in which the Old Country is one hundred per cent. self sufficient but when it comes to butter, ninety-one per cent. is brought in from outside.

The British Government is commencing to give some help, in many practical directions, but not to an extent calculated to radically or nationally remedy the state of affairs.

"No doubt there are farmers who are making money today and are keeping discreetly silent about it; but in most counties the farmers are far from silent. With their labor costs at least one hundred per cent. above pre-war levels and the prices they get for their produce about thirty per cent. above, they are, so they say, at their last gasp."

To a large extent there still remains the fear that any intensive measures on behalf of agricultural production would clash with foreign trade.

To The Editor

ABOUT BANDS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I see by the picture in your paper that Lieut. Peryer has a band in Millbrook as well as the Peterborough Rangers.

The Millbrook band has won a prize against other bands, and I am wondering why the Lieut. does not take his Peterborough band out to compete and win some laurels for Peterborough.

I heard the Rangers band at the Exhibition, and must say it looked very smart.

I noticed a short time back, that the Lindsay bandmaster had resigned, which should open the way to Lieut. Peryer for still another band, or does not Lindsay want a good band like Millbrook, that can go and win prizes at Orono, Orange Parade?

Yours truly,
"AMBITIOUS".

MODEL HUSBAND.

(Detroit Free Press)

A MAN IN Chicago, whose wife had lost her respect and love for him because he was "too kind" to her, shot and killed his more successful rival for her affections.

There is a moral here for other husbands and wives.

The happiest homes are not those in which the man demeans himself by doing all the housework—washing dishes and clothes, shopping, sweeping and making beds, while he keeps his wife as a pet.

Worthy wives do not like that sort of thing.

They recognize that there is a fair division of labor in the American home and they are willing to perform their accepted share of it.

A man can hardly be said to be "a model husband" and to be "too kind" to his wife, who pampers her to the point where she comes to despise him and to fall for a real man, a he-man, a caveman.

The kindest and wisest husband is the one who treats his wife as an equal, but recognizes, and insists that she recognize, that she should do her work, while he does his.

COME, COME, MAN!

"I'm getting sick of this, Hopkins. You must find a beastly fish and stick it on the end."

• Account of $60 Grew to $426.73.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

IT OFTEN HAPPENS that individuals, and even the lawful heirs of deceased persons, are deprived of money that rightly belongs to them through neglect on the part of the depositors, when opening savings accounts in their own names, or in trust for other persons, to mention their home or business address. The importance of attending to such details is brought to light through an inquiry from a department of the Provincial Government in connection with an account that was opened on August 12, 1880, by an official of one of the Province's mental institutions for an inmate. The first deposit was for $31.36 and, during that year and the year following, three or four additional deposits of $10 were made. From that time on the only entries in the account were the half-yearly interest additions made by the Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation. In 1924 the amount on deposit had reached $281.09 and, with fourteen years' further interest additions, the balance now stands at the tidy sum of $426.73.

At the time the initial deposit was made the official referred to was widely known and he likely concluded that no address was needed. In any event, the account was opened in his name followed by that of the party for whom the money was held in trust. But in later years there was nothing available to identify the original depositor, nor any information that would assist the Huron and Erie to locate the party for whom the balance of $426.73 was intended.

The account of course, under statutory requirements, had been reported as unclaimed to the proper departments of the government, and announcement is now made that the Public Trustee for Ontario has been appointed to administer the estate of the man for whom the account was opened and whose death occurred in October, 1916. His estate will now receive the proceeds of the forgotten account that have increased through the additions of compound interest from approximately $60 in 1881 to the present balance of $426.73.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars of unclaimed deposits are reported annually to the government by financial institutions. A large portion of such funds are unclaimed as the result of inadequate information being furnished at the time the account ar opened. Fuller particulars would enable these institutions to locate depositors or their heirs in later years should there be any indication that the deposits may have been forgotten.

• Why Do They Want Armaments?

(By Wickham Steed in Christian Science Monitor)

LONDON—TEN YEARS ago, at this season, one thought was uppermost in men's minds. For the first time in recorded history the nations of the earth, at the instance of one of the mightiest among them, were about to renounce war "as an instrument of national policy." Nor was the renunciation to be verbal merely. It was to be solemnized and made binding by international treaty duly signed and ratified. Men looked forward with hope to the prospect of a warless world.

Who dreamed then that ten years later the plainest deduction-or rebound—from the Briand-Kellogg Pact would be the waging of war as an instrument of national policy without the old formality of declaring war?

Ten years ago Secretary Kellogg landed in France on his way to sign for his country the Pact that bears his name. On landing he received the gift of a golden pen. It bore as an inscription the fateful, warning words: "Si vis pacem, para pacem" (Wouldst thou have peace, prepare for peace). Ten years later the chief signatories of his Pact are seeking to outdo each other in obedience to the older and more familiar injunction: "Si vis pacem, para bellum" (Wouldst thou have peace, prepare for war).

In September, 1928, the annual Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva began with a strike. Barely a week had gone by since the solemn international treaty in renunciation of war had been signed in Paris. The statesmen and diplomatists, officials and politicians, usually so eager to prove their eloquence as delegates to the Assembly, were unaccountably tongue-tied. For years they had descanted upon war and its horrors, urging that the supreme task of nations must be to forestall or repress so barbarous an arbitrament in human affairs. They had spoken, indeed, of "peace," and had thought of it as the prevention of war. Now, war having been renounced, fifteen of the foremost nations having pledged themselves "never to resort to war", the worthy delegates knew not what to say.

A year later, in September, 1929, James Ramsay MacDonald went to the League Assembly as British Prime Minister and First Delegate of Great Britain. He had already received a tentative invitation to visit President Hoover at the White House. One hot afternoon at Geneva Mr. Ramsay MacDonald asked me what I thought he could most profitably say to Mr. Hoover if the invitation were accepted. "Ask him one question, and get him to answer it," I said. "It is 'What is the lawful function of armaments in a world which, at the instance of the United States, has by treaty solemnly renounced war?'"

Whether that question was frankly asked and fairly answered at Washington or the Rapidan I know not. Perhaps the only right answer: "It is a police function" seemed too terrifying to Prime Minister and President alike. Great Britain was certainly not ready to welcome and to act upon the answer at that moment; and it may be doubted whether the President and the people of the United States were much readier.

Do nations, can nations jealous of their sovereign rights, form a community? Is there any true analogy between a society of individual human beings, gathered together in one place or country, and a society of individual nations, dwelling in different countries and devoid of any binding, common allegiance? Some say there is not. Others say there must be if civilization itself is not to perish. While they discuss, the civilized world spends its wealth and pledges the welfare of generations unborn in the production of arms for international destruction.

• Where Is Mr. Hepburn Going?

Capt. Elmore Philpott, M.C. in Vernon, B. C. News

IN THE RECENT battle royal over power export Mr. King administered an almost ludicrous defeat to the Ontario Premier. He waited until Mitch had marched in his whole army of high-pressure lobbyists and political blackjackers. Then he whispered in the ear of his powerful pal, President Roosevelt. The latter quietly banned imports of electrical energy into the United States. The Hepburn bombardment of Ottawa was about as effective as an attack with soap bubbles.

After the international whisper, and its result, there never was any vestige of doubt as to whether or not Mitch would fight Mr. King to a finish. So he plainly told the Liberal party at Ottawa what Hitler told Austria) "Submit or fight." Either Mr. King will retire gracefully before the next election and a successor acceptable to Mr. Hepburn be selected, or else political civil war is certain in Canada.

This does not mean that Mitch himself is after Mr. King's job. If he can see anyone in Canada better qualified for the job of prime minister he will, no doubt, gladly stay where he is. But, like the Scottish lady who was open to conviction, but would just like to see the person who could convince her, Mitch is not given to over-estimating the abilities of his contemporaries. He dislikes Mr. King but detests Mr. Dunning. He not only sees the feet of clay in most of the others, but thinks that they are clay clean up to the top of the cranium.

There are three powerful forces which are either already behind Mr. Hepburn, or moving towards him very rapidly. These are: the gold mining interests; the international power ring opposed to the St. Lawrence waterway; and the financial people who have a particular interest in forcing railway amalgamation.

For at least five years Mr. Hepburn has been a militant champion of the Ontario and Quebec mining interests. He obtained for them and maintained tax concessions worth many millions. He smashed his Cabinet to forestall or delay the unionization of the mining fields. He blocked the St. Lawrence waterway in the face of long standing official Liberal support for that project. Hence he prevented the flooding of New York, Quebec and Ontario with cheap power which would have cut power profits very drastically.

In the past few months St. James Street has been more and more pondering the idea that no politician in Canada is as capable of putting through railway amalgamation as the versatile Mitch. In the last election in Ontario, Mitch made dozens of speeches asking votes from farmers for having cancelled the "iniquitous contracts with Quebec power barons." Actually, Mr. Hepburn already had concluded a definite understanding about new contracts to replace those cancelled. St. James Street thinks that if Mitch could get away with that he could also get away with amalgamation. They aren't particular as to what he might say in an election provided he could deliver afterwards.

Mr. Hepburn is already known to have in sight the largest campaign fund ever accumulated in Canadian politics—which is talking in very big sums indeed. Moreover, the organization of the Liberal party in Ontario is such that the constituency machines are all dependent on the Toronto headquarters for direction and support. They are all operated on a patronage basis, and far more patronage comes via the provincial than federal treasury.

In brief, therefore Mr. Hepburn is in an ideal position to see that in the 82 Ontario constituencies every Liberal candidate be acceptable to him. His close associate in Quebec is likewise able to muster 65 Duplessis-approved candidates. Considering the virtual disappearance of the Conservatives on the prairies, the vengeance of the C. C. F. in Saskatchewan, and the far-from-broken threat of Premier Aberhart in Alberta—Mitch can survey the political field in Canada and conclude that in a political cat-and-dog fight he might well emerge top dog.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND WHEN HE had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease. . . .

These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give. . . .

Behold I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. . . .

He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.—Matt, x: 1, 5-8, 16, 40-42.

DELUSION SHATTERED.

(Pantagraph, Bloomington, Ill.)

COMMENTING ON the published story of the proposed four lane belt line highway around Bloomington and Normal, the Springfield Journal calls attention to the gradual change which public opinion has undergone concerning relations of city traffic lanes to through highways.

"We have remarked," says the Journal, "in recent years how cities which once fought to have highways pass through their business districts now are asking for belt lines. This is particularly so with trading centers. The unnecessary congestion from through traffic discourages shoppers who live in suburban and rural areas from going into the heart of the shopping area to do their buying.

"Realization of what has been happening is an awakening from the 'business corner' delusion that has hoodwinked many storekeepers for years. The notion has been that the man at the crossroads will get most of the trade. But citizens of any town can recall many at the crossroads who have gone out of business.

"In the next few years, good money will be paid for a location on the most accessible (instead of 'busiest') corner. The store or firm management will stop being fooled by crowded streets and will instead demand for its customers ease in coming, going and parking."

A Bit of Nonsense

"Isn't a gentleman," someone was asked, "a man who plays lawn tennis without braces?"

"Not always," he replied. "As a matter of fact, a gentleman is a man who can dare to play tennis in his braces."

Hastings Pupils Increase At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 30. — Chairman of the Property Committee George Free reported to members of the School Board that all repairs commenced to school buildings during the summer had been completed. In addressing members of the School Board on Monday he said that a "real good job" had been done in repainting the outside woodwork of the old High School building. He recommended the installation of at least five additional posts to the new fence which had been erected between the Public School and the Johnson property on Ranney Street. Many minor repairs such as the repainting of woodwork and window sills in the High School had been completed at no cost to the Board except for material, since the janitor, J. Massey, had done the work.

A. G. Thompson, chairman of the Bus Committee, reported that the number of pupils from out of town points would be as large as last year with a slight increase from Hastings. Following a lengthy discussion of what new equipment should be made available in the general shop work at the High School, it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the Internal and Property Committee who should discuss the matter with E. H. Greig and E. Darling of the teaching staff. It was deemed probable that farm mechanics would be added as an option this year.

S. A. Maguire addressed the Board, and as a delegate from the Rotary Club asked permission to use the High School auditorium to hold a free meeting on October 14, when Dr. C. E. Barker would be the guest speaker of the occasion. The request of a Belleville resident for data regarding the cost of tuition at the Campbellford High School was dealt with, and the secretary was instructed to advise the parent who is considering sending his son to Campbellford that the rate would be approximately 71 cents a day or the same as the rate fixed by the county for the current year, which it was deemed would be somewhat less than in 1936-1937. The matter of determining the approximate cost for the current year was left with the Finance Committee.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 31.

Judging by the prevailing lunar ascepts, this may prove to be a day of upsetting, disturbing, sudden events, with gain in any direction problematical. There are signs of sudden loss, with probably bold, boastful strangers offering queer propositions which may be devastating in lure, and in final denouement. Travel, adventure, generally erratic and menacing conditions call for sturdy behavior and circumspection lest perils of every nature menace.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of sudden upsets and distresses, with radical change or upheavals of a thoroughly disruptive and disorganizing nature. These may be superinduced by wily and treacherous strangers whose lures and prodigious proposals may be almost overwhelming in their audacity. Such persons and propositions should be summarily dismissed before calamity and financial peril ensue.

A child born on this day may be bold, audacious and full of initiative. Its foolhardiness may culminate in disaster, although it may be exceedingly clever, original, fond of adventure, research and rash experimentation, possibly in connection with the development of nature's finer forces.

OBITUARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MRS. THOMAS H. FARROW

MILLBROOK, Aug. 30—The death of Mary Ellen Taylor, beloved wife of Thomas Henry Farrow, which occurred at Millbrook on Wednesday, August 24, following an extended period of ill health, removed one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Manvers township.

Mrs. Farrow, who was a daughter of the late William Taylor, and his wife, Mary Ann Howden, was born at Millbrook seventy-nine years ago, her parents home then being on Tupper street north. On October 18, 1881, almost fifty-seven years ago, the marriage of Miss Taylor and Thomas Henry Farrow took place, and their entire married life was spent on the homestead of the Farrow family, a few miles east of Pontypool, until one year ago when her health becoming seriously impaired, she and her husband retired from the farm and came to Millbrook.

Mrs. Farrow was of a quiet disposition, a loving and faithful wife and mother, and held in high esteem by all who knew her; in religion, she was a member of the Presbyterian church. Besides her sorrowing husband; the immediate surviving relatives include three daughters, Mrs. Alice Graham of Perth, Mrs. Ambrose Little of Millbrook, and Mrs. Robert Tysick of Perth; two sons, Harvey of Oshawa and Harry of Millbrook; also by three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Susie Wetherup of Millbrook, Mrs. Chris Graham of Toronto, Mrs. Phoebe Brines of Alberta and Mr. John Guthrie of Millbrook.

The funeral took place on Friday at 2.30 p.m. from the residence of her son, Mr. Harry Farrow, Main street, many friends and relatives gathering at the home for the service which was conducted by Rev. R. H. Williams, B.A, minister of the Presbyterian churches at Centreville and Millbrook. The pallbearers were all relatives and included: William Kinsman, Cecil Malley, Lorne Farrow, David Lunn, Robert Guthrie, and James Malley. Interment was in the family burial-plot at Pontypool cemetery.

The many beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which Mrs. Farrow was held, and among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Emma Winters of Orono; Mrs. Mary Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. John Parron, of Kendal; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Malley, Mrs. Sarah Malley of Newcastle; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farrow, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Farrow, Mr. and Mrs. James Malley, Mrs. Charlotte Whyte of Pontypool; Mrs. William Malley, Newcastle; Mrs. Annie Howlett, Mrs. William Lunn, of Peterborough.

CENTRETON

The Y.P.S. met on Tuesday night when a social meetipg was held with Miss Mabel Webb as leader.

Threshing has been on in our village this week. Wheat is reported to be an abundant crop, but oats are not so good.

Several in the village have been suffering from the stomach flu.

Messrs. Pete and Baxter Young, of Toronto, spent the weekend in the village calling on friends.

Mrs. Tomlin, of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McAuley and Mrs. S. Coffey.

Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie and Margaret and Neil, of Toronto, spent the weekend at the homes of his brothers in the village.

Mrs. John Merriam has returned home after visiting friends at Bowmanville and Oshawa.

Misses Marion and Enid Nichol were guests on Sunday of Miss Fraces Coffey.

Master Donald Harden, Eddystone, spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Merriam. Miss Shirley Joice was also a guest at the same home.

Joyce and Cornine Lisle of Castleton spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. Turk.

Rev. H. W. W. Bromwich took charge of the service Sunday at the United church after his recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. . Birney were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers and family.

Dangerous Fun

DUBUQUE, Ia., Aug. 30—(AP)—"But it was just for fun . . ." that is the way two boys explained their act when discovered shooting dynamite caps out of sling shots at a cement wall in an attempt to get them to go off. Police didn't think it was so funny. They took the remaining 75 caps from the boys.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 29.

Noel stared at Nick, the color rushed to her face, when he announced he was going to marry her. Nick poured himself a glass of champagne and sat looking at her through the bowl of his glass.

Finally Noel said, "That's absurd, Nick. I do not love you. I am not interested in marriage."

Nick sat twirling his glass now. "I'm not a bad fellow, really," he began in his tight voice. "You'd have found that out if you'd made any effort."

"But I'm not interested," Noel repeated.

"Wait a minute." Nicked moved over to a wall safe, twirled the dial until it opened and came back with several velvet jewel boxes.

"Look, these are for you! You've probably never realized that Nick Luigi's a rich man." He opened two boxes, displaying a diamond and emerald bracelet and a string of perfectly matched pearls that would have made a duchess envious. Then he opened a third box containing a large, very handsome diamond ring. "A Marquis," he said proudly. "Fifty thousand dollars—not a cent less."

Noel looked coldly at the jewels. They were magnificent, of course. But she was feeling like the heroine of some of the old-time melodramas in the nineties. One of those funny old songs was running idiotically through her head:

"Take back your gold,
For gold can ne-ver buy—me."

The situation seemed both absurd and laughable. But Nick was in deadly earnest. "Look at this apartment," he said. "It's all yours."

The big room was lovely, Noel had to admit. It had a cool cathedral air, with its high vaulted ceiling, and its oval stained-glass windows. Even the luxurious furnishings did not take away this effect. But to find Nick Luigi in such an apartment was the last thing in the world she would have expected.

"Your apartment is lovely, Nick," she said evenly. "And now I must go." She rose.

But Nick ignored that, too. "Everything I have is always of the best," he said. "That's why I want you."

"Good night, Nick," Noel moved to the door.

"You're not going?" Nick exclaimed in a voice of surprise, as if he could not possibly believe his guest would want to leave so early.

"I certainly am going," Noel retorted. "And listen, Nick, if you have any idea that you can keep me here, you'd just better get it out of your mind at once."

"You do slap very hard—I seem to remember." Nick came back with an unsual attempt at humor. Then he added, "The door is open. Nobody is keeping you."

Noel found that was true. She opened the door, started out.

Then Nick said, "So you're not interested in what I have to say about the young doctor?"

Noel hesitated. Then she turned and faced him. "If you have anything to tell me about him, which I don't believe, you'd better go on and say it."

She didn't look close at Nick. So she did not see the dark scowl that came to his face. But she could judge something about his mood from the grim, suddenly furious tone of his voice. "Just this: You're never going to marry him. Never—if I have to —." But he did not finish.

Noel stood there, a sudden weakness rushing over her. Nick's words had a familiar sound. This was the second time someone had told her that she would never marry Julian Paige.

Then Noel straightened and looked at Nick levelly. "Listen to this, Doctor Paige isn't any more interested in me than I—I am in you. And that is just exactly—NOT AT ALL." She stopped, drew a long breath, went on. "He has never asked me to marry him. And he hasn't the slightest intention of doing it."

"You lie almost as beautifully as you dance," Nick said grimly.

"It's the truth!" With that Noel opened the door and walked to the elevator, he wasn't sure she knew how to operate it. Probably she'd better walk down.

But Nick was standing beside her. "I'll take you down."

Neither of them said a word as the elevator whirred downward. Then Noel heard it give a little whine as Nick once again started it upward after letting her out with a brief "good night."

It was dark and rather eery down in the long dance hall. There was only one dim light burning at the entrance to guide her to the door—a long way from where she stood. Noel was feeling shaken. Nick's threat had frightened her, and the shadows in the long room seemed to rise up and reach out long talon fingers to grab at her.

But it was Maida. "I didn't mean to scare you, honey," she apologized timidly. "I just knew you'd gone up with Nick, and I—I just thought you might like for me to wait."

Noel gripped her arm in relief. "Maida, it was one of the sweetest things anybody ever did for me, I needed somebody—rather terribly."

"That's what I thought," Maida put her arm around her, and they walked together. "You had a bad time up there with Nick, I guess. He's a beast. But you can handle him, honey, so don't be afraid."

It had been a sort of nightmare in Nick's cathedral-like apartment. But it was over now. It was all over now. She was free of Nick—facing a new life in which he could never enter.

It was easy to regain her feeling of confidence once out in the fresh air with the coolness on her flushed face and the friendly clasp of Maida's thin little arm.

"This is my last night at Luigi's," she told her. "Thank heaven, I'll never have to go back."

"I'm glad too, honey," Maida said, "although I'll sure miss you. I've always been afraid Nick might cause you some trouble. You see, you're the kind of a girl that men fall for, and fall for hard."

Noel almost could have laughed at that. There was one man, she could have told Maida, who didn't fall for her, who had said that he never intendedto. And he happened to be the only one who counted.

She wondered, a sick pain coming up to her throat, what Julian was doing now, and were he was—and most of all, who was with him.

The light was on in the dingy room when Noel reached home, and Laurie was sitting up, her face rather anxious. "You were so late," she began, "I was beginning to be uneasy. Did Luigi make any trouble?"

"A little," Noel said, trying hard to make her voice sound unconcerned. She didn't want Laurie to worry, so she didn't tell her the threat, or the insinuation of a threat that had been in Nick Luigi's voice when he had spoken of Julian. But Noel thought Julian should know. He ought to be put on his guard.

The worried expression still lingered on Laurie's face, so Noel said reassuringly, "Listen, darling, I can always take care of myself."

"Even gainst Nick?" Laurie asked a little fearfully.

When they were in bed, after Noel had given her hair a hundred strokes, she asked Laurie the question she wished she could keep from asking, but could not. "Did you see Julian today?"

Laurie didn't answer. She was either reluctant to answer, or else she hadn't heard.

Noel raised up on one elbow. "Tell me, don't be afraid. I'm not going to jump into the river or anything like that. Did you see him and was he with Ruth Chester?"

"They lunched together and afterwards walked down the street," Laurie said hesitantly.

"I hate her," Noel cried suddenly. "I didn't know there'd ever be anybody in the world 'd hate as much as I do her."

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

The next moment Knarf came back to the playroom with the cat.

"Now, Mrs. Cat," he said to her, pointing to the rag doll lying on the floor, "that's poor Mary Jane. We need your help to get her out into the garden."

The cat went over and took a good look at Mary Jane. "Why, I declare!" she exclaimed in surprise. "That rag doll has no face—nothing but two shoe-button eyes!"

"That's right, Mrs. Cat. An awful think happened to her. The puppy tried to wash the smudges off her face so as to make it nice and clean. So she licked her face and licked it right off!"

"Puppies are foolish," said the cat. "I've licked the faces of my kittens dozens of times and they still have their faces. But what good is it going to do to get her out into the garden?"

"Oh," said Knarf, "you'll see. I have some friends out in the garden who know how to paint her face on again. She'll be as good as new."

Sounds Strange.

pretty strange to me. But since you're so sure you know what you are doing, I'll carry her out into the garden." Then the cat went over to her and picked her up gently in her teeth, just as she always picked up her kittens, and carried her out into the garden. Knarf followed right after her.

"Here—set her down here," he said, showing Mrs. Cat a place on a moss-covered stone near the garden wall. She set Mary Jane down as gently as she had picked her up. "Can I do anything else for you or Mary Jane?"

Then the cat went away, quite slowly. But half-way down the garden path she looked back. And what she saw surprised her more than anything that had happened before.

Surprise Your Friends With Clever Fortunes

Easy to Read Horoscopes

Carolyn knows one sure-fire way to interest a new man! She promptly reads his horoscope. And how he loves it!

Just now she's saying to Bob: "Since your birthday is July 25, your sign is represented by Leo, the lion. You are strong-willed, hopeful, joyous. Your lucky number is one. Sardonyx and crystal are your jewels."

Try Carolyn's technique on your boy friend. If his birthday is March 28 he'll love to know that he has fine business ability. His jewels are diamond and bloodstone.

If your birthday falls on Nov. 21, Sagittarius, the archer, represents your sign. You love adventure. Purple is your color, the amethyst your gem; lucky number, three.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of FUN WITH FORTUNE TELLING to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Stormy Arctic Nights Best For Radio

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—It may be a far cry "Down Under" to "Down North," but Dr. R. G. Ellis, on the staff of the Faculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto, a native of Australia, has just experienced a summer's dental practice among the natives of the Arctic. With headquarters at Aklavik, Dr. Ellis served under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada.

Eskimos make excellent patients and are extremely appreciative, Dr. Ellis said. Generally speaking, the teeth of the Eskimos are in better condition than those of the Indians. The teeth of the Eskimos, who habitually remain around Aklavik and are in touch with the white man and the white man's food, such as flour and sugar, are poor, said Dr. Ellis. The Anglican hospital at Aklavik, where Dr. Ellis held dental clinics, is as well equipped as the Toronto city hospitals, he claimed.

The isolation of the Arctic is accentuated for the visitor from outside in the absence of a good radio reception during the summer months. Curiously enough, programs from London, Eng., came in more clearly than any others, and especially on stormy nights. It was very difficult to get programs from Edmonton, and on fine, clear nights the radio provided no entertainment whatever.

Despite the distance and the isolation, some remarkable feats in merchandising service were registered in the Arctic during Dr. Ellis's stay at Aklavik. The Government doctor wished to purchase a movie-picture camera. He wirelessed his order to Edmonton, which city, being out of stock, telegraphed to Toronto. The camera, flown in from Edmonton, arrived in Aklavik one week to the day after the order had been wirelessed out.

Rebel Southern Base Threatened

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Spanish government reported today that General Jose Asensio's southern army had driven within less than a mile of Castuera, insurgent base on the Estremadura front.

The militiamen were said to have cut the trunk line railroad running from Castuera to Cabeza Del Buey, 20 miles to the east, and to be threatening to cut insurgent advance units leading the drive on the rich Almaden Mercury Mines.

The only link left between the insurgent base and General Gonzalo Queipo De Llano's extended advance positions at Cabeza Del Buey was a highway which was said to be under rifle fire.

Government reports said General Asensio's troops had gained nearly 15 miles since they started their counter-offensive to protect the Almaden mines 10 days ago and had recaptured virtually all the territory between the Zujar river and the railroad lost Aug. 1.

The insurgent offensive was said to have been halted completely by the government drive, but insurgent communiques said all government attacks had been "victoriously repulsed."

On the Ebro front in eastern Spain, dispatches from both sides reported local gains.

Crosses Atlantic

Leaving Hamburg, Germany, in a 30-foot yawl Heinrich Garbers, ABOVE, arrived unheralded and unsung in New York harbor Aug. 26, sporting a 38-day growth of red stubble and plans for more adventures. Garbers, 29 years old, plans a world trip next in a craft of different design.

First Combine

First all-crop harvester, or combine, to be operated on any farm in Peterborough county is owned by Howard Kidd, whose farm lies three miles southeast of Warsaw. This machine, fastened to a tractor cuts down any type of grain that can be harvested, threshes it, discards the straw and packs the grain in bags after cleaning it ready for sale. Used extensively in the west the combine is not seen in Ontario to any great degree. Mr. Kidd finds it highly satisfactory. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Rotary Aims Were Badly Needed In Drafting Of Peace Treaty

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 30—"Had there been three or four Rotarians sitting on each side of the table as the treaty of Versailles was signed it would not have been so onerous, and so hateful to the central powers", declared N. Alex McColl in a speech before Rotarians at their noonday luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel here Monday. In an address in fhich he outlined some of the highlights of the recent Rotary International Convention held in San Francisco, the speaker reviewed the growth of Rotary and its chief aims.

In endeavouring to explain why the organization did not exert a stronger influence toward world peace the speaker reminded his listeners that the peoples of these various countries in which Rotary is organized have their own thoughts and ideas and it would not be good judgment for us to interfere with their private affairs. "It is by this same method of reasoning that Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Gentile are able to sit down together as Rotarians. It is by submerging their differences and concentrating on the idea and ideals we have in common."

"Had their been three or four Rotarians sitting around the table as the Treaty of Versailles was signed there would have been no Hitler as Germany was headed straight for democracy at the close of the war," said Mr. McColl.

occurred yet, officials said, but there were a dozen tavern brawls in as many communities last night.

The Czechoslovak ministers met at Kolowrat palace to discuss their new plan to meet the demand of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans for territorial autonomy.

The foreign office said the plan had not yet been submitted in its entirety to the Nazi-supported Sudeten German party, but that Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten German leader, knew its broad features.

The Sudeten Germans justified their delay in making known their attitude toward government negotiations with the comment they could not say yes or no to proposals unknown to them.

But it was known that Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the minorities dispute, hoped he would get some hint from Henlein today or tomorrow as to whether the General trend of the reforms being considered by the state might be acceptable.

Both Lord Runciman's mission and the Czechoslovak Government were said to regard possible developments today and tomorrow as "crucial."

The foreign office also denied there was a likelihood of a meeting soon between President Eduard Benes and Henlein.

Czechoslovakia seemed to be the coolest nation of the states directly involved. Life seemed normal. Citizens paused at newspaper bulletin boards and displayed interest but not excitement.

Officials said a series of incidents similar to those of last night could be of grave concern to the government.

A policeman was hit with a chair; a mayor had his collar ripped; Sudeten German guards surrounded a tavern in which were 66 drinking laborers debating politics; a German's joke started a free-for-all in a street; and a Praha storekeeper fought with a German who tore a cartoon window display in last night's scraps.

The police report said most of the participants had been drinking, but elaborate testimony was sought to show the fights were minor to prevent exaggeration that might lead to misunderstanding between Czechoslovakia and Germany.

made up his mind which advice to follow and the whole policy of the British government is to guide him along the path of peace. A note from Mr. Chamberlin catching the German chancellor with an open mind might swing the scales away from a general European war, it was argued.

Sixteen cabinet members of a total of 22 were present when the meeting began. Sir Kingsley Wood, air secretary, was the first arrival. Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, walked in with Sir Nevile Henderson, ambassador to Germany, who was summoned home for conferences.

Prior to the meeting, the Prime Minister and Mrs. Chamberlain had their customary walk in nearby St. James's Park.

The Prime Minister and his ministers had virtually all shades of British opinion behind them should they arrive at a policy of frank speaking and grave preparations for the worst.

For days official quarters minimized the importance of preparations for German army manoeuvres. But when Sir Neville was called for consultations Saturday, the London press admitted considerable alarm. To-day the Daily Mail (independent) said:

"The British public are disquieted. Rumors of all sorts go around but from official sources people hear nothing. It is time that the British public were frankly told what is happening."

Official quarters appeared a little more relieved to-day. It was reported in reliable quarters that Sir Neville's report was not "too discouraging" and there was some hope still that the Sudeten Germans would agree to a measure of compromise with the Czechoslovak government.

There was obvious annoyance here with anti-Czech feeling attributed to the German press and over German reports that Britain was favoring the Czechoslovak government.

Dangerous Methods

The Times (Independent)) called this "a fantastic interpretation" of British intentions and criticized Germany's dangerous methods of hastening negotiations."

The News Chronicle (Liberal) in an editorial, title "Speak Plainly," said:

"If it is made evident in Berlin in terms which admit of no misunderstanding that a German attack on Czechoslovakia would find the British ranged beside the French in instant resistance to aggression, the German legions will not receive the order to march."

The only major paper to take the situation lightly, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express (Independent), thought it all "A false alarm."

OBITUARY

HUGH DEVINE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Aug. 30.—The funeral of the late Hugh Devine was held on Monday morning from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Rose Johnston to the Sacred Heart church, where High Requiem Mass was sung by Rev Father H. J. Farrell.

Interment was made in the Sacred Heart cemetery.

Cruiser Burned To Water's Edge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, August 30.—A car driven by Dr. Brien, of Windsor, jumped the sidewalk in front of Dorray's dress shop at Fenelon Falls on Monday and crashed into the plate glass front. There was a shower of glass in the interior of the store and the car was also damaged.

A fine new motor cruiser, the property of Ben Lindsay, and valued at $3,000, was totally destroyed by fire on Sunday morning on Cameron Lake. Mr. Lindsay was taking the launch out of the boathouse at Inverlochlin Grove, when it backfired and burst into flames. It drifted out into the lake and burned to the water's edge. It is understood the boat was insured.

Injured in Car Crash.

John Finkleham of Toronto was injured near Rosedale on the weekend when his car plunged into a ditch after striking some loose gravel on the highway. The car turned end over end after leaving the road. Twelve stitches were required to close the lacerations in Finkleman's face. The other occupants of the car, George and Henry Lake, of Toronto, and C. Clough, of Port Credit, were badly shaken up. Chief of Police Gordon, of Fenelon Falls, is investigating the accident.

According to reports from Hallburton, heavy cut of timber are expected during the fall and winter months. The Bailey & Way sawmill at Eagle Lake has changed management and will be operated by Mr. Bailey in future. Mr. Way has purchased a timber limit in the northland and will operate a camp during the winter. The Standard Chemical Company will operate a mill ten miles from Harcourt. This mill is splendidly equipped and a large boarding house and camp will accommodate a large number of men. This camp will open in October.

Heavy Traffic.

Proprietors of tourist resorts in this district report a thinning out of tourists during the week-end. Traffic on the highways on Sunday was the heaviest during the year, and some of the resorts are practically deserted. The influx of tourists from across the line was not as heavy as last year, but there was a big increase in the number of Ontario people at the lake resorts.

OMEMEE

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Drummond were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson, son Bruce and Mr. Geo. Raum of New York City.

Mr. S. H. Faulkner and family were visitors to Fenelon Falls Sunday.

Miss Ethel Rehill of Peterborough, was a week-end guest of Miss Lyla Parsons.

Mr. Gordon Hayes and friend, of Toronto, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hayes.

Mr. Arthur Marshall of Peterborough called on friends in the village Sunday.

Armies Skirmish Over 800 Square Miles

By Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

SCHOMBERG, Ont., Aug. 30 — (CP)—The mimic warfare now in progress in Central Ontario, participated in by all the permanent force troops east of Manitoba, is extending over an earea of nearly 800 square miles. With tanks, anti-aircraft guns and new type mortars, cavalry, infantry and artillery, the troops are engaging in manoeuvres under war service conditions.

The troops left their bivouacs near this village 35 miles northwest of Toronto at 6 o'clock this morning. The intention was to move them back in the direction of Camp Borden; but this time they will not have the assistance of the mechanical transport to give them lifts on the way.

Yesterday they covered the 45 miles from Camp Borden to Schomberg, being conveyed in three lifts a distance of 30 miles and marching the rest. Today, they have changed their character. They are not now the northland force moving south along their lines of communication, but the southland force moving north and confronted by an enemy imbued with the full purpose of bombing them from the air.

And, as if that were not enough, the Southlanders also will have to fight tanks and other armored vehicles.

Umpires Pleased.

The umpires, headed by Major R. G. Whitlaw from National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, announced last night that yesterday's operations were, generally speaking, "well carried out." Principally the task set was to practise precautions against aircraft while moving in a hostile country.

The scheme opened at 6.18 a.m. and was completed at 3.40 p.m. Four sorties were directed against the troops by low-flying airplanes.

The country over which this mimic warfare is being fought is favorable to airplane operations. It is quite flat, save for a few low, wooded ridges.

The advent of the troops in their various bivouacking areas has been welcomed heartily by the villagers.

Last night the horse lines of the Royal Canadian Dragoons were the centre of attraction near Schomberg. The 135 horses of A and B Squadrons were scrutinized with critical eyes. The soldiers found themselves discussing the animals with men who, even if they have not read books of the technique of horse mastership, are wise with the wisdom of experience in the daily handling of horses.

Hungarian's Plea New Czech Worry

PRAHA, Aug. 30—(CP-Havas)—The Czechoslovak government, already harassed by the turbulent Sudeten Germany, was beset by another complication to-day when the Hungarian minority presented a demand for absolute autonomy.

Representatives of the Magyar autonomist parties called on Premier Milan Hodza with their reply to the government's proposal for minority administrative reform. Their counter-demand was for complete self-government, granting of which, observers said, would in effect, sever an important part of the Czechoslovak state from central control.

Meanwhile Lord Runciman, unofficial British mediator who conferred with the Sudeten leader, Konrad Henlein, at Rothenhaus Castle yesterday, worked with his staff on the bases for resumed negotiations which he hopes to bring about between the government and the Sudeten minority.

In his conversation with Henlein the peer brought to gauge the degree of the pro-Nazis, resistance to modification of their stand for autonomy, and his mission's work to-day was an attempt to map an outline for negotiations which would suit both sides. Another meeting between Lord Runciman and the Sudeten leader was scheduled for this week.

New Detroit Gag

DETROIT, Aug. 30—(CP)—The out-of-town visitor season is at its peak just now and Detroit hosts are indulging to the fullest in one of their most smug pleasures—that of pointing out that Canada, as represented by Windsor, lies south of the United States, represented by Detroit, in direct contradiction that the United States lies south of Canada.

Glass 'House' For Chicken

The Rev. Frank E. Williar, of Mount Airy, Md., comforts his "bottle baby" as they appear in Westminster police court. The Rev. Mr. Williar was haled before the court by the Maryland S.P.C.A. on a charge of cruelty to this chicken. The pastor defended his novel housing of his pet claiming that it was not "unkind," and that the chicken gained weight more quickly than chickens raised in a more orthodox manner.

Church Plans Decoration Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 30.—A decoration service at the Trent Valley Cemetery, will be held on Sunday, September 18, the opening day in connection with the 75th anniversary of Trinity United church. This service will be the first of its kind to be held in this pretty little cemetery on the banks of the Trent River, and was arranged for by the Women's Association at their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, in the church basement.

A committee of young men and young women were appointed to assist during this very special week of activities from September 18 to 26. A visiting tour of the congregation will be made by the committee appointed and programs will be left in the home of all members.

Miss Jessie Lamb was in the village on Wednesday and was a guest at the Pollock-Orr wedding.

Donna and Isabell Beamish spent the past week with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKee, of Campbellford.

Miss Jemima Jackson of Toronto spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks.

Drunk Is Found Strangled In Jail Cell

MONTREAL, Aug. 30 (C.P.). — Arrested for drunkenness on Sunday night, James Kelly, 26, St. Albans, Vt., was found strangled to death in his cell early on Monday in No. 4 Police Station.

When Kelly was first found slumped on the floor of his cell, police thought he had died of acute alcoholism, but a routine autopsy performed by Dr. Jean Marie Roussel, medico-legal expert, revealed strangulation as the cause of death.

Police said they arrested Kelly on Sunday night and booked him on a drunkenness charge. Nick Sawchuk, also charged with drunkenness, was sleeping heavily in the same cell.

At midnight Kelly asked permission to telephone his mother at St. Albans to tell her of his arrest, but was refused, officers said, because he lacked money to pay for the long distance call. He was returned to his cell by the guard, who reported Sawchuk still in a deep sleep.

Apprised th prisoner had been strangled, police found nothing in the cell which might have served to strangle a man. Sawchuk, closely question, declared he knew nothing of Kelly death. He will be a witness at to-day's inquest.

Barn Is Destroyed

BELLEVILLE—A ball of fire blown from the blower of a threshing machine set fire to a stack of straw on the farm of James Hinchcliffe, Wallbridge, 14 miles from this city, late yesterday and the barn was completely destroyed along with 1,400 bushels of grain and a quantity of hay.

Fifty Dollar Bills?

KIRKLAND LAKE—W. Tasnick, 26, and unemployed, was arrested late yesterday at Larder Lake on charges of passing Mexican money. Police officials say Tasnick passed several fifty peso notes as $50 bills. He will appear in police court Thursday.

Great Religious Revivals Sweeping The World Coming Of The Messiah Is Near

The world is enjoying one of the greatest religious revivals in its long history, particularly in Africa, India and Europe, with North America lagging behind, the Rev. E. A. Langston, M.A., told a packed audience at All Saints' Anglican church last night. The gifted speaker who has visited middle Europe three times gave his impressions of the European nations which he visited, speaking mostly on the religious aspect.

Canon J. Douglas Paterson introduced Rev. Langston following a brief devotional period in which Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church assisted.

The speaker told of the grave unrest in Europe and the persecution of the Jews and said he could not help as a minister of God, but ask himself what is going to be the upshot of the mad armament race.

"Our God is a god of love and order and one who works to a plan. We have an unerring guide in the Book and by reading the signs of the times we are able to see how we fit into the Divine Plan. We can see that predictions made 2,500 years ago are coming truee," he said.

The nations of the world want peace but that uncanny power of Hell is working to another end. The Book says that the power of evil will be downed and the kingdom of peace established but the world will not end when Christ comes. It is an abnormal world and has never functioned yet as God intended it.

False Prophets.

In the world to-day there are many so-called prophets who are not expounding the Scriptures but their own views, which are out of harmony with God's plan. God himself has said that false teachers will arise who shall fool many, and the Communist leaders in Russia who are leading that nation away from God are examples.

Referring to the anti-God campaign which is being carried on in European countries and which has even extended to England, the speaker related that in spite of this there is a world wide witness to Christian teachings that exceeds anything else in the history of Christendom. "The press is carrying many fine religious articles today and radio is carrying church services." He said there are mass movements to God in India and Africa, and the powers of darkness are being shaken. In Europe the very conditions under which the people live is resulting in many turning to things spiritual rather than to material things. The greatest example of this revival, Rev. Langston said was driven home to him when he attended a religious conference at Budapest where 22,000 delegates assembled, and he expressed the belief that after seeing such a spectacle the churches of Canada need a new touch from God.

The eloquent visitor illustrated with passages from Scripture to show his audience how certain trends indicate the prophecies are coming true and in referring to the Jews, spoke at length on these people, whose movements are proof that the coming of the Messiah is near, and the crisis of the world is approaching fast.

"The Jews are hated and despised, are an outcast nation, but they are showing signs of life and all over the world the Jews are reading their Scriptures. In every phase of life where intellect is required the Jew is represented. Events in Palestine lead us to believe that the domination of the Gentile over Palestine is about to end.

The Biblical Hebrew tongue has been revived and Palestine which in many sections was an arid, desolate country is now blooming as a leading agricultural centre. The predictions made 2,500 years ago are coming true and to-day we see the Jews in large numbers going to Palestine, a sure sign that we are approaching the crisis.

'If we are studying the prophecy aright we cannot fail to see that the time of God's coming is much nearer and let me urge everyone of you to become members of the Christian church, revive your interest in things spiritual and live close to God."

Boy's Foot Is Crushed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 30—Ralph, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Richardson, Hastings, is recovering from injuries received when a stove fell over and crushed his foot while he was riding on the back of a truck.

Starling Flock Appears Like Cloud In Sky

A flock of starlings which stretched in a solid black cloud from the C.P.R. bridge on the river north beyond the Quaker Oats plant and almost as wide as a city block was the unusual sight which greeted workmen on their way to the factories early this morning.

It was an awesome sight as the birds looked for all the world like a swirling, weaving horde of grasshoppers and one could vision what might happen to a field of grain were they all to light in it at once. The birds were seen by Sergeant Wigg and several other members of the police force as well as factory workers and these men claim the starlings flew south in a leisurely manner with the long line reaching beyond their vision.

Congregate Along Otonabee

The birds have been congregating during the last few nights in the poplars and willows of the Otonabee river bed below the London street dam and north of Douro street, where they spend the night then take off in clouds in the morning.

Last night while the storm raged between seven and eight two Ashburnham residents attracted by the flocks of birds which appeared to be headed for the river drove in their car to the west end of Hazlitt street and down the river bank, where they sat and watched the starlings come in. They arrived from every point of the compaass, several flocks formed in long lines across the horizon. There was purpose to their flight, as evidently they knew exactly where they were headed. Earlier in the evening, two high flying hordes of the black sooty colored birds swirled in aimless flight high in the sky, like a swarm of bees, but finally dipped and zoomed like an aeroplane in a power drive straight for the clumps of trees along the river bed.

For more than an hour the birds arrived singly, in threes and five and in large flocks, and all settled down for the night but kept up a continuous chatter. It was learned from residents on Driscoll Terrace that the birds in lesser numbers have been using the river bed bushes as a rendezvous. Max Swanston, who lives at the corner of Douro and Driscoll Terrace stated that the gathering last night exceeded anything he had ever witnessed, and he remarked that the number of birds would run near the hundred thousand mark, which he believes is a fairly conservative estimate.

A few residents remarked that 15 or 20 men hidden in the bushes along the river with loaded shot guns would soon reduce the numbers, but it is doubtful if they could remain concealed until the birds came to rest on the branches of the trees. Enquiries made among farmers who have pea fields revealed only one who had been bothered and he stated the starlings had cleaned out a small plot in the large field, but did little damage.

The Big Muskies Are Biting Again

They're biting again! Such was the news that sent fishermen's spirits soaring once again last week. And here are some of the results. At LEFT is a 24-pound lunge caught in Rice Lake near Birdsall's by Zack Smoke of Alderville. CENTRE shows two Peterborough men proudly exhibiting a 19-pound and a 20-pound lunge, both caught in Stoney Lake. They are Clifford Woodcock and Colin Althouse. Largest fish to be caught in this district during the entire season is the beauty shown at RIGHT by its captor, Fred Green, 210 McDonnell street. It weighed 30 pounds, was caught on Stoney Lake.

Municipal Ills To Be Debated At 3-Day Rally

TORONTO, Aug. 30 — (CP). — A three day "clinic" on Ontario's municipal problems will open here tomorrow with the start of the 40th annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association. Representatives of civic administrations will discuss financial and other problems peculiar to their areas.

A list of 23 resolutions dealing with such topics as relief, taxation and education has been received at the Association office here. Consideration of resolutions will start Thursday with final action announced Friday afternoon.

After a welcome from Mayor Ralph Day of Toronto, and a reply from Mayor R. J. Waterous of Brantford to-morrow, the president, William Jelly, clerk of Leeds and Grenville counties, will address the meeting.

One resolution, sponsored by Kitchener, proposed a head tax of at least $5 on all persons between 21 and 60 whose annual income exceeds $100 and who are not assessed as owner or tenant. St. Catharines wants some means of assisting single unemployed who are in want.

Owen Sound, endorsed by London, desires municipalities be relieved of all costs in connection with preparation of provincial voters' lists. The resolution said the government had been charging the cost to municipalities. Brantford proposed all election costs be charged to the provinces.

Peterborough Has Proposal

Two border cities—Niagara Falls and Sarnia—want provincial and federal governments to enact Legislation or amend the present relief providing for "maintenance and hospitalization of all persons deported from the United States and who as a consequence become residents of border municipalities in which they previously had no residence."

Kitchener, Waterloo and Sarnia want the age limit for old age pensions reduced from 70 to 65. Brockville and Paris desire that school budgets should be subject to approval of municipal councils. Only school capital expenditures are subject to such review now.

A Peterborough proposal is that the hospital act be amended with regard to indigent patients in a municipality. The change would require indigent patients or their parents to be resident and gainfully employed in a municipality in order to make the municipality responsible for their hospital care.

Canadians 'Fighting' In Outmoded Wapiti

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Aug. 30—(CP)—The aerial bombing which so far has been an important feature of the mimic warfare now being fought over an area of 800 square miles south of Camp Borden is the job assigned to No. 3 (bomber) squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Commanded by Flight-Lieut. A. Lewis of the Ottawa air station the squadron is flying Wapiti aircraft. The type recently was superseded in the Royal Air Force, but did excellent service in the Middle East and is well suited to Canadian training purposes.

The army co-operation squadron, No. 2, commanded by Squadron-Leader T. A. Lawrence, Ottawa, is equipped with Atlas planes. It is expected this unit shortly will have new Westland Lysanders, now under construction at Hamilton, Ont. The new plane is the same as that used at present by the R.A.F. for army co-operation work.

Student officers and members of the staff of the army co-operation school at Trenton, Ont., commanded by Flight-Lieut. W. D. Van Vliet, have reached Camp Borden. The student officers are being given an opportunity to see a squadron of the type for which they are training in the field under active service conditions.

CHICKEN THIEVES

A farmer in Smith township living near the Emily boundary reports that one night last week he had 60 chickens stolen. The chickens were purchased in the spring and were of the Plymouth Rock variety.

FEWER DOG TAGS

A checkup of the dog license book at the police station reveals that more than one hundred dog owners have failed to purchase their licenses so far this year. Thursday morning the dog catcher intends to have several summonses issued and dog owners who have been lax on this point will pay extra for tags. So far 614 tags have been purchased.

PERMANENT RESURFACING

The streets in the vicinity of St. Andrew's Church are being surfaced with permanent material, black mulch or retread, that has has been used effectively on quite a number of the city's secondary streets. The work is being done by the Board of Works department on Brock Street from Aylmer to Reid Street and on Rubidge Street from Hall to Brock Street.

FIRE AT BEWDLEY.

A new car was completely destroyed Monday morning when it took fire in a private garage at Bewdley and before volunteer fire fighters could extinguish the blaze, the garage also was reduced to ashes. The car was owned by a Toronto man occupying a summer cottage owned by H. J. Goldring, and had put his car in the garage for the night. Two hours later the garage was in flames. The cause is unknown.

TIME EXTENDED FOR CONTRACT

Closing time for tenders on the additions and alterations to the Y.W.C.A. building at the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer Streets which was set for Monday night last at five o'clock has been extended until next Saturday at nine in the morning, daylight saving time. This change was made after the architects had received several requests from the bidders. The name of the successful contractor should be available early next week.

FISH WITH TWO HEARTS

Fred Green over the week-end caught a 30 pound muskie up on Stoney lake and it is not the first one that the Green boys have caught in that district for both Dr. Jack and George have each had their 30 pounders in years gone by but there was something peculiar about Fred's big muskie. He plannedto have it mounted, and when the taxidermist was cleaning the big fellow she found two hearts. And for those who doubt this story Fred can show them the two hearts for he has had them pickled believing that there would be some doubting Thomases.

TRANSFERRED TO KEENE

E. A. Fitchett, C.N.R. agent at Keene, has been transferred to Consecon, and will be succeeded by George Foley, assistant agent at Bancroft. Mr. Foley and his family will move to Keene this week.

CORDUROYS POPULAR

Patterned corduroy windbreakers and sports jackets which enjoyed consistent popularity during 1937 and last Spring in the States are making their first appearance in local shops. The trend is slightly away from the solid leather jackets, and more to corduroys and suedes. The suede jackets this year and including ski jackets are showing considerable pep and the suedes in contrasting colors are about the smartest thing in men's Winter wear that has appeared in recent years. Fall stocks are just beginning to arrive and so far only a few stores have received their supply.

Husband Pleads For Wife To Return

His plea for the woman to return to him and their two children was outlined in a letter received this week by Chief Newhall. Ward states his wife was seen near Millbrook where she has friends and is believed to have worked at Bailleboro for a short time. Her health is rather poor and it is quite possible the woman has had a lapse of memory. Mr. Ward stresses in his communication that he fears for his wife's safety because of illness, and feels she may not get the care she might need if among strangers. He also states he bears her no ill will and wishes her to know she is very welcome to return or to communicate with him and he will arrange for her transportation.

Mrs. Caroline Ward may be using her maiden name, Brownwood and she is described as follows: height 5'5", weight 160 pounds, black bobbed hair, grey eyes. When last seen she was wearing a brown print dress, white straw hat, brown stockings, white shoes.

Mrs. Ward or any person knowing her whereabouts is asked to get in touch at once with Chief Newhall of any member of the city police force.

Car Kills Buck

FOREST, Ont., Aug. 30.—(CP)—Howard Stade of Zurich went deer hunting—with his automobile. Stade said a big buck leaped out from the side of the road into the path of his car and was killed.

Horse Takes Five Loaves Of Bread From Wagon Of Opposition Company

AT LAST IT HAS been found; a horse that is disloyal to its masters, cares not one whit about all the Black Beauty legends, is a rank materialist.

This noble animal, servant of a large bread company, chose the heart of the city to defy precedent and bring shame to his owners Monday afternoon, while another of his kind stood scornfully by.

Two bread wagons, horse drawn, were standing one behind the other on Hunter street while their drivers were having a little snack in one of the restaurants. The animal drawing the second wagon moved up to the rear of the leading wagon and after some intricate movements of his teeth, succeeded in opening the door which gave admittance to the bread of an opposition company. He hauled four or five loaves to the road, began munching them with evident relish. If he had taken a bite or two and then turned away the insult would have reflected glory on his own company. But no, he continued to eat heartily.

Children's Art Delights Downey-Copp

R. F. Downey and Leo W. Copp, public school inspectors, were engaged this morning in a grateful assignment that came close to being a labor of love, the examination of written and graphic work by the children of one hundred schools of the county to be shown at the twelve school fairs that will be held during the early weeks of the fall term.

Writing, art and social studies were three of the general subjects to which they were devoting their attention with an immediate reward of delight at the excellence of so many of the papers and projects that thy found the placing of the awards a rather difficult duty.

Busy Judging.

An Examiner reporter called at the office of Frank C. Paterson of the Ontario Department of Agriculture where on a long table the first packages of children's work were opened. They happened to be from the Apsley district and by children of the schools of the north-eastern section of the county from the primer grade up to the fourth book. Mr. Copp yas deliberating on the submitted foolscap sheets of writing that had been done some time last June, and Mr. Downey was selecting art work in the order of merit.

Both inspectors said the children's productions were the best ever submitted to them for school fair competition.

In the art classes some of the children had prepared decorative books illustrating the history of navigation, for example, tracing by pictures they had clipped from various publications, development of water borne transportation from the first floating log to the "Queen Mary" and the "Normandie." Similar projects were devoted to a review of the progress of railways, agriculture and so on, involving a great deal of of ingenuity and childish research in obtaining the consecutive pictures to give their stories the graphic interest and sequence of event that command the examiner's deliberation. Obviously these projects are a form of objective education promoted by the prize list of the school fairs.

Illustrated Books.

Some of the illustrated books were entitled "From Runner to Radio," and one of the fine points "R. F." was trying to decide as the Examiner left the office was degree of merit of two exceptionally attractive books, one in which the wording was in straight lines across the page, and the other diagonally from the lower left corner up to the top right, from a picture of a runner on the one hand and a latest model radio on the right.

With the work of one hundred schools before them the extent of the examinations and the time required can be surmised. Probably they will be at it for days.

Had $2,500 A Month But Saved Nothing

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30.—(AP).—Oklahoma oil once poured $2,500 a month into the pockets of her late husband, Indian Jackson Barnett, but proud, stern-faced Anna Laura Barnett says she is now dependent on her daughter's charity for support.

"We saved nothing, Mr. Barnett and I," the widow told Court Commissioner Kurtz Kaufman yesterday.

Kaufman denied a writ of attachment in connection with a $15,000 judgment against her for legal services.

Mrs. Barnett said her only income was $20 a month rent from "an old house in Oklahoma," and a small sum from her daughter, Maxine Sturgis, $90-a-month Public Utilities employee.

Immigration Officer Threatens To Turn Aged Man Over To The Detroit Police

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—(CP).—John L. Zurbrick, district director of immigration, said to-day that 84-year-old Charles Clark, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., would be turned over to Detroit police unless a daughter, Mrs. Florence Jouch, Michigan City, Ind., notfies authorities within a few days that she will assume responsibility for her father.

The aged "man without a country" has been held at the immigration detention home here since Thursday when he attempted to enter Canada by way of the Detroit-Windsor tunnel and was turned back because he had but 80 cents and a ticket to Chatham, Ont. He said he was returning from a visit to his sister to the home of his brother Frank, in Peterborough.

Immigration authorities made enquiries and learned that Clark had been three years in the United States at the home of his sister and therefore had lost his Canadian citizenship. He could not be re-admitted unles sit was guaranteed he would not become a public charge. Messaged by immigration officials, the sister-in-law in Peterborough said she could not assume such responsibilities and added that her husband—Clark's brother—had died more than a year ago.

Meanwhile word is awaited from Mrs. Jouch. If she agrees to pay transportation charges to Michigan City, Clark will be sent there. If Clark is turned over to police he will probably be sent to an institution, Zurbrick said.

Clark was surprised to learn that his brother, whose home he left for the United States' visit three years ago, had died in June, 1937.

30 Ball Players Attend School

About 30 ball players attended the second training session this afternoon of the Toronto Maple Leafs' coaching school, ending a two-day course here. Many of the senior Petes got off work to don their uniforms and get expert tutoring from Clyde Engle of the Leafs. There were also a number of local and district juniors on hand, and a number of rallbirds watched the practise. Several of the officers of the Peterborough Baseball Club were in attendance, as well as Daniel Howley, former manager of the Toronto professional squad.

Clyde Engle coached the players in various phases of the game, showing them the correct methods in mound work, catching, throwing, fielding and hitting. Three of the senior hurlers, Lefty McNally, Gunner Whitehill and Joe Jakafby came in for some special instructions by the Leafs' ambassador, who expressed satisfaction at the turnout and the promising material shown. It was in direct contrast to the workout yesterday afternoon when only a handful attended. The baseball school here completes the circuit of coaching classes instituted by the Toronto Club this summer in various Ontario centres.

Wire and Cable Club Holds Picnic

Perry Kitchen's seven man tug-of-war team vanquished three other husky crews at Wallace's Point over the week-end when the Wire and Cable Club of the C.G.E. held their annual picnic. Seventy attended and the tugging competitions were the highlight of the enjoyable affair.

Arrangements were under the capable direction o. Eddie Williams with Clark Muir, and Perry Kitchen assisting and the picnic program was run off without a hitch under ideal weather conditions.

The following are the prize-winners in the various events: Three-legged race—R. Akers and F. Bowen; 100-yard dash—R. Akers; Needle and thread race—G. Conlin and H. Thomas; Wheel barrow race — F. Bowne and D. Seabrooke, Legros and N. Dolan; Nail driving contest —Ruth Dunkerley and Helen Roach; Men's swim — J. O'Neill, George Broadley; Ladies' swim—Ruth Dunkerley; Ladies' horse shoe pitching—Ruth Dunkerley and Marie Thomas; Men's horse-shoe pitching — Jack Smith and Tommy Townsend.

Bull Elephant Banished For Rough-Housing His Girl Friend Hilda

New York, Aug. 30.

BILL, A TRUCULENT 4,500-pound elephant was banished from the Prospect Park Zoo's elephant house in Brooklyn today for rough-housing his girl friend, Hilda.

Bill, a bully who doesn't know his own strength, butted Hilda yesterday and knocked her over a railing. She landed at the bottom of a 10-foot concrete moat—3,000 pounds of injured feminine pride.

Her hind legs temporarily paralyzed by the fall, Hilda was hoisted out by a derrick. She sulked in her boudoir today, but Zoo veterinarians said she would recover.

Leonard Clancy Is Building Dairy In City

Work was begun Monday on the construction of a dairy to be owned and operated by Leonard J. Clancy at the corner of Park and Stewart streets. The contract was let to H. T. Hickey, and the foundation will be completed in a few days. The building will be thirty feet by forty feet, one story and basement, reinforced concrete flooring, and the walls of cinder block with stucco finish. It is expected to be finished before October 1 when the new pasteurization law comes into effect. Mr. Clancy has built up an extensive retail milk business in Peterborough with his own accredited herd of cattle. He had conformed to all the local regulations requiring sanitary source of milk supply and also the cooling and bottling of whole milk, and now that pasteurization is becoming a general enactment he is constructing and equipping a modern pasteurization plant on Park Street south.

Real Good Fishing In White Lake

White Lake may not be shown on your map, but the air maps have it, so Mr. F. Aitkins, of Belleville, noticed this lake and figured it would be a good place to fish, so up he came from Belleville and successfully landed a 32 lb. lunge on the morning of Aug. 18. Last Wednesday Rufus and Norman Payne caught a 15 lb. lunge, and their limit of bass. They were accompanied by Wm. Aikens of New York and E. Sckreiher of the same city. Excellent fishing was reported Sunday on the lake.

This lake is situated on the way to Crowe's Landing at Gilchrist Park. You may reserve your boats by calling Mr. Bryan at 13-R3, Warsaw. Tables are there for picnic parties, too, and ample space for car parking. A booth is situated right at the park.

Pay a visit to the quiet, restful spot and you will come again. It is just an hour's drive from the city. —Advt.

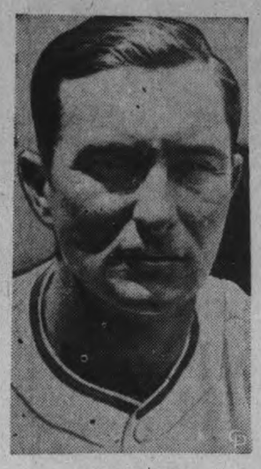
ONLY THREE SURVIVORS OF LAST YANKEE-PIRATE CLASH IN 1927

Pennants Are Not Won Yet But We Glance Backward At Last Yankee-Pirate Meeting

LLOYD WANER
Pittsburgh Pirates

LOU GEHRIG
New York Yankees



PAUL WANER
Pittsburgh Pirates

They're the only three survivors of the last Yankee-Pirate clash in 1927. Will they meet this year?

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—It is begining to become evident that the Pirates will be the National league team that opposes the Yankees in the world series this year. The Indians, Cubs and Giants are being counted out with September here. The boys in the back room have conceded that the race is over, and have begun to discuss the coming football season.

All of this may be a bit premature, but some unforgettable pictures remain of the last world series in which these two met. Pie Traynor, wh played third for the Pirates in that classic, now is manager of the Bucs. Only two players who faced the Yanks are still going, those Poison Brothers, Paul and Lloyd Waner. It might as well be added that they are going strong, too.

Gehrig the Only Yank

Only one of the Yankees of that great 1927 team remains—the Iron Horse himself. Donie Bush was manager of the Pirates then, Miller Huggins of the Yankees. Donie has gone back to the association and the little Miller is dead. The Pirates that year finished the season a game and a half ahead of the Cardinals, two games in front of the Giants.

Forecasters of that series liked the batting punch of the two Waner boys. Paul Waner had led the league with a batting mark of .380, and Lloyd, in his first year in the majors, had led the circuit in singles.

In the series the unexpected came to pass when Koenig, shortstop of the Bombers, led all hands in hitting with a mark of .500. Ruth and Lloyd Waner hit .400. Paul Waner batted 333. Gehrig, who had hit 47 home runs during the season against Ruth's record 60, dropped to .308 during the series.

Brief and to the Point.

The Yanks took it in four straight games. Kremer started for the Pirates, and though he gave up only five hits in five innings, the team played loosely behind him, and Miljus finished the game, being invincible in the last four innings. Lou Gehrig's triple was the longest hit of the game. Hoyt started for the Yankees, relieved in the eighth by Wiley Moore.

Though Ruth went hitless in the second game, against the pitching of Alridge, Svengros and Dawson, the Yankees rolled up 11 hits, mostly singles, and won, 6 to 2. That game saw one of the greatest fielding plays ever performed in a world series when Lloyd Waner ran far back to snare a long drive from the bat of Earle Combs, George Pipgras, who is an umpire now, pitched that one for the Yanks.

The third game saw Ruth come to life. Lee eMadows stopped the Great Man cold the first three times he came to bat, striking him out once, making him pop and roll out. But in the seventh Meadows weakened and Svengros was sent to the mound just in time to pitch to Ruth, with two on base. Wham! Final score was New York 8, Pittsburgh 1, and Herb Pennock, now a Red Sox coach, was master of the Bucs all the way.

The Finale

Ruth socked his second homer in the fourth and last game of the series. Carmen Hill pitched fine ball for the Pirates for six innings when he gave way to a pinch hitter. The score was tied going into the ninth inning, Miljus pitching. Combs walked, Koenig singled. Ruth was purposely passed.

But Miljus stiffened at that point and when he struck out Gehrig and Meusel, it appeared he would weather the storm.

Then, with Lazzeri at bat, Miljos became one of the unforgettable goats of world series history. He hauled back and heaved a sweeping curve high over the catcher's head, letting in the winning run.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BIG GAME HERE THIS week is tonight, weather permitting, at six in Riverside between Oshawa Varcoes and the Westclox men softball artists. 'Tis the second tilt in their O. S. A. playdown series, Westicox having won the first in the Motor City last Friday. If a third is necessary, it'll be on neutral grounds unless the clubs agree to one of their own diamonds. The winnah meets Kingston next, but the loser takes a powder out of further competition in this year of grace and grasshoppers. Ought to be a bumper bunch of boys and gals attending tonight's tussle as it'll be a real classy playoff encounter, jammed with speedy action all through.

* * * * * * *

PILOT PAT HAYDEN OF THE Clockmen will likely start Tom Parsons on the mound, while Preem Whitely is almost a cinch to get the nod for the Oshawa slab, Preem is a big boy with one of the fastest balls seen in softball circles, but we feel the locals can reach him for enough bingles to gain the decision. Parsons is a fine flinger, too, and will have Bateman ready in case of trouble. These teams play softball that is close to the spectacular, pegging the apple around the short diamond like bullets in a shooting gallery. Yeah, we have no hesitation at all in advising fans who like action in an important game to ankle over the bridge for this fray.

* * * * * * *

'Twas A Secret Drill

NOT A GREAT DEAL of interest shown by local ballsters in Clyde Engle's baseball lesson yesterday afternoon at Riverside. When we visited the park around two o'clock there was scarcely a dozen players on hand, four or five of these being boys from down along the lake front. Rain in the evening spoiled what would have been a better drill, and then there was the softball scrap slated for tonight. so it was a rather fruitless visit by Engle and his Toronto Leafs companions. Last year, the Leafs' scout had a good gathering on hand, but many of 'em were junior O. B. A. ballsters and also Bill Regan brought up a bunch from down Marmora way. Evidently these lads didn't feel they learned enough to warrant the trip again, or they weren't interested—and this year the Ralph juniors are out of competition.

* * * * * * *

WE DON'T BLAME THE ball club officials or players, but rather the lateness of the season for the Toronto coaches' visit. The summer sport will soon be over now and the younger lads are losing their midsummer interest. And surely Engle didn't expect the seniors to knock off work in the afternoon to get some lessons in the rudiments of the game. A tough break in the weather in the evening. Nor did the Leafs send any advance publicity on their visit this time. Unlike Clyde Beatty, the lion tamer, Clyde Engle mustn't believe in publicity.

We've Been Tellin' Ya

AFTER THE 5-2 WIN HERE Saturday, the Oshawa oracle orates: "The Petes were most impressive Saturday and right now we wouldn't want to bet too much of China's tea that the C. O .B. L. title doesn't change hands this season. The Petes are clicking now and that's the difference, the only difference when two well-balanced high class teams meet in a championship series. The team that gets the breaks wins the laurels and the Petes are getting 'em right now." He slips McNally a boost, neglects to mention the good umping, says the protest will be fought out by Oshawa, and adds that the GM-men are not too fussy about the Petes' proposal to postpone next Saturday's struggle till Labor Day—as several of our players will be on hand at Cy Whatley's wedding next Saturday. Says the GM-men "will likely insist that the original playoff arrangements be kept."....

KAWARTHA TENNIS SINGLES matches were rained out yester gloamin' but they'll be run off tonight under the same schedule. The list for the week and draw for doubles is posted at the courts, and those concerned should get the lowdown and be on deck to play when called upon. A big tennis tourney is billed for Lindsay on Labor Day, men's doubles only, with some of the best racquet-wielders on hand from Peterborough, Lakefield, Omemee, Cannington, Woodville, Uxbridge, etc. Play begins at nine bells, standard time. Incidentally, daylight saving time here finishes early next week, and the tennis winds up locally ere long, too.

But The Shadow Knows!

NOTHING NEW FROM grid headquarters here, but rugby drills are being run nightly with a good turnout on hand. A deadly silence re more imported huskies and who is really the Orfuns' coach this year, and his assistant. Maybe the "denouement" on the eve of the first game will startle the opposition into submission. Meantime, nightly workouts continue by the Nationals in Mo'real, the Beaches in Toronto and the Imperials in Sarnia. All clubs are rated powerful potentially, and in fact the Imps have so much good backfield material that Coach Art Massucci is shifting some of the huskies up to the line. He has added Tony Golab, the one-man team from Windsor's Kennedy Collegiate, to his roster.

* * * * * * *

LOCAL LACROSSERS HAVE a practise tomorrow night at seven and all should attend with their war togs on. Last night's midget semi-final playoff was washed out and the Lions and Kinsmen will resume it Wednesday p.m. at 6.45, Lions having a lead of several goals and the game being a five-period one. Winner goes in against the smart Y's Men's crew in the two-in-three midget finals. The all-star O. L. A. midget bunch is supposed to be selected this week. The senior Petes will probably be idle till after Labor Day, though this is not definite as yet.

* * * * * * *

PICKING 'EM OFF THE GRAPEVINE: Trenton Fliers took a 13-8 win over Lindsay last eve at Scugogville in the first of their intermediate "C" O. S. A. playdowns. . . . Oshawa juniors rubbed out Belleville handily and now tackle Toronto Columbus Boys in O. B. A. playdowns Wednesday. . . . Bowmanville again took the Lakeshore Ball Loop intermediate title, beating Port Hope in the windup series. . . . Belleville and Napanee will finish their Bay of Quinte circuit finals this week. . . . Soxy Gray, ex-Bellevillain, tops Frood Mines softballers in homers. . . . Red Geddes is back here on a visit. . . . Some of the Motor Citizens feel Peterborough pulled a grand slam on 'em last weekend with wins in men's softball, lacrosse and baseball. . . . Bernie Thornton won't play football here, having gone with Argos. . . . The puck import deadline ought not be forgotten in rugby excitement here. . . . We don't care if the Orfuns have poise this autumn—but we hope they have avordupois!

Alderville Pair Compete At CNE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Aug. 30.—Although coming in approximately fifteen minutes behind the winners, Zack Smoke and Fred Smoke of Alderville were in the money at the sculling championship contest at the C.N.E. in Toronto on Saturday. The Smokes received $5 each and expenses paid.

They left Alderville on Saturday morning at four o'clock, motored to Toronto, taking along their canoe, paddled the fifteen-mile course, took in a good part of the exhibition and motored back, reaching home at 2 a.m. on Sunday.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (AP)—Hank Greenberg of Detroit now is well ahead of Babe Ruth's 1927 pace (that's the year the old master slammed out 60) and may go on to an all time record....Benny Leonard, whose first restaurant folded, will try it again....Brooklin is agog with those "Grimes to go" rumors again....Why Feller is losing—161 walks in 210 innings.

The United States west is coming right out and predicting the collapse of the Pirates for fair....Bill Terry's flag hopes went with Hubbell's arm....That dope about Joe Gould and Tommy Farr pulling away from Mike Jacobs and hooking up with German Taylor of Philadelphia rates a great big haw....Wes Ferrell hasn't impressed Yankee fans ....He's credited with two wins in three starts, but the impression prevails he is all washed up and that Clark Griffith knew what he was doing when he handed Wes the well-known pink slip.

Mickey Cochrane probably will be back in the majors next season, but the odds are it won't be with the Athletics—where he started....Connie Mack is in the first flight of Mickey's admirers but when he quits he's going to turn the club over to his son, Earl.

Bus Ham of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman furnishes this one: Last year Carl Hubbell hurried home after world series for a bit of golf . . . He is a left-handed pitcher, but a right-handed golfer....One day the club pro was trying to straighten out Carl's drive...."Keep that left arm as straight as you can on your backswing and downswing" he advised . . . Carl pulled up his sleeve and showed the pro his famous salary whip. "My gosh(it's as crooked as Harry Lauder's cane," said Dudley Taylor, the pro....It got that way because Hubbell finished every pitch of his famous screw ball with the palm of his famous left hand turned up....

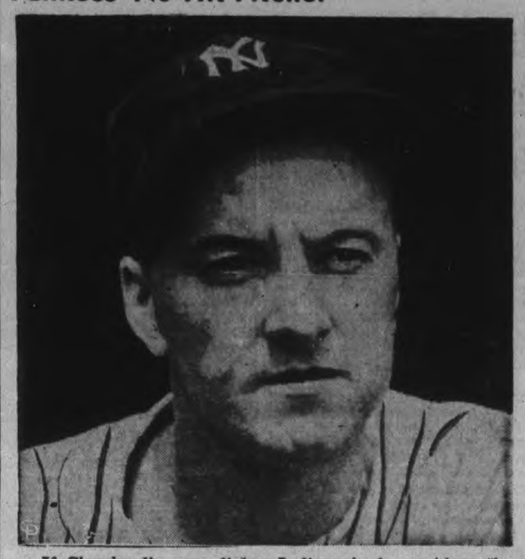
Joe Dimaggio's bat has Yankee fans flag-happy....If Lou Gehrig can belt nine more homers this season he'll become the second player in major league history to whang 500 four-basers....(the Babe collected 714) .... Most superstitious guy in the National League is Bill Lee of the Cubs who won't have his picture taken on the day he is scheduled to pitch.

Hiked To Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 30. — A desire to visit his old haunts here seems to have prompted William Alexander, 76-year-old resident of Cobourg Old People's Home, to hitch-hike to Hastings, a distance of 30 miles, last Saturday. He arrived here with a local resident, who had picked him up in his car a few miles from the village.

Yankees' No-Hit Pitcher



If Cleveland's nose-diving Indians had any ideas they were in the same class with the world's champion New York Yankees, such ideas were pretty thoroughly shattered when they went into New York for a six-game series and were pulverized into submission in five games, topped off by the sensational feat of Monte Pearson, ABOVE, who turned the Tribe back without a hit. Only two walks, both in the same inning spoiled a perfect game for the Yankee right-hander as he marked up his 10th straight win. It was the first no-hitter in the American League since Vernon Kennedy turned back the same Indians in 1935, when pitching for Chicago White Sox.

Cycling Cleric Playing 150 Holes Of Golf In 11 Hours, 22 Minutes

Montreal, Aug. 30.

POINTE CLAIRE'S "CYCLING cleric" had hit the news again today—but he lost five pounds in the process.

Rev. Albert Hinton, noted in his United Church Parish 20 miles west of Montreal for his long-distance bicycle trips, went in for a new form of marathon yesterday. When he finished he had walked 30 miles and had played 150 holes of golf over Beaconsfield's 6,182-yard course in 14 hours and 10 minutes.

Actual playing time, he says, was 11 hours and 22 minutes and his total was 736 strokes, or just under 88 strokes per round. He started at 5.55 a.m.

The 56-year-old clergyman last attracted attention two weeks ago when he pedalled to Toronto to replace a sick fellow minister at a Sunday service. Last year he cycled to Winnipeg to visit his son and in 1936 his bicycle wanderings brought him 2,400 miles to Des Moines, Ia. He performed the feat in 24 days.

Earl Hahn Leads Hastings League With .462 Average

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 30.—Earl Hahn, pitcher for the Tanners' softball team, will receive this year's award for leading the batters in the local loop. He played the full eighteen games, was at bat seventy-eight times and had thirty-six hits. His percentage was .462.

"Toe" Ibey, former Cobourg baseball player, and also playing with the Tanners, was second with a percentage of .453. Dit Clapper, Outlaws' manager and pro hockey player, was sixteenth on the list with .361 per centage. George Bonds, bitter rival of the Tanners who head the list, is at the bottom of the heap with .143 per cent.

Following are first ten batters and percentages:

	G.P.	AB	H	P.C.
E. Hahn	18	78	36	.462
T. Ibey	14	64	29	.453

(Standings as prepared by Earl Boyle, official score-keeper).

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Rudy York, Tigers—Clouted two home runs and two singles for six runs batted in as Tigers routed Red Sox 15-1.

Cy Blanton, Pirates—Pitched nine-hit ball, fanned five and gave only one walk, and drove home three runs with pair of singles as Bucs topped Dodgers 10-1.

Bucky Walters, Reds—Held Giants to seven hits in gaining 6-3 triumph.

Cecil Travis, Senators—His brilliant catch of Hal Trosky's fly started double play that killed off Indians' rally and gave Washington 6-4 win.

Remember When—

Tonypandy Tommy Farr, Welshman who wasn't supposed to have a chance, stunned experts with his plucky 15-round showing against Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, at New York one year ago tonight. The negro had no difficulty winning the decision but couldn't stop the rugged challenger.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 30.

MILDRED (Midge) Lefler, 17, pitched 310 consecutive innings of softball yesterday and last night but lost 98-91.

Her mound opponent, Zeke Palmer, also went the route. So did the umpires and the rest of the players.

Starting at 5 a.m., two men's teams, with Miss Lefler the only woman participant, played until 11.20 p.m. (CST) with no intermissions—even for food. They ate while they played.

Players believe they have set a "record," and there was no one to dispute them.

No hits nor errors were recorded. The scorekeeper said he had enough to do.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

E. Nicholls' rink from Bowmanville was declared the winner of the Central Ontario playoffs played at Oshawa last evening. His was the only three-game winner. When we left the Oshawa greens at an early hour this morning two Oshawa rinks skipped by B. Ward and E. Goodman were fighting it out for second place.

Fourteen rinks from seven clubs in the association made up an ideal entry. Never before has such an interest been shown in the competition. It was, by far the best playoffs held in this district this season. A great deal of the credit must go to President E. Hircock, Cobourg and to Secretary C. Keith of Cobourg.

We hope it warms up a bit for our twilight tournament of tomorrow evening. Get in your entry boys. The bowling season is rapidly coming to a close. Down at Campbellford yesterday afternoon, 26 mixed pairs were entered in the tournament of that town, four pairs going down from Peterborough—and first honors go to none other than Mrs. A. Heckman and G. Fee and what makes this win the sweeter is this—its the first time this pair ever played together—the first time Fee ever skipped in a tournament of any kind and we believe its the first mixed doubles tournament of the season — and then any pair that wins from T. Topping and wife from Belleville certainly deserve all the glory there is. Mrs. Heckman received an electric coffee percolator and G. Fee received a walnut smoking stand.

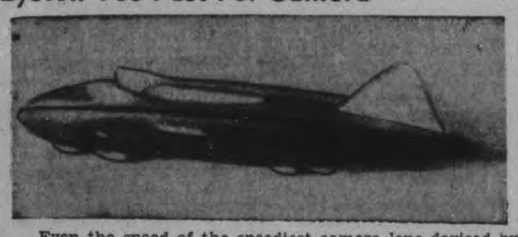
Manchester, England, Aug.30.

KIDNAPPING HAS been done in Manchester. But police after a three-hour hunt found seven-months-old Kathleen Jones and the culprits. Two girls and a boy were playing "house." They wanted a baby to complete the picture so they borrowed Kathleen. Police found them, their faces powdered and rouged, bathing a laughing baby in a public fountain.

Eyston Too Fast For Camera



Even the speed of the speediest camera lens devised by man couldn't snap the picture of Captain George E. T. Eyston, piloting his Thunderbolt cars at an average speed of 345.49 miles per hour, without getting this movement on the film. The British daredevil sped 347.49 m.p.h. on the north run of a measured mile, and 343.48 on the return trip. Thus Capt. Eyston eclipsed his old mark of 311 m.p.h. by more than 34 miles per hour. Note the car painted black to eliminate the sun glare which robbed him of the mark on a previous run.

New Insect Worries The West

Moose Jaw, Sask., Aug 30.

ORICHES of Moose Jaw found a strange type of pest that is similar to a grasshopper, but has no wings.

The insect has a larger body than a grasshopper, a body like that of a crab with a long, thin pointed tail. It has large jumping legs and an antennae similar to a grasshopper.

New Huskies Coach

SASKATOON, Aug. 30—(CP)—Appointment of Colb McEown as coach of the University of Saskatchewan Huskies football team was announced by the directorate today. McEown succeeds Kent Phillips who was granted leave of absence from the University this spring. McEown played for the Huskies in 1922 and graduated in arts the following year.

Cubans Fishers Win

LIVERPOOL, N.S., Aug. 30 (CP)—The Cuban team won the second international tuna fishing tournament today, killing two fish on the final day of the three-day competition. The United States fishermen caught only one bluefin, and the third, team representing the British Empire, was unable to hook a single fish.

Softball Playoff On Here Tonight

The best men's softball game of the season, an O.S.A. playdown fixture, will be staged here to-night (Tuesday) at six o'clock in Riverside Park, weather permitting. It is the second game of their Provincial series between Oshawa Varcoes and the local Westclox, the latter team having taken the first in Oshawa last Friday. Manager Pat Hayden's crew hope to make it two straight and save running a third game on neutral grounds. The winner advances into the second round of the O.S.A. playdowns against Kingston, while the loser is eliminated for the season. At 20 cents admission, this play-off number should pack in a record softball crowd at Riverside to-night.

Probably Tom Parsons will twirl for Westclox, with Lorne Bateman in reserve, while Preem Whitely—ace speedball heaver—is almost sure to get the Oshawa assignment. Undoubtedly, these teams play wonderfully fast softball, flashing the ball around like a streak, getting good hurling and some hard hitting. Their games are packed with speedy action and clever playing, and they deserve plenty of financial and vocal support on their hunt for Provincial honors. Both clubs will be at full strength and battling hard in this tussle.

MAPLE LEAFS DEFEAT BUFFALO BISONS IN A SMART GAME, 1-0

Run Is Scored On Wild Pitch In 5th Inning

TORONTO, Aug. 30 (Special). — By the meagre margin of a wild pitch, the Maple Leafs carved out a narrow 1-0 triumph over Buffalo Bisons last night, in what was by far the fastest floodlight game of this and many another season, at the local park.

Joe Mulligan, the Boston Big Boy, gained the nod in a keen mound duel with Fabion Kowalik, when his veteran right-hand opponent let a fifth-inning pitch get out of control, and Mayo Smith sprinted home from third with the only run of the game.

The entire game was based on the remarkable control of both hurlers, and it was rather peculiar that the result should be decided by such an errant toss.

The Leafs collected only four safeties all told, including one which didn't have enough strength to roll as far as the mound. Two of those safeties were packed into the fifth inning, however, and paved the way for the run.

Smith Opens Rally.

After retiring thirteen successive batters, Kowalik gove up a clean smash to centre by Mayo Smith with one away in the fifth, Petoskey beat out a slow tap in front of the plate and both runners advanced as Al Smith was tossed out. At this stage Frankie Reiber was passed intentionally, loading the bases to get Mulligan.

But Big Joe, a notoriously weak hitter, must have impressed Kowalik by the manner in which he swung that little stick, for the visiting twirler appeared to tighten when faced with the only real danger he encountered throughout the piece. The third pitch bounced in front of the plate, struck Catcher Ed. Phillips on the thigh, and bounced away as Mayo Smith sprinted in to cross the plate. Then Mulligan struck out weakly to end the inning.

The pitching had to be good to complete the game in only one hour and seventeen minutes. In the second, third, seventh and ninth, only three batters faced Mulligan, while Kowalik got the Leafs in order in the first, second ,third, fourth and seventh.

Fielding Features.

A pair of Bisons were thrown out trying to grab an extra base. In the fourth Oglesby tried to go from first to third on Carnegie's looper to left, but Manush threw him out. One of the finest plays turned up in the seventh when Boland lined a hard smash to right. Petoskey threw a perfect strike to second and Al Smith grabbed the ball in gloved hand and tagged the runner in the same motion to make it perfect all round. Burns recorded the final out by capturing Tyler's foul hoist in right field territory.

The longest blow of the game was off Al Smith's bat....The peppery young second baseman literally tore the cover off the ball in the third, but Carnegie backed up against the fence in deep left field, stretched high, and made a one-handed catch ....Smithy was cheated again in the fifth....He smashed one back at Kowalik, but the hurler knocked it down....The ball bounced and caught the Bison in the face, but he threw to first for the putout....

Burns's two-bagger to left was the only extra-base clout of the game ....Tel Olson will face the Herd this evening in the series finale, and then the Leafs have three days of rest....And here's a scoop....The Leafs and Montreal Royals will play a double-header on Saturday afternoon....That's right, in the afternoon.

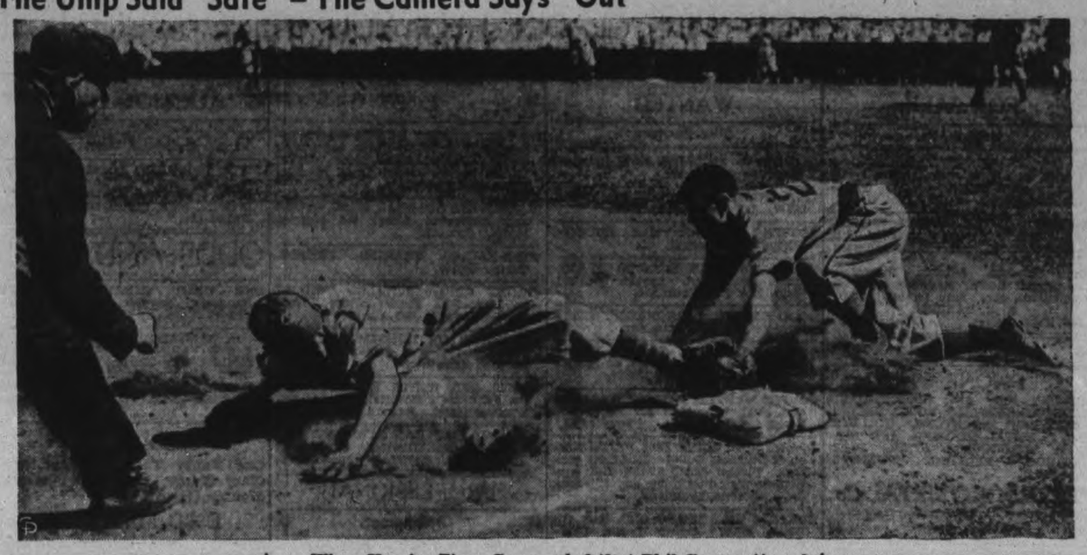
Knox Tennis Club Gets Semi-Finals

Knox Club won the semi-finals in the Church Tennis League on Saturday by taking a 4-1 decision from Trinity. The Knox crew now enter finals against All Saints' 'B' team, who defeated George St.

Trinity took the ladies' singles when Capt. Jean Moore returned after an absence of two months to beat Hazel Bradley, 6-0 and 6-2. Knox won the ladies' doubles with M. Lewis and Grace Stewart defeating M. McIntyre and C. Forrest, 6-2 and 6-2; L. McBain and Marg Parker lost in mixed doubles to Fred Watson and Helen Beatty of Knox, 6-2, 6-1; Harold Charlton took the men's singles for Knox from E. Ward, 6-1, 6-1; Knox mens' doubles of Ron Bassett and Ralph Charlton won from C. Davern and Don Sedgewick, 6-3 and 6-1.

The Ump Said "Safe" – The Camera Says "Out"



When Umpire Ziggy Sears ruled that Phil Cavarretta, of Chicago Cubs had slid safely into third on this play in a game against Pittsburgh's league-leading Pirates, Lee Handley, Pirate third baseman argued so vehemently he was ordered out of the game. The ump's decision on the play stood, as it usually does, but the camera proves that third sacker Handley was more than justified for protesting. This great action shot shows Sears calling the play and Handley, the ball in his gloved hand, clearly BLOCKING CAVARRETTA'S FOOT OFF THE BASE.

Terry Astounds League By Pessimism

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—(AP). — Some of his colleagues are saying Bill Terry ought to be expelled from the managers' local because he has publicly inferred that his Giants haven't a hope of winning their third straight National League pennant.

Terry, already more or less noted, if not beloved, for his forth-rightness, flaggergasted a correspondent who asked him if he thought the Giants could make it. "Make what?" the colonel was quoted as having replied. "The way we've been going we'll be lucky if we make the train."

This was taken to mean the colonel had given up, with still a month of the campaign to go. This shatters one of baseball's most important tenets, which provides that a pilot must talk through his hat right to the last day of the season, giving his team at least a fighting chance to bring the leaders to heel.

Perhaps Bill's stubborn refusal to conform to patterns, heralds a new era, when managers will not be expected to try to kid anybody—not even the club owners. Whether the owners and league officials and Giants' fans like it or not, Terry only has made official what most observers were convinced of a month ago.

Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyns, who is fast proving himself as outspoken as Terry, already is worrying about the fate that awaits the Pirates when they tackle the Yankees in the World Series.

"I hate to think about it," he said. "It will be like a race between a covered wagon and a racing automobile."

BROWN PILOTS CHESTER

CHESTER, England — (CP). — Manager of Torquay United Football club for the past six years, F. Brown has been appointed manager of Chester. He succeeds A. Faisbeck.

Giants Hard Up For Pitchers To Stay Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 — (CP). — The final tip-off of the sick and weakened condition of the National Baseball League's best assortment of active hospital cases, New York Giants, was offered to-day when Boss Bill Terry brought his limping crew face to face with the league leading Pirates and had nothing better to offer as a starting pitcher than Dick Coffman.

Coffman has been worth his weight in world series tickets as a game saver, and already has come out of the bull-pen 41 times this season. But the last time he started a game was June 28, 1936, in his first season as a Giant. And he was belted out of the box by the Chicago Cubs.

Terry is hard up for pitchers, let alone an able-bodied one, and starting Coffman in the opener of this "make-or-break" four-game series with the Bucs is just the latest in a series of emergency measures.

Since Carl Hubbell won his last game Aug. 13, five days before he went to the sidelines for the rest of the season, only three Giants starters have gone the route, Bill Lohrman, Hal Schumacher and Harry Gumbert.

Lohrman was belted to the showers in his next two appearances; Schumacher won his game on Sunday despite the fact he is suffering from a more serious arm ailment than afflicted Hubbell, and Gumbert, like Lohrman, also was driven to cover his next two times out, the second time yesterday, when the Reds beat him 6-3.

It's a question who will benefit most from this Giant-Pirate series. If the Giants manage to win all four, they'd be only a game and a half off the pace, with a chance to catch the up-and-down Buccaneers when they return east. If it's anything else than a clean sweep, the Cubs suddenly may be in the contending position.

Clubs Going Strong.

A single percentage point behind the Giants to-day, Gabby Hartnett's crew has been playing the best ball of any of the first division teams for the last week, having won six out of eight compared to four victories and five defeats for the Pirates, three and four for the Giants, and three and five for the Reds.

Pie Traynor definitely had his boys on the up-beat yesterday, when they handed the Dodgers a 10-1 trimming that was all over after the third inning, when Pittsburgh was leading by 8-1. Cy Blanto, besides hurling effectively for his 11th decision, chipped in with a pair of singles that drove in three runs as part of the 15-hit attack.

The Yankees, meanwhile, pulled another full lenght out in front of the American League seven-team second division. Lefty Gomez's 15th victory and sixth in a row, coupled with Tom Henrichs 19th homer and fifth in three games, beat the Browns 8-4. Since Boston meanwhile was taking a 15-1 shellacking from the Tigers, and Cleveland was beaten 6-4 by Washington, the Yanks went 14 games up on the Red Sox.

Outstanding individual effort in the Tigers gang attack were two homers and two singles by Rudy York, who drove in half a dozen runs.

The Bees, Cardinals, Phillies and Cubs in the National League, and the White Sox and the Athletics in the American were not scheduled.

Patrick Predicts Maroons' Future

EDMONTON, Aug. 30 (C.P.). — Lester Patrick, coach of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, to-day forecast Montreal Maroons' franchise probably would be transferred to Cleveland.

"Season after this you'll probably find the Maroons playing in Cleveland's $1,000,000 ice palace," he said.

"Cleveland is coming along as a hockey town, and one more season in the International circuit will have the fans ready for major league hockey."

Patrick defended the suspension of the Maroons' franchise for this season.

"It's the only thing the league could do," he said.

He said Bill Carse last year with Philadelphia Ramblers, Rangers' International League farm, would be given a tryout with the major league club, possibly at centre between Neil and Mac Colville. Rangers will train at Winnipeg, for the fifth year, in October, Patrick said.

Yorkshire Wins Crown For 20th Time

LONDON, Aug. 30 (C.P. Cable).—Yorkshire clinched the English first-class county cricket championship for the twentieth time on Monday. The northern county whipped Kent at Dover by an innings and forty-nine runs in a match concluded a day ahead of schedule.

The northern county has another match to play before the season ends, Middlesex, even if it is successful in the current contest against Surrey, will end the season with an average slightly below Yorkshire's 9.03.

In other matches completed yesterday Derbyshire defeated Leicestershire by an innings and forty-nine, while Essex overcame Glamorgan by an innings and eighty-seven.

Playing a weakened team against Sussex, the touring Australians were behind by 117 runs on the first innings and at th close of the day's play had lost one wicket for forty-seven runs.

Hugh Bartlett, Cambridge University left-hander, was high scorer for Sussex with 157, scored in two hours. He reached the three-figure mark in fifty-seven minutes for the fastest century of the season to date. Bartlett hit eighteen fours. George Cox took second batting honors for the country with seventy-six and James Langridge had sixty-eight.

Yorkshire, 326 for eight wickets, declared; Kent, 168 (Verity five wickets for 42 runs) and 109 (Verity four for 53); at Dover.

Derbyshire, 309; Leicestershire, 131 (Mitchell five for 44) and 129 (Mitchell five for 45); at Ashby.

Essex, 320 for nine, declared; Glamorgan, 150 and 83 (Farnes eight for 38); at Clacton.

Northamptonshire, 200 and 140 (Brookes 60 not out, Howorth five for 51); Worcestershire, 104 (Timms six for 18) and one run for two wickets; at Worcester.

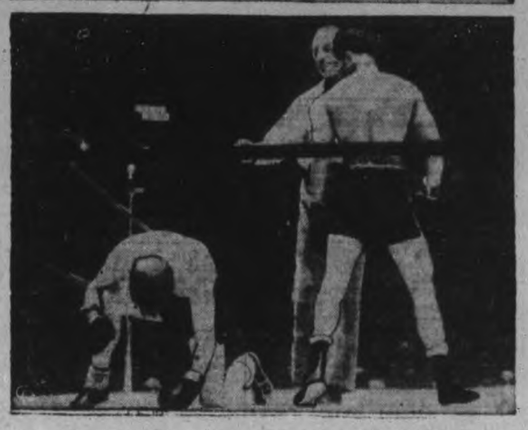
Montanez K.O.'s Canadian Battler



In a bout that had an important bearing on a future opponent for Henry (Three Crown) Armstrong, Orville Drouillard of Windsor, probably the most active Canadian battler in the ring today, went down before the crushing blows of Pedro Montanez, dusky warrior from Puerto Rico, at Madison Square Garden, N.Y. It was one of those never-a-dull-moment fights while it lasted, the scrappy French-Canadian bowing out after 2.14 of the fifth. Here Montanez is seen administering the final blow and moving to a neutral corner as referee Arthur Donovan prepares to begin the fatal count.

Pitchers Are Holding Up Well In The International League

By The Associated Press

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—If the lively ball is plaguing the major leagues and sending pitchers to the hospitals and sanitariums by the carload, it hasn't yet made much of an impression in the international league. Despite the awsome batting averages of some of the Newark Bears there is pitching aplenty in the International.

Joe Mulligan of Toronto Maple Leafs turned in last night's pitching gem, beating the Buffalo Bisons, 1-0, with a seven-hit performance. Ken Raffensberger of Rochester Red Wings nearly matched it when he stopped Montreal Royals, 5-1, in an eight hitter and Jack Haley of Newark Bears turned in a neat but not gaudy job in beating the Syracuse Chiefs, 8-3 with seven hits.

Only game in which pitching went for Sweeney was at Baltimore where the Jersey City Giants piled up nine runs in the first two innings and outlasted the Orioles to win 12-9.

Raffensberger, backed by some stout stickwork by Estel Crabtree, coasted in for the Wings had a four-run lead as early as the third frame. Crabtree batted in two runs with a brace of singles and tallied two more. It was Raffensberger's 15th victory.

Haley, the league's leading hurler, had little trouble with the Chiefs in winning his 16th of the season and his first from Syracuse. Les Scarsella of the Bears led the attack with four singles and Jim Gleeson got a home run.

Soccer Notes

There is no game tonight. Deloro has not intimated to the board its intention of continuing in the soccer league or any other games. They have a game to be played with the league leaders also C.C.F. in Deloro.

On Thursday night, C.C.F. plays the C.G.E. in the new trophy—Duffus Injured Players Cup. Kick-off at 6.30. Referee, D. Buchan.

A large and appreciative audience gathered on Saturday evening for the open-air band concert, given by the Citizens' Band, under the leadership of Lieutenant W. H. Peryer, of Peterborough. The program, which lasted one hour, included the following selections: March, "Sons of the Day"; overture, "American Federation"; saxaphone solo, by N. Gilmour of Peterborough, "In the old South"; selection, "Around the Camp Fire"; cornet solo by Lieutenant Peryer, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere"; waltz, "Moonlight Memories"; a characteristic number, "Downtown on Parade"; and the closing selection, a hymn "Faith of Our Fathers," with the National Anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Payne, of Toronto, spent the weekend in the village, guests of his sister, Miss Ethel Payne.

Miss Ruth Thorndyke is in Toronto this week, visiting her sister, Mrs. E. A. Hill, and Mr. Hill, and attending the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Misses Lazelle and Margaret Lang, Mrs. M. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lang, Miss Bernice and Mr. Aylmer Lang, of Toronto, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight.

Mr. J. E. Burnham, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Darling, at her summer home, Chemong Park, is spending this week with his sister, Miss Pearl Burnham, intending to leave for his home in St. Petersburg, Florida, on Friday morning.

Raymond Rowland, of Peterborough, was home for the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Rowland.

Misses Jean Burnham, Thelma and Muriel Ball, and Gladys Williamson, who have been on a two weeks' vacation by motor, spending some time in Haliburton county, and also visiting a number of points in western Ontario, returned home by way of Niagara Falls on Sunday.

Patricia Richards, who has passed her senior matriculation this summer, will attend the University of Toronto when it opens for its fall term.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Mugford, of Miami, Florida, who have spent the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Larmer, and other friends, left for their home in the South on Sunday, the trip being made by motor.

Juveniles Give Police Most Worry

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—(CP).—Juvenile delinquents were termed the "most important problem confronting police in North America," as about 1,000 police officers from many parts of North America compared notes here to-day at the International police congress.

Policemen heard lecturers discuss the many-sided attack made on the problem of youthful criminals, but Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timlity, Boston, told delegates the juvenile crime rate was increasing due to economic conditions.

"I believe parents should be impressed that lack of supervision, particularly during the adolescent period, is generally the cause of delinquency," Mr. Timility declared. "You will find, unfortunately, in a large measure, the causes of delinquency may be traced to the parents."

Divorces, the wrong movies, and books all may be factors in mis-directing the pent-up energy in every child, Mr. Timilty said.

The Worst Worry.

Charles A. Wheeler, police superintendent of Bridgeport, Conn., said "no one has yet hardly scratched the surface of the greatest of all police problems, juvenile delinquency."

Supt. Wheeler mentioned police efforts had been directed through the offices of the Big Brother movement in San Francisco and Washington, D.C., while police had formed boy scout troops in Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo.

Supt. Wheeler, who termed John Edgar Hoover the most courageous and devastating police officer of all time, quoted the head of the United States' Federal Bureau of Investigation as urging parents to have their sons join boys' groups as the first step in avoiding juvenile delinquency.

CENTREVILLE

Rev. H. R. Williams is holidaying in the Maritimes. During his absence Rev. D. A. McKenzie will occupy the pulpit on Sundays September 4 and 11, and Mr. Dick William, on September 18 and 25.

Mr. Archie Deyell, of Sudbury, spent the weekend at the home of his father, Mr. Robert Deyell.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tate and family spent the weekend on a motor trip to Hamilton, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls.

Miss Dorothy Lunn, after spending several weeks with her cousin, Miss Lottie Lucy, has returned to her home in Winnipeg.

Mr. Thomas McKenzie of Montreal accompanied by Mesdames James and Roland McKenzie, visited his brother at the manse this week.

Mrs. L. S. Sarg and children of Buffalo, N.Y., are visiting Miss Ann Hutchison and Mr. Miles Hutchison.

Mrs. John McKague was the guest of Mrs. R. R. Hall, Peterborough, on Sunday.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McRoberts during the weekend were, Mr. and Mrs. Weston Fallis, Millbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Lynd and Mr. and Mrs. Train, of Oshawa.

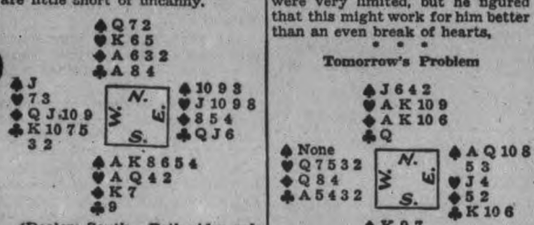
HUNCHES VS. SCIENCE

SOMETIMES a player with a little knowledge of probabilities in distributions will succeed with a course in which the odds are more against him than they would be under some other procedure. Ignorance leads him to success. On other occasions a keen student consciously chooses the less likely path because he has a hunch—women call it intuition — that science would not pan out that particular time. Some of those achievements are little short of uncanny.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the South player opened with 1-Spade. Two-No Trumps was North's response, South called 3-Spades, North 4-Spades, South 4-No Trumps, North 5-No Trumps and South 7-Spades.

The lead of the diamond Q was taken in dummy with the A and the spades Q and K cashed. It immediately became apparent to declarer that if hearts were not divided three-three, his contract was in danger. He dared not draw dummy's last trump without feeling out the situation. He daringly led out three rounds of hearts and ruffed the fourth. He was extremely lucky to find the holder of the four hearts also the possessor of the outstanding trump. The chances for success in his play were very limited, but he figured that this might work for him better than an even break of hearts.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the best defense against South's 3-No Trumps contract after the 9 is played from dummy on the lead of the heart 3?

Give Up Seven Men

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 30.—(AP) — The United States coast guard has abandoned hope for seven Seattle men aboard the Purse Seiner Eidsvold, missing six days in Mears passage near here. The cutter Alert reported she had found considerable debris from the Eidsvold, including pieces of wreckage from the boat.

Watch Saves Him

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30—(AP)—Patrolman Harvey David is giving his wife and his dollar watch equal credit for saving his life. The watch stopped a bullet fired by an unidentified assailant. He had wanted to trade the time piece in on a new wrist watch, he said, but his wife objected.

Canadian Dairy '37 Output Value Up 11 p.c.

OTTAWA, Aug. 30.—(CP)—Production value of the Canadian dairy factory industry was $134,951,389 in 1937 an 11 per cent. increase over 1936, it was reported today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Production of creamery butter was 246,870,449 pounds valued at $64,161,626. This was a decrease in quantity from the preceding year of 4,061328 pounds, or two per cent., but an increase in value of $6,499,466, or 11 per cent. The average price a pound jumped from 22.98 cents in 1936 to 25.99 cents in 1937.

Ontario led the provinces in butter production with 91,396,261 pounds and Quebec was second with 74,371,626 pounds. The relationship with the production of each province to the total for Canada as shown by percentages follows: Ontario 33; Quebec 30; Alberta 11, Manitoba 10; Saskatchewan 10; Nova Scotia, two; British Columbia, two; New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, one each.

Compared with the preceding year, Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia recorded decreases in quantity of output while the other provinces showed increases.

More Cheese Made

Production of factory cheese in 1937 totalled 130,228,339 pounds, valued at $17,925,402. This was an increase in quantity over 1936 of 11,104,856 pounds and increase in value of $2,359,589.

The 1937 production was the largest since 1928 and the value the greatest since 1930. Ontario's production was 93,867,645 and Quebec's 29,964,980, which combined was 95 per cent. of the Canadian total.

Concentrated milk products were valued at $10,078,192 last year and miscellaneous products of dairy factories were worth $42,786,169. There was 2,558 dairy factories operating in 1937, a decrease of 37 over the previous year.

Girl Dives In Bay To Save Money

MIDLAND, Ont., Aug 30 (CP).—Miss Mary Hartz of Chicago got wet today but she saved her money, a return ticket to Chicago by steamer, and other belongings when her handbag slipped from her hand and fell into Midland harbor.

The young Chicago woman, a passenger on the steamer North American which had docked here, dived into the water after the bag. The bag had fallen between the steamer and the concrete pier, which were only six feet apart. The drop into the water was about 20 feet.

Miss Hartz was talking to an officer of the North American on the dock when the bag slipped.

Little Space Needed For Landing This Plane

Designed by Emil Kropf, noted German stunt flier this new "safety plane" is seen leaving the ground at a sharp angle just after taking off. As the name implies, the airplane was designed for the greatest possible safety and requires little more room than an autogyro in which to land. It has a wide speed range, being able to attain more than 130 m.p.h. and slow down to 20 m.p.h.

"Good Neighbor" Made Chief

You can't put anything over on the Indians. Canada's "good neighbor" exponent, George T. Fulford, visited the Caughnawaga Indians in New York state and was admitted to the tribe as Chief Bright Mind . . . but only after an examination by the tribal head, Bright Skies. Here Mr. Fulford's molars are seen being given the once-over, with apparently satisfactory results.

(Written for the Canadian Press by Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.)

Twenty years ago today the first phase of the Battle of Arras was triumphantly rounded off with an operation executed by the Canadians which, for its brilliancy and nerve, won liberal plaudits from the Allied High Command. The action at Upton Wood on Aug. 30, 1918, was one of those bright, outstanding episodes which not infrequently converted the gloomy prospect of threatened stalemate into a vision of greater triumphs to come.

Th attack was launched by the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade and it saw the storming of the Fresnes-Rouvroy defence system which, for two days, had defied all efforts to reduce. Powerfully wired and manned by a determined garrison ,the position had been assaulted time and again, with the only result the accumulation of heavy casualties. It was essential the system be captured, for it was one of two advanced fortifications of the famous Hindenburg Line. The other was the Drocourt-Queant Switch, which sprawled over the ridges about two miles to the east of the Fresnes-Rouvroy Line, and against which a "full-dress" offensive had already been planned.

The great question, however, was: how should the Fresney-Rouvroy system be attacked, in view of the heavy losses already suffered in the frontal assaults against it?

Makes Novel Move.

This was the task presented to the 1st Brigade. To carry it out the Brigade Commander, General W. A. Griesbach, decided to outflank it—a novel concentration in a war whose only flanks were the Belgian Coast and the Swiss Alps.

Assigned to the brigade was that portion of the system which ran, in two parallel trenches, northward from the ruined village of Hendecourt, to join the Vis-en-Artois Switch almost at right angles. The position was roughly in the shape of a capital "T." If two battalions could assemble in the unorganized terrain north of Hendecourt, at the base of the "T", and attack upwards, another might attack down the left arm of the "T" eastwards. When they joined—the northward attacking battalions disposed on extremely narrow frontages and in great depth—all could face to the east, creating a new front. The success of the operation depended on Hendecourt not being occupied by the enemy.

Marvel of Fate

It later transpired the Germans were in occupation of the village, holding it lightly with outposts. But, by some marvel of fate, the 1st and 2nd Canadian Battalions were able to assemble undetected right under the nose of the enemy, their front facing northward. The 3rd Battalion gathered in a captured portion of the Vis-en-Artois Switch, facing east. A complicated barrage, with the guns lifting laterally instead of frontally, had been worked out; and before dawn on the morning of Aug. 30, the attack opened.

Fire Was Wasted

From the Fresnes-Rouvroy Line a hurricane of machine gun fire streamed forth—but it was wasted. The Canadians rolled up the line from the south, instead of attacking, as the Germans expected, from the east and towards which direction the enemy levelled their fire. Their surprise and shock at finding the Canadian sweeping in from the flank and the rear demoralized them. The 1st and 2nd Battalions stormed up the "leg" of the "T," their leading platoons joining with the 3rd Battalion at the junction of the cross arm.

This did not end the fight, however. Determined to keep a grip on this Fresnes-Rouvroy Line, the Germans launched successive counter-attacks. A whole day of fighting with bomb and bayonet ensued, a fatiguing battle into which the enemy poured more and more fresh troops. These were defeated with tremendous losses. Late in the afternoon the remaining battalion of the brigade—the 4th Battalion — was brought into the fight, with two companies detailed to clear out some spots where the enemy had obtained a foothold. One of these was Upton Wood, a small area of scrub, just east of the "T". These auxiliary operations were entirely successful. At the end of the day the brigade was holding everything they had captured.

n the dawn of Aug. 31, the wearied Canadians found their 2nd Brigade sweeping through them, to carry the line away across the plain to the position selected as the jumping-off place for the great attack on the Drocourt-Queant Line. This had been fixed to open on Sept. 2.

R.C. Supply Vessel Tight In Ice Pack

CHURCHILL, Man., Aug 30 (CP)—Still defying the relentless crush of the ice pack, the sturdy motor vessel Therese, Arctic supply ship of the Roman Catholic church, was drifting slowly southward with the pack today, off Cape Wilson on the Eastern coast of Melvill Peninsula.

With no passage showing and possibility was seen the scheduled trip to Igloolik, N.W.T., would have to be abandoned unless the ship was freed soon.

Meanwhile Father Paul Schulte who flew from Chesterfield, N.W.T., Friday, was standing by the ship, making survey flights in an attempt to discover a way through the ice, whenever weather was favorable. Until late last night, however, no "leads" were visible, with the floe stretching solidly in all directions.

Order Probe Into Bren Gun Contract

Mackenzie Agrees; Cabinet Talks European Outlook

OTTAWA, Aug. 31—(CP).—The Bren machine gun contract awarded the John Inglis Company of Toronto likely will be reviewed by the Public Accounts Committee at the next session of Parliament.

Following a cabinet meeting last night, Defence Minister Mackenzie said he will ensure that the necessary motion is made at the next session to bring the contract before the committee. This announcement was the latest feature of the controversy arounsed when Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew of Guelph, Ont., criticized the contract in a magazine article.

Under terms of the contract, the John Inglis Company will manufacture 7,000 Bren guns for the Canadian Government and 5,000 for the British Government.

Only five ministers attended the cabinet council and Prime Minister Mackenzie King was absent due to his sciatic affliction which has kept him confined to his country home in the Gatineau hills for the past week.

Talk War Situation.

Routine business was the general order of the day but it was learned the ministers had before them confidential communications from the British government concerning the European situation.

While no announcement was made, it is expected that later this week, the prime minister will send an answer to Premier Hepburn concerning his Aug. 19 letter asking for a statement of government policy on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaways and power project.

Defence Department officials will confer today with three members of the British air mission who arrived last night from Montreal. They were: Sir Hardman Lever, A. H. Self and Captain J. M. Robb.

It is understood Captain Robb, who is concerned with the proposal to train pilots in Canada for the Royal Air Force, will discuss financial matters connected with this training project. The other members are investigating possibilities of awarding contracts to Canadian airplane manufacturers for production of war planes for Britain.

Victor M. Drury, prominent Montreal industrialist, arrived in the capital with the mission.

Blame Misjudgment In Triple Drowning

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(CP).— A jury here last night brought in a verdict Mrs. Christine Fairbairn of Toronto and her two sons drowned off Queen's quay in Toronto Bay through "the unfortunate mis-judgment of the driver of the car, Frank Fairbairn, in the handling of his car."

Mr. and Mrs. Fairbairn and their two children were in an automobile that plunged off a dock here July 6. Fairbairn got out of the car under water and was rescued by eye-witnesses.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said he was entirely in agreement with the jury's finding and added he personally would ask the city to take some action to prevent a similar tragedy along the waterfront by erecting a railing.

Trans-Canada Liner Visits Malton

TORONTO, August 31 — (CP). — A Trans-Canada Airlines plane bearing Transport Minister C. D. Howe arrived at Malton Airport here to-day from Montreal. The plane, first trans-Canada ship to land at Malton, averaged 185 miles an hour on the trip and touched 250 miles an hour at one time.

The transport minister was accompanied by P. G. Johnston, vice-president of Trans-Canada Airlines, and C. Vanderlinden, chief mechanic. The plane was flown by Z. Leigh of Lethbridge, Alta., while Ed Twiss of Vancouver was co-pilot.

Mr. Howe, who is scheduled to confer with civic officials here concerning the Island and Malton airports, viewed the two airports from the plane before landing to-day.

Sweat Box Cells Red Hot Convicts Claim

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31—(AP)—An investigation into the "oven cell" deaths of four Philadelphia County Prison inmates aproached a climax today at an inquest which coroner Charles Hersch said would result in "most drastic action against those guilty."

Figuring prominently in the proceedings were two prison guards, already held without bail on homicide charges and accused by three convicts of "turning on the heat" which "baked to death" the men in stuffy punishment cells 10 days ago.

The convicts, among 21 who survived a "heat cure"! told yesterday at a hearing for the guards, Francis Smith, 43, and Alfred Brough, 39, of spending three days and nights in cells heated to high temperatures by a battery of radiators in a corridor.

They told of fellow prisoners praying for mercy, of one's attempt to take his own life by butting his head against the hot concrete wall, and of the cries of the dying men for their wives and children.

The witnesses, Maurice Spatz, Patrick Di Marco and Joseph Forte, glared at the guards as they described how their four fellow cellmates weakened and died, while others begged on their knees for water and for the heat to be turned off.

Di Marco said: "I told them some died. They (the guards) replied, 'that's their hard luck'."

Reveals Cells Red Hot

During the hearing spectators were barred from the courtroom to prevent a possible demonstration. The guards did not testify. Di Marco, one of the first prisoners placed in the "sweat box" burst into tears when he described the last night there.

"The boys were hollering, 'we can't take it," he recalled. "No one could stand up. The cell doors were red hot —you couldn't touch 'em. The walls were red hot. The floors were mild, though.

Meanwhile, Governor Geo. Earle, disclosed to newspapermen after a surprise visit to the prison, that the punishment cell block was equipped with a device for turning live steam directly into the cells.

"By a simple turning off of a water valve and turning on another valve," he said, "live steam can be sent into the cells through the toilets."

The governor said Warden William Mills told him he knew nothing about the existence of the mechanism.

Earl, blaming the deaths of the four men on "the cruelest degenerates who ever lived," took steps to prevent a similar tragedy. He ordered state troopers to inspect all county prisons and town "lockups" once a week.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 31 (AP).

GERMANY'S new Zeppelin, the LZ-130, is to take to the air for the first time next week, lifted by hydrogen gas as was the Hindenburg because non-inflammable helium still is not available.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, pioneer in Zeppelin navigation, is to be in command of the flight to demonstrate his belief in the soundness of dirigible principles despite the destruction by explosion of the Hindenburg at Lakehurst, N.J., May 6, 1937.

The new ship will carry a crew for training purposes only, and passengers are not to be carried until she is filled with Helium.

Dr. Eckener's determination to fly now, although the LZ-130 is without the Helium which Germany has been unable to obtain from the United States, led to widespread conjecture that efforts are being made to develop a substitute gas or that a process has been discovered for the manufacture of Helium.

Kid Mouthpiece Davis Puts Finger On Hines

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP).— J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, 32-year-old "kid mouthpiece' of the multi-million dollar Dutch Schultz policy racket, to-day "put the finger" directly on Tammany Leader James J. Hines by testifying that he paid Hines $2,000 in October, 1932. The Tammany boss is on trial as the accused "political front" for the racket.

"I visited Hines' house with Schultz," the witness swore, "and later went to see Hines with Leo Rosenthal."

"I told Hines I heard he needed money, so I gave him $2,000."

Davis described a series of "social" trips he took with Hines, and the witness said:

"Hines asked me for 'numbers' game money any number of times."

"How many time?"

"At least 15 or 20 times, at irregular intervals, from November, 1932, to the end of 1933," Davis replied.

Davis blandly conceded, under questioning by Dewey, that he had committed perjury "many times" in the past, declaring as to one specific instance: "I may have told the truth, but I can't recall."

Spectators laughed.

Saw Hines Often.

Davis said he met Hines at the Tammany leader's home at 444 Central Park West in October, 1932, shortly after Dutch Schultz decided to "muscle in" on the lucrative Harlem policy game.

"How often did you see Hines during the next six months after October, 1932?" Dewey asked.

"Two or three time a week. We went to restaurants, prizefights and the racetracks together."

"How old were you then?"

"Twenty-seven."

"Where did you turn over this money to Hines?"

"Various places—in my car, at Hines' home and at the office of Joseph Shalleck, Hines' attorney," Davis replied.

Painting Is So Real Rats Eat The Apple Seeds

Washington, Aug. 31.

ROYAL STEADMAN, who for twenty-three years has made models and pictures for the United States Department of Agriculture files and bulletins, said today one of his paintings was so lifelike it fooled even the rats.

"I finished a painting of an apple, cut in half and showing seeds exposed," Steadman said. "I put it on a window-sill to dry. The next morning I found it on the floor, with tracks of rats over it and painted seeds eaten off."

Ring Of Secret Observers Placed In Bohemia To Provide True Reports

Britain Wants Lowdown On Czech 'Brawls' If Hitler Uses Them As Pretext; Waits Nazis Answer To Peace Plan

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Great Britain placed a ring of secret observers today in Bohemia to help keep the peace in that troublous home of Nazi-dominated and autonomy-seeking Sudeten Germans.

Two considerations dictated the action. One was that a provocative press campaign in Germany against Czechoslovakia would stir up a really dangerous and war-producing incident. The other was that Chancellor Hitler, self-styled protector of the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in his neighbor country, would refuse to let his lieutenant, Konrad Henlein, accept Czechoslovakia's newest peace plan — a scheme for granting her minorities, including the Sudeten Germans, a measure of self-government like that of the Swiss Cantons.

From her observers, Great Britain wanted accurate reports on the daily small incidents in Czechoslovakia—bar-room brawls, fisticuffs and the like which German newspapers reported as "bloody and violent Czech methods," "ruthless aggression," "atrocities" and "a pall of bloody terror."

Expect Rejection

While the British government awaited Chancellor Hitler's answer to the Czechoslovak peace plan, the fear it would be rejected appeared to have convinced official Britain of the necessity for making clear the British opinion that the Czech's new proposal was "eminently fair."

A meeting of key cabinet members yesterday decided to make a fresh appeal to Germany for solution of the Czechoslovak crisis with reliable informants said, the tacit notice that refusal might put Britain behind France in any resulting war.

Prime Minister Chamberlain journeyed to Balmoral, Scotland, where he will give the King an account of the Cabinet's decisions and the European crisis.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, went golfing in the country. Only Viscount Halifax, the foreign secretary, stayed at his desk.

It was believed in some quarters, however, that these three were granted emergency powers by the Cabinet in yesterday's three-hour meeting.

That Sir John has returned to grace in the foreign office was considered one of the most interesting developments of the current situation. He was dropped as foreign secretary and became home secretary June 7, 1935. He became Chancellor of the Exchequer May 28, 1937.

Lord Halifax was scheduled to see Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to London. Sir Nevil Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, was to fly to Berlin with instructions from the Government.

Airliner Gunning Not Your Affair Japs Tell U.S., Denying Guilt

TOKYO, Aug. 31 (AP).—The Japanese government tonight rejected on all counts the protest of the United States against the destruction of a Chinese-American airliner near Canton, South China, by Japanese warplanes on Aug. 24.

The Japanese reply to the protest delivered Aug. 26 by Ambassador Joseph Grew, admitted, however, that the attack of Japanese planes continued after the airliner had alighted on a small river between Canton and Macao.

Fourten persons aboard the plane, all Chinese, are believed to have been killed, either by Japanese bullets or by drowning. The only North American aboard, Pilot H. L. Woods of Winfield, Kas., escaped injury and two Chinese survived, one wounded.

The United States note registered "emphatic protest" against "the jeopardizing in this way of lives of American as well as other non-combatants of unarmed civilian lanes" and also pointed out that the destroyed airliner was the property of the China National Aviation Corporation, in which "Pan American Airways has a very substantial interest."

Different Stories

The foreign office spokesman said Japan was compelled to reject the protest because Tokyo's information differed from that apparently reaching the American authorities.

(The American version was drawn chiefly from Pilot Woods, who reported that five Japanese planes attacked his plane while it was en route from Hong Kong to Chungking, machine-gunned it in the air, compelling him to set it down on the river, and continued the machine-gunning after the plane had alighted.)

"I can say positively that the machine-gunning ended as soon as the plane's identity was established," the foreign office spokesman asserted. He did not say, however, when the identification was made.

Disclaim All Guilt

Japan's reply, handed to Grew tonight, disclaimed all guilt in the destruction of the airliner and, in effect denied that the incident was of concern to the United States.

It stressed the contention that "the plane acted in such a manner as to invite suspicion." It asserted that "the company to which the aircraft in question belonged being a Chinese juridical person, the incident is not one which involves Japan directly with any third power."

The reply contained the admission that "during that brief period (after the plane had alighted) "some among our craft continued the attack." But it also referred to "wide discrepancies between the pilot's accounts of the incident as given in your excellency's note, and reports in the hands of the Japanese Government."

A statement of the Japanese versions of the attack was appended.

School Bell Silent As Sparrows Use It For Nesting

Herkimer, N. Y., Aug 31.

SCHOOL BELLS will not ring out this fall at St. Francis de Sales Parochial School. The reason: Two sparrows chose the school's bell as the place in which to build their nest, and Rev. Daniel J. McCarthy, Principal of the school, has ruled the birds are not to be disturbed.

Britain-U.S. Pact Ready To Draft

LONDON, Aug. 31 (CP-Havas.)—The projected trade agreement between the United Kingdom and the United States has reached the "drafting stage" and will probably be signed by the end of September, it was reported today in British board of trade circles.

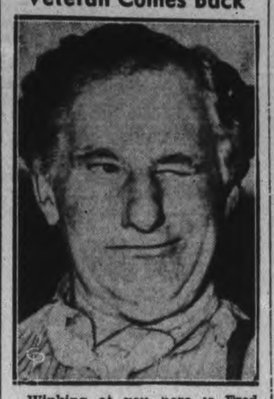
Trade experts of London and Ottawa have been in Washington many weeks negotating an Anglo-American pact and an agreement to replace the existing Canadian-American pact. The state department, handling the United States end of the bargaining, has dropped no official intimation as to when the reciprocal agreements might be concluded.

Reports heard in board of trade circles here, and unconfirmed elsewhere, are that while the United Kingdom-United States accord would favor certain American goods on the United Kingdom market as against those of Canada, the Dominion will be compensated by United States concessions to Canadian imports.

Reduced tariffs for American fresh fruits, cereals and tinned meats are believed likely. English textiles and certain luxury articles may received concessions in the United States.

Japan has ordered reductions in retail prices of coal and ice.

Veteran Comes Back



Winking at you here is Fred Stone, the theatre's veteran of veterans, who at the age of 65 is preparing to play the biggest role of his long career. The title role in the revival of "Lightnin". Many years ago producer John Golden promised that if ever "Lightnin" was revived, Stone would be the man to play it. The play ran for 1,291 consecutive performances, 20 years ago. It will reopen in New York on Sept. 15.

Municipal Tax Load Must Be Lightened

'Goose' Gets Smaller When Larger Golden Eggs Needed

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (CP).—Municipalities must be given some other way of raising money or be released of the heavy social service costs now borne by them, Mayor Ralph Day of Toronto declared today in welcoming delegates to the 40th annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association. The body opened its three-day meeting in city hall here.

The association had done much good in the past, said Toronto's mayor, but never was its work so necessary as now.

"The time has arrived where in most cities very few people are willing to invest in real estate," said Mr. Day. "Those that have property would like to get rid of it."

Such a situation resulted from "charges imposed by us." The taxpayer now paid more than he could expect to receive for his property.

"Social services have increased so much—although we are willing that they should be given—that I feel the basis of income should be broadened sufficiently so other people who enjoy them should pay."

Toronto budgeted $12,500 in 1933 for direct relief, $3,200,000 in 1936 and the amount will be greater next year.

"We must be relieved of these costs or have some other way of raising money," he said.

Mayor R. J. Waterous of Brantford, who replied to Mayor Day's welcome, stressed the necessity of co-operation between rural and urban municipalities.

Japs Turn Power On In Six Provinces

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31. (AP).—The full force of Japan's military strength was felt today in six large Chinese provinces.

Severe fighting swept along the Anhwei-Honan provincial border in east-central China as the invaders aimed to sever the Peiping-Hankow railroad north of Hankow, the temporary Chinese capital.

While deadlock continued near Shahochen—which, like Hwangmei and Juichang, is about 100 miles south of Hankow—the Japanese maintained converging Japanese columns intended to outflank Chinese defences along the 90-mile railroad betwee Nanchang and Kiukiang, 135 miles south of Hankow.

Chinese dispatches, however, said the defenders repulsed five Japanese attacks five miles south of Juichang and thwarted a pincer movement.

The Japanese were reported to have captured 12 towns within 72 hours, Kiangsi, Hupeh, Anhwei, Honan, Shensi and Shansi provinces.

British Navy Squeeze To Lick Nazis

Also Starve Italy; U.S. To Acquiesce Says N. York Times

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(CP). — While the New York Times to-day viewed all signs as pointing to "a consolidatiton of the forces working for peace," the New York Daily News devoted its single editorial to warning that "if Germany starts another war she'll get licked again." In case of war, the tabloid Daily News said: "The British navy would immediately put the squeenze on. No German boat would be able to enter or leave the North Sea with supplies for Germany. No Italian boat would be able to enter or leave the Mediterranean through Gibraltar or Suez. The British navy will do that, and we will acquiesce, as we did in the last war.

This British squeeze will, in the long run, strangle Germany. The continuous pressure of sea power is something Germany can't withstand."

Duce To Desert Hitler?

The Times called attention to the communique reporting "full agreement" issued after the Cabinet session in London and Paris yesterday and referred to the lack of reliable indication of Italy's attitude in the German-Czech crisis.

"This silence in itself gives a certain credibility to the reports that Italy will not support Germany in the event of war over Czechoslovakia," the minister commented.

"Less than any power in Europe can Italy face with equanimity the prospect of a general war. Less than any, when it comes to that, can Italy welcome any advance toward German hegemony of Southeastern Europe."

Carolina Nominates Smith For 6th Term

California's Democratic primary held the possibility of a second rebuff. Senator William McAdoo—thrice praised by the President—was trailing Sheridan Downey, $30-a-week pension champion, in returns from nearly half the state.

Senator Smith won over Gov. Olin Johnston, self-styled "110 per cent. New Dealer." Although Mr. Roosevelt did not mention names during their furious primary electon, he referred to Smith as one who "thinks in terms of the past."

The vote, with only 159 precincts missing, was: Smith, 150,234; Johnston, 123,195.

The contest between Smith and Johnston was regarded by most politicians as a direct test of New Deal strength in South Carolina. This factor was complicated, however, by the personal opposition to Johnston of Edgar Brown, another New Dealer, who withdrew from the contest Saturday.

Senator Smith was the fourth foe of President Roosevelt's Court Reorganization Bill to win renomination this summer. His victory was heartening to supporters of Senators George of Georgia and Tydings of Maryland, for whose defeat Mr. Roosevelt has appealed.

To Contest Cartier

MONTREAL, Aug. 31—(CP). — The Eastern Canada Social Credit Association will place a candidate in the Montreal-Cartier Dominion by-election campaign made necessary by the death of Samuel Jacobs, Liberal member, it was announced to-day.

A statement to the press said the Social Credit candidate probably would be J. F. Boulais, former banker and financier who unsuccessfully carried the Conservative Party standard in 1925 and 1926.

Britain, France Urge U.S. Rush War Planes As Conflict May Cut Off Delivery

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Great Britain and France, facing a crisis in Europe, are making every effort to hasten delivery of the warplane reinforcements they have ordered in the United States, informed persons indicated today. However the craft were not expected to be ready for shipment for four or five months.

The German-Czech situation, which occasioed the appeals for quick delivery, is receiving the closest study by President Roosevelt and State Department officials. Should conflict break out in Europe before the planes are completed, the United States Neutrality Act might prevent their shipment.

Great Britain has ordered 400 reconnaissance and training planes in the United States—200 from the Lockheed Company and 200 from the North American Aviation Corporation. France has ordered 100 pursuit planes from Curtiss-Wright.

France preceded Britain through manufacturers here, in taking the first formal step toward obtaining licenses from the Munitions Control Board for the export of the planes.

Licenses totalling $5,000,000 were issued for French planes last month, but shipments have not started. Britain has not yet applied for the licenses.

Licenses for shipments to Germany totalled $138,384, consisting almost entirely of civil airplanes. Under the act creating the Munitions Control Board, however, these are listed as war materials.

German Press Tirade Assails Czechs As In Build-up For Austrian Grab

BERLIN, Aug. 31 (AP).—The German government awaited today an expected message from Prime Minister Chamberlain on Great Britain's attitude towards the situation created by demands for autonomy of Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Political circles believed Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador to Berlin, was bringing from the Prime Minister a diplomatic message to Chancellor Hitler.

This message, these circles hoped, would express the British attitude even more clearly than did Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his Scottish speech last Saturday—that Britain would find it difficult to stay out of conflict broke out between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Sir Nevile was expected to return today from London, where he went Saturday for consultations with the government. (Informed sources in London indicated the ambassador was instructed to ask Germany to cease a press and radio campaign against Czechoslovakia and to prevail upon Sudeten Germans to accept a reasonable settlement of the minority problem.)

The German press, in large headlines and with detail, continued to connect every tavern brawl in Czechoslovakia and charged Czechoslovaks with violence and terrorism.

The wave of excitement in Germany was intensified by Robert Ley, leader of the German labor front, who yesterday told a congress of Germans from abroad: "Providence is just, and now we have a chance to obtain our final object. We don't want war, but we don't want to be taken by surprise."

The newspaper campaign in many respects recalled that prevailing when government of Chancellor Von Schushnigg of Austria was under fire in German press dispatches.

Truck Wreck In Grimsby Ditch May Cost Two Men Their Lives

GRIMSBY, Aug. 31.—Two men may die as the result of an accident at St. Anns, three miles east of Smithville, late yesterday. Identified from motor licenses and other papers found in their pockets as Albert E. Jackson, 38, of Front Street, Dunnville, and L. Gould of Dunnville, they were taken to Hamilton General Hospital, where little hope was held out for Gould's recovery.

There were no eye-witnesses to the accident, and police were forced to reconstruct what had happened from tire marks on the road. Apparently the light delivery truck driven by Jackson left Highway No. 20 near Nelson's Garage and entered the county road. Marks on the road showed the truck had proceeded in zig-zag fashion before hitting a telephone pole and overturning in the ditch.

Lad Hears Crash

Billy Nelson, 14-year-old son of the garage proprietor, heard a crash and on investigating found the overturned truck, its wheels still spinning, and two men lying unconscious. Jackson was pinned beneath the steering wheel, and Gould was discovered a short distance away in the ditch, half buried in debris.

In Jackson's pocket police found a driver's license issued Aug. 5, and a beginner's permit issued the same day. A motorist, whose name was not learned, told the garage owner he followed the truck shortly before the accident, and was struck by the wobbly manner in which it was proceeding along the highway.

Ontario Cheese Wins At C.N.E.

The New Lawson Creamery of Burgessville, Ont., Tuesday at the C.N.E., was awarded the silver cup for the highest score in factory chese.

Cheese awards brought Ontario a place in the dairying industry which was seriously threatened by the heavy sweep of butter awards that went to Western exhibitors.

Among other leading winners were G. M. Eckmier, Ripley; Tillsonburg Creamery; Carman E. Hodges, St. Marys; Donald Hawes, Atwood; F. A. Boyes, Mossby; Frank Leslie, Kintore; L. E. Adair, Burgessville C. O. Pickard, Mount Elgin, and J. M. Bain, Britton.

Peaches And Cream

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 31—(CP).—It was a case of peaches and cream when two trucks collided on the highway near here. Several boxes of peaches were knocked from a fruit truck, driven by John Pendergast of Queenston Heights, Ont., while 10 cans of milk were dumped on top of them from a truck driven by Lewis Vyse of Ostrander. No one was injured in the accident.

First For Glads

TORONTO, August 31 — (CP). — C. R. Albright of Freelton, Ont., won four first prizes for gladiolus displays in the Canadian National Exhibition horticulture competition, according to results announced today. Robert Patterson of Guelph had two seconds and four thirds, and William Hyatt, Hamilton, one third prize winner in the 10 gladiolus sections. Toronto and district entrants won the other awards.

DESCENDANTS GATHER

MIDLAND, N.B.—(CP). — Some 300 descendants of Edmund and Jane Price, who settled in New Brunswick 12 years before the United Empire Loyalists, came from many parts of Canada and the United States to attend a family reunion here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Price.

Order Special Session

CHICAGO, Aug. 31—(AP). — The American Medical Association's House of Delegates has ordered a special session to consider the national health program suggested recently by a Presidential Committee.

The almost unprecedented action, the governing body has met in special session only once—was announced last night by Dr. Morris Kishbein, editor of the association's journal. The delegates will meet here on September 16.

Troops Attack To 'Wipe Out' Camp Borden

By Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TOTTENHAM, Ont., Aug. 31.—(CP)—Continuation of the war games now in progress south of Camp Borden, participated in by all Canada's permanent-force units east of Manitoba, was witnessed today by Major General E. C. Ashton, chief of the general staff.

The participating troops will be strengthened tonight with the arrival of two non-permanent infantry battalions. They are the Royal Regiment of Toronto Grenadiers and the Toronto Scottish.

Today the designation of the force commanded by Col. W. G. Hagerty, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, again was changed. On Monday he commanded a northland force being conveyed south by mechanized transport from Camp Borden to Schomberg. Yesterday, he became leader of a southland force moving northward from Schomberg to Tottenham. Today the same troops are an eastland force which is following up the withdrawal of a westland army along the general axis Ottawa - Peterborough - Guelph - Stratford.

Out To End Camp Borden

One of westland's active bases for aircraft work is Camp Borden, and the eastlanders have decided to destroy it. Defending Borden are a company of light tanks, a cavalry squadron, a battery of field artillery and a mixed battalion of infantry.

Against this outfit the eastlanders are moving the Royal Canadian and Royal 22nd Regiment, the mechanized Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Brigade of 18-pounders, the 3rd Medium Battery of 60-pounders, one squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and other units.

The whole practice, carried out under active service conditions, emphasizes the hazards which mechanization has developed in the way of obstructing the movement of troops. About 40 militia officers are watching the war games and the various phases are being closely scrutinized and discussed.

An $83 Call

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 31 (AP) —"Some of your mail has been opened by mistake. Will you come and get it immediately, please"

That telephone message to Fred Morgan, secretary of the Modern Woodmen of America here, cost him $83. Morgan went after the mail and returned to find the office ransacked and $83 missing from the cash till. The office from which the call was supposed to have been made—on the floor above—knew nothing of it or Morgan's mail.

Dog Adopts Ducks

SAGINAW, Mich., Aug. 31 (AP)—Farmer Edwin J. Strobel looked wonderingly today upon his pet fox terrier, Hans. The year-old dog has adopted two ducklings. Hans took over the task of mothering the ducklings when their mother died. The dog curls its body about the ducklings and snarls at anyone who approaches.

France Gets Secret War Tips

Spy Reports Given To Cabinet On Hitler's Army

PARIS, Aug. 31 (AP)—The powerful French army commission was called to meet today with Edouard Daladier, premier and national defence minister, to weigh possible effects of the mobilization of a huge German army.

The commission of the chamber of deputies demanded that Daladier bring to the meeting (at 10 a.m. EDT) all information the French secret service could gather on the extent of German military preparations, which the French government estimated numbered 2,000,000 men. (German sources estimate 500,000 to 1,000,000 men will be in the field on fall manoeuvres by mid-September.)

It was reported unofficially the commission might take steps to put the French army on a more mobile footing, should it be necessary to back up promises to defend Czechoslovakia if she were invaded by Germany.

The "Little Chamber"

The army commission's 44 members form so large a percentage of the total number of deputies that it often is called the "little chamber," and it was said to be concerned particularly with the accelerated preparations along the French frontier.

Informed French opinion was that the plan of Cantonal government which President Benes was reported to have offered the Sudetens was not only reasonable, but represented almost the ultimate concession that Czechoslovakia could make and still retain national integrity.

Fears in Paris centred on the possibility the Sudetens would reject the plan, leading to a deadlock in negotiations which might not be broken except by resorting to force.

MORE ABOUT—
Municipal Tax

municipal problems during the last few years have been those coming under the department of public welfare, William Jelly of Brockville, clerk of the counties of Leeds and Grenville, declared in his presidential address.

"Under welfare problems, Mr. Jelly included relief, hospital maintenance of indigents, children's aid societies, old age pensions mothers' allowances.

Of the 21 or so resolutions presented to the convention for consideration, he said 10 related to public welfare. Mr. Jelly contended the chief thought in the mind of any elected representative or municipal would be to give the people whom they represented the best possible service.

"The greater part of this service consists in carrying out the provisions of the Municipal Act in such a manner that population of the several municipalities shall be provided with such public utilities as they are able to pay for, in order that they may have a reasonable comfortable living," he said.

Many receiving relief in cities and other urban municipalities are able to operate farms and should be placed on them in a back-to-the-land scheme, the Association was told by a special relief resolutions committee.

The government should consider plans to place suitable relief families in rural areas with a view to enabling them to become self supporting, the committee suggested, asking for discussion on the scheme.

The government also should consider the advisability of establishing rates of relief according to living costs in various areas of municipalities, the committee recommended, pointing out that costs of living very greatly in the province.

Other recommendations of the five-man committee, headed by C. G. Hayes of Windsor, Ont., were: The government should arrange an inter-provincial agreement regarding residence of relief recipients; and hospitalization costs for non-permanent families should not be charged the municipality in which they became ill.

Bad housing conditions are driving people into hospitals at the expense of the municipalities, Alderman Peter Grant of St. Catharines said. He contended, however, that the housing question was essentially a government, not a municipal responsibility and that municipalities were unable to accomplish anything along this line unless the government launched a housing scheme, thereby saving health and providing employment.

Thomas Linscott, Brantford welfare commissioner, said 75 per cent of the landlords were refusing to rent their properties to relief recipients because in many cases they never received their rent.

More Services Please

Municipal taxation in Ontario is high "because citizens are demanding more services" C. C. Middleboro, Owen Sound solicitor and city clerk, declared in an exhaustive analysis.

"What are we going to do about it?" asked E. A. Danby Brantford city treasurer, in complementing him. Mr. Danby urged it was necessary to lower taxation on real estate. Then building would be revived and employment stimulated.

Mr. Middleboro gave five reasons why he believed Ontario tax rates were high:

1—Social services provided by local authorities have increased 10-fold in the last few years.

2—Communication services have had to keep pace with motor traffic need.

3—Educational policies have forced huge expenditures for building, equipment and larger teaching staff.

4—Police protection, public health and other departments of local government have had to expand to keep pace with popular demands for more and more service.

5—Finally, the basis of taxation has been shrinking. "Through depreciation of real property and steady increase in exemption, the goose that lays the golden egg is getting smaller. How much smaller it can get and still lay larger and larger golden eggs each year is a problem for experts other than I," he said.

George Wardrope of Port Arthur favored a greater tax on income than on real property. Then, when a man lost a job, he would not forfeit the home on which he put so

Much Demanded

"The type of service rendered to the citizens by the municipal governments of 25 years ago would not be tolerated today," Mr. Middleboro said. "Streets must be paved, drained, lighed, cleaned. A good secondary education is now expected for every child. This has meant the building of more Collegiate Institutes and Techinical and Vocational schools. Educational standards have been raised considerably during the last 15 years.

As a result, many municipalities are faced with the necessary of building additions to present buildings.

"It is significant that the increase in the cost of educaion has largely gone into equipment and not into raising teachers' salaries," Mr. Middleboro continued. "I for one believe that it is more important to have well-paid, efficient and capable teachers than to have costly buildings and equipment.

"It is interesting to note that, after Quebec, the average financial aid contributed towards education by the government of the province of Ontario is lower than in any other province in the Dominion."

Greatest and most startling increase in municipal costs came from direct relief during the last six or eight years. In cities this cost advanced from 72 cents per capita in 1930 to $6.03 per capita in 1935. There was a slight reduction to $4.83 in 1937.

concede previous perjury on direct examination apparently was designed to beat the defence to that point.

Curry Tells of Split

The daper young lawyer, disbarred after his connections with the multi-million dollar Schultz policy racket became known, took the stand after John Curry, deposed boss of Tammany Hall, had testified under cross-examination of his long-standing feud with Hines.

Hines is accused of giving political protection to the Schultz gang.

"I did not blame Hines for my deposal from the leadership of Tammany Hall," Curry said. "But—I have never spoken to him since then."

Davis, the one-time law clerk who rose to the affluence of $175 suits and $200 topcoats as attorney for the Schultz policy racket, spoke in a low, thin voice as he was sworn in as a state witness.

Only once did Davis look at Hines. It was a quick glance, coldly returned by the 61-year-old defendant, and then Davis returned to what has been heralded as his "singing lesson" under the adroit tutorship of district attorney Thomas Dewey.

"Singing lesson," in the jargon of the underworld, is the action of a prosecutor in getting a reluctant witness to testify or "squeal."

Davis balked for weeks after his capture last February, but finally agreed to turn state's evidence.

Partner Of Weintraub

He said he became a partner with Martin (Moe) Weintraub a co-defendant, who also served as a lawyer in handling policy raid arrests for the Schultz mob. Weintraub's trial was severed before the Hines trial began.

He got into the policy racket in 1930, Davis said, getting some business from George Weinberg, Schultz' business manager.

"I averaged 10 to 15 policy cases a week. My fees then were $15 to $25 a case" he said.

Curry "put the finger" on Hines yesterday in an unheralded appearance as a state's witness, testifying Hines was powerful enough to "dictate" the nomination of William Dodge for the district attorneyship in 1933 and that Hines and other district leaders frequently got him to arrange the transfer of policemen from their assigned posts.

The transfers, he said, "invariably were made, at a rate of between '25 and 50' a year.

Starting slowly in a cool, low voice in contrast to the shouted questions he has hurled at other state's witnesses, Stryker went into the subject of police transfers.

"Is is not a fact that policemen frequently seek transfers to bring their station nearer home?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Police themselves, then, make requests for transfers?"

"At times."

"Would that account for requests for transfers made by various district leaders?"

"I would think so," Curry replied.

Curry also agreed that Hines' recommendation of Dodge for district attorney was made "in line" with the regular Tammany procedure in selecting candidates.

LIVING COSTS FALLS

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 31 (C.P.). — A recovery movement started in North American wheat markets late to-day after prices slumped to the lowest levels in several years. Short covering at Winnipeg and firmness at Chicago resulted in wheat futures here closing only ½ to ¾ cent lower, October at 62¼, November the same, December 61½ to ⅝, and May 65¼ cents.

Winnipeg prices, skidding downward for the sixth week, dropped more than 1½ cents after declines of more than a cent Monday and Tuesday. Five year low levels were touched as the December future reached the 60-cent range.

Est. 1885 Thousands of Successful Graduates

FALL TERM

Peterboro Business College Ltd.

OPENS

TUESDAY, SEPT. 6th

In order to raise the present high standard of Business Training to even a higher level, and to offer to the young people of this district the best obtainable, the management has added MR. TREVOR MILLER to its present staff of experienced teachers.

W. TREVOR MILLER
Asst. Principal

IN SPEAKING WITH
of Queen's University regarding our engaging Mr. Miller, he said that we were fortunate as he considered him a young man of great promise—clever and very capable.

Besides having several years' successful teaching experience, his experience in business will be invaluable.

SUGGESTION To YOUNG PEOPLE and THEIR PARENTS

It is only a short time before our term opens. Why not write, phone, or call for full particulars NOW. The Office is open each day for interviews and registration. We like to serve the public to the best of our ability, and it is advisable to arrange interviews early, so that every phase may be discussed and considered. Last minute decisions sometimes are not satisfactory.

Forty Guests Attend Shower

About forty guests attended the kitchen shower given last evening in honor of Miss Margaret Allen, whose marriage to Mr. Cy Whatley takes places on Saturday.

The shower was held at the Allen cottage at Campbelltown, and Mrs. Harold Gray was hostess.

Many lovely gifts were received by the bride-elect, who was seated under a decorated parasol from which streamers hung with numbers attached. As each number was called, the guest holding the corresponding number was asked to read a verse which revealed the secret of where gifts were hidden. Much fun was created by the hunt for gifts which were deposited inside the cottage and out.

After the evening had been pleasantly spent in games, the hostess was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. J. Henderson.

Mint

There are twelve species of mint grown in the New World. The most important are the spearmint or garden mint, used in mint sauces and for flavoring chewing gum; peppermint, with which peppermint candy is flavored, and menthal prepared; pennyroyal, used in medicine, and bergamot, whose lemon-scented leaves give a fragrant oil much used in perfumes.

This fragrant herb preserves the name of the beautiful nymph Mintha. The goddess Persephone, so the old Greek myth runs, in a fit of jealous rage turned her beautiful rival into the plant which is now so highly prized for its odor and flavor. These qualities are due to essential oils secreted in little glands in the leaves, which, when distilled, gave the flavor used so largely in candy, chewing gum, perfumes, medicines, and cookery.

Fashions

Two-piece dress, "Good Mixer," school or town. Gives impression of extensive wardrobe. A college two-piece favorite, splits up to give you gay sports blouses and a sports skirt. It is one of the smartest costumes for school or early fall town wear. It will make your wardrobe look twice it's size. Both these fitted blouses are made with the same pattern. The flared skirt may be gathered or tucked. If you choose a dark solid colored wool for the skirt, you'll want the blouses of bright solid colored paisley, blazer striped woollen, etc., Again, this two-piece costume is lovely in one material as black morccain crepe or a mossy crepe in Borgia red or Della Robbia blue. Clan plain woolen is a captivating scheme for school and college.

Style No. 3292 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 39-inch material for the long sleeved blouse with collar and 1¼ yards of 39-inch material for the collarless short sleeved blouse. The separate skirt requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch material.

Most Northerly White Wedding

ARCTIC BAY, Baffin Land, Aug. 31—(CP)—Probably the most northerly white wedding ever celebrated in the Dominion took place at Arctic Bay, on the northern shores of Baffin Island, Monday when Mr. Allan Robertson Scott, Hudson's Bay Company post manager married Miss Eileen Christina Wallace.

The bridegroom was formerly of Forgue, Scotland, and the bride is the daugater of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace, Peterhead, Scotland. The ceremony was held in the saloon of the Government supply ship Nascopie, now on it annual Arctic tour. Flags and arctic poppies, picked by Eskimo children, decorated the saloon and the ceremony was conducted by Rt. Rev. A. H. Fleming Anglican Bishop of the Arctic.

Passengers of the Nascopie, ships officers and six red-coated Royal Canadian Mounted Police attended the wedding for which the bride travelled more than 7,000 miles. The wedding was held about 400 miles north of the Arctic Circle and 1,100 miles from the North Pole.

The bride wore conventional white satin and lace veil, and was attended by two fellow passengers, Miss Marion Buell, Rochester, N.Y., and Miss Lorene Squlare, Harper, Kansas. Mr. C. H. J. Winter, Winnipeg, was groomsman. A white Bible decorated by heather from her native Scotland, was carried by the bride.

Take Cuttings of Geraniums Now

This is a god time to take cuttings off geraniums, because they root quite readily now without even the protection of a frame.

Select healthy young shoots three or four inches long; cut them just below a joint, and remove the lowest leaf, or perhaps two, and also the flowers and buds, if any.

Then pot them fairly, firmly in rather sandy potting soil, with the stems about an inch in the soil. If you can manage it, it is better to give each cutting a small pot to itself rather than several in a large pot or box—you can look after them better in small pots.

Stand the pots close together on a level part of the garden where they will be free from cold draughts, and water them well to settle the soil round the stems.

After that water very carefully, and not too much; they need a certain amount, of course, to keep the soil just moist, but there are far more geraniums killed by too much water than by lack of it.

They can remain outside till the autumn, by which time they should be nicely rooted, but they must be taken into their winter quarters befor Jack Frost makes his appearance.

Vacations with pay, just inaugurated by coal mining companies, led to a record number of August weddings in Wales.

The Man Who Marries At A Young Age Seldom Progresses Far In The Business Or Professional World, Because He Must Meet Immediate Needs

THE dean of men in one of our largest and most famous universities said to me the other day that the greatest and most insoluble problem with which he is confronted is trying to keep boys from marrying before they were ready to marry.

DOROTHY DIX

"I do not think that any one thing, not even the vices, causes so much unhappiness, blights so many lives and explains the failure of so many promising young men as these premature marriages," he said. "It is literally true that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a young man married is a young man marred.

"This is bound to be the case," he said, "because for a marriage to be a success it has to have a sound foundation and be built upon something more enduring than a boy's fancy. I tell these lads that calf love is the most transient of all emotions, and remind them that they were just as crazy about Susie last year as they are about Sally this year, but nothing can convince them that they are not experiencing the grand passion and that they will perish if they do not marry forthwith.

"And the silly little flappers they are in love with hurry up the marriages because they think it will be so romantic to elope, or so awfully, perfectly thrilling and exciting to have a show wedding, with a lot of bridesmaids and wedding presents and the photographers taking their pictures in their white satin and orange blossoms.

"And so they are married and generally live scrappily ever afterward, because neither one of them is ready for the responsibilities of marriage. They haven't even any way of living, except sponging upon their parents, and that not only kills their self-respect but inevitably brings on domestic war with their in-laws, because it isn't human nature to welcome with open arms the bride or bridegroom that their children dump upon them and expect them to support.

"Also, the too-early marriage means that the boy has to cut short his education, give up the profession that he had dreamed of following and go to work at whatever poor and uncongenial job he can get. He never has a chance to better himself because, with a family on his shoulders to take care of, he can't save any money to take advantage of any opportunity that offers. He can't afford to risk even giving up a poor situation to hunt for a better one. He has sold himself into slavery on his wedding day.

"Statistics show that these boy-and-girl marriages end oftener in divorce than any other, and that is inevitable, too, because these children have not had their playtime and they crave amusements just as do other youngsters of their age. They want to dance and go to parties and have good times and flirt a bit, instead of being tied down with babies and bills and having to sit at home every night and not even being able to go for a walk without having to push the perambulator.

"But the tragic part of these too-early marriages is that when the husband grows up he so often outgrows his wife, and then there is nothing left between them but a bond that cuts into their very souls and holds the man down and keeps him from fulfilling his destiny. I have seen that fate befall so many brilliant boys.

"I have seen so many boys at 18 or 19 marry pretty little pink-and-white girls, who were sweet and dear and giggly and good dancers and who had never read anything in their lives beyond cheap magazines, which they thought perfectly grand. Perhaps when the lad married one of these little dumbbells there didn't seem such a discrepancy between them, but he went on and developed and became educated and cultured and filled with high ambitions, while she just stayed put and never had another idea or learned a thing after she was 18.

"The result in such cases is always misery for both parties. There can be no companionship between them because they have nothing in common. Both are lonely and the husband's career is blighted. For a dull, uncultured wife is a millstone around a clever man's neck.

"These are some of the things I tell my boys when I urge them not to marry too young, but few of them believe me until they try it, and then it is too late to save them."

Boston Disposes Of False "Sales"

BOSTON, Aug. 31—(CP)—False "closing out sales," "removal" and "going out of business" sales, have been made illegal in Massachusetts by legislation suggested by the Boston Board of Trade and Retail Merchants Association.

Such sales have been frequent in the past, when speculators were free to open a store anywhere and immediately announce "closing out" sales which were fed with new supplies as long as the sale was profitable. Under the new law only merchants who have been doing business at least a year in the store which they are "closing out" are privileged to announce and conduct such sales for reasons of "removal" or "going out of business."

Others must file with the city or town clerk an inventory list of goods to be sold and post a $1,000 bond. This is to prevent a trick which has often been practised in the past to mislead shoppers. "Fake auctions" were ousted the same way a year ago.

First Canadian Woman to Qualify As Public Pilot

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 30.—(CP)—Mrs. Daphne Shelfoon, member of the Hamilton Aero Club, is believed to be the first woman in Canada to qualify for a public transport airplane pilot's certificate. It was announced last night she had passed successfully all tests of the department of civil aviation and that she shortly would receive her certificate.

Possession of the certificate will entitle Mrs. Shelfoon to pilot passenger planes, but she said she does not expect to take over the controls of an air liner. Her husband is one of 73 Canadians holding a transport pilot's license and the couple is believed to be the first in Canada to receive such a certificate.

Native of New Brunswick, Mrs. Shelfoon came here afew months ago. To qualify for the license she had to fly "blind" over a cross-country course, with only instruments to guide her. Last July 1 Mrs. Shelfoon escaped death when a plane in which she was riding was struck in mid-air by a plane piloted by Homer Chapple, killed in the accident.

Who Would Know Famous Author?

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 — (CP). — Isabel Paterson of "Turns With a Bookworm" in The Herald-Tribune, entertained her friend Grace Luckhart of The Vancouver Province at the time of the visit to New York of Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind."

(The total sale of the book is 1,690,000 if translations and foreign sales are included. It has been published in 11 languages. But let Miss Paterson tell it:

Grace Luckhart didn't ask to see any celebrities, and as it's the off season, we thought one literary party was a pretty good break.

Arriving (at a New York affair) we were just ahead of another guest, obviously a southern girl . . . She was small and cute, with bobbed brown hair, a faint suggestion of dimples and a smile. . . Mrs. Marsh was the name. . . . Her face was vaguely familiar, but that's no help to us.

In the course of conversation, she said something which gave us a lead. . . We said brightly, "You are from Atlanta, we take it." . . . She admitted the fact, without stress, and began an amusing story about the southern network of cousins, and the peculiar southern ability to remember them all to the ninth and 10th degree, with real interest and affection. . . She said this was the time of year when the cousins circulate most freely, and she had only a day in New York because she had to hurry back to meet all the new husbands and offspring who would be introduced during the annual round of visits.

She had just come from a series of barbecues, lunches, dinners, teas, dances and breakfasts, extending over half a dozen counties, sometimes with a range of 200 miles a day. . . She told how she had first met her own husband, at a dance, where he overheard her reciting a selected list of relatives, and that he said afterward, he came of a numerous family himself and recognized the fitness of things, and when she married him, she promised he should never want for kin—and he hadn't.

"Atlanta," we repeated, intending to pursue some further inquiry. . . . But someone was laughing at the time and jogged our elbow gently and said: "Don't you know this is Margaret Mitchell?"

It showed us up sadly, for in fact we had never seen Margaret Mitchell. . . And there we were asking her politely if she came from Atlanta! . . . Not that she cared. She preferred not to be recognized, as she had made a flying trip to New York on business only, and we're probably doing her a disfavor by mentioning it at all.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Be very slow to believe that you are wiser tha nall others; it is a fatal but common error. Where some have been saved by a true estimation of another's weakness, thousands have been destroyed by a false appreciation of their own strength.—Colton.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we let ourselves think we are so strong in some wisdom we have learned, so we look with pity and often contempt, on those whom we judge to be weaker than us. But we are all weak in some one thing, and maybe more.

So, we hug this strength to ourselves, until one day we are tried in some manner, and down goes this strength we thought so much of, and down we go with it.

There is a saying that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, and if that link breaks, what use is the chain? No good at all. So also, we are only as strong as our special weakness, so that should in all reason keep us from being prideful in any way.

With some, their weakness lies in their tongue. They speak when they should be silent, they ram things down other people's throats. What they say may be right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough, and that is in respecting other people's opinions and in minding their own business.

With others again, it is their appetite that weakens them, and no man or woman ever gets so high that this appetite will not get them down, wheher it be in food or drink. This does not apply only to liquor, but to tea and coffee drinkers also, for you can get a grand dose of dyspepsia from drinking too much of either.

Some have indolence as their weakness, too tired or too lazy to use this wisdom to their own or anyone else's advantage. Of what use is a store of intelligence in any form, unless it is put to use?

Putting off brings many people low. They are going to do thus or so, they are too busy now, but later on, or tomorrow maybe, they will do this thing, but it never gets done. So people look at them, shake their heads and wonder why they could not have made a better job of their lives.

Mark you, I would not have you belittle yourself or what you can do. That will hold you bac kterribly. Realize your strength, but do not forget your weaknesses are the things that can trip you up. Be glad you have this strength, but give the glory to the One from who it came. Then you need never fear to fall.

Napoleon was small of stature, but he rose above it, and only when he became arrogant in his accomplishments did he go down in defeat. David had his weakness and let it get him down. Moses took the credit to himself and came a cropper, for he never entered the promised land.

You might say, "All I do then, all I accomplish, I get no good out of it? I've got to turn around and hand it all back to God?" And where in the first place did you get this ability? Who showed you how to use it to the best advantage?

It's just as if a table or chair that you made took all the credit to themselves for being made. You can go on from strength to strength when you work with God, but you will not go very far when you put your self and your efforts before God.

Just consider. Against all you accomplish, God made the whole world, and He also made man and woman. Doesn't that make you sort of humble. He gave you your brains, He showed you how to use them, so why should any of us pride ourselves on our strength. We are only as strong as our particular weakness, so let that keep us humble and give the glory where it belongs. Only this way shall we keep being strong.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

HOW YOU CAN Attract MEN

OF course, you have no men friends if you've let yourself become dull, cross, and nervous. Men like lively, peppy girls—girls with plenty of energy to go places and enjoy life.

Don't let love and romance pass you by. Help build up your pep and you, too, should have gay friends.

Here's good advice: Start taking time-proven, reliable Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. This famous Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus soothes jumpy nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

Tear out this notice NOW as a reminder to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound TO-DAY without fail.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from female functional disorders with Pinkham's Compound. Let it help YOU.

Pay Without Protest

People complain very little about the price they pay for liquor. We can recall at various times having letters to the editor saying that bread was too high and that an extra cent added to a quart of milk was working a hardship. It is not many months since the Housewives' League in Toronto was holding a demonstration in front of stores urging that people quit buying butter until the price came below 40 cents per pound.

But no one seems to complain about the price paid for liquor. If there are complaints then the buyers must make them to each other.

And yet the plain fact is that the price of liquor is away up. It is probably higher than anything else people buy.

Figure it out. During the fiscal year 1937-38 the Dominion Government secured through excise and other taxes on intoxicating beverages the sum of $26,086,000.

The provinces also received revenue this way:

Nova Scotia	$1,314,000
New Brunswick	1,105,000
Quebec	5,487,000
Ontario	9,456,000
Manitoba	1,512,000
Saskatchewan	1,512,000
Alberta	2,391,000
British Columbia	3,607,000

Prince Edward Island is the one province which received no revenue because it is prohibition territory.

The amount received by the other eight provinces adds up to $26,325,000, and that added to what the Dominion received amounts to just about 52 and one-half million dollars.

That 52 plus millions of dollars is paid by the people who purchase the liquor, but it actually has nothing whatever to do with what they are paying for the liquor itself. It means they have to satisfy the demands of their governments to that extent before they are able to buy even a small crock, and yet for purposes of collection the consumer ultimately pays the whole thing. Passing strange that people will kick about taxes, the price of what they buy in the way of staple articles and then whack up 52 and a half million taxation for liquor and never say boo.

Too Much Waste In It

One Peterborough resident who attended Toronto Exhibition on Children's Day told the Examiner he had never seen such a cluttered up place by the time the afternoon was well through. He explained that he had business which took him many times to the Exhibition and it always appeared to him that the grounds were kept in good shape and very clean.

His observation was "I have never witnessed such a waste of effort as that put forth by the firms and exhibitors who were handing out pamphlets and printed material to advertise their products. The grounds seemed to be littered with the stuff and it would take dozens of men working for hours to clean it up. That sort of advertising effort has too much waste in it."

And that is true. That sort of waste does not take place when advertising material is inserted in the newspaper. People value a newspaper because they have paid something for it, and the fact that they have paid means they have invited the paper to their homes. It is not going where it has not been asked to come. That is where advertising matter stands its greatest and most favored chance of coming to the attention of the public.

Have Little Left

Roly Young, who has been in Hollywood for several weeks investigating the moving picture business, told the Rotary Club of Oshawa that the high salaries credited to stars in the film world mean little at all. The fact that some person may receive $300,000 a year does not mean that at the end of a couple of years the individual will be able to retire.

The amount which the government collects in the way of income tax makes a large hole in the year's earnings; then the stars must have agents and legal advisers and they must have their publicity men. They have to keep up large establishments and they must attend entertainments where it costs good money to be listed among those present.

Most of the movie stars are in the business for four years and then they are through. There are some who stay indefinitely but their number is few. The same thing was brought out in the recent case where Freddie Bartholomew was seeking an adjustment of his affairs. It was shown that in a year when salary was $72,000 a year government taxes salary of a manager and so on had virtually taken the whole thing. The person with a modest salary and who is able to retain a little of it at the end of the year is probably the fortunate one.

The Style Has Changed

A bridegroom of only a month, although 37 years of age is in trouble in Toronto. In fact he is in the hands of the police and the charge is that he attempted to take his own life. He and his wife were walking some place near the Don river and they started to argue. The husband threatened right there and then to jump over a high railing and end the whole thing. The bride tried to hold on to his sleeve but could not do it, so away went the husband.

He was bent on entering the water and life would soon be a fitful chapter closed and sealed. The bride ran and other people ran; she screamed and other people did the same thing. A policeman appeared but the husband had jumped into the river.

Tragic is it not? But it seems there has been a slight improvement in this business of jumping in the river. The technique has been modified somewhat and it is not as crude as it used to be. Nor is it so dangerous. The husband selected a spot where the water was not too deep and he could readily enough dangle about in there with his feet on the bottom. Also he could easily enough get out. Which he did.

And when the desperate bridegroom of a month, aged 37 years, did emerge from the river the officer of the law started in pursuit. His footwork appears to have been better than that of the despondent gentleman who was afterward dried out in police station and then locked up.

Whether that chap will make much of a husband we do not know. He was willing enough to scare the life out of his wife by jumping into shallow water and then wading out. Better perhaps than taking a high dive to certain death, but if the police do find he is all right it looks as though there were uncertain days ahead for the man who waited until he was 37 before getting married.

He Should "Stay Put"

Magistrate O. A. Langley used the word "pathetic" when dealing with the case of an elderly man brought before him on a vagrancy charge. His name is Thomas Cleary and we mention it without hesitation because Thomas would undoubtedly admit he is a vagrant and has been for quite a long time.

He is not far removed from being 70 years of age. A good many of the transients on the road know him and so do some of the people around the city. Thomas Cleary is not in good physical condition and now he is suffering from a skin disease so when the magistrate placed him in jail for ten days where he will have a chance to get some attention he was actually doing him a kindness. That is where he wanted to go.

Thomas Cleary will tell you he does not belong any place in particular. Time was when he worked and looked after himself. His home used to be farther East in the province, but he has no home now and has not had one for years. He has no relatives to whom he can turn nor has he remained long enough in any one place to qualify for an old age pension when that time arrives. He is actually a vagrant in the fullest and saddest meaning of the word.

It is reported Thomas Cleary has been placed in the County Home but he just walks out; he prefers to sleep at the police station. Apart from that he prefers to walk around and see what funds he can raise by asking for them. He could not possibly go to work and do anything and the place for him is in the County Home if such an arrrangement can be made. If he does not see the wisdom of such a course then it should be plainly impressed upon him that he has done his full share of wandering about. Yes it is a "pathetic" case as the Magistrate has said but we believe that when provision is made for this old gentleman to be housed and cared for he should be made to understand it is high time for him to "stay put."

No Place For It Here

A sign bearing the words "Gentiles Only" has been placed on the premises of one individual who has cabins for rent in this district. He made the statement that tourists from United States had complimented him on the move and claims that business has improved since he placed the sign on his property.

We do not believe we have any place for such signs in this country. It is not a new experience for the Jewish folk to be persecuted and driven about from one place to another. Such has been their history for generations. It is what Hitler has been doing in Germany and in Austria and we have roundly condemned it there. Therefore we take exactly the same view when the same thing is done in our own land and in our own district.

Canada is a free country; it is democratic country. Its laws are for all the people in the land and so are its customs. For a long time the Jewish people have found a freedom and a tolerance under the British flag which has been denied to them elsewhere. We regret that the sign "Gentiles Only" has made its apearance in our land.

Our Country Is All Right

This must be a good country, a sound one and properly put together. We say that because it seems to go right when there is no visible or audible evidence of any person doing much about running and managing it. Right now there is no provincial legislature in session; the county councils are not in session this time of year and in a good many cities the council has knocked off for a couple of months.

The big central governing body at Ottawa dispersed several months ago, and things seemed to go on as usual. And now we find that there is hardly a cabinet minister left in Ottawa. With two of them ill and 11 absent, there is only Prime Minister King and Hon. Thomas Crerar at the capital, and it is reported that Mr. King has trouble enough being around on account of an attack of sciatica.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, has gone to Geneva to see if the League of Nations can be repaired. State Secretary Rinfret is on the way to Paris and Budapest and Rome. Hon. W. D. Euler is in Europe looking for business. Pretty well scattered are those who are elected to operate what we refer to as our ship of state; so far away that they could hardly get a hand on us if we did go wrong. Meanwhile Ottawa gossip has much to do with who is likely to be named for the existing vacancies in the Senate—six in number. Otherwise the country seems to be having a chance to get along without so much government and is making a fairly good show at it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Killing people seems to be one of the leading occupations of this enlightened age.

Whether we like to admit it or not the business of being poor and down and out is regarded as some sort of a crime in this country.

Pilot in North Ireland has been arrested for flying while drunk. A charge such as that we suppose will have to be heard in one of the higher courts.

Capt. Eyston made his speed record 345 miles an hour, and that was very obliging because numbers which run in order like that are so much easier to remember than any others.

Child of eight months in California swallowed a small U.S. flag and it took doctors 72 hours to remove it. Well there have been some of those flag incidents which needed much longer than that to make a settlement.

The C.N.R. Unemployed Association in Stratford has amalgamated with the other unemployed association in that city and we had always understood that amalgamation was the one thing the C.N.R. men did not want.

A cottage near Lake Chemong is reported to have something like $12,000 in loot buried in its vicinity. Any person living in or near that place will probably go in extensively now for amateur gardening.

Gail Henderson, a little girl of four years in St. Louis, Mo., has not started to school yet, but she can add, subtract, multiply, read and spell long words. Ho hum — imagine in years to come when the parents try to help that child with her homework.

There were a few lines in here the other day about Alfonso having been offered the throne of Spain by General Franco. Now we find such an offer has never been made. That is one thing which makes it so easy to fill up a newspaper. Get a report one day and then on the following day get another saying the first one was wrong.

The assessment commissioner in London, Ont., insists that evidence furnished to the Court of Revision by property owners must be given under oath. Perhaps he has found that when people start telling how little their property is worth it is necessary to put a little sand on the track.

In keeping with his promises John Roosevelt, son of the president, started work in a Boston department store at $18 per week. John is paying $100 per month for an apartment so if they have not got him working in the financial department of the store they're misplaying a good man.

PATTERN

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I was but a little lad, and did things that were close to bad, I'd get sent off to bed; I knew that pretty soon I'd hear, a message coming toward my ear, about my Uncle Ed.

¶ Now Uncle Ed was good no doubt, he'd never holler out or shout, he was as smooth as grease; if there was strife when he came in, he seemed to water down the din, and things would be at peace.

¶ And Uncle Ed I used to hear, had always kept his business clear, he didn't drink or bet; he never flung away his kale, nor got himself locked up in jail, nor was he sued for debt.

¶ And Uncle Ed was always kind, he had a clean and lofty mind, a quiet, commanding air; and folk who knew my Uncle Ed, they always spoke up fast and said, they'd never heard him swear.

¶ And every time when I went wrong, I'd hear a chapter fairly long, about my Uncle Ed; and after that was done and through, the next step on I always knew, for I'd be sent to bed.

¶ But Uncle Ed skipped out one day, scooped up the funds and went away, and cops camped at his door; so after that no lofty word, about my Uncle Ed was heard—they spoke of him no more.

Set the Date of Second Coming

(By Fred Landon in London Free Press)

IN THE YEAR 1831 William Miller, an honest and earnest New England farmer of Baptist background, began to warn the people of the United States that the end of the world was approaching and that Christ would reappear on the earth. This was no novel doctrine at the time for many churches were setting forth such a doctrine but Miller differed from the others in fixing the exact date when these great events were to happen. By the study of certain books of the Old Testament he arrived at the conclusion that the year of the second coming would be 1843 and the day around the twenty-first of March. At first Miller's preaching was confined to his own community but soon he was invited to large city pulpits and his gospel was spread by Second-Advent journals such as the Sign of the Times (Boston); The Midnight Cry (New York); and The Philadelphia Alarm.

When March 21, 1843, arrived, thousands of people left their homes and went out in the open fields or to the tops of hills but nothing happened. Then Miller announced that the calculations had not been made correctly and that March 21 of the following year would see the predicted end of all things. During the intervening twelve months excitement was intensified. Yet, strangely enough, hosts of Miller's followers continued to hold to his doctrine.

THE MILLERITE movement found ready response in Upper Canada where a population not unlike that of Western New York seemed to welcome each new variety of belief as it arose. Meredith Conn, leader of a Methodist class in the Talbot settlement, has recorded that its membership was almost enirely carried away by the Millerite movement. His own family and one or two others were all that stood fast and it was only after some years and as the result of a revival that Methodism was properly re-established at Tyrconnel.

On the other hand, Rev. Thomas Henry, a minister of the Christian Church, has recorded that during the excitement of 1843 he baptized 150 converts, 123 in the month of April alone. He believed that these people were moved by fear of the predicted end of the world rather than by any deep religious sentiment.

In the Bay of Quinte district the later phase of the movement made itself felt. C. W. Marsh, whose family emigrated to the United States at a later date, has stated that beween March 1843 and March 1844, the dates set for the great events, Millerism swept the district in which he lived.

"As the time approached there was much of excitement, of praying and singing, rejoicing and wailing and looking skyward, but there were no such ridiculous performances as the making of white robes or the climbing of hill-tops in our community, nor anywhere else, I believe, unless by crazy persons."

Marsh attributed the success of Millerism in his district to the widespread teaching of a second coming by preachers of other denominations. His father remained unmoved by the unfulfilled predictions, holding to his beliefs until his death morethan 40 years later.

In Upper Canada, Adventist doctrines continued to be rpeached. In 1880-81 James Caleb McIntosh of Centralia published two pamphlets predicting the second coming of Christ in the spring of 1884, forty years after the Millerite excitement. McIntosh claimed that he found in the forty years of wanderings of the Israelites a type of the wanderings of "the true Israel after they came out of Egypt, or Babylonian churches, in 1843-44."

Another interesting religious movement of this period of the forties, coming also from the United States, was the Community of True Inspiration (Amana) which founded two village communities in Western Ontario. One of these, Kenneberg, was in Haldimand county, about the vicinity of the present Canboro, while the second, Canada Ebenezer, was nearer the Niagara River. Both communities were of considerable value because of their fine stands of timber.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune wrote in 1851 that at Kenneberg there were about 50 members holding seven hundred acres of land. "They are socialists," he wrote, "and a young man and his sister teach school. The children are clean and carefully taught; they also work mittens, very good and very cheap, and are taught vocal music. Instrumentel music has not been introduced into the Society. Each family lives by itself, and may take out its stock and leave at will. They have a saw-mill, and it is now in active employment."

Four years later the same correspondent reported that the community, though prosperous and happy in Canada was preparing to remove to Iowa. It was during that summer of 1855 that the first Amana village in the new western state was laid out and the migration of the several communities from New York State and from Canada was carried out gradually during the next few years.

WINGS OVER BORDER.

(Detroit Free Press)

THE CANADIAN Transport Ministry is negotiating with the United States on behalf of the Trans-Canada Airlines, which seek the same terminal rights and privileges in this Country, as American lines doing business in Canada enjoy.

A local angle is given to the negotiations by the fact that Trans-Canada Airlines propose to operate into Buffalo from either Windsor or Detroit with Detroit regarded as the more suitable terminal.

At the present time only one Canadian airline operates into the United States — from Vancouver to Seattle, while American lines have terminels in Canada at Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal.

According Canadian lines "equal rights" would seem to be the only fair and friendly thing to do.

• What A Farmer Gets For His Wheat

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir—I have been asked by a farmer to ask why Ontario farmers have to take 60c a bushel for wheat, when other provinces are to have 80c, especially as that being a Dominion regulation. Ontario will have to share in the tax to boost wheat prices in other provinces. Seed wheat was $1.10 a bushel, seed oats 55c. By weight, wheat is almost twice as heavy as oats 60 and 34 pounds to the bushel and more hull to the oats. Oats would make very poor bread.

Years ago they never thought of less than $1.00 to $1.25 for wheat, and bread was 5c a loaf—now nine. There are larger quantities of old wheat on hand, still there are many wheat products which are quite expensive. When you buy rolled whole wheat you get only a few pounds for a quarter and then it is minus the germ which is expensive also the bran.

Wheat is used in the production or manufacture of several cereals and preparations on the market. It takes labor, machinery, time, etc., to produce them. It also takes labor, machinery, time and money to raise the wheat and the risk is greater for weather conditions from fear of late and early frosts, bare fields in Winter for fall wheat, too much or to little rain, blasting winds, or hail may cause deteriation in the value of the crop. This is a matter a good many farmers are discussing. I fancy a good many pigs will be fed wheat this year.

A FARMER'S WIFE.

Ed. Note: The guaranteed price of wheat is 80c as stated by our correspondent, but it should always be remembered that prices for such grain are based on delivery in Fort William, and the producer must see to it that his wheat reaches there. His actual cash receipt is the Fort William price less what it costs to ship his grain there. We have noticed several writers in Western papers making the calculation that the price to the farmer will probably be about one cent per pound.

If a farmer living 15 miles from Peterborough is going to sell his wheat to some person who is willing to pay him 60 cents a bushel for it at his place of business in the city, then the farmer must bring the wheat in and pay for the trip. The same principle works out in the West where the price is based on delivery at Fort William.—Ed. Examiner.

• Says His Record Is Dismal

(Lethbridge Herald)

THREE YEARS ago the citizens of Alberta turned their backs upon good old-fashioned orthodoxy and voted into power William Aberhart and his Social Credit theory.

The reason they voted for him was that he had promised:

1.—$25 a month dividends to all adults, and lesser dividends to minors.

3.—Interest-free loans to farmers.

Three years of chaos, repudiation and legislative and administrative incompetence have followed. Not a single promise has been fulfilled.

Today Premier Aberhart has designated as "Democracy Day" to commemorate the fact that "THE PEOPLE" voted for him in 1935. What we will hear from the lips of the Premier and his supporters—rapidly dwindling—is a chorus of excuses for having accomplished absolutely nothing except to sink Alberta into the mire, making it an outcast among Canadian provinces.

The reason the Aberhartians are running round like chickens with their heads cut off is that they promised the impossible and have now reached the dead end.

Mr. Aberhart should celebrate the day by resigning and calling for a new deal.

• Because A Boy Killed A Snake

(From the South African News Letter)

SIKIZWE, THE 15-year-old second son of Mqilmane, Chief of the Mtuli tribe near Nyamazane hill at Mapumulo, Natal, has caused a stir among the kehlas and wise men. For the moment he is in disgrace.

Sikizwe was coming home from school and had to pass under the giant wild fig tree beneath which his father holds council and dispenses justice.

As Sikizwe passed under it he saw a snake in the branches. He killed it with a stick and—in accordance with the local custom—took it to the Mapumulo Magistrate to claim the bounty of one shilling a head for green or black mambas, which is given in the area to stimulate the killing of vermin.

The snake is an ordinary green mamba about seven feet long. But some of the native wiseacres attach a certain significance to its destruction in the shade of the council tree and fear that it may be the abode of the spirit of one of Mqilimane's ancestors.

There is a legend among the Swazi and Zulu peoples that whenever a snake is killed— should the snake be a "spirit snake"—the killer may not succeed to power in his tribe until the anger of the spirit of the snake —the ancestor of the ruling chief, probably, according to popular belief—is appeased by slaughtering cattle.

"The killing of this snake—if it is of the particular type regarded as spirit snakes—will be regarded as a very serious thing indeed by the natives", said Mr. S. W. B. Shepstone, Native Welfare Officer for Durban.

"The ancestor whose spirit lived in the snake will be greatly angered at the affront to him. He has been attacked and rudely thrust from his home, to native eyes, and he will visit his displeasure on the man who did the deed and on that man's father, according to native tradition.

"The only way the spirit may be appeased is by killing cattle. There is no fixed 'tariff', but one, two, three, even a dozen beasts may be slaughtered by the relatives of the family to satisfy the outraged ancestor."

• Trying To "Get" Mr. Semple

(Montreal Star)

WHEN THE CITY Council announced a desire to remove Recorder Semple some months ago, The Star ventured to explain that it was probably due to an absence in Mr. Semple of that suppleness of spine which aldermen expect to find in everybody from whom they have anything to gain. In other words, Recorder Semple was not the sort of approachable magistrate who could be depended on to arrange any little thing that an alderman might like to have arranged for, let us say, one of his electors who had got into trouble. The Recorder has a stiff-necked preference for running his own court and an unpleasant way of exploding verbal firecrackers in public under the coat-tails of would be "fixers." Naturally all this was irritating and upsetting and hence the anxiety to get Quebec to fire Mr. Semple forthwith.

We are glad to be quite sure that our earlier analysis of aldermanic motives did these gentlemen no injustice. The amazing resolution passed by the Executive Committee at the instance of Messrs. Bray and Dupuis lets the cat out of the bag completely. Not only is Recorder Semple to be fired, but everyone who has been fined by him, presumably during the last two months or so, and who may feel a bit unhappy about it —as who would not?—has only to fly to the Executive bosom and get his money back.

The resolution is probably the most flagrant and unabashed attempt to override and ruin the power of magistrates ever made in Montreal. If Quebec pays the slightest attention to this fantastic request it will do irreparable damage to the authority of the magistrates' courts in this city, substituting for them a group of ward politicians "on the make" for popularity and not particular how they attain it.

We do not, of course, believe that Mr. Duplessis will even entertain the idea. On the whole, it is perhaps just as well that the resolution was passed. The motive behind the attack on Mr. Semple is no longer in question.

BARBARA'S FORTUNE.

(Malcolm W. Bingay in Detroit Free Press)

BARBARA HUTTON and that no-account Haugwitz-Reventlow, are palsy-walsy on the beach at Venice. Justlikethat. Somebody ought to take Barbara's fortune away from her and distribute it evenly among all the girls who work in those five-and-ten-cent stores from where she gets her cash. Yes, yes, yes; I know. If that were done each salesgirl would get only a few dollars. So they wouldn't be any better off than they were before. But Barbara would be much better off; she'd be broke and would have to go to work for a living—and that would do her a world of good.

HUMAN BIRDS.

(Windsor Star)

ITALIAN ENGINEERS are reported to be working on a scheme to permit man to fly like birds, on his own muscular power.

When this works out we suppose Benito will be flying over to see Adolf every other week-end, with Adolf hopping off for Rome on the intervening dates. Of course flying shouldn't be any particular problem for these dictators now. Merely puffing out their chests they should be able to float along on the lighter-than-air principle.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

NOW IF CHRIST be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?

But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is your preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. . . .

If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. . . .

O death, where is they sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord. — I Cor. xv, 12-14, 19, 20, 55-58.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR: THE SPLENDID address delivered by President Roosevelt the other day at Queen's University does not extend except as hereinafter mentioned, the Monroe Doctrine in any way, but it does clarify its application in that it makes clear that it applies to Canada. President Monroe in his message of December 2, 1823 said that with the movements in this hemisphere the United States is necessarily concerned and for causes which were obvious. He added, "we owe it therefore to candour and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those (i.e. European) powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. . . . The American continents are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers."

President Roosevelt's declaration does extend the Monroe doctrine to this extent, namely, that it is a warning to all possible enemy powers, not European powers alone to keep their hands off Canada. Canada for the first time is specifically named. In Monroe's message it was by implication included in the warning.

LEX.

MERITS STUDY.

(Windsor Daily Star)

BEFORE WE ARE all quick to rush in and condemn Mr. Roosevelt's plan and toss it to the wolves, it would be better to give it careful study. As we understand the proposition, the President is offering something of a new deal in the development. It will be worked in as part of a trade agreement and there are possible concessions that could be granted that will make the entire project assume a more attractive complexion. The whole problem merits intensive study and it is a question that cannot betossed aside simply because one political leader is vexed with another. This is a matter of national importance and it must be dealt with in that light.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 30

THE NEXT morning, as usual, it was Laurie who awakened first. A few minutes later, Noel yawned and sat up in bed. So Laurie fixed some coffee and toast.

She brought it to Noel in bed and sat down beside her. "Listen, Noel," she began, "even if Doctor Paige does go around a lot with Ruth Chester, I can't help having a feeling that he loves you."

"Yes?" Noel lifted her pretty golden brows. "Well, in that case, don't you think he has a queer way of showing it?" There was bitterness in her voice.

"Men are funny," Laurie said, getting up and going over to the dresser to get a jar of cold cream. "But I believe it just the same," she finished.

"How can you be such a Pollyanna when things are so wrong between you and Jimmy?" Noel asked thoughtfully.

"I suppose it's because I'm hoping somebody can be happy even if we can't."

They fell into a silence then, Noel wondering about Jimmy and Laurie. They had not been seeing each other lately, she knew. But Noel didn't ask anything about that. She dreaded seeing the look of pain which would come into Laurie's face. Instead, Noel told her about Chris and his offer.

Laurie was delighted. She was the warm-hearted type of girl who really could find happiness in the good fortune of her friends.

"I think that's perfectly wonderful," she exclaimed.

Noel smiled at Laurie's enthusiasm. " I feel as if a great burden had been lifted off my shoulders—to be free of the Peacok and of Nick."

"I know it was hateful for you there," Laurie said understandingly. Then went back to Julian. "Honestly Noel, I don't believe he's the least bit in love with Ruth Chester. And she knows it. That's why she was so catty to you while I was sick. She's jealous because she knows, whether she wants to admit it or not, that Doctor Paige loves you."

"And I'm jealous of her," Noel answered in her forthright way, "because she can see him every day, and share his life, and has a chance to sell herself to him as being the type of woman he should marry, while I—don't have a chance in the world to impress him."

"You don't really need to, honey," Laurie argued tenderly. Then she said that Doctor Paige was kept busy all the time, and that she had heard several people from the Medical Arts building say that he was driving himself too hard.

"Does he look ill" Noel asked.

"He looks tired," Laurie answered. She was dressed now, had her immaculate gloves in her hands. She never went anywhere without a clean pair.

"Come to the De Luxe for dinner tonight," she suggested. "He'll probably be there. He's asked me about you several times, you know. Maybe he's hoping to see you."

"If he is, he's certainly not doing anything about it," Noel said, some of the bitterness creeping into her voice.

"Don't be like that," Laurie reproached gently. Then she said she was going to expect Noel and left.

The truth was Noel had decided to see Julian at the earliest moment. Now that a number of hours had passed since Nick had made his threat, Noel's fears were not as great. She thought it was probably nothing but idle talk on Nick's part caused by his anger at her for leaving the Peacock. But she still thought she'd better say something to Julian about what Nick had insinuated.

At 11 o'clock Noel went to the studio address Chris had given her. She was wearing one of the $1.98 voile dresses she had bought from a bargain basement. It had a tiny blue flower against a cream background, with a very wide circular skirt, and she wore a piece of narrow blue velvet around her slim waist. She thought it would do very nicely to dance in since the skirt was so full.

Mr. Breton wasn't there yet, but Chris was, so they had a chance for a talk during which he gave her a number of pointers about dancing, and they practiced some difficult steps together. "You'll get along like a house afire," Chris told her admiringly.

Noel flushed with pleasure at his praise.

"A few weeks' practice," Chris went on, "and you'll improve so fast you won't know yourself. I don't mean that it will be easy, but you'll make the grade."

"I'll work, Chris," Noel promised earnestly. She had an idea that all this strenuous practice Chris was talking about would seem almost like play after those hours she had put in at the Peacock.

Then Mr. Breton came in, immaculate in tweeds and beret. He went to a side door and called someone who came at once. It was the pianist, a small, rather dwarfish man with dreamy gray eyes. He took his place at the concert grand at the far end of the studio, and Noel knew the minute his fingers touched the keys that here was a real musician.

She was shown one intricate step after another, which was explained with great patience, and which she was able to follow cleverly enough. Sometimes she went over a particularly difficult step as many as 40 times before Mr. Breton would let her start on another. She was beginning to realize what Chris had meant by hard work.

It was 2 o'clock before Mr. Breton was ready to stop. Noel felt herself to be a wreck.

She sank into a chair after Carey Breton left and the pianist had closed the piano and silently tiptoed away.

Chris laughed at her. "The first hundred years are the hardest, sweetheart."

He bent over her then and kissed her lightly.

Noel sat up. "Chris, please—"

"You don't want me to kiss you? All right, sweetheart, whatever you say goes," Chris said with his usual nonchalance. Then he looked back at her and smiled. "But if you change your mind at any time, you'll let me know, won't you?"

"Idiot!" Noel laughed.

Then Chris said, "How about lunch?"

"A grand suggestion. I'm famished." Noel hadn't eaten the toast Laurie had brought her for breakfast, and had only tasted the coffee. No wonder she was hungry after all that strenuous exercise. "I'll probably order everything on the menu," she smiled.

"That's okay by me," Chris smiled back. Then he said that Carey was a hard taskmaster, but that he had wanted to be sure Noel could take it. "And you can," he finished.

They went to an uptown place, one of those arty restaurants done in Spanish style. Gay senoritas with high-piled dark hair and jeweled combs, with highly colored embroidery shawls over their short full dresses, were hurrying about with trays of food. A dark, good-looking young man in the elaborate dress of a bull fighter strolled in and out among the tables, playing a guitar and singing a Spanish love ballad in a soft, passionate voice.

Chris ordered a lovely meal, things Noel hadn't tasted in a rather long time: broiled squab, iced melon, some mysterious delicacy under a silver cover, avocado salad, and a fragrant iced tea which he said would give her a lift.

While they ate, he talked over their plans. "This is really an occasion, you know. The beginning of our mutual success."

For Chris was feeling confident as to Breton's final decision. "As soon as he definitely makes up his mind," Chris said, "we'll leave at once for the coast."

Noel looked at him in surprise. "The coast?" she repeated.

"Of course," Chris smiled. "Hollywood. That's what it's all about. Carey you see, has a tieup with one of the big studios."

Noel somehow had been stupid. She had not realized that Chris had been thinking of Hollywood all this time.

"We're headed for the movies, don't you understand?" Chris exulted.

"Yes, yes, of course," Noel answered, but she felt her heart sink. She wasn't sure she wanted to go to Hollywood. To go away—to leave everything here!

Noel decided she would talk it all over with Julian tonight at the De Luxe. She would find out how he felt about it. Just why, however, his opinion should matter so much, she couldn't say. But she was anxious to have Julian's opinion. If he thought she should go—then that meant but one thing; he wasn't really interested.

But Julian wasn't at the De Luxe when Noel arrived. She sat at a table, waited a while, then ordered a simple meal. But still Julian didn't come.

When Noel finished, she went up to the cash registher and paid the check. She could tell by Laurie's eyes she had seen Julian. So she said, "You don't want to tell me that he went off again with Ruth Chester, do you?"

A man came to pay a check, so it was a minute before Laurie answered Then she just simply nodded. After which she said. "Don't mind, Noel. After all—I suppose he couldn't get away from her."

"I don't mind," Noel exclaimed in a brittle voice. "Why should I? I'm going to Hollywood."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others can! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities, Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 40¢ at any drug store.

POLIDENT
Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Put plate or bridge in ¼ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, September 1.

While this may be a particularly lively or exciting day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, it may not prove to be a particularly happy or successful one. There may be difficulties, inharmonies or disappointments in employment, especially in those professions in which writings, publishing, advertising or contracts of a business nature are involved.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be engulfed in a year of friction, vexation, and loss that may affect their business or employment and have unhappy reactions in their private or home life. This might be caused by gossip or direct malicious attack from young people in working associations, especially if the contact relates to writings, publishing, or contracts.

A child born on this day may be nervous, high strung, supersensitive and talkative to the extent of prevarication, gossip or misrepresentation. It should have early training and staunch discipline to correct such propensities.

Be Sure of Etiquette When Men Friends Call

Tom's delighted that Madge asked him to call. He knows she's the girl to put you at your ease quickly, avoid stiff moments.

See how cordially she welcomes Tom at the door. She helps him put away hat and topcoat, then presents him to her parents, makes him feel an honored caller: "Mother, this is Tom Blake." Her young sister she introduces to him: "Tom, my sister Eve." She doesn't use "Miss," "Mr," or "Mrs." for members of her family.

Soon the family leave Madge and Tom alone. Does she start grimly to "entertain," try to fascinate every minute? No, she suggests games for two, follows lively ring toss with fortune telling by cards. They talk naturally as they play. Should he ask if she'd like to go out, she expresses her wish clearly. No limp "whatever you say."

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG MODERNS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

The praise service was led by the Young People's choir, with representatives from both churches. Their special numbers were "All the World for the King," and "Loving and Praying."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell and party returned to Toronto on Sunday.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

And this is how Knarf, the shadow boy with the turned-about name, got Mary Jane, the rag doll, a new face painted on to take the place of the one which the puppy had licked off. Oh! he was very clever, as you shall see.

"Robin! You must do me a favor" he called up a tree.

"A favor? What kind of a favor? I'm busy tugging at this cherry for my dinner. I have no time to do favors."

"All I want you to do is to eat that cherry down here," Knarf said to him, pointing to Mary Jane's head.

The robin's eyes opened in amazement. Imagine eating a cherry on anyone's head! But he did it just the same. And do you know what happened? Four little drops fell out of the cherry as the robin ate it.

Just What He Wanted.

"That's just what I wanted to happen!" Knarf exclaimed. "Quick, Robin, give me one of the little feather in your tail!"

Then the robin gave his tail a flirt, and out came a little feather. Knarf toog it and made two little Knarf took it and made two little and a little pink nose with the third drop.

And with the fourth drop he tried to make Mary Jane's mouth. But he couldn't get the shape just right.

"Pick one of those rosebuds."

"Here," said the robin, "I know just what you ought to do about that. Pick one of those rosebuds," he said. "Then press it on the place where Mary Jane's mouth should be."

And that's exactly what Knarf did. The next minute Mary Jane had the prettiest, the sweetest and the smallest rosebud mouth that any rag doll ever had! When the children saw her they cried: "Mary Jane, we never knew you were so beautiful!" No wonder Mary Jane is so happy.

Dictators Will Eventually Lead To War Involving Canada, Rev. Springett Claims

TORONTO, Aug. 31. — Determination of dictators bent on war to make their "last throw" would inevitably lead to war involving Canada, Rev. E. J. Springett, Dominion Commissioner of British-Israel World Federation, said last night at the Masonic Temple as the tenth Dominion convention of the Federation drew to a close.

"The British Government, the French Government and the nations of the Little Entente have all been issuing warnings to Hitler," he said. "I don't know if Hitler will finally take steps leading to war at his Nuremberg speech in early September, but I do know from the Bible that war is inevitable. The dictators are determined to make their last throw. And when that time comes, no matter haw far away we are from the seat of conflict, Canada will be involved."

"We must put an end to subversive influences, which, camouflaged under high-sounding names, are undermining the morale of our people," Mr. Springett asserted. He urged his audience to join the Federation and "fight for God's cause."

Howard B. Rand, National Commissioner of the Anglo-Saxon Federation of America, Detroit, said Great Britain was to-day fulfilling Biblical prophecy in subduing warlike nations and in acting as a steadying force in the maintenance of peace in Euorpe as in other parts of the world.

Poverty, sickness, unemployment, and crop failures were the result of man's action in scrapping God's constitution, as laid down in the Bible, in favor of man-made laws, said George Crux, British Columbia director of the Federation.

One Ounce Of Wool

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 31 (C.P.-Reuters). — An inch off the swimimng suit may upset the economy of Australia, according to the secretary of the Australian Wool Board, S. L. Officer, who asks swimmers to consider the national wool industry. He says a change to half-skirted costumes would mean only one ounce of wool less in a costume, but in the thousands needed annually it would represent a considerable sum.

Parker VACUMATIC

GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT

PENS: $5 $7.50 $8.75 $10

Pencils to match: $3.50, $3.75, $4, $5

The Heart's Desire of Boys and Girls

—the Pen that has What it Takes to help them rate marks that they can write home about!

A slenderized style in circlets of shimmery Pearl and Jet—one can SEE the level of ink at all times—see when to refill, so it won't run dry in classes or exams

If you have sons or daughters now starting back to school or college, don't let their blithe spirits be troubled by inferior tools for hand and brain. Give them the Pen that will start them off on even terms with any other student—the revolutionary Parker VACUMATIC.

A Pen that won't let them down by running dry unexpectedly in classes, tests or exams. And the smartest, the most original and exclusive style on the campus.

Its Scratch-proof Point of 14-Karat Gold is tipped with Osmiridium, twice as costly as ordinary iridium, and the smoothest thing ever put on a pen point.

Recently, when 77 unbiased college newspapers asked students to name their first choice pen, almost as many voted "PARKER" as named all other makes of pens combined.

Go today to any good pen counter and look for the smart ARROW clip—this identifies the genuine Parker Vacumatic.

CNE Attendance Runs 30 p.c. Over Last Year

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—(CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition spotlight shifts today to food products and merchants as attendance records, retail sales and merchandise transactions continue to mount. Attendance for the first four days of the 14-day Fair is running about 30 per cent over last year. Yesterday, Automotive Day, 86,000 persons were admitted to the grounds.

Sir Earl Page-Croft, a one-man mission from England investigating the possibility of further land settlement from the United Kingdom in the Canadian west, will be luncheon speaker for the C.N.E. directors.

Leaders in the automotive world were the directors' guests yesterday when J. C. Armer urged Canadian youth to turn to the country's secondary industries in their quest for employment. The chairman of the automotive parts section of the Canadian Manufacturers Association said opportunities for technical training in Canada now obviated the need for Canadians to go to the United States.

The livestock section of the Coliseum was rapidly filling with prize animals from all parts of Canada. Judging gets under way tomorrow. About 350 Holsteins, largest of the cattle sections, will be stabled by tonight. Jerseys and Guernseys are being shown in larger number than former years.

Cut Show On.

The international cat show opened yesterday with entries from Detroit, Chesterland, O., Lansing, Mich., as well as many Toronto and Hamilton fanciers. Champion will be declared Thursday.

A treasure hunt for 1,000 prizes will be a highlight for many visitors today to the food products building. Others will see demonstrations of Canadian handcraft by the junior league.

Guest bands at the fair today include the Waterloo band of Waterloo, Ont., and the Originals Club band. The Welsh Imperial singers and the Royal Artillery Band of England continue their daily concerts. Third showing of the grandstand pageant "The Decades" will be held tonight.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALBERT HALL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Aug. 31—On Sunday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. Albert Hall was held from her home on the East Road. Mrs. Hall has been in ill health for a number of years and her passing was not unexpected. She was formerly Mary McCauley, and was 56 years of age.

Beside her husband she leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. McAdams of Keene and Susie at home and five sons, Wilbert of Glen Alda, Alex, Allan, Roy and Kenneth at home. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Hall and his family.

MRS. MARY STEENBURGH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Aug. 31.—Largely attended by friends and relatives from the surrounding district, the funeral of the late Mary Emily Steenburgh, aged 85, was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of her son, C. F. Steenburgh, of Belmont. One of Peterborough county's pioneer citizens, Mrs. Steenburgh was a resident of Belmont for sixty-three years. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. Burnham of Campbellford, assisted by Rev. M. Boscoe, of Marmora.

The late Mrs. Steenburgh was born in Prince Edward County, across the Bay of Quinte from Belleville, on March 13, 1852. Her parents were George McGinnis and Harriett M. Bates, both natives of Prince Edward county. When she was 16 years old her parents moved to Northumberland county, where she lived in the village of Stockdale until her marriage on August 12, 1874, to William H. Steenburgh. Living in Stockdale for two years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Steenburgh moved to Rockdale in Belmont. Here she has lived ever since on the family homestead.

Surviving are her two daughters, Mrs. Norman Johnson, Rice's Landing, Pa.; Mrs. George Barrons, Belmont; and four sons, S. W. Steenburgh, Oakmont, Pa.; Floyd Steenburgh, Belmont; W. W. Stenburgh, Fort Myers, Florida; and C. F. Steenburgh, Belmont. There are also 36 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Interment took place at Rockdale Cemetery, six grandsons, one each of her children's children, acting as pall-bearers. They were: Everett Barrons, Frank Ellis, Wesley Steenburgh, Walter Steenburgh, and John Steenburgh, all of Belmont, and Watson Steenburgh of Oakmont, Pa.

Four granddaughters acted as flower-bearers, Miss Irene Barrons, Miss Edith Barrons, Miss Pauline Steenburgh, and Mrs. Louise Hines, all of Belmont.

Salvation Army Head Takes Reins For Her Guests

Day At C.N.E. Opened and Closed With Devotions In Midway Tent

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—If you happen along the C.N.E.'s Frol-"Ex" Land, after shows have all closed up, any night you will hear a great choir singing old-fashioned hymns, and seventy voices rumbling in prayer. It will be the Hawaiian Village, every one from the manager to the youngest ten-year-old dancer, offering thanks in a Christian service for the day's blessings.

Every morning, before they open their first show, and after the last show every night, all members of the Hawaiian Village gather together before the stage for a service of devotion.

"Some of us are Mormons, some Latter Day Saints and some Roman Catholic, but we all attend the same morning and evening service," explained Miss Julia, handsome musician, who does the announcing for the show. "Mr. Kualii, one of our own company, leads the service. Though he is not a minister, he is a very religious man, and so takes charge.

And the Hawaiians, by the way, are very upset about being on the Midway. They are, they explained, school teachers, policemen, clerks, housekeepers and so forth, although all play professionally at the big hotels on the Islands during the tourist season to interpret Hawaii to visitors. And they have come to Canada for the same purpose, they said, to interpret Hawaii and not, they declare vehemently, "as kootchy hula dancers."

"We came to show people what real Hawaiian dancing was like—lovely dances with a religious significance, not a vulgar kootchy dance that they have in carnivals," said Miss Julia.

None of the company, except the manager and two young women who attended a Latter Day Saints Young People's Convention at Salt Lake City last summer, has been "on the mainland" before. All were gathered together from the best native shows on the Islands of Honolulu, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, this summer, to come to America on "a good-will tour." They played first as the feature attraction before the grandstand at the Illinois State Fair at Springfield and then came on to Toronto.

All speak excellent English—pointout, laughingly that the same school system prevails on the islands as in the United States, and all are finding Toronto's cold "nippy." Five of the girls already are confined to their hotel with colds.

"You see our temperature ranges between 55 and 86," said E. K. Fernandez, who "collected" the show.

Weiner Roast Is Held By B.Y.P.U.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

GILMOUR, Aug. 31—A marshmallow and weiner roast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Mann, under the auspices of the Gilmour Memorial B.Y.P.U. After an enjoyable evening of fun and eats on the spacious lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Mann, the young people went into the house, where other sports were enjoyed. There were about fifty present.

Giant British Plane Breaks In Two

Great Britain's giant airliner, Albatross, constructed for transatlantic flights on which it was to carry passengers and cargo, broke in two as it landed at Hatfield Airdrome, near London, after a test flight. The machine was loaded well above her rated maximum capacity with lead ballast and this is believed to be responsible for the accident. The crew of four escaped. The machine was being groomed for a possible flight across the Atlantic, starting Sept. 1.

Canada Year Book Is Off The Press

The publication of the 1938 edition of the Canada Year Book, published by authorization of the Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is announced by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Canada Year Book is the official statistical annual of the country and contains a thoroughly up-to-date account of the natural resources of the Dominion and their development, the history of the country, its institutions, its demography, the different branches of production, trade, transportation, finance, education, etc. — in brief, a comprehensive study within the limits of a single volume of the social and economic condition of the Dominion. This new edition has been thoroughly revised throughout and includes in all its chapters the latest information available up to the dae of going to press.

The 1938 Canada Year Book extends to almost 1,200 pages, dealing with all phases of the national life and more especially with those susceptible of statistical measurement. A statistical summary of the progress of Canada is included in the introductory matter. This gives a picture in figures of the remarkable progress which the country has made since the first census of the Dominion was taken in 1871, sixty-seven years ago.

Persons requiring the Year Book may obtain it from the King's Printer, Ottawa, as long as the supply lasts, at the price of $1.50, which covers merely the cost of paper, printing, and binding. By a special concession, a limited number of paper-bound copies have been set aside for ministers of religion, bona-fide students and school teachers, who may obtain copies at the nominal price of 50 cents each.

Keene, Aug. 31.

A. BACKERS of East Delanau, N. Y. fishing along the shore of Sugar Island at the mouth of the Indian River near Keene, reports the muskies must be taking their spinach freely. He landed a 25 pound one but only after 46 minutes battle.

Blocked In Suicide Woman Rolls Highway 3 Years

Allahabad, India, Aug. 31.

AN INDIAN woman, rolling her way from Poona to Benares, has arrived here. Four years ago she was widowed and was prevented by the police from throwing herself on her husband's funeral pyre.

For nine months she slept every night at the scene of her husband's cremation and claims to have seen a vision in which her husband's spirit advised her that if she did penance by rolling to Benares she would meet.

Swinging in a Jhoola, a native wheel contrivance, at the rate of five miles a day she has been rolling for three years.

GRANDSON OF WILBERFORCE DEAD

BATH, England.—Henry Edward Wilberforce, last surviving grandson of William Wilberforce, famous British slave emancipator, died today, three days after his 91st birthday.

The centenary of the death of his grandfather, whose agitation resulted in the 1807 act abolishing the slave trade, was commemorated five years ago.

Now A Glamor Girl

Winner of a "Make the Most of Yourself" contest, sponsored by a magazine, Kalli Foutz, of Salt Lake City, was rewarded with a trip to New York and a complete overhauling, the object of which was to make her a "glamor girl." She is seen at the completion of the most difficult and painful part of the process, the rebuilding of her nose.

Marmora Song To Be Broadcast

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Aug. 3.—"Songs of Canada" the Canadian song writer's own program — for which Charles Wellinger, musical director of CKOC is responsible, will be heard over that station on Monday evenings at 8 p.m. commencing September 12. Outstanding efforts by amateur song writers of Canada will be thus presented to the public by accomplished vocalists. To be heard on an early program, if not on the first will be a lyric by W. J. Cottrell entitled "Contented Valley."

Mr. Wellinger who recently spent a week's vacation in Marmora composed the melody. The number will also be heard in New York as Sydney Morton, opera singer of that city has noted its possibilities and has consented to add it to his repertoire.

Fire Arms Seized

PLYMOUTH, England—Customs officers took eight six-shooters and five rifles away from Tom Mix today when the cowboy movie star arrived for a music hall tour. The weapons were impounded until Mix gets a license to import them.

Gives Chase To Thieves

HAMILTON—Evading car thieves who attempted to force his automobile over the mountain brow near the beacon light above Kenilworth avenue, Douglas Thornwell pursued them for several miles over country roads early today. The thieves eventually abandoned the machine to escape.

Four Chinese Children Head Classes

For the second time within a year the four Wong children, brilliant Chinese students at the Lakefield High School have made school history, as examination results published recently reveals that each of the four placed first in their respective classes, and to make the record more unusual each one has been awarded the general proficiency prize, the highest honor obtainable in the school. The unique record is without parallel in the history of the institute where 130 pupils are enrolled.

Their Record

The children are as follows: George Wong, fourth form, who wrote seven subjects, obtaining first class honors in every one and will write senior matriculation next year, with a strong possibility that he may win a University of Toronto scholarship. Mary Wong, took the laurels in third form, and will write Junior matriculation next year. Lily Wong passed first out of second form into third, and the youngest of the four, Rose Wong enters her second year at high school in the coveted first place position.

The children started on their record making journey last December when the three in High School and Rose who had just passed the entrance the summer before, led the classes and were given prizes at the annual commencement exercises. Rose at that time took the Catholic Women's League prize for history and the High School Board prize because she topped in marks all those who had written the entrance examinations.

Father Out of Work

The elderly father of the children is Wong Kee, humble unemployed Chinese who formerly operated a restaurant in the village but who was forced out of business during the depression, and by the closing of the cement plant. For five years he had been able to support his family by the returns from the restaurant and with the inherent dogged determination of his rac was vainly seeking employment in other centres when the citizens of the village, attracted by the unusual ability of the children, came to his aid. They convinced him he should stay in Lakefield and permit the children to finish their education, while the municipality would see to it that they would not be in want.

To Write for Scholarship

J. F. Harvey, principal of the High School who has already seen one of his pupils, Matilda Moore, win an Ontario scholarship in 1936, in commenting on the Wong children said, "George Wong, has a natural talent for mathematics and science, and his record in taking first place is more notable when one remembers that he has been severely handicapped during the school term by illness." He added the hope that this pupil would write for a University of Toronto scholarship next summer, when he attempts his honor matriculation examinations.

GIVEN NEW HONOR

LONDON—(CP).—Sir Alexander R. M. Ramsay, Fifth Sea Lord and Chief of Naval Air Services, who married Princess Patricia in 1919, has been promoted a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order.

Busy As A Bee

This is the way Eugenia Pope, of Washington, looks nearly all day. She is the only employee, thus far, of the new wage-hour bureau, set up by the U.S. government, and every day she is inundated with calls from job-seekers, about 50,000 of them, all out after the 1,000 positions soon to be available in the new department.

Only 3 Products Snag Trade Pact

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP)—United States officials said today the Anglo-American trade agreement is nearing completion with only three products still under discussion.

Formal signing was considered a matter of a few weeks. There was a possibility the Canadian-United States agreement would be signed the same day.

The general clauses of the treaty including the so-called "escape clauses" in case of extreme currency fluctuations already have been agreed upon.

The United States was expected to receive from Great Britain tariff concessions on a wide range of fresh, canned and dried fruits. Some were scheduled for the British free list.

American lard, wheat and flour also were slated to come in for tariff concessions.

In turn, Britain sought from the United States some reductions on textiles and leather goods. The textile reductions would cover a large portion of the treaty, since they are divided into a vast number of classifications.

Some experts said there would be no tariff reductions by the United States on raw wool.

Wheel On Cycle

Cobourg Man Offers To Find Loot

If there is a bag of silver coins cached in the rock piles on the farm of John Preston near the cabins where the Richmond bank robbery suspects spent several days, it can be located with the aid of a special device owned by a Cobourg man.

This information was contained in a letter received on Tuesday by Provincial Constable David Silvester, and it is said the writer told the officer his device, which is used to locate gold and silver, should be quite effective in locating a hidden deposit of silver coins. Unfortunately the bank loot consisted of $12,400 in bills and $160 in silver, and police think it unlikely that any of the silver has been left near the Chemong Lake hideout.

Constable Silvester refused to divulge the name of the Cobourg man nor would be state what answer he intended to make to this fellow.

Two Suitable Hideouts.

Two places on the Preston farm have attracted attention, the first in an old log house in an advanced state of disrepair, which has not been used for many years. This old structure is very close to the spot where the police are said to have noticed two men searching with flashlights last Friday night. Three or four large stone piles in the immediate vicinity have also been given more than a casual going over by officers of the Provincial Police force.

When four members of the Campbell gang now in jail at Ottawa and awaiting trial on September 12 for the Richmond bank job were arrested a few weeks ago near Ottawa, they had only a small quantity of money in their possession, and as the loot could not be banked very conveniently, it is not unreasonable to believe they may have hidden the money intending to return for it when the chase died down.

Well Babies Clinic Being Reorganized

Plans for the reorganization of the Well Babies' Clinic were discussed at a special meeting of the Board of Health on Monday. The Board has recognized the accomplishments of the women of the city who had carried on this clinic, and is convinced that as a helpful agency for the promotion of the health and well-being of babies in Peterborough it should be revived and put into operation again.

As a first step it was decided to appeal to the Peterborough Medical Association for their co-operation, requesting the doctors of the city to appoint representatives to discuss the question with the Board. Officials of the Provincial Department of Health have manifested their interest, indicating not only their approval but their wish to assist in the proposed reorganization.

Bethany Brass Band Plays At Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Aug. 31.—Bethany band went to Blackstock on Sunday and furnished music for the memorial service held in honor of those who had made the supreme sacrifice in the World War.

The guest speaker was Rev. Dr. Jones, a returned man. A very large gathering was present.

The band also was in attendance at a decoration service in the evening at Nestleton United church and occupied the choir stalls. Professor Bowles was the guest speaker.

Mr. Max McKinnon motored from Port Huron on Saturday to visit his brother, James and family.

Mr. Bert Monk, of Windsor, arrived in Bethany on Sunday evening to join his wife and daughter, June, for a few days vacation.

Battling Oil Blazes

A new method of battling oil blazes, most hazardous of all fires, was demonstrated Tuesday afternoon at the Simcoe street dump by members of the Fire Department and a commercial distributor. Spectators, who included prominent business men and others, were shown that fire is merely strengthened by play of water on a gas or oil fire. Then they saw the result when a foam spray was played on a blaze. In this picture is a wall of fire that rose thirty feet in the air, extinguished within a few moments by use of a radical type nozzle that projected the foam. Sixty gallons of oil and fifteen gallons of gasoline caused the blaze. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Scientific Crime Detection Ways Make Police Mighty Peace Army

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (CP).—Canadian and United States police forces are being welded through co-operation into a mighty peace time army capable of directing an efficient and widespread manhunt beyond the wildest dreams of a few years ago, Supt. Don F. Stiver of the Indians state police said in an address prepared for delivery today to the international police congress here.

"State police radio, teletype and radio telegraph systems are knitting thousands of officers into one comprehensive machine ready for instant action in emergencies," Stiver declared. "As the whole country achieves this unification of communications, kidnappers, bank robbers, murderers and car thieves will find the law has stacked the cards in its own favor."

"Scientific crime detection procedures have experienced their greatest impetus through the laboratories set up by state and federal departments and made available to the smallest law enforcement agencies without cost. It is safe to say smaller municipalities still are not utilizing these facilities to the hundredth part of their usefullness and availability."

Supt. Stiver's address featured a discussion on regional crime control with papers by Supt. W. W. Williams of the Illinois state highway police, Springfield, Ill., and Commissioner Leon V. Jenkins of Portland, Ore.

Police training in England and Wales was outlined to police executives by Lieut.-Col. G. H. R. Halland, recently appointed inspector of the constabulary for England and Wales.

Traffic problems were reviewed at a special afternoon session.

Chicago Sailors Leading By Point

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A crew of eight-metre yachtsmen from Chicago, 1937 champions on the Great Lakes, sailed today in defence of their title with a slim one-point lead over Challenger from Toronto and Detroit.

Led by Skipper Robert Haynie, the Chicago crew started over a windward-leeward course of eight nautical miles in Cayuga, an eight-metre boat from the Rochester Yacht Club, on the third of a series of six races.

Starting against the Chicago crew were crews from Toronto in Bangalore and Detroit in Conewago, both boats of the Youngstown Yact Club.

Chicago acquired a point total of five yesterday with a win over the winward-leeward course and a second in an afternoon race around a 7½ mile triangular course.

The Toronto crew, skippered by Robert Grant, took four points with a third in the morning and a win in the afternoon. Detroit was third with three points.

The attitude of the individual to society is merely a repetition of what he was as a child toward his parents, declared Prof. C. G. Junk of Switzerland, in a recent address.

SLOWLY DYING

A common English sparrow, seen Tuesday afternoon in front of a Simcoe street service station is slowly starving to death because its beak has grown to a length of about three quarters of an inch or four times the normal size.

The unusual looking bird was watched by Tom Beatty and several other men as it attempted to eat a piece of bread, but it made slow work of it and appeared to be in a weakened condition. Beatty says the sparrow would first break a small piece off the chunk of bread with the tip of its beak, and would then try to get the crumb into its mouth by turning the beak sideways. For some reason it seemed necessary for the bird to take the food into its mouth close to the point where the beak was joined to the head. Attempts to catch the sorry looking sparrow failed, and those who saw it, believe it will soon die.—McG.

Cyclist Suffered Dislocated Elbow

Two bicycles collided at the intersection of Dublin and George streets at 12.30 last night and one rider, received a dislocated elbow joint when he crashed to the pavement following the impact.

The injured man is Douglas Barringer, 491 Bolivar street, who according to the police report was riding south on George street and the operator of the other bicycle is Cecil Mehaffey, 814 Water street, who was proceeding in an easterly direction on Dublin. The crash occurred at the centre of the intersection and both men were thrown from their machines with Barringer suffering the most. Mehaffey escaped with body bruises. Both machines were damaged. Constable Stevenson investigated the accident.

Fruit And Blossoms

CHATHAM, Ont., Aug. 31.—(CP)—Fred Agar of Dover township has an apple tree in his orchard which bore blossoms and fruit at the same time. Agar said the tree is about 18 years old. Several other Kent county fruit growers have reported the same freak of nature this year.

Major Herb Mason is at Camp Borden this week as official observer from the Prince of Wales Rangers at the Canadian army manceuvres.

BANK CLEARINGS

Clearings passings through the Peterborough Clearance House for the month of August totalled $2,540,323 and for the same month a year ago the total was $2,548,757.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Meetings of committees of the city council are dated for this week. Board of Works, Property and Parks on Thursday evening, and Finance, Fire, Water and Light and Manufacturers on Friday.

"EX" DIRECTORS' MEETINGS

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition will meet in F. C. Paterson's office Friday evening at 8 o'clock standard time. One of the purposes is to "compare notes" tabbed from the Exhibition, otherwise to consider list ideas gleaned from this year's experience for guidance in 1939.

SMUDGE OVER MAIN STREET

Smoke from the city's dump on the west bank of the river, blown by a wind from the southeast, got in George Street's eyes to-day. The smudge acquired volume from the burning of a lot of limbs and leaves trimmed off trees and carted to the dump for disposal.

REPORTER RETURNING.

Well informed sources reveal this morning that Harold Robson, former reported of this city who has been writing on the staff of an English newspaper plans to return immediately to Peterborough. He will continue his newspaper career here and may be associated with a Toronto evening paper as full time correspondent.

COB CORN POPULAR

Miss Marie VanAllen, a graduate of the Normal School last midsummer tried her hand at selling vegetables for her father in a booth at the market last Saturday and it was learned today that she disposed of 76 dozen cobs of the favorite vegetable, selling out the entire stock.

MOVING STAND

Surveyors were at work today at the Exhibition Park laying out a rugby field, and work will be started at once. It was also learned the judges stand directly opposite the grandstand will be moved to a new location so as not to interfere with the layout and this will give grandstand spectators an unrestricted view of the entire field.

PETERBOROUGH WINNER.

Charles A. Biggs, Yorkton, Sask., led thirteen other exhibitors in the honey section of the Canadian National Exhibition's agricultural competitions for one-pound glass jars of the liquid variety. Allan T. Brown, of Peterborough, was second. Other awards in honey were won by Toronto district entries.

A LONG SEIGE.

"Hap" O'Toole, well-known driver for a local bread company, returned to work this week after being laid up since May 14. At that time a team of horses in a runaway on Aylmer Street South wrecked his bread wagon and fractured his leg, and he had been on the invalid list for three months. He is slightly lame still, but is making good progress towards complete recovery.

TRAFFIC COURT

Walter Lord, Normandie Ave., Toronto was found guilty and fined on two charges this morning. On the first charge of reckless driving he was fined ten dollars and two fifty costs and his chauffeur's license suspended for ten days. On the second charge of allowing his wife to operate his car without the proper permit, he paid the same fine, $10 and $2.50.

POLIO NEAR BURLEIGH.

A thirteen-year-old girl living near Burleigh Falls on a farm has been stricken with infantile paralysis and Tuesday doctors obtained serum which was used to prevent paralysis. Her condition is serious but attending doctors believe they have the case well in hand. It is the third case of poliomyelitis reported in this county so far this summer, the other two were at Lakefield and both recovered.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN

Spectators at the fire department's demonstration at the Simcoe street dump Tuesday afternoon were given instruction in the use of chemical extinguishers. Never play the fluid directly on a gas or oil fire, but from an angle almost parallel to the base of the blaze, always attack it from one end and work to the other, they learned. Use of water on a gas fire merely adds to the blaze, they learned. A foam chemical should be used.

ATTENDED MEETING

H. A. Cranfield and H. T. Cranford returned to Peterborough Tuesday night after attending a directors meeting of the Metal Trades Safety Association at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. After intensive study and surveys, the directors have drawn up a booklet on safe shop practices which will be distributed throughout Ontario among members of the organization.

PLAN TAG DAY

Miss R. Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, reports that preparations are being made for the society's tag day on Saturday, Sept. 17. The society is fortunate in having Mrs. J. Fanning in charge of arrangements. The success of the tag day is very vital to the city and volunteers to assist in the tagging are needed. Anyone interested in helping may leave his or her name with the superintendent at the office, City Hall.

CATCHES NICE BASS

Tom Sawyer or Huck Finn, heroes of Mark Twain's books have a follower in seven year old Jack Kendry, 1013 Water Street who rigged up a home made fishing pole with a line and single hook today, placed a big dew worm on the hook and fished in the centre of the old swimming hole above the Auburn Dam. He managed to hook and land a 2½ pound green bass after a real battle and today he tops all the gang in the neighborhood as a fisherman with a reputation.

Pin Games Fade Into Discard From The Shops

Peterborough's pin games fade into the discard tonight, and on Thursday by virtue and effect of the federal government's proscription they will probably be piled up in some storehouse their allure for hot and itching nickels stripped from them. That was the word around town this morning as the machines that are reputed to have turned in a handome revenue for the "house and the owner" were waiting the zero hour marking the end of official toleration of a type of gaming device that at least had the dubious merit of being ingeniously contrived.

Taking No Chances

Shops and stores in which the balls have been bumping and rolling around the pins for the last couple of years intimated that they were not going to take any chances against a law that apparently meant business. Anyway, some of the proprietors said, the attraction of the boards had sharply decreased in recent months, and probably in the final summary it would be better for all concerned to get rid of the meretricious machines with their false promise of big returns for nickels that wanted to roll out of pockets where money habitually found an uneasy and only temporary resting place.

All were gambling

The original ten ball games might have been permitted to run along without incurring federal frowns, because it is said they could be beaten now and again, but when the one ball outfits with all their garish improvements appeared on the scene with a new voraciousness for coins, it was only a matter of time until they got the finger. All of them were of course gambling devices, as the law defines them, and they have had their way, Thursday they will be obsolete and unconvertible to any other purpose; and as incitement to the innate gambling spirit they will now be removed from the places they made unsafe for those who were weak in resisting the propensity to play them.

Bill Irwin To Join Peterborough Team

Suspect Girl Driving Stolen Car On Fatal Plunge In Bow River

CALGARY, Aug. 31 — (CP). — Police pushed investigation to-day into the wrecking of a stolen automobile in the Bow River here late Saturday night as they learned a glare-shield over the driver's seat had been smashed.

They said the discovery strengthened theories the driver, believed to have been a young woman who may have been drowned, was in the machine when it took a 30-foot plunge into the river.

The smashed shield, in place before the car was stolen had been snapped off close to the clamp.

Edgar Wenger told police he saw a "big black car" which he thought was a police prowler car, chasing another car a few minutes before the crash was reported. Both prowler cars were elsewhere at the time and police were preparing to investigate when they recived word of the crash.

Prompt Action By Driver Of Car Saved Youth From Serious Injury

Prompt action by a car driver saved 12-year-old Fred Simpson of 112 James street from serious injury at the corner of Queen and Hunter streets last night about eight o'clock, when the boy and a companion, Douglas Simpson, ran across Hunter street from the north side, and Fred was struck by a car when it was almost stopped.

Jack Gledhill, 277 John street, the driver, managed to miss the first youth and his front bumper knocked the other boy down. Gledhill drove the injured boy to the clinic where two stitches were required to close a cut in his big toe, and he had a few minor bruises. He was then taken to his home by the same man. Constable Jack Stevenson investigated the accident.

21 ENTRIES IN TENTH RENEWAL OF THE CANADIAN FUTURITY

$7,000 Purse Is Offered For C.N.E. Race

By "HAL B"
Central Press Canadian Writer

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—Tenth renewal of the Canadian Standard Bred Society Futurity, richest of all harness horse events in this country, strictly for Canadian-bred youngsters, will have 21 starters when they are called to the post on September 7 at the Canadian National Exhibition. This year the purse will be the same value as last year, $7,000 to be divided evenly between the trotters and pacers. This year's list of candidates exceeds that of last by two.

The first Futurity was raced back in 1929 when the trotting division was worth $3,000 and the pacing end of the race was worth $2,500. That year there were only four starters in the trot which was won by Private Wilton, the best time being 2.21½, and the pace was annexed by Keendale, owned by Art Johnston and Charlie Fife of Peterborough, who stepped the second mile in 2.12, considered at that time phenomenal for a three-year-old in this country as youngsters had never been asked to race before. The following year only three trotters answered the call of the started and Primadale was an easy winner in 2.23½, there being little contention. What the trot lacked in interest the pacing division made up as nine pacers went postward and in one of the bitterest struggles imaginable Bud Wenger won the first two heats, pacing in 2.11, a new record for the event.

In 1931 the "powers that be" decided that the paces should receive as much money for their efforts as the trotters with the result that the pacing division was increased to $3,000, making a total of $6,000 to be raced for in both divisions. The result of this action was that nine starters turned up in each division and that year a new record for the trotters was established when Bingen Worthy accounted for the race and set the record at 2.18½; May Baxter annexing the pace in 2.16.

Interest Increases

By this time increased interest was manifest in this rich classic and in 1932 the fastest time ever recorded was established in the pace when the sensational colt Baldwin won the third heat in 2.09½, a record that has not been very seriously threatened since. However, the high-class performance of Baldwin did not win him the major portion of the purse as Lee Note was first at the wire in the two opening heats with the result that he stood best in the summary. Only six diagonal gated performers raced for the $3,000 and Craigworthy was the best, lowering the previous record to 2.18.

Each year since the inception of the Futurity the pacers were in the majority and in 1933 the number reached an even dozen, and what a race it was! Twelve of the most evenly matched colts that ever went to the post in the event battled it out, the finish in the first two heats being so close that it was almost impossible to separate them. When the smoke of battle had cleared the crown of victory rested upon the head of Bedford Grattan who won the first two heats and paced in 2.10¼, a new record for him.

While the spectators would have been satisfied with the action and performance of the pacers, there was still another surprise in store for them when the trotters paraded to the post. Up to this time the best time recorded for the trotters was 2.18 and the general consensus of opinion among the regulars was that a mile in 2.15 would "stop" the best colt in the race. This was not to be as Lee Hanover won in straight heats and trotted in 2.13¼, to crown himself the best three-year-old trotter who had yet won the Futurity.

Large fields in both divisions were the order the following year when twelve pacers and eleven trotters answered the call, the latter being the largest field ever to assemble for the trotting division. Cream of Tartar was the best in the pace, winning in 2.12¼, and Reta R. heading the trotters in 2.17¼. It was a coincidence that both Tom Grattan and Springtime McKillop won their respective divisions in the same time, 2.15 in 1935.

Prize Money Goes Up

The year 1936 saw another increase in the value of the race when $7,000 was offered and since then the juveniles have been racing for that amount of money. That year Dillinger Grattan won the pace from the largest field of pacers, there being seventeen starters and he was forced to go in 2.10½ to win. A new record for the trotters was established when Goldsmith circled the oval, in 2.13 flat, lowering the previous record one-quarter of a second, made in 1933. In a field of ten last year Dazzle Direct was the best and the fastest time 2.13, while Just Pete, who had won all of his starts during the season, annexed the trotting division in 2.16 as the best time.

This year's race is a very open event, there apparently being no standouts, although Baroness Lee has the best standing from a race winning standpoint in the trotting division, while Bud Gano perhaps will have the "call" in the pace due to his past performance. It is just possible that a "dark" colt might come along and knock them both off, which reminds one of the country gentleman who said "hoss racin' is might onsartin'." In the pacing division there is Bud Gano, Patricia D., Unko Bars, Alberta Lee, Rip Harvester, Albert E. Grattan, Grattan McKillop, Dixie Harvester, Sir Lee, Lucy Grattan, Barbara C and June Todd. The trotting division has Goldy Grattan Bars, Baroness Lee, Betty Lee, Gloria Lee, Lea McElwyn, Elizabeth Lee, Lee Bennett, Princess Lee and General Lee.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NEXT C. O. B. L. PLAYOFF game will be Saturday in Oshawa. The Motor City moguls declined to postpone the tilt at the Pete's request till Labor Day, though there is plenty of time to finish the serial up. Since several of the Petes will be tied up—but just one for life—at Cy Whatley's wedding Saturday, the local ossifers then tried to get the game to start at 3.30. In order to let these players reach Oshawa in time after the ceremony. This was first okayed by Oshawa, but later the GM-men sent word the fray would be at three oells. Guess they don't want to give our gang any breaks at all, and would like to cop the contest from a crippled squad. Well, the Petes aren't worrying—they feel they have 'em on the run now (and in their protest), so they'll play 'em on Saturday.

QUITE A GANG OF BALLSTERS knocked off work, at the request of the club officers, to attend the coaching class yesterday aft in Riverside, conducted by Clyde Engle. With ex-Manager Dan Howley of Toronto Leafs on hand. A number of the Petes, and local and district juniors, were put through their paces and given a lot of pointers on how the game should be played. The Leafs' ossifers were peeved at the small turnout Monday, but promised to stay over Tuesday if a gang attended. And they were satisfied. We hope the locals learned how to take Oshawa in the next two tilts.

Are Ya Listenin', Umps?

Add one more opinion on the Petes' protest on Oshawa's last win. Clyde Engle, the Leafs' scout, told Jim Dorris yesterday: "The umpires were all wrong on that play. It couldn't have been anything else but interference if an infielder had a chance on the play and was touched by a runner. And you say the infielder was reaching for the ball when knocked down? Why, it's covered clearly in the rules." Personally, we don't know how anybody at the loop executive meeting, which deals with the protest on Saturday eve in the home of the GM-men, can vote other than to have the game replayed—that is, anyone but the Oshawa delegate. It boils down to the fact that the umps didn't clearly understand that rule at thetime, and now they'll stick to their story or bust. We fear Mister Diogenes was right, alas.

A NIFTY MEN'S SOFTBALL scrap in Riverside last e'en before a goodly gathering of folks bearing shekels of silver to the gate. The Oshawa Varcoes evened up the first round O. S. A. intermediate "A" playdown series with Westclox by yanking a 6-5 nod in 10 innings. They tossed for the deciding site and it'll be in Oshawa on Friday in the gloaming. With the Messrs. Bateman and Whitely the rival slabsmen, most likely. Westclox should win it and then tangle with Kingston in the next round.

Too Much Preem Whitely

LAST NIGHT'S NUMBER was as fast as a kid going up an alley in front of a cop, being ripped off in an hour and a quarter—including the overtime stanza. Most of the action came in the first few heats and then in the ninth and 10th chukkers. Whitely hurled good ball, and Parsons also gave a fair performance, pitching himself out of several holes. The fielding was mostly classy and Jim Ellis' baserunning with the tying run in the ninth was a lulu, a 14-carat lulu, two of his slides being somewhat scrumptious. Daniels and Thompson were the big guns for the Oshawa sports scrivener's squad, while the gee on first and Roy Covert did some neat feilding. None of Pat Hayden's hopefuls got more than one safety. They swung their bats hard enough but could only get a small bite of the spinning cabbage which Whitely whistled across the plate.

FROM WHAT WE CAN gather by carrier pigeon and a knock-kneed manicurist who is secret agent for us in Kingston, the Tanners who will meet the Oshawa-Westclox winnah (provided they, the Tanners, can get by Bawden of Point Ann) are gonna be tougher than two-bit steaks in a waterfront eatery. Stan Scrutton, a re-instated C. O. B. L.-er, twirls a three-star game for the Tanners, with gees named Gallery and Law as relief tossers. And such other senior ball sluggers as Bob Elliott, Biu Webber and Boneham—besides a number of experienced actors on the short-diamond stage. The Kingstons rubbed out Belleville in playdowns, the serial being bitter as unsugared lemonade. The Limestone City umpire had his beezer bashed and two Quinte players were suspended as part of the hostilities. If we recall rightly, it was a poisonous playoff last year between Kingston and the locals, with our gang getting the nod.

The Leafs Aren't Tumbling

NO ONE CAN SAY THE LEAFS are falling just yet, that is, the Maple Leafs of the Southend Softball League. After ankling a bit unexpectedly into the loop finals, they last night did a 16-14 chore on Little Harlem in a fray as weird as a Sax Rohmer story. 'Twas the first of the three-in-five finals and 300 fans witnessed everything but the dance of the seven veils! Next number is tonight at 6.15 or so in the Brinton Field between these same squads and they'll rattle it off nightly till one team has won three tilts. With the Ashburnham Bowl locked up and the blinds drawn for this season, the softball scene shifts to the southend diamond for a few remaining acts.

WITH ABRUPT SUDDENNESS COMES word yesterday from the Ontario Baseball Association secretary that the local P. C. I. baseballers must hit into O. B. A. juvenile playdowns today. So Coach Bill Jackson and his lads are off for Toronto this aft to tangle with St. Mary's squad there. We dunno what grounds the boys will play on, nor will any score be available till morn. Return tussle in this first playdown series is slated for three o'clock in Riverside Park on Saturday. The P. C. I.-ers waltzed through the local Junior City Loop schedule with but one loss and then entered the juvenile O. B. A. structure. They hope to make a good showing, and we wish 'em oodles of luck and a bushel of basehits.

Young Ball Players Instructed In How To Hit

Clyde Engle, baseball scout for the Toronto Maple Leafs, is shown above instructing a bunch of young ballsters in the correct method of hitting. About 30 local and district players attended the training school session Tuesday afternoon in Riverside Park, this course being conducted by Engle, a former Big League third baseman, and Dan Howley, ex-manager of the Toronto professional team. Every phase of the game was touched on by the Leafs' coaching system, which has been held in a number of Ontario cities throughout the summer. Several juniors hitch-hiked here from down around Cobourg to get some fine points on the game in the local school. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Bill Terry Suffers New Headache As Pirate Whip Giants 7-1; Reds Trounce Dodgers Twice

By Bill Boni
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Will Terry, the soft-spoken hard-shell from Memphis, insists the Pittsburgh Pirates aren't backing into the National League pennant. Since the Pittsburgh Pirates stretched their margin to 6½ games by scuppering Will Terrys Giant's 7-1 yesterday, the man obviously had to say something in self defence.

He may, for that matter, be speaking the truth. But it's a cinch that the Pirates, if not backing in, aren't doing much more than standing still and letting the pennant come to them.

The Aug. 1 standings saw Pittsburgh in front by five games, the Giants second by 2½, and the Chicago Cubs third by one over Cincinnati. Since then the Giants have crawled along at a .444 pace, the Cubs have played .533 ball and the Reds .548. Yet the Pirates, as of today, had picked up only 1½ games on the Terrymen.

Simple Solution.

The solution is simple enough. Pie Traynor's Buccaneers, who have been making the opposition walk the plank one afternoon only to go off the deep end themselves the next, have split even in the last month on 15 victories and 15 defeats. Just as a basis of comparison, the Yankees over the same stretch won 28 out of 50 for an .800 percentage.

The Giants definitely are in no condition to provide anyone but Terry with headaches. Dick Coffman, the "experimental" starting pitcher, was slugged all over the lot yesterday, principally by Gus Suhr, and, as if Bill didn't have enough on his mind, Dick Bartell reported with a lame elbow so that the infield had to be juggled again.

Reds Take Dodgers Twice.

While the Pirates were pasting the Giants to a fare-thee-well the Reds rallied twice to whip the Dodgers, 5-4 and 7-4, thus moving up five percentage points behind Terry's tottering crew and four behind the Cubs, who lost an 8-1 decision to Milkman Jim Turner and Boston Bees.

Turner, like Jim Tobin of the Pirates and Whitey Moore in the Reds' nightcap, pitched five-hit ball. Effective pitching also marked the Phillies - Cardinals double-header, with Max Butcher bearing down in the pinches to edge out the Cards in the opener, 4-3, and Clyde Shoun hurling one-hit ball in a five-inning relief trick as the Cards took the night-cap, 8-7, in the 10th.

American Leaguers also accounted for two handsome pieces of pitching. Spud Chandler, after being nicked for a run in the first, shut out the Detroit Tigers the rest of the way as the Yanks won their fifth straight, 3-1, and John Duncan Rigney of the White Sox held the Senators to six hits in gaining a 3-1 verdict.

The Indians outslugged the Athletics, 10-8, with the help of two home runs by Jeff Heath and another by Bruce Campbell, and the Browns drubbed the Red Sox, 9-5, for Ed Cole's first mound victory of the year.

Lacrosse Notes

The senior Petes will hold an important lacrosse practise at seven tonight in the George street arena, and Coach Frank Randle wants all players to be on hand for this drill. The Petes are awaiting word now from the O.L.A. regarding their next game, possibly this week. After tonight's senior workout, the midget semi-finalists, Lions and Kinsmen, will wind up their series, the winners to meet Y's Men's Club later for league honors.

Leafs Win Out In Wild Fray

In a wild, free-hitting game played before about 300 fans at the Brinton Grounds last night the Maple Leafs overcame an 11-run lead to take the opener of the Southend softball finals from Little Harlem by a 16-14 count.

Little Harlem seemed headed for certain victory for the first five innings of the game, playing airtight ball behind Craig who had allowed but five hits up to this point, and had built up an 11-run lead off Butcher's offerings. With two out in the sixth, however, the fireworks started. Five hits, including a homer by Butcher, a walk, and an error gave the Leafs four runs. The Harlemites garnered two in their half, but the winners continued their assault scoring eight runs to get back in the ball game and chase Craig to cover. Dennie's wildness and some costly errors gave the Leafs three more in the eighth, and although the Little Harlem squad scored one run and filled the bases after two were out in the ninth, they were unable to push the tying and winning runs across. The winners garnered a total of 21 hits and seven walks off the offering of Craig and Dennie, while Butcher was touched up for 16 bingles and walked six while striking out four over the route.

Lazure had four hits including two homers (both in the eighth inning) and a triple and double, Holden two doubles and a triple, and Ashmore four singles to lead the Leaf attack. Craig and Price had three hits apiece for the losers. Heffernan's sensational catch in the eighth to save two runs, J. Corbert's work at shortstop, and Tomkins' neat grabs supplied the defensive highlights.

Napanee Wins First

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 31.—Napanee won the first game in the Quinte district finals Tuesday by defeating the Belleville "Orfuns," 4 to 1. Napanee eliminated Picton before they earned the right to meet the Orfuns. The winner will continue in the intermediate O.B.A. playdowns. "Speedy" St. Louis, on the mound for Belleville allowed eight hits. "Sim" Spratt, moundsman for Napanee gave Belleville only six.

Petes Look Good To Scouts From The Leafs

Peterborough baseball players may have been a trifle lax in not attending Monday's baseball school conducted here by the Toronto Maple Leafs, but they certainly made up for it to-day, when approximately twenty-five turned out to receive instructions and work out under the watchful eyes of Toronto scouts. Peterborough officials explained that Monday's poor attendance was due to a misunderstanding and not through lack of interest.

The entire Peterborough senior team put in an appearance, and others on hand included juveniles, juniors, intermediates and four or five out-of-town enthusiasts. Local firms obligingly excused the players from work so that they could attend the school, and the Toronto representatives were impressed by the talent on review.

Frank (Lefty) McNally, ace southpaw of the Peterborough team, caught the eye of the Toronto scouts, while Eddie Whitehill and Joe Jakaby were other pitchers who displayed talent. Whitehill is a brother of Earl, the Cleveland pitcher.

Al Clark, an infielder, Bob Doll, third baseman, and Eddie Murphy, shortstop, also attracted attention. Catcher Cy Whatley drew favorable comment from the Toronto officials, who said he had the best throwing arm they'd seen in their Ontario talent-hunt.

Tom Foley, Oshawa centrefielder, who had an offer of a trial with Philadelphia Athletics, was another who took part in the workout.

Grattan McKillop Entered In Race

Horsemen who condition and exercise their trotters and pacers at the Exhibition Park, are going to follow with interest created by an extensive period of association the fortunes of "Gratton McKillop," the three year old Doc Cane has prepped for the futurity at the Canadian National Exhibition. This comparative youngster is owned by a Toronto man named McLean, who turned it over to Cane to get him in shape for the most attractive purse and honors on the Canadian harness tracks this summer. This "Gratton McKillop" is a smooth going performer, and if he has been recently asked for speed the "Doc" is keeping the figures to himself.

The Exhibition oval is going to be pretty well deserted for the next six weeks or two months. Two of the local horses pulled out Tuesday for the Belleville fair. Jim Sutherland with his new horse 'Oliver Harvester" and Eddie Jones of Hastings with "Ginger Direct." There was some talk that Art Thompson might send his "Senator Peter" to the Belleville meeting, but it was learned to-day he had decided otherwise, and the promising "Senator" may go to Lindsay and some of the other fairs in the district.

Soccer Notes

All members of the Brinton soccer team are asked to attend a meeting and practice tonight (Wednesday) at 6.30 o'clock in King Edward Park.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

It will be either F. Brown's rink or R. Bacon's rink that will win No. 2 group honors in the rink schedule. Three rinks were tied in this group and a round robin series was played and as both Brown and Bacon beat Freeman, the final will be between Brown and Bacon. This game will be decided in the near future.

This is the last Wednesday half-holiday of the season, and we hope the boys will turn out in goodly numbers to our twilight doubles to-night at 6.30.

More about Friday night. We expect both Cobourg and Port Hope will send up many mixed rinks and the committee is asking the co-operation of our local bowlers. It would be appreciated if our bowlers (ladies and gentlemen) would 'phone their names in not later than 7.00 p.m. It is going to be a big job to fix up 36 rinks, and at that some of our local players may have to stand aside. Please get your names in early, as we are in for one big night.

Our club doubles are not going over any too good. It looks to us that along about this time of year the boys lose interest in local competition—or else they have had too much bowling. It will be one of the problems that next year's committee will have to solve.

Aussies Predict Don Budge Will Be Beaten

GERMANTOWN, Pa., Aug. 31.—(AP).—Don Budge, stalwart of the United States Davis Cup team, sniffed with a slight cold today as Australian opponents in the challenge cup round predicted he "could be beaten."

Budge and the other United States defenders, Bobby Riggs and Gene Mako, arrived to practice for their five-match series with the Anzacs at Germantown Cricket Club next week-end.

"A little workout under the hot sun will get it all out of me," Budge said of his cold.

"Any team with Budge on it must be given the edge," said Harry Hopman, non-playing Australian captain, "but it's about time for Budge to get beaten."

The recollection that Don wasn't supposed to be feeling quite up to snuff when he and Mako crushed the Australians in the national doubles at Brookline, Mass., Saturday tempered Hopman's prediction. He talked by telephone halfway around the world today to explain to Australian tennis authorities why John Bromwich and Adrian Quist took only six games from the California combine.

"We expect to do much better in the doubles this week-end," Quist told a luncheon gathering here. "But you have a great team defending the cup, and I'm not so certain I can promise a victory for us this year."

Other pre-game remarks:

"I'll be tickled to death if the United States loses, even though I'm an American"—George Lott, former American Davis Cup player, who now coaches the Australians.

"America is too good for Australia"—Three Japanese Davis Cup players who are drilling the Anzacs.

Budge and Riggs and Joe Hunt, the United States "spare," practised singly with Elwood Cooke. Cooke trimmed Riggs in two sets, but the defenders' No. 2 was loafing.

PETERBOROUGH GOLF CLUB.

A large field of ladies was on hand to compete for the spoons given on C.L.G.U. days. The best net on 18 holes spoon went to Mrs. C. Sootheran with a nice 83, which left her opponents well in the rear. The spoon for the tombstone contest went to Mrs. E. S. Martin, who carried her tombstone the farthest, finally dying on the ninth fairway.

The men's tombstone trophy match will be played on Saturday, September 3.

Greenberg Fears He Wont Top Ruth Mark

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP). — Hank Greenberg, the slugging Detroit first baseman, says his chances of beating Babe Ruth's old record of 60 home runs in a season are slim.

The old Bronx boy was found snapping at a bowl of breakfast prunes in restaurant. Hank's parents still dwell in the Bronx, incidentally, and it is a matter of record that he would have been playing for the Yankees to-day if the Yanks hadn't been pretty well fixed for first basemen.

"I'd say I'm about a 10-to-1 shot to break the Babe's mark," he said tentatively. "It's been a strain ever since they started touting me to knock 61 homers. Every time I come to bat I'm trying for one. The fans want them. The result is my batting average has slipped to about .299.

More Passes.

"Another factor which hurts my chances is that they're giving me more intentional passes than ever, just like they did to Ruth. And I guess they're dusting me off a bit too. I've been hit by pitched balls twice in the last couple of games."

Hank, at the moment of finishing his prunes, had clouted 45 into the cheap seats that placed him exactly nine games and three home runs ahead of the Babe's lavish mark. He's got to doing some thinking.

"There's three tough parks for a right-hand hitter like me to get homers," he considered. "Here in the Yankee stadium and in Cleveland and Washington. Detroit, Boston, St. Louis, Chicago and Philadelphia are all right. I'll hit them in those five.

"My best of course, is out in Detroit, where we've got 14 games yet. But here's where I'm handicapped. We're going to September, and that's usually bad weather for homers."

Locals Lose Neat Tilt In 10 Heats

Oshawa Varcoes defeated Westclox, 6-5, in 10 innings last night in Riverside Park before a big crowd of fans. It was the second game of their first round O.S.A. intermediate playdowns, and forces a third game, which will be played in Oshawa on Friday evening. Last night's tilt was a fast, exciting affair with Westclox tying it at 4-all in the ninth and seeing Oshawa win out in the overtime. The locals got a run in their half of the 10th and had the tying and winning run on bases at the end.

Tom Parsons pitched most of the fray for Westclox and went along in good style, getting out of numerous holes till he was taken out in the 10th when the first two batters hit safely. Lorne Bateman finished up neatly, allowing but one hit. Preem Whitely twirled fine ball for the visitors, limiting them to eight hits, three in the second and three more in the 10th. The fielding was good on both sides.

Daniels led the batters with four for five, and Thompson got three in four times up. None of the locals had more than one safety, Ellis getting a two-base blow. Catches by Kitchen, Gray and Dormer, with a pick-up by Ellis were defensive features in the fast fixture.

Westclox Get Two.

Westclox got two runs in the second inning on hits by Bateman, Currie and Gainey, with an error thrown in. Oshawa got a run in the fourth on hits by Thompson, Daniels, Ball and Young, three dying on bases; and they added one to tie it up in the fifth on a double by Atkinson and a single by Kitchen. They went ahead in the seventh with two markers on a double by Thompson and singles by Covert and Daniels, with an out mixed up in it. Westclox shoved one over in the eighth chukker on a bad miscue and a single by Parsons. They tied it in the ninth when Ellis doubled, moved up on an out and scored on another out.

The game went into overtime, with Oshawa scoring two in the first of the 10th inning. Daniels led off with a triple and romped home on Hall's single. Bateman relieved Parsons, with Carlson going to right field. Yung flied out and Hall moved up, scoring on a single by Gray. The next two flied out. In the Westclox half, with two out, singles by Dormer, O'Leary and Calladine sent in one run, and the tying and winning runs were on second and third when Ellis flied out to first.

Police Called To Calm Crowd At Mimico Game

TORONTO, Aug. 31 (Special). — Mimico's Mountaineers, the Ontario Lacrosse Association's most in-and-out senior team, claimed third place in the standing by counting a 16-7 win over Brampton Excelsiors in the second game of a special playoff series at Mimico Stadium last night.

More than 3,000 fans crowded the Mounties home bowl to watch their pets flash a brilliant attack which could not be denied victory, and part of that assemblage managed to take part in a wild free-for-all that followed a fight between Joe Murphy of Mimico and Len Wilkes of the visitors. Four police officers were quickly summoned and order restored, but not before several people in the stands carefully doctored cut lips and swollen eyes. The outbreak, brought on when Murphy and Wilkes continued their feud in the penalty box, disrupted the game for a period of about twenty minutes.

Weakened by the loss of their regular goaler, Frip Harrison, who injured his arm in the last meeting of the teams, Mimico pressed young Alf Wolfe into th breach, and the youngster played a spectacular game after a wobbly start to share honors with Mickey McDonald, Duke Harrison, and Joe Murphy.

After conceding Brampton a 36-second first quarter score by Mulliss, Mountaineers went into a tie at 1-1 when Murphy counted, and took the lead again when McDonald scored. Mush Thompson got that back for the visitors, but when Gord Gair shot Mimico ahead at 3-2 they were never headed, running out a first-quarter lead of 7-2. At halftime the Mounts were in the van 11-3, and 14-4 at three-quarter time.

1938's Outstanding Horses In Winning Scenes

Three Ontario Golfers Qualify In U.S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31. —(C P)— Three Ontario golfers — C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Joe Thompson of Hamilton and Merlin Luther of Fort Erie held places today among the 170 qualifiers for the United States amateur golf championship which starts September 12 over the Oakmont country club course in Pittsburgh.

Somerville several times Canadian amateur champion, qualified automatically by virtue of his win in the United States amateur tourney at Baltimore in 1932. Thompson and Luther joined him in the starting bracket yesterday when they won places in the qualifying trials.

Thompson, who has led the district qualifiers in Buffalo for the past 3 years did it again with 72-72—144 to capture the first of five berths available in the Buffalo trial. Luther won the fifth spot with 72-77—149.

Seven Drop Out.

Seven other Canadians failed. Jack A. Cameron of Montreal, shooting on the large New York district field of Garden City, Long Island, fired 83 on his morning round and withdrew. Gordon Taylor, Jr., of Toronto with 75-78—153; J. G. Boeckh of Toronto with 78-85—163; Bob Kay of Fort Erie with 80-76—156; and Gil Snashell of Fort Erie with 80-79—159; all missed qualifying in the Buffalo district.

Gil Walker and Olin Brown of London, Ont., failed to qualify at Detroit where Walker shot 79-80—159 and Brown 83-81—164 in a trip where 152 or better was necessary to place in the championship starting field. Bob Babbish of Detroit led eight qualifiers there with 75-72—147.

Adams A Surprise.

An upset, from the Canadian viewpoint, was the failure of Ted Adams of Columbia, Mo., the Canadian amateur champion, to gain a starting berth in the Chicago district trial.

The amateurs were hot and cold all over the country as, on 31 fronts 800-odd golfers fired in the sectional qualifying rounds.

Out of the 156 players to qualify were Ven Savage and Ed Kingsley of Magna, Utah, the trans-Mississipi champion and runner-up. Savage fired a 69 and a 65 for a 10-under-par 134 for 36 holes. Kingsley nicked par for eight strokes with 68-68—136.

GOLFER AT 77

LONDON—(CP).—George Myers, 77, "can beat his age" at golf. He has a handicap of eight and still is reducing it. He won the April medal at his club with a 70, and in July posted a 71 to win.

Walt Franklin To Go Far Experts Think

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (C.P.). — Walter Franklin, a purposeful Canadian, is being hailed to-day as one of the most promising middleweight prospects now treading the prize-fight trail, but it would have been otherwise if Dame Fortune had smiled more warmly on his family.

The head of the family, formerly of Hamilton and Windsor, Ont., is a Yemenite rabbi, leader of a congregation on New York's East-side that is wealthy in its faith but poor in worldly goods.

Rabbi Abraham Franklin wanted Walter, eldest of his six children, to follow in his footsteps. Walter is a serious-minded young man, and the pride he has for his persecuted Yemenite ancestors made him want to be a religious leader of the diminishing race.

But his brothers and sisters are not old enough to earn their keep, so he set out to make a quick dollar and boxing seemed to him the readiest way of doing it.

After 13th Victory.

The hard-punching Canadian, born 24 years ago in Hamilton, where his mother dealt in watch specialties, will seek his 13th straight victory since turning professional here on Friday night. He meets Irish Tommy Grady, a tough New Yorker.

Only two of Franklin's pro opponents have weathered the terrific punching that brought him the south-western Ontario amateur welterweight when he was learning the game in Windsor. His latest triumph, a three-round technical knockout, was scored over Brooklyn's Frankie Castiglia, in Madison Square Garden last week.

But the young Jew, whose ancestors wandered the scorching deserts of Arabia and founded their own kingdom in the principality of Yemen, continues his studies. Some day he hopes to carry on for his father.

BELATED SUSPENSION

SUNDERLAND—(CP).—A. Hastings, Sunderland soccer club's halfback, has been suspended for two weeks, a sequel to an incident in the Sunderland - Wolverhampton league game last May when he was ordered off the field.

Royals Pound Wings Out While Leafs Take Buffalo 9-8 In Ten-Inning Session

(By the Associated Press.)

Syracuse Chiefs have postponed the inevitable in the International League, but Rochester Red Wings passed out of the pennant race to-day, victims of the Newark Bears and the percentages.

The Red Wings lost their last chance to overcome the huge lead of the league-leading Bears when they lost the second game of a double-header to Montreal Royals 9-6 after winning the opener 3-1 last night. Despite the fact the Bears dropped a twin bill, 6-1 and 2-1 to the second place Chiefs, the Red Wings were eliminated from the race by the champions' 16-game margin over them. The Wings have 14 games to play while the Bears, with a game with Toronto cancelled, have 17 to go.

The Chiefs, who long ago gave up hopes of winning the pennant, fattened their lead over the third place Wings to two games and merely postponed for a few days the actual pennant clinching act of the Newarkers, who are 13½ games in front.

While the Bears' eight game winning streak was going by the boards, the last place Baltimore Orioles snapped out of their nine game losing spell by taking another bargain bill from Jersey City, 10-0, and 11-10.

In the lone single game of the night, Toronto came from behind to beat Buffalo 9-8 in 10 inings. A five run rally tied the score in the ninth and the Leafs went out to score two more in the 10th to win.

GOES TO NORWICH

NORWICH, England—(CP)—Tom Smalley, Wolverhampton and England football half-back, has been transferred to Norwich City for a fee of $19,600.

Remember When—

Gene Kunes, 26-year-old Norristown, Pa., pro, won the Canadian open golf championship at Montreal three years ago today. He fired a 68, two strokes under par, in the final round, to set up a total score of 280, two better than Vic Ghezz, of Deal, N.J.

Ontario's Best At One Mile

Dot Hobson

Gord Devlin

In the Ontario one mile swimming championships staged at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, two home-towners came through with victories and the right to represent Ontario in the Canadian championships. Winner of the girls' event was Dot Hobson, who came home in front of Flo Humble, Canadian champion from Montreal, her time being 26:37.4. The men's event went to Gord Devlin in 23:45.0, as he crossed the line 150 yards ahead of George Balfy, 16-year-old champion from the west.

Peterboro' Bowlers Win In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 31.— H. Fee and Mrs. Al. Heckman of Peterborough took the prize for high score with three wins at the mixed doubles tournament staged here on Monday.

Twenty-six rinks from Peterborough, Norwood, Havelock, Madoc, Kingston, Sterling and Warkworth were entered in the competitions which twice during the day had to be abandoned owing to rain. Other prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Topping of Kingston, whose score of 47 won for them second prize for three wins. Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Locke of Campbellford, won third prize for three wins with a 42 score.

High score for two wins was 42 won by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Linton of Campbellford and Mr. P. Gunn and Mrs. Calvery of Madoc, were high with one win and a score of 41.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Jim Tobin and Gus Suhr, Pirates —Tobin held Giants to five hits and Suhr, in perfect day at bat, drove home five runs with triple and double as Bucs won, 7-1.

Buster Mills, Browns—Clouted double and three singles in 9-5 triumph over Red Sox.

Harry Craft and White Moore, Reds—Craft's ninth-inning single drove in run that beat Dodgers, 5-4, in opener; Moore's five-hit hurling beat them, 7-4, in second game.

Jeff Heath, Indians—His two home runs helped gain 10-8 decision over Athletics.

Gill Brack, Phillips, and Clyde Shoun, Cardinals—Brack hit homer with man on as Phils won first game, 4-3; Shoun's one-hit relief work for five frames marked Cards' 10-inning 8-7 victory in nightcap.

Bill Dickey and Spud Chandler, Yankees—Dickey's single with bases loaded furnished deciding margin as Chandler held Tigers to five hits and Yanks won, 3-1.

Jim Turner, Bees—Gave five hits and only two passes in halting Cubs, 8-1.

BATH, England—(CP).—The 100-mile cycling trial at the Bath Road Club's meet here recently was the closest in its 48-year record, "Shake" Earnshaw won in 4:29:1, three seconds better than Fred Willett.

Canterbury's Dean and Fiancee

Dr. Hewlett Johnson, 64-year-old Dean of Canterbury, is shown here with his youthful fiancee, Miss Nowell Mary Edwards. Miss Edwards, an artist, has been active in aiding Spanish refugees. She also has been acting as hostess for the dean since the death of his wife, seven years ago. They will be married in early fall.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP).—Del Baker has the Tigers hustling and most of them hope he'll be elected for another term. . . One and all deny Hank Greenberg and Mickey Cochrane had a fist fight in the clubhouse a short time before Owner Walter Briggs gave Mickey the air. . . For a guy who never has won a fight in the United States, Tommy Farr's demands for a bout with Gunnar Barlund (35 per cent and a cut of the radio rights) would seem a bit exorbitant. . .

A changed batting stance is largely responsible for Tommy Henrick's batting streak. . . Jack Dempsey's Broadway bar isn't doing the business of the mother joint on Eighth Avenue, but Jack has no complaints. . . No club has been more beset by injuries and hard luck this year than the Giants, so give Bill Terry credit for keeping them up there, whether you like him or not.

Pity Frankie Frisch couldn't get his Cards organized sooner. . . Right now they're doing just about the best job in the National League. . . Buck Newsom of the Browns didn't use the thumb of his pitching hand in hurling that four-hitter last Sunday—it was too swollen. . . . Which reminds us that while they are a total loss, the Browns keep hustling away for old Gabby Street, which is something the St. Louis office should keep in mind when they start planning for next year.

The Reds Might Have——?

With Vander Meer and Grissom in there the Reds might have copped that National League gonfalon. . . . Eddie Brannick, Giant secretary and the most loyal rooter the team has, sits in the bleachers and changes ties three times a day, but no dice. . . .

Tom Stow, the Oakland tennis pro, who made Don Budge what he is to-day, has travelled 3,000 miles to see how the greatest amateur player in the world really is. . . Hype Igoe, ace boxing writer of The New York Journel-American, has licked typhoid and will be back on the job soon.

Writers all around the circuit think Casey Stengel has done one of the best managerial jobs in the National this year. . . Mickey Cochrane, wearing a broad-brimmed sombrero gallops into town each morning from a Wyoming ranch to get the morning papers and read the box scores.

Greyhound Fails To Equal Record

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 31.—(AP).—Greyhound, world's champion trotter, failed to threaten his own record of 1:56 in an exhibition mile at the New York State Fair Tuesday, when Sep Palin drove him in 1:59¼ over a track slightly heavy from overnight rains.

The time was approached by Nate Hanover, owned by J. W. Gleason of Williamsport, Pa., in the second heat of the 2:12 pace, when he paced a mile in 1:59¾ during a straight-heat sweep of the event. Vic Fleming, veteran Syracuse driver from Dundas, Ont., who held the reins on Nate Hanover, scored a double victory, piloting Peter Song to first money in the 2:11 trot.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

IMAGINATION PRICELESS

KEEN IMAGINATION is a priceless ingredient of expert defense. Such plays as knocking out the side entry for the dummy's suit are easy for most players when the crucial cards are clearly in sight. But only the finished cardsman is likely to spring such a defensive coup when the suit and its indispensable entry are invisible, in the declarer's closed hand.

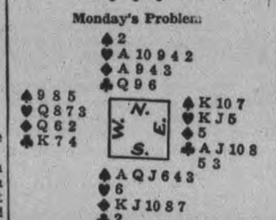
One-Heart was bid here by North as dealer. East overcalled with 1-Spade. South passed and West called 2-Clubs. North next bid 2-Diamonds, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

The heart 3 was led by West. The 9 was played from dummy and East won with the J. East considered the situation very seriously before playing the next card. As West failed to lead spades, the K was no doubt in the South hand and very little else except possibly club stoppers. Based on this deduction, East laid down his spade A and followed with the spade Q, to rob South of any entries for finesses. He figured he could afford to give declarer two spade tricks in order to keep him on the board. This play limited declarer to eight tricks, four in diamonds, two in hearts and two in spades.

If East returns a club at the second trick and continues the suit, South later gets two clubs, as the spade K enables him to enter his hand.

• • •

Monday's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Spade, North 2-Hearts, South 3-Diamonds, North 4-Diamonds, South 5-Diamonds and North 6-Diamonds, what should West lead?

Epidemic Waning

THE PAS, Man., Aug. 31—(CP)—The encephalomyelitis epidemic which had killed 14 and stricken a score of horses in this Northern Manitoba mining district today was believed nearly stamped out. Six animals recovered during the last week through use of serum and only one case has proved fatal in that time.

Bolt Kills 2 Horses

HARWICH, Ont., Aug. 31 (CP).—When a team of horses owned by Langford Lowes was found dead in a creek on a farm here it was thought at first they had drowned, but examination by Dr. F. S. Rhody, veterinarian, revealed the horses had been struck by lightning.

Britain Is True To Her Trust, Says General

TORONTO, Aug. 31.—Great Britain, "under the wise and calm leadership of Neville Chamberlain, is again true to her trust," Brigadier-General Sir Henry Page Croft, chairman of the Empire Industries Association, told a luncheon meeting of the Empire Club in the Royal York Hotel yesterday.

The Old Country is striving desperately to bring settlement by peaceful means, he declared, "but you may rest assured that if a single inch of British territory in any part of the world is assailed we will spend our last man and our last shilling in its defense."

Stresses Empire Trade

Calling for more Empire trade, he declared, "it was never more vital than at the present time if this Empire is to take its place in leading humanity back to the ways of sanity and peace."

His talk, which drew loud applause from the members, was entitled "Empire Unity—the Bulwark of Civilization." He outlined a scheme whereby a corporation operating on money borrowed from the British government would bring out Old Country immigrants and settle them on lands donated by the Provinces."

"I can see a great corporation being formed which will not only settle communities of immigrants on land, but stand behind them and see them through to success," he declared.

He made a frontal attack on th criticism that immigration was not feasible as long as Canadians remained unemployed, by saying that if immigrants were financed by the proposed corporation, they would immediately create a demand for all sorts of farm equipment and live stock, "which the corporation should decide should come from Canadian labor." He declared the resulting movement of goods would go far to solve Canada's railway problem.

"The answer, in my opinion, is decisive. It would not aggravate unemployment, but would help greatly to solve the unemployment problem," he asserted, adding that the money sent on getting the settlers started, "would go straight into Canadian pockets."

Immediate Action

He warned that while at present Great Britain has a surplus population, there may be no surplus to spare in ten years' time, due to population trends, and gave this as a reason for immediate action on the proposal, which he thought should take the form of a conference held by the Canadian government "to explore the possibilities."

Suggesting that Canada's principal problems "are attributable to the complete cessation of an inflow of population," the speaker said: "What is the practical lesson which hits us in the eye? It is that unless we have a greater flow of population, Canada will remain static and have to continue to bear the overhead of the railroads, schools and governments clearly intended for a much larger population."

HASTINGS

Mrs. F. Caron and Mrs. A. Smith of Toronto were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. W. Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. W. Richardson.

Mr. Eddie Chatterton, Toronto returned home Sunday after spending his vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Warrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gibson, Toronto and Mrs. W. Fletcher and little daughter Maureen spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Montgomery.

Mr. Frank Kerr Mayhan of Fayettville, W. Virginia is holidaying here with his aunt, Mrs. G. Kerr.

Mr. Murray McGregor, Toronto, was a week-end visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. McGregor.

Claims Son Thief

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—(CP)—Gus Grissa signed a complaint charging his son, Walter, 23, with burglary. The son was accused of taking $200 which his 87-year-old grandmother had put away in a tin box for her funeral expenses.

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Powers Wonder If Nazi Germany Has Won Hungary

Fate of central Europe may be decided in the struggle now going on between the Little Entente nations and Germany over the kingless kingdom of Hungary, strategically located in the Danube valley. Admiral Nicholas Horthy's conversations, in Kiel and Berlin with Germany's Adolf Hitler—conversations in which both expressed sentiments looking to close collaboration between Hungary and Germany in association with Italy—have brought the question to a head. Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Jugoslava have been attempting to block expansion of Nazi influence by luring Hungary away from Germany. The entente powers, meeting at Bled, Jugoslavia, recognized Hungary's right to rearm in exchange for a pledge not to resort to war. But, according to some reports, concessions from the Little Entente neighbors have come too late.

Bailieboro, Millbrook Churches Scenes Of Dedication Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 31.—An event of peculiar interest took place in connection with the regular service at Christ Church, Bailieboro, on Sunday at 3 p.m., when a beautiful chancel window, installed by Dr. H. W. Armstrong, of Fergus, in memory of his parents, was dedicated by the rector, Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, B.A.

The history of the Armstrong family has been intimately interwoven with that of Millbrook, and the surrounding countryside, since pioneer days, a fine type of constructive citizenship, in both church and community affairs, having been characteristic of the early settlers of that name, and their succeeding generations, over a long period of years.

The memorial window, with its rich colorings wrought into the stained glass, is in triplicate form, with the larger panel in the centre, separated from the slightly smaller one on either side by narrow brick pillars. The figure of Christ, holding the communion wine challice, holds the centre place; the one to the south has the figure of St. John the Apostle, with pen and book in his hands, and at his feet the symbolical eagle; and the one to the north bears a beautifully designed figure of Mary, the Mother of our Lord.

The inscription reads: "To the Glory of God, and in loving memory of John G .Armstrong, born December 4, 1855, died April 4, 1917; and of his wife, Elizabeth Fitzgerald, born September 5, 1840, died August 12, 1919. This memorial is erected by their son, Dr. H. W. Armstrong, of Fergus, Ontario, 1938."

Farm Is Still In the Family

Some points of interest mentioned in connection with these early settlers include the fact that practically all their married life was spent on the fine farm homestead, Second Line, Cavan, a short distance west of Bailleboro, now owned and occupied by their grandson, Mr. Reginald Armstrong; the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Armstrong is the third generation in direct descent of the pioneers whose memory was so honored on Sunday. The homestead of the Armstrong family, where Mr. John G. Armstrong was born and brought up, is on the Fourth Line, Cavan, and is now owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDonald.

Miss Annie Armstrong of Millbrook is a sister and the surviving members of his family include one daughter, Miss Helen Armstrong, of Fergus; and three sons, Dr. Herbert W., of Fergus; Joseph of Cavan; and Edmund of Fort Dodge, Iowa. Mrs. Armstrong was a sister of the late John Fitzgerald of Millbrook and came, as a bride, to the homestead on the Second Line. Until they retired, and came to Millbrook to spend the sunset of their days, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong continued to live on this fine farm, and during that entire period of time, were faithful members of Christ Church, Bailieboro, and regular in attendance at its services.

Kells Doors Dedicated

On Sunday evening, in St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, the handsome solid oak doors, which give entrance from the vestibule into the nave of the church, presented by their two daughters in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kells, were dedicated by Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson.

The inscription on the brass tablet which is set in the wall closely adjacent to the doors, reads: "To the Glory of God, and in loving memory of John Christopher Kells, given by their daughters, Anne died 1917, and his wife, Fanny Anne Moore, died 1936. These doors are Lovell Kells, and Mary Gertrude Sims, 1938."

The Kells' families have been intimately associated with the history and progress of Millbrook practically from its pioneer days. The late J. C. Kells was born at Lindsay, but spent the major portion of his life here, being prominent for more than forty years in the business activities of the community, the large dry goods and millinery business of which he was proprietor being listed first under the firm name of Wood and Kells; later, when Mr. Wood withdrew because of other interests, the firm was known as Kells and Fowler, which name was retained until the time of his death.

Mrs. Kells came to Millbrook as a bride, from Elizabethville, New Jersey, and with her husband, they continued throughout their married life as faithful members and supporters of St. Thomas' Anglican church. The handsome brass lectern in the chancel of the church was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Kells, in gratitude for the recovery of their younger daughter from a serious illness and was installed at the time the parish of Cavan observed its one hundredth anniversary.

Both the memorials unveiled on Sunday add much to the ecclesiastical beauty and dignity of the churches in which they have been installed, enhancing in the atmosphere of the sacred edifices what the Psalmist had in mind when he sang, "O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness."

Members of the Armstrong connection were present for the dedication from Toronto, Cobourg, Fergus, and a number of other outside points as well as from the immediate village and countryside.

Stalin Reported Hurt As German Driver Piles Car Into Tree

Warsaw, Aug. 31

RUSSIA'S DICTATOR Stalin was reported injured today in a car smash. The accident was said to have occurred while Stalin was enroute to his country residence at Gorki in a car driven by the German communist chauffeur Erik Schulze.

The chauffeur it was asserted, lost control of the car and swerved off the road, crashing into a tree after running down and killing a motorcycle guard acting as escort.

Stalin was said to be carrying his arm in a sling.

Rocky Caves Reveal Signs Of Early Man

EDMONTON, Aug. 31 (CP).—Discovery of large mountain caves in Canada's northwest wilderness, believed to contain evidence of habitation by primitive man thought to have migrated from Asia thousands of years ago was reported today by Dr. Wesley L. Bliss, University of New Mexico archaeologist.

Dr. Bliss, just returned from a five-month expedition in the northwest hinterland, said his findings add much strength to a widely-accepted theory that America's first inhabitants reached the continent across the Bering Straits either before or after glaciers swept over this continent thousands of years ago.

Dr. Bliss said exact location of the mountain caves would remain a secret until he returns to them next year to make a more thorough examination but he added that what he believes to have been dwelling places of primitive man were found in two widely-separated areas visited by the expedition.

In the 2,400-mile journey with five United States college students, Dr. Bliss travelled by canoe from a lonely settlement in northern British Columbia northeastward down the turbulent rivers to the Mackenzie, down the Mackenzie to Aklavik, N. W.T., and then west across Alaska to the Pacific ocean port of Valdez.

Dr. Bliss said the expedition uncovered definite proof a clear corridor for migrating man existed throughout the ages from the Bering Straits, across Alaska to Aklavik.

Three Gunmen Flee When Victim Fights

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 31 (CP).—Arthur A. Pickering, Windsor, had always been holder of a theory that it was foolish to resist an armed holdup. So, he could not fully explain to police today his actions in disarming and beating off three would-be bandits who entered his drug store shortly before last midnight.

"I guess I just got mad," Pickering said of his actions in refusing to heed the warning of a pointed gun. The pistol later was found to be unloaded.

Pickering said he was working in the dispensary of his drug store when three youths entered. On looking up, he saw one of the youths standing at the door of the dispensary with a gun in his hand.

"Without stopping to think, I knocked the gun away and began wrestling with him," Pickering added. "Then his two companions jumped in."

Pickering today displayed bruises and scratches on the side of his face suffered during the ensuing fight. The three men fled after a short skirmish and raced away in a waiting automobile.

2,000 Canadian Soldiers At Borden

With an intensive training period behind them over 2,000 troops from units in the Canadian army swung into war manoeuvres near Camp Borden, using aircraft, artillery, tanks and mechanical transports. Their objective was the 'capture' of Schomberg, Ont., which for the duration of the games has been named "enemy territory." That horses are not quite extinct in the Dominion's armed forces is proved by the unit of Royal Canadian Dragoons shown starting out for their positions, BELOW. At TOP officers leading the manoeuvres, Col. R. B. Gibson, Lt.-Col. Alan Thomas and Lt.-Col. F. H. Marani, are pictured as they discussed tactics to be employed.

Hatchery Set In Scenic Beauty Spot

Rearing Ponds Will Straddle Trench Of Flume

The site of the fish hatchery which the Ontario Government is constructing in Belmont township is a "natural." Sportsmen understand the fine shades of the superlative connoted by that term from the vernacular of sport. To visitors in general the advantages and merits of the place are obvious even in the present early stage of the project, more definitely outlined by the acceleration of work this week.

If you didn't know a black bass from a carp nor care a hoot about the restocking of the Kawarthas, you would certainly agree, after tramping up the narrow, winding road from the splashing shallows of the Deer River to the quiet expanse of Deer Lake, that the locality is probably the most beautiful in Peterborough county. That weasel word "probably" wouldn't be left in there were it not for restraining memories of Buckhorn and Burleigh Falls. Not only is there charm of scenery, but also the essential and practical elements of situation for a hatchery ideally arranged by an economy of nature that never contemplated such an artificial purpose.

North of Cordova.

Deer Lake is three miles north of Cordova and extends easterly almost to the boundary between Peterborough and Hastings counties, where the townships of Belmont and Marmora are contiguous. That makes the hatchery as accessible from the lakes of Hastings county as from the Kawarthas.

The association of those two names, Cordova and Deer Lake, recalls a misty chapter in the history of East Peterborough industry and hopes when gold mining held out a promise of wealth and community development long before the Cobalt discovery revealed the vast mineral resources of Ontario's northland. The Cordova Mining Company harnessed the water fall of the Deer River to provide electric power and compressed air for its operations three miles away at Cordova. That was 38 years ago. To-day men are working on approximately that same ground, and appropriating for the use of the Gov-

Mrs. Dodge Interview Costs Coroner Job

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—I. A. Humphries, deputy attorney-general, announced today Dr. C. J. Macdonald of Gore Bay had been suspended as chief coroner of Manitoulin Island pending further investigation of the coroner's connection with a newspaper interview Aug. 27 with Mrs. Daniel C. Dodge.

Dr. J. M. Simpson of Manitowaning has been appointed to take Dr. Macdonald's position as coroner temporarily, effective today.

The deputy attorney-general said this action was taken after he received a preliminary report from crown atorney W. F. McRae of Gore Bay on an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the interview with Mrs. Dodge.

Gretna Green, Scotland, Sept. 1. THE TWO established "anvil priests" at Gretna Green now have feminine competition. Mrs. Jessie Graham, 79, who says she was the original "anvil Priestess" in Gretna, has gone back to work after 30 years of retirement.

Gretna is a village across the English border in Scotland, where marriage can be effected by a simple "declaration before witnesses." For more than a century it has been the custom to make the declaration before a blacksmith, hence the anvil used by non-blacksmith "priests."

A recent increase in the number of run-away marriages caused Mrs. Graham's decision. "I think the time is ripe for a comeback," she said. "I might as well have a share of what's going as anybody else."

Henlein, Bound To See Hitler Worries Britain, France

See Move As Sign Dictator Not Sudetens To Give Czech Answer, Likely By Friday

LONDON, Sept. 1 (CP)—Great Britain and France today received with concern the news that Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, had left Czechoslovakia to see Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

The fact Henlein had gone to Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat in Bavaria, was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that Hitler—not the Sudeten German leaders themselves — would give the final answer on the Czechoslovak autonomy proposals, originally demanded by the Praha government not later than tomorrow morning.

Developments from the Bavarian conference weer eagerly awaited. They might show, observers believed, whether Hitler had been impressed by French and British warnings against any step that might provoke conflict across the Czech-German border. Feeling grew in London that the situation was aproaching a climax.

British newspapers today emphasized editorially that the international situation remains serious, with the Daily Mail, (Independent) declaring Germany was being informed of Britain's determination to support France should that nation be called upon to fulfill her treaty obligations to Czechoslovakia.

Warning From Roosevelt

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) called attention to the United States interest in the Czech-German tension and predicted President Roosevelt might send a warning to Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Informed quarters here were inclined to doubt the German interpretation that Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador, took a definite message to the German government upon his return to Berlin yesterday.

They indicated Sir Nevile's main task was an effort to persuade Germany to ease pressure on the Sudeten German problem to permit Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator, to bring together the Czechs and Sudeten Germans around a table.

The Times (Independent) said there was no basis for a suggestion that both news from Central Europe and the general atmosphere were better. The news could be called neither better nor worse because there was little of it during the past 2 hours. The Times said, and the atmosphere was the same.

Italy Gives Jews Six Months To Quit Nation

ROME, Sept. 1.—(AP).—All Jews who have settled in Italy since Jan. 1, 1919, to-day were ordered to leave the country within six months by a cabinet decree.

The decree applied even to Jews who have become Italian citizens, because citizenship conferred since that date was revoked.

The edict was made applicable to Italy proper, Libya and the Aegean Isles. No mention was made of Italian East Africa. The settlement of Jews in Italy from now on was prohibited.

The decree defined as Jewish all born "of both parents of the Hebrew race regardless of religion."

Haven In Africa?

Italian East Africa—Ethiopia, Somaliland, Eritrea—may prove to be the haven for most of Italy's expelled Jews.

The decree was issued after a cabinet meeting at which Premier Mussolini presided. It did not show the number of Jews who have settled within Italy in the past 19 years but the total Jewish population has been estimated at about 44,000.

Returns from a census of Italian Jews less than two weeks ago have not yet been announced. The newspaper Il Tevere, however, indicated 70,000 had been counted, many more than had been expected.

No official information was available to show the number of Jews who would be affected by the decree but observers estimated it would be more than 10,000.

Milan police recently reported 2,000 Jews had settled there after Germany's absorption of Austria last March. A large number also was reported at Turin, and other Austrian refugees have settled in Trieste and other norther Italian cities.

The last Italian census before the war listed 34,324 adherents of Judaism in 1911. A census in 1931 recorded 47,435 persons who professed the Jewish religion.

Cultivating the Germans

At the same time the Fascist regime moved to win greater loyalty from the Germanic population of the South Tyrol, ceded to Italy by Austria after the Great War.

War veterans who served in the Austrian army were accorded the same pensions as Italian veterans. This measure was approved by the Cabinet with Premier Mussolini presiding.

The Cabinet also approved measures to stimulate childbearing by limiting the numbers of women workers and making promotion of men in the Civil Service dependent on their marital status.

The percentage of women employed in public and private offices was limited to one to every 10 men, except in special cases.

Civil Service workers were denied promotion if unmarried, in some cases after the age of 26, in others after 30. Married men alone

First Pensions Paid Britain's Ex-Premiers

LONDON, Sept. 1 (C.P.-Havas).—Great Britain has paid its first pensions to former Prime Ministers, the financial accounts of the United Kingdom for the year ending March 31 revealed to-day.

Earl Baldwin and David Lloyd-George, the only living former Prime Ministers, each received £1,000 ($5,000) covering six months' pension. Before his death J. Ramsay MacDonald, First Labor Prime Minister was paid £717.

First payment in British history of an Opposition Leader, in accordance with an act of Parliament voted last year, has been made to Clement Attlee, Labor. He has received £1,500 of his £2,000 annual salary.

Hitler Calls Generals Into Parley

Goering Heads Staff As Vital Sudeten Decision Is Debated

The outcome of the conference expected to be either acceptance or rejection of the Czechoslovak government's latest proposals for solution of the conflict between Praha and the autonomy-demanding Sudeten Germans.

Although these proposals have not been officially handed to Henlein's party, it was believed here that F.T. A. Asthongwatkin, of the British mediation mission, informed the Sudeten leader of their contents in a conference at Marienbad last night.

This was just before Henlein's departure for Germany to meet Hitler, his protector. It was not disclosed whether Henlein had yet reached the German Fuehrer's mountain home, scene of many history-making conferences in recent months.

The names of the generals summoned were not immediately announced.

Hipel Is Slated Labor Minister

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—Hon. Norman Hipel, speaker of the Ontario Legislature and member for Waterloo South is slated for the post of Ontario Minister of Labor, according to Queen's Park reports today.

Hon. Harry Nixon, acting premier, would not deny the rumor and said he had "no statement to make."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, has been occupying the labor portfolio temporarily since the death of Hon. M. M. MacBride, late minister of labor, two months ago. At that time it was indicated Mr. Heenan might not retain both portfolios permanently.

Cross Is Opposed To Ending County Councils

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Opposition to abolition of Ontario County Councils was expressed by Hon. Eric Cross, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs, in an address to-day before the Ontario Municipal Association.

Such abolition would not make "any material difference in the cost of Government," he said. Cost of administering the counties handling an annual budget exceeding $15,000,000 was only $167,000 a year, said Mr. Cross. Those expenditures were necessary and counties did special work.

"As far as my Department is concerned, I can see no advantage that would accrue from altering their set-up," Mr. Cross declared.

Windsor, Ont., Sept 1.

JAMES DANIEL WILKIE, probably the last Fenian Raid veteran living in Windsor, gets annoyed with himself these days because he finds he gets short of wind after walking a block or two. Mr. Wilkie will be 90 Sept. 16.

"I've got so short of wind if I walk down to the corner I'm puffing like a porpoise," he said. "Ninety years is too long for any man to live. He's no more use to anyone and he can't enjoy himself anymore."

Mr. Wilkie is a trifle put out, too because he hasn't enough "Pep" any more to tramp through the bush with a gun. The last time he took the part of a nimrod was six years ago.

Mackenzie Orders Bren Gun Probe To Keep Public Confidence

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—(CP.)— Defence Minister Mackenzie announced to-day at a press conference that a judicial inquiry will be held into the awarding of the Bren machine gun contract to the John Inglis Company of Toronto.

Following an attack upon the Bren contract in a magazine article written by Col. George Drew of Guelph, the minister said he had recommended an immediate judicial inquiry. This had been approved by his colleagues and a Judge of one of the higher court would be appointed in a few days. The inquiry will be conducted in Ottawa.

Mr. Mackenzie issued the following statement:

When the government two years ago embarked upon a program to modernize and mechanize the defence forces of Canada, it realized that the expenditure of large sums of money would be involved in the purchase and manufacture of essential material and supplies. It was felt that every possible precaution should be taken to elliminate the possibility of undue or unreasonable profits.

Accordingly an interdepartmental committee was set up composed of permanent officials from separate departments of government whose duty it was to examine, study and pass on important contracts emanating from the Department of National Defence in cases where competitive bidding was not feasible.

Two Stipulations.

In addition there have been inserted in such contracts two other stipulations to protect the public interest:

1. To prevent anything which might give rise to stock market manipulation.

2. To prevent any member of Parliament or of the Senate hav-

Cash Ages For 21 Years Before $500,000 Is Sent Jobless Man

Gauley Bridge, W. Va., Sept. 1.

AN UNEMPLOYED middle-aged man wondered today whether a cheque made payable to him for $500,000—and two cents—was "just a joke." S. C. Coda, former bridge contractor, incredulously fingered the cheque, drawn on the workingmen's Savings Bank and Trust Company of Pittsburgh. He said a letter accompanying it advised that the money had been held in the bank for 21 years. The skeptical Coda recalled that he had a wealthy aunt in Pittsburgh, "but she's dead."

5 Pt. Perry Motorists Hurt In Car Crash

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Five Port Perry, Ont., persons on their way to Toronto to see the Canadian National Exhibition were injured to-day when their automobile overturned and skidded more than 60 feet on the highway just outside the city.

Those injured were: David Prentice, driver, back, shoulder and chest injuries and cuts from flying glass; his wife, facial lacerations, knee and elbow abrasions; Ruth Prentice, 10, a daughter, undetermined injuries; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ashton, both suffering from shock.

Police said the accident occurred when a transport allegedly cut in front of the Port Perry automobile. Seeking to avoid a collision, Prentice swung the car to the right and headed for a telephone pole. In turning sharply to avoid the pole, the car overturned.

Cliff Buries Homes Injuring 12

Six Drown As River Floats House Off, Train Hits Washout

QUEBEC, Sept. 1—(CP)—Thirteen persons at least were known to have died early today when torrential rains pounded eastern sections of the province, raising to flood levels a number of rivers, causing one railway washout and letting loose a rockslide on top of a tenement apartment house.

The worst tragedy accurred at St. Gregoire De Montmorency, six miles east of here when a huge section of a precipice tumbled on an eight-suite apartment house, killing five, injuring 12 and leaving one boy buried.

Six members of another family were swept to death when the raging Portneuf River carried away their frame home near the Quebec-Montreal Highway, 40 miles west of Quebec.

Almost in the same vicinity, a Canadian Pacific Railway Company engineer and fireman were killed and a conductor injured when the regular Montreal-Quebec night train was partially derailed by a culvert washout. Only one passenger coach left the tracks and no serious injuries were suffered by passengers.

Slide Takes 5 Lives

ST. GREGOIRE DE MONTMORENCY, Que., Sept. 1 (CP)—Rumbling down a tall precipice, a great mass of rainsoaked earth carried death into a crowded apartment dwelling early today, killing four persons outright, injuring about 12 and, according to doctors supervising rescue work, leaving one boy buried in the building's wreckage.

As pickaxe and crowbar clawed through the crumpled brick and wood ruin that had housed 48 persons, the three doctors supervising rescue work said it had been established the only person not accounted for was the young son of Delphis Lachance. The boy, whose sister's body was take nout of the flattened debris, was feared buried in the wreck of his home.

Three women and one baby, of those in the eight-apartment structure, were the known dead eight hours after the tragedy. Caught in their sleep as furious rains loosened a ponderous chunk of earth from the 200-foot cliff, they perished almost instantly when the home caved in like matchwood beneath the tons of hurtling soil.

6 Drown As Home Floats Off

PORTNEUF, Que., Sept. 1.—(CP)—Six persons drowned today when storm-swollen waters of the Portneuf River washed a house into the river here, 40 miles west of Quebec. Last night's torrential rains caused the river to overflow its banks and forced many families to abandon their homes. Farmers rowed about in boats, taking their families to high land.

Drowned when their house was swept away by the torrent were Mrs. George Marcot, Rose Marcot, 20; Bridget Marcot, 14; a boy named Fernand Marcot, a two-months old baby and another child whose name was not learned immediately.

Mr. Marcot and eight other Marcot children were rescued from the wrecked house as it was carried away by a current that was so strong stout trees bent like willow wands under its pressure.

Caught in Bed

The Marcots were in bed when rising water first lapped at the foundations of their wooden frame home on the riverbank. The rush of muddy water aroused the family. Marcot and his wife tried to get the children out of the house and to high ground as the house swayed and creaked in the grip of the twisting rush of water.

Eight of the children clung to trees and reached higher ground,

75 m.p.h. Typhoon Rips Over Tokyo 14 Dead, 90,000 Homes Flooded

TOKYO, Sept. 1.—(AP).—A 75-mile an hour typhoon struck the Tokyo-Yokohama area, damaged thousands of homes, and drove four ships aground today, the 15th anniversary of the 1923 Tokyo earthquike in which 150,000 died.

Communications were crippled but early reports were that at least 14 persons were dead and several hundred injured. Largest of the steamers to go aground in Yokohoma harbor was the 15,346-ton Chitral of the Peninsular and Oriental line. Its moorings snapped, and the ship swerved to cut the lines of two other craft and all three were driven to shore.

Ninety thousand houses in Tokyo alone were flooded partially, 209 houses were destroyed and 300 were damaged in other ways. Broken wires decommissioned 20,000 telephones here.

Streets of Tokyo were carpeted with broken glass, branches of trees and even timbers. Electric wires dangled dangerously.

The stock market and other exchanges closed for the morning.

Britain, Belgium Buy Wheat From Rumania

BUCHAREST, Sept. 1 (CP-Havas)—The national agricultural institute today announced signing of a contract for 40,000 carloads of Rumanian wheat to be delivered to a British firm. Another contract, also signed Aug. 26, called for delivery of 28,000 carloads to a Belgian firm.

These sales followed announcement of new trade regulations which some observers declared were designed to free Rumania from German economic pressure. They were made public by M. Constantinescu, Minister of commerce and industry and governor of the Rumanian National bank.

Dixie Davis Laughs At Defence Counsel But Says Schultz Had Him Scared

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP).—Cool and unshaken, J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, a star state witness in the racket conspiracy trial of political boss James J. Hines, matched wits with defence counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker today.

The erstwhile "kid" lawyer for the old Dutch Schultz mob planted his feet upon the top of the witness box, knees level with waist, and grinningly rebutted Stryker's red-faced attempts to elicit flat "yes or no" answers.

Only once did the witness drop his voice from a cocksure briskness, parrying Stryker's questions with answers that extended simple queries to many hundreds of words.

The disbarred lawyer, ousted from the New York State bar when his connections with the Schultz policy lottery racket became known, softened his voice when he admitted that his conscience finally bothered him about taking Schultz' "triggermen" and strong-arm mobsters into his mother's home.

"I was bothered all during my dealings with Schultz," he said. "I was in fear of my life."

Yelled To Family, Then Ran, Father Admits After Slide Kills Daughter, Son

(Delphis Lachance, middle-aged mill worker, whose daughter died to-day when a landslide crushed an apartment house at St. Gregoire, Que., and whose son is feared buried in the wreckage, gave the following account of the tragedy to The Canadian Press as he watched rescuers dig for his son's body.)

By Delphis Lachance

(Copyright, 1938, by the Canadian Press.)

ST. GREGOIRE DE MONTMORENCY, Que., Sept. 1 (C.P.).—They tell me my daughter is dead—I have not seen her since the earth came down. And that my boy is buried in our home. I don't know. I suppose it is so, and that two more of us have died.

We buried one daughter two weeks ago. That was Dolorsa. She was 20. And now two more of us gone. It seems hard to believe.

It came so suddenly. We were asleep, myself, my wife and our 11 children. We were on the ground floor.

There came a crack of trunder. I have never heard it so loud. It woke me. My wife woke up too. She said something was wrong. Then I saw the water running through the building from behind.

I jumped out of bed and yelled: "Save yourselves." Then I ran into the street and out on to the railway tracks. I could see the earth coming down over our home.

Just like a deluge the water poured down the cliff. Soon it came up to my hips where I was standing.

I ran to the next door building and tried to get in. "Save yourselves," I yelled to them.

They thought I was crazy or drunk.

Then I ran back to our home. I saw two people jumping out the windows. Most of my family came out safely. All but Rosa, and the boy.

She is dead, I suppose. They told me so. I have not gone to the morgue to see her. I am staying here by the house, waiting.

Hatchery Set In Scenic Beauty Spot

Rearing Ponds Will Straddle Trench Of Flume

The site of the fish hatchery which the Ontario Government is constructing in Belmont township is a "natural." Sportsmen understand the fine shades of the superlative connoted by that term from the vernacular of sport. To visitors in general the advantages and merits of the place are obvious even in the present early stage of the project, more definitely outlined by the acceleration of work this week.

If you didn't know a black bass from a carp nor care a hoot about the restocking of the Kawarthas, you would certainly agree, after tramping up the narrow, winding road from the splashing shallows of the Deer River to the quiet expanse of Deer Lake, that the locality is probably the most beautiful in Peterborough county. That weasel word "probably" wouldn't be left in there were it not for restraining memories of Buckhorn and Burleigh Falls. Not only is there charm of scenery, but also the essential and practical elements of situation for a hatchery ideally arranged by an economy of nature that never contemplated such an artificial purpose.

North of Cordova.

Deer Lake is three miles north of Cordova and extends easterly almost to the boundary between Peterborough and Hastings counties, where the townships of Belmont and Marmora are contiguous. That makes the hatchery as accessible from the lakes of Hastings county as from the Kawarthas.

The association of those two names, Cordova and Deer Lake, recalls a misty chapter in the history of East Peterborough industry and hopes when gold mining held out a promise of wealth and community development long before the Cobalt discovery revealed the vast mineral resources of Ontario's northland. The Cordova Mining Company harnessed the water fall of the Deer River to provide electric power and compressed air for its operations three miles away at Cordova. That was 38 years ago. To-day men are working on approximately that same ground, and appropriating for the use of the Gov-

Mrs. Dodge Interview Costs Coroner Job

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—I. A. Humphries, deputy attorney-general, announced today Dr. C. J. Macdonald of Gore Bay had been suspended as chief coroner of Manitoulin Island pending further investigation of the coroner's connection with a newspaper interview Aug. 27 with Mrs. Daniel C. Dodge.

Dr. J. M. Simpson of Manitowaning has been appointed to take Dr. Macdonald's position as coroner temporarily, effective today.

The deputy attorney-general said this action was taken after he received a preliminary report from crown atorney W. F. McRae of Gore Bay on an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the interview with Mrs. Dodge.

Gretna Green, Scotland, Sept. 1. THE TWO established "anvil priests" at Gretna Green now have feminine competition. Mrs. Jessie Graham, 79, who says she was the original "anvil Priestess" in Gretna, has gone back to work after 30 years of retirement.

Gretna is a village across the English border in Scotland, where marriage can be effected by a simple "declaration before witnesses." For more than a century it has been the custom to make the declaration before a blacksmith, hence the anvil used by non-blacksmith "priests."

A recent increase in the number of run-away marriages caused Mrs. Graham's decision. "I think the time is ripe for a comeback," she said. "I might as well have a share of what's going as anybody else."

Henlein, Bound To See Hitler Worries Britain, France

See Move As Sign Dictator Not Sudetens To Give Czech Answer, Likely By Friday

LONDON, Sept. 1 (CP)—Great Britain and France today received with concern the news that Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, had left Czechoslovakia to see Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

The fact Henlein had gone to Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat in Bavaria, was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that Hitler—not the Sudeten German leaders themselves — would give the final answer on the Czechoslovak autonomy proposals, originally demanded by the Praha government not later than tomorrow morning.

Developments from the Bavarian conference weer eagerly awaited. They might show, observers believed, whether Hitler had been impressed by French and British warnings against any step that might provoke conflict across the Czech-German border. Feeling grew in London that the situation was aproaching a climax.

British newspapers today emphasized editorially that the international situation remains serious, with the Daily Mail, (Independent) declaring Germany was being informed of Britain's determination to support France should that nation be called upon to fulfill her treaty obligations to Czechoslovakia.

Warning From Roosevelt

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) called attention to the United States interest in the Czech-German tension and predicted President Roosevelt might send a warning to Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

Informed quarters here were inclined to doubt the German interpretation that Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador, took a definite message to the German government upon his return to Berlin yesterday.

They indicated Sir Nevile's main task was an effort to persuade Germany to ease pressure on the Sudeten German problem to permit Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator, to bring together the Czechs and Sudeten Germans around a table.

The Times (Independent) said there was no basis for a suggestion that both news from Central Europe and the general atmosphere were better. The news could be called neither better nor worse because there was little of it during the past 2 hours, The Times said, and the atmosphere was the same.

First Pensions Paid Britain's Ex-Premiers

LONDON, Sept. 1 (C.P.-Havas).—Great Britain has paid its first pensions to former Prime Ministers, the financial accounts of the United Kingdom for the year ending March 31 revealed to-day.

Earl Baldwin and David Lloyd-George, the only living former Prime Ministers, each received £1,000 ($5,000) covering six months' pension. Before his death J. Ramsay MacDonald, First Labor Prime Minister was paid £717.

First payment in British history of an Opposition Leader, in accordance with an act of Parliament voted last year, has been made to Clement Attlee, Labor. He has received £1,500 of his £2,000 annual salary.

Italy Gives Jews Six Months To Quit Nation

ROME, Sept. 1.—(AP).—All Jews who have settled in Italy since Jan. 1, 1919, to-day were ordered to leave the country within six months by a cabinet decree.

The decree applied even to Jews who have become Italian citizens, because citizenship conferred since that date was revoked.

The edict was made applicable to Italy proper, Libya and the Aegean Isles. No mention was made of Italian East Africa. The settlement of Jews in Italy from now on was prohibited.

The decree defined as Jewish all born "of both parents of the Hebrew race regardless of religion."

Haven In Africa?

Italian East Africa—Ethiopia, Somaliland, Eritrea—may prove to be the haven for most of Italy's expelled Jews.

The decree was issued after a cabinet meeting at which Premier Mussolini presided. It did not show the number of Jews who have settled within Italy in the past 19 years but the total Jewish population has been estimated at about 44,000.

Returns from a census of Italian Jews less than two weeks ago have not yet been announced. The newspaper Il Tevere, however, indicated 70,000 had been counted, many more than had been expected.

No official information was available to show the number of Jews who would be affected by the decree but observers estimated it would be more than 10,000.

Milan police recently reported 2,000 Jews had settled there after Germany's absorption of Austria last March. A large number also was reported at Turin, and other Austrian refugees have settled in Trieste and other norther Italian cities.

The last Italian census before the war listed 34,324 adherents of Judaism in 1911. A census in 1931 recorded 47,435 persons who professed the Jewish religion.

Cultivating the Germans

At the same time the Fascist regime moved to win greater loyalty from the Germanic population of the South Tyrol, ceded to Italy by Austria after the Great War.

War veterans who served in the Austrian army were accorded the same pensions as Italian veterans. This measure was approved by the Cabinet with Premier Mussolini presiding.

The Cabinet also approved measures to stimulate childbearing by limiting the numbers of women workers and making promotion of men in the Civil Service dependent on their marital status.

The percentage of women employed in public and private offices was limited to one to every 10 men, except in special cases.

Civil Service workers were denied promotion if unmarried, in some cases after the age of 26, in others after 30. Married men alone

Hitler Calls Generals Into Parley

Goering Heads Staff As Vital Sudeten Decision Is Debated

The outcome of the conference expected to be either acceptance or rejection of the Czechoslovak government's latest proposals for solution of the conflict between Praha and the autonomy-demanding Sudeten Germans.

Although these proposals have not been officially handed to Henlein's party, it was believed here that F.T. A. Asthongwatkin, of the British mediation mission, informed the Sudeten leader of their contents in a conference at Marienbad last night.

This was just before Henlein's departure for Germany to meet Hitler, his protector. It was not disclosed whether Henlein had yet reached the German Fuehrer's mountain home, scene of many history-making conferences in recent months.

The names of the generals summoned were not immediately announced.

Hipel Is Slated Labor Minister

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—Hon. Norman Hipel, speaker of the Ontario Legislature and member for Waterloo South is slated for the post of Ontario Minister of Labor, according to Queen's Park reports today.

Hon. Harry Nixon, acting premier, would not deny the rumor and said he had "no statement to make."

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, has been occupying the labor portfolio temporarily since the death of Hon. M. M. MacBride, late minister of labor, two months ago. At that time it was indicated Mr. Heenan might not retain both portfolios permanently.

Cross Is Opposed To Ending County Councils

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Opposition to abolition of Ontario County Councils was expressed by Hon. Eric Cross, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs, in an address to-day before the Ontario Municipal Association.

Such abolition would not make "any material difference in the cost of Government," he said. Cost of administering the counties handling an annual budget exceeding $15,000,000 was only $167,000 a year, said Mr. Cross. Those expenditures were necessary and counties did special work.

"As far as my Department is concerned, I can see no advantage that would accrue from altering their set-up," Mr. Cross declared.

Windsor, Ont., Sept 1.

JAMES DANIEL WILKIE, probably the last Fenian Raid veteran living in Windsor, gets annoyed with himself these days because he finds he gets short of wind after walking a block or two. Mr. Wilkie will be 90 Sept. 16.

"I've got so short of wind if I walk down to the corner I'm puffing like a porpoise," he said. "Ninety years is too long for any man to live. He's no more use to anyone and he can't enjoy himself anymore."

Mr. Wilkie is a trifle put out, too because he hasn't enough "Pep" any more to tramp through the bush with a gun. The last time he took the part of a nimrod was six years ago.

Mackenzie Orders Bren Gun Probe To Keep Public Confidence

OTTAWA, Sept. 1.—(CP.)— Defence Minister Mackenzie announced to-day at a press conference that a judicial inquiry will be held into the awarding of the Bren machine gun contract to the John Inglis Company of Toronto.

Following an attack upon the Bren contract in a magazine article written by Col. George Drew of Guelph, the minister said he had recommended an immediate judicial inquiry. This had been approved by his colleagues and a Judge of one of the higher court would be appointed in a few days. The inquiry will be conducted in Ottawa.

Mr. Mackenzie issued the following statement:

When the government two years ago embarked upon a program to modernize and mechanize the defence forces of Canada, it realized that the expenditure of large sums of money would be involved in the purchase and manufacture of essential material and supplies. It was felt that every possible precaution should be taken to eliminate the possibility of undue or unreasonable profits.

Accordingly an interdepartmental committee was set up composed of permanent officials from separate departments of government whose duty it was to examine, study and pass on important contracts emanating from the Department of National Defence in cases where competitive bidding was not feasible.

Two Stipulations.

In addition there have been inserted in such contracts two other stipulations to protect the public interest:

1. To prevent anything which might give rise to stock market manipulation.

2. To prevent any member of Parliament or of the Senate hav-

Cash Ages For 21 Years Before $500,000 Is Sent Jobless Man

Gauley Bridge, W. Va., Sept. 1.

AN UNEMPLOYED middle-aged man wondered today whether a cheque made payable to him for $500,000—and two cents—was "just a joke." S. C. Coda, former bridge contractor, incredulously fingered the cheque, drawn on the workingmen's Savings Bank and Trust Company of Pittsburgh. He said a letter accompanying it advised that the money had been held in the bank for 21 years. The skeptical Coda recalled that he had a wealthy aunt in Pittsburgh, "but she's dead."

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Five Port Perry, Ont., persons on their way to Toronto to see the Canadian National Exhibition were injured to-day when their automobile overturned and skidded more than 60 feet on the highway just outside the city.

Those injured were: David Prentice, driver, back, shoulder and chest injuries and cuts from flying glass; his wife, facial lacerations, knee and elbow abrasions; Ruth Prentice, 10, a daughter, undetermined injuries; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ashton, both suffering from shock.

Police said the accident occurred when a transport allegedly cut in front of the Port Perry automobile. Seeking to avoid a collision, Prentice swung the car to the right and headed for a telephone pole. In turning sharply to avoid the pole, the car overturned.

Six Drown As River Floats House Off, Train Hits Washout

QUEBEC, Sept. 1—(CP)—Thirteen persons at least were known to have died early today when torrential rains pounded eastern sections of the province, raising to flood levels a number of rivers, causing one railway washout and letting loose a rockslide on top of a tenement apartment house.

The worst tragedy accurred at St. Gregoire De Montmorency, six miles east of here when a huge section of a precipice tumbled on an eight-suite apartment house, killing five, injuring 12 and leaving one boy buried.

Six members of another family were swept to death when the raging Portneuf River carried away their frame home near the Quebec-Montreal Highway, 40 miles west of Quebec.

Almost in the same vicinity, a Canadian Pacific Railway Company engineer and fireman were killed and a conductor injured when the regular Montreal-Quebec night train was partially derailed by a culvert washout. Only one passenger coach left the tracks and no serious injuries were suffered by passengers.

Slide Takes 5 Lives

ST. GREGOIRE DE MONTMORENCY, Que., Sept. 1 (CP)—Rumbling down a tall precipice, a great mass of rainsoaked earth carried death into a crowded apartment dwelling early today, killing four persons outright, injuring about 12 and, according to doctors supervising rescue work, leaving one boy buried in the building's wreckage.

As pickaxe and crowbar clawed through the crumpled brick and wood ruin that had housed 48 persons, the three doctors supervising rescue work said it had been established the only person not accounted for was the young son of Delphis Lachance. The boy, whose sister's body was take nout of the flattened debris, was feared buried in the wreck of his home.

Three women and one baby, of those in the eight-apartment structure, were the known dead eight hours after the tragedy. Caught in their sleep as furious rains loosened a ponderous chunk of earth from the 200-foot cliff, they perished almost instantly when the home caved in like matchwood beneath the tons of hurtling soil.

6 Drown As Home Floats Off

PORTNEUF, Que., Sept. 1.—(CP)—Six persons drowned today when storm-swollen waters of the Portneuf River washed a house into the river here, 40 miles west of Quebec. Last night's torrential rains caused the river to overflow its banks and forced many families to abandon their homes. Farmers rowed about in boats, taking their families to high land.

Drowned when their house was swept away by the torrent were Mrs. George Marcot, Rose Marcot, 20; Bridget Marcot, 14; a boy named Fernand Marcot, a two-months old baby and another child whose name was not learned immediately.

Mr. Marcot and eight other Marcot children were rescued from the wrecked house as it was carried away by a current that was so strong stout trees bent like willow wands under its pressure.

Caught in Bed

The Marcots were in bed when rising water first lapped at the foundations of their wooden frame home on the riverbank. The rush of muddy water aroused the family. Marcot and his wife tried to get the children out of the house and to high ground as the house swayed and creaked in the grip of the twisting rush of water.

Eight of the children clung to trees and reached higher ground,

ST. GREGOIRE DE MONTMORENCY, Que., Sept. 1 (C.P.).—They tell me my daughter is dead—I have not seen her since the earth came down. And that my boy is buried in our home. I don't know. I suppose it is so, and that two more of us have died.

We buried one daughter two weeks ago. That was Dolorsa. She was 20. And now two more of us gone. It seems hard to believe.

It came so suddenly. We were asleep, myself, my wife and our 11 children. We were on the ground floor.

There came a crack of trunder. I have never heard it so loud. It woke me. My wife woke up too. She said something was wrong. Then I saw the water running through the building from behind.

I jumped out of bed and yelled: "Save yourselves." Then I ran into the street and out on to the railway tracks. I could see the earth coming down over our home.

Just like a deluge the water poured down the cliff. Soon it came up to my hips where I was standing.

I ran to the next door building and tried to get in. "Save yourselves," I yelled to them.

They thought I was crazy or drunk.

Then I ran back to our home. I saw two people jumping out the windows. Most of my family came out safely. All but Rosa, and the boy.

She is dead, I suppose. They told me so. I have not gone to the morgue to see her. I am staying here by the house, waiting.

Hitler Ends Defence Tour Gives British Envoy Chance For Early Parley

Henlein Reported On Way To See Dictator, Border Shooting Keeps Tension Up, Economic Experts Try To Match Army

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler returned from inspecting military fortifications to his mountain home near Berchtesgaden today, thereby setting the stage for a possible early conference with Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador, about the German-Czech dispute.

British sources said the envoy expected during the day to see Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop or State Secretary Von Weiszaecker for a preliminary discussion. Afterwards, the informants said, an apointment with the fuehrer at his Bavarian retreat seemed likely.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Praha said Konrad Henlein, leader of the autonomy-seeking Sudeten German minority of Czechoslovakia, was on his way to Berchtesgaden to confer with the chancellor.)

Having completed his five-day frontier inspection tour, Hitler turned his attention to the series of speeches he is to deliver during the annual Nazi party congress in Nuremberg beginning next Monday. His final visit of inspection was to a point on the German-Swiss frontier near Basel, Switzerland.

Fatal Speeches!

The first of the chancellor's party rally addresses will be his annual proclamation to the Nazi party, to be read at the formal opening Sept. 6, in which he customarily reviews Nazi achievements of the past and sounds future keynotes.

General interest in the proclamation this year centered about Hitler's possible references to the dispute in Czechoslovakia, where 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans demand a measure of independence.

Fresh Fuel for Fire.

A German protest to Czechoslovakia—which would be the third within a week—appeared likely as a result of an alleged ambush yesterday when Czech customs officials were said to have shot at, but missed, a German frontier guard near Oelsen, Saxony.

Foreign Office quarters said such a protest was being considered.

Although the German was not injured, the incident was reported by D.N.B., the official German news agency, and furnished the text for headlines calculated to keep anti-Czech feelings at a high pitch.

OMA Asks Relief From Costs Of Elections

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Desire of Ontario municipalities to be freed from the cost of provincial elections today carried support of the assessors' section of the Ontario Municipal Association. The group approved resolutions asking the government to take such a step and the main meeting will consider the proposal today or tomorrow.

Owen Sound, endorsed by London, wanted the government to pay all costs in connection with preparation of the provincial voters' list. The Owen Sound resolution argued such lists were "of absolutely no use to the municipalities." The other resolution, approved by the assessors' at a round-table conference in the city hall last night, was from Brantford and urged the government to assure all provincial election costs. The group discussions followed an address by W. B. Common, senior solicitor in the Attorney-General's department, on administration of justice.

Heavier Penalties Cut Hit-Run Drivers

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 1—(CP)—Heavy penalties for drunken drivers who failed to stop after accidents during the first part of August were believed responsible today for pronounced decrease in traffic violators hailed to Windsor Police Court during the past two weeks. Police said no one had been arrested on these two charges in the past 14 days.

Yesterday, only nine persons were convicted of traffic misdemeanors as compared with as many as 100 cases a hearing, before.

Magistrate Arthur Hanrahan, in defence of strong penalties he recently ordered, which included jail terms for drunken drivers and those who failed to remain at the scene of an accident, in court here recently pointed out decrease in traffic court lists, and contended he had noticed marked inmprovement in driving conditions in Windsor.

tion from the convention. "I am very glad the Hon. Eric Cross made it clear what the Department feels along that line," said Reeve W. P. Walker of Cardinal, member of the County Council of Leeds and Grenville.

Stirred up Protests

(Last session in the Provincial Legislature a private member's proposal for abolition of county councils aroused considerable speculation whether the government contemplated such a step. Heads of county councils were quick to protest.)

Mr. Cross disclosed his department was busily engaged in drafting a standard system of accounting for villages and towns. He hoped to be able to report considerable progress within a year.

The minister said he did not view with the same concern as formerly the problem of taxation on real estate. His reason was assumption by the Provincial Government of expenditures which, he estimated, would benefit municipalities by about $14,000,000.

The Province had granted a subsidy to municipalities, assumed cost of mothers' allowances, old age pensions, increased road subsidies and assumed cost of supporting tuberculosis patients in santaria.

Mr. Cross warned that his department was watching to see whether municipalities passed these benefits on to real estate as was intended.

Clothiers Strike

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 — (CP). — Between 20 and 100 workers of the Scott Clothing Company at nearby Longueuil marched out on strike yesterday and picketed the plant. Mr. Scott, manager of the company, said "not more than 20"; police said "about 100."

shivering in scanty night attire and calling for help. Mrs. Marcot stayed in the house to make sure her children were out. As she stepped to the porch with her two-months-old-baby clasped to her breast, the current wrenched the porch from the house and mother and child disappeared in the swirling yellow water. The four other children clung to trees, bushes and what they could clutch, but they were swept to death one by one. Hours afterward there was no sign of their bodies, believed carried downstream into the St. Lawrence River.

2 Trainmen Drown

Montreal, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Two men were killed early today when the Canadian Pacific night train running from Montreal to Quebec was derailed by a washout near Portneuf, 35 miles west of Quebec.

Canadian Pacific officials here said the dead were O. Cormier, the engineer, and his fireman, D. Jobidon. Conductor O. Jobin was slightly injured.

A number of passengers were hurt also as one first class coach left the rails with the engine and two baggage cars at the front end of the train. Their injuries were reported as not serious.

Heavy rain during the night, sending water pouring down slopes near the right of way, had weakened the roadbed and carried away a stretch of track, according to information reaching officials here.

Both the engineer and fireman died a few minutes after the heavy engine had lumbered off the track and toppled down an embankment.

Two Babies Escape

ST. GREGOIRE, Que., Sept. 1—Through the turmoil of crashing masonry, as death fell on the sleeping homes, two babies lived. Yesterday, Mrs. Audet gave birth to a baby girl. Today, as her broken body was lifted from the debris, the baby squalled from within the sanctuary of her clapsed arms. The child was unhurt.

And beside the body of Mrs. Delisle the rescue workers found her adopted daughter. Only a few months old, it had been adopted a short time ago.

A second house was struck as the rain weakened the cliff's foundations, but only one boy was hurt as the 10 occupants got out. It was the wooden building next door to the apartment house. A chunk of earth smashed into it and damaged it heavily.

Jean Cormier, one of Napoleon Cormier's seven youngsters, was burned by a dislodged power wire as he raced from his home, guided by his father who had run back after leaping to safety from a bedroom window. The other brothers and sisters and Mrs. Cormier were unhurt, and so was a widow named Gagnon living in the same dwelling.

At the buried apartment house, rescuers believed for a time that about 15 persons must have been buried i nthe collapse. It was not until seven hours after the smash that the doctors established to their satisfaction that only one person was missing.

Before that, two black-robed priests of the Roman Catholic church had uttered conditional absolution over the scene of swift death, for those who they thought yet might live in the wreckage.

Almost every person in the house had been asleep when death struck swiftly at 4.15 a.m. Only the Lachance family appeared to have had some premonition of danger, and they were hurrying out of the doomed building when the earth came crashing down on it, loosed by heavy rain.

One report said that a bolt of lightning at the height of the torrential rainstorm had carved out a jagged slice of cliffside and tumbled it down on the house, but officials held the rain alone responsible.

Eight families were in the building, just five feet away from the side of the tall precipice. Most of the adults were employed at the big textile mill that is the chief industry of the town nestling along the St. Lawrence river six miles east of Quebec city.

100 Yards From River.

The town is just 300 yards from the Montmorency Falls, and 100 yards from the river itself.

Confusion swept through the town as the news of the tragedy spread. Sleepy-eyed householders poured out of their homes to lend a hand in rescue work.

The press of townsfolk around the crushed building made it difficult to ascertain the number of lives lost. Some who must have escaped were among the crowd, but how many was not known.

The building itself, after collapse, had the impression of some object stepped on by a giant boot. It was flattened out and covered with a coating of shifting gravel through which seeped the cries of those buried alive.

Rescuers swarmed over the ruins, tearing at wood and metal with makeshift tools. Their progress was painfully slow, as the treacherous earthy footwork made the work difficult and dangerous.

A squad of Provincial policemen from Quebec City helped in the rescue operations.

In the street beside the pancaked ruins of the building ambulances awaited, after darting into the city with the first batches of injured who had managed to pull themselves out of what was left of their homes.

Floods along much of the highway from Quebec to St. Gregoire made the going hard for the ambulances. In spots where the rains had sent water lapping into the roads, the ambulances waded through water up to their hubcaps.

Among the injured were several children. More were feared tangled in the wreckage of the apartment house.

Mayor F. X. Bouchard, a 45-year-old undertaker, helped in the rescue work. He stripped to shirt-sleeves to lend a hand to the scores of other workers.

Seaway Snag Is Hepburn So King Hints

Technical Discussion With Ontario Urged By Premier

OTTAWA, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Advancement of international negotiations on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterways project was partly contingent to-day on Premier Hepburn's acceptance of the Dominion Government's renewed invitation for a joint technical examination and discussion of the scheme between Federal and Provincial officials.

In a letter to the Ontario Premier made public here yesterday, Prime Minister Mackenzie King replied to Mr. Hepburn's August 19 request for an expression of Government policy on the seaway and said "such technical discussions would necessarily be completed without prejudice and only for the guidance of the two Governments respectively."

The Prime Minister said that no final conclusion can be reached concerning the feasibility of the project as set forth in the draft treaty submitted to the Canadian Government by the United States Government several months ago until the possibilities of a solution of the power questions involved have been explored.

Need Full Discussion.

"It is practically impossible, without full technical examination and discussion, to estimate accurately and completely the practical effect of the various parts of the project and the implications," Mr. Mackenzie King continued.

The Prime Minister said that this kind of detailed examination is still needed "in order that Canada may have the best information in continuing to carry out her duty under the established practice of careful joint consultation with the other country upon matters of joint concern."

The Federal Government's general policy is to continue trying to clear away the obstacles to the province's freedom to develop its own resources at its own discretion, he said.

Renewed Invitation.

"At the present moment, the matter confronting all concerned being simply one of procedure involving no decision on any aspect of substantive policy, our immediate proposal in view of our international responsibilities, is to renew the invitation that joint technical examination and discussion now take the place between Federal and Provincial officials."

The Dominion government will be responsible to Parliament for any conclusion on matters concerning the seaway and will be prepared to set forth and support its conclusions in due course, the Prime Minister stated.

Premier Hepburn has voiced his opposition to the seaway project several times, most recently following President Roosevelt's speech Aug. 18 at the opening of the Thousand Islands bridge in which he urged Canadian co-operation in the plan.

During the last session of Parliament on two occasions I suggested that these contracts might well be submitted to the Public Accounts Committee. However, that was not done.

Since that time one of them has been assailed in a magazine article. Upon reading that article I immediately stated that an investigation would be held.

Must Have Confidence

Yesterday I took this up in council and, while ordinarily the public accounts committee of the House of Comomns is the appropriate body to examine such agreements, I recommended that in this case, on account of the critical world situation and the extreme national importance of keeping public confidence in the vitally necessary work being carried out by my department, there should be the least possible delay, and therefore, that a judicial enquiry which could be set in motion immediately and without awaiting the assembling of parliament would be preferable.

This view was concurred in by the members of the government who were present at council and was subsequently heartily endorsed by the prime minister who was good enough to discuss it with me at Kingsmere, even although indisposed.

Use Prominent Judge

There will, therefore, be a judicial inquiry directed by a judge of one of the higher courts whose name will be announced within the next few days. He will have full power and uthority to examine into every phase and feature of the contract in question.

In this way the greatest possible expedition will be ensured and an independent opinion obtained upon the matters in dispute.

All officers of the department will be available to give evidence if required, including the minister.

It is only fair for me to state that my opinion has not altered in the very slightest—that this contract is fair and reasonable and in the public interest. It is the opinion of the officials of the department that the company is proceeding with its undertaking in a manner which gives every assurance that it will faithfully adhere not only to its time schedule but to each and every one of the obligations undertaken by it.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat future began another month of dealings to-day by establishing five-year bottom prices. Operations were quiet with light selling flurries encountered to place quotations 1½ to 1⅝ cents down lower at the close, October 60¾, November 61, December 60¼ to ⅜, and May 63⅞ to 64.

Wheat trading was erratic throughout, with leadership derived from lower Liverpool and Chicago prices. As prices declined for the fourth day in the sixth week of lower quotations, brokers for the most part appeared content to stand on the sidelines. Canadian export trade continued disappointing.

Italy Gives Jews

were made eligible to all higher government posts.

Before it met the Cabinet had been expected to take measures to enforce the Fascist Regime's new campaign "for the defence of the Italian race" and Italy's Jews—estimated by Jewish authorities at 44,000—had awaited the outcome with anxiety.

Expulsion The Alternative.

Although Italy signed her armistice with Austria on November 4, 1918, January 1, 1919, is generally regarded in Italy as the date on which the country passed from a wartime to a peacetime state.

Fascists also regarded 1919 as the worst year of the "Bolshevist terror" in Italy—the post-war upsurge of radicalism—which was ascribed in part to persons entering the country from abroad.

To-day's degree provided that if those affected do not leave Italy voluntarily within six months they will be expelled, "following the application of penalties fixed by law."

The move to win over the South Tyrol—where the German-speaking population has been estimated at 250,000—was one of numerous steps to that end taken since Reichsfuehrer Hitler's annexation of Austria March 13.

Another cabinet measure gave the government full power to make any use it desires of any industrial or commercial establishment in the event of full or partial mobilization.

Canada Extends N.Z. Trade Pact

OTTAWA, Sept. 1 (CP).—Decision of the Canadian government to extend the existing New Zealand trade agreement until Sept. 30, 1939, and the disclosure that trade minister Euler has suddenly curtailed his European trip to sail for the Dominion Saturday featured trade developments in the capital yesterday.

The New Zealand trade has been the subject of considerable discussion in the past three years due to the large balance in favor of Canada. The present pact which was extended was signed originally in 1932 for a period of a year and has been successively extended.

The only modification in the new agreement is that Canada cancelled the exchange dumping duty against New Zealand butter imports. To compensate for this concession New Zealand agreed to limit butter shipments to such proportions as not to prejudice the interests of Canadian producers unduly.

The dumping duty was imposed when New Zealand currency was depreciated and when the government there had little control over butter exports.

Mr. Euler's decision to return came as a surprise to observers here. He had planned to visit Rome and other southern European countries presumably to drum up trade after he had spent some time in the United Kingdom.

Some sources indicated that it might indicate completion of the Washington negotiations for the revised Canada-United States trade pact.

French Army Ready For Any Emergency

PARIS, Sept. 1. (AP).—Premier Daladier told the powerful army committee of the Chamber of Deputies Wednesday that France's armed forces were prepared to meet any emergency.

Deputies attending the closed session said the premier outlined France's military strength and compared it to the forces of other European states.

The committee, of 44 members, was called into session because of an Alsatian deputy's insistence that it was necessary to ascertain France's military position in the face of Germany's army manoeuvres, now in preliminary stages.

The premier, heading a national defence government, has taken drastic measures to put industry on an emergency footing, decreeing suspension of the 40-hour week in defence and related industries.

However, Daladier's labor decrees today drew serious opposition from the chief labor organization of the Paris region, which called on its members to oppose the increase of working hours in spite of its own declaration that Germany "is menacing the peace of the world."

John Honeyman Librarian Dies At Coast

John R. C. Honeyman, who helped to build up Regina's library system to its present size in 28 years of service as Regina's chief librarian, died recently in Victoria at the age of 74. Mr. Honeyman resigned his post with the public library system in September, 1936, when ill-health forced him to retire. He was well known to many in Peterborough.

Mr. Honeyman became chief librarian in 1908 and under him Regina's library system grew from 30,000 books borrowed in 1908 to more than 300,000 in recent years.

Death of Mr. Honeyman marked the end of a varied career which included periods as an architectural droughtsman, artist, cabinet-maker, carpenter, blacksmith, dairyman, pioneer farmer, cowboy, policeman, government official, reporter, salesman and finally librarian.

Came West in 1885.

He went to the pioneer west in 1885 with the late Gerald Spring-Rice, Pense pioneer. He tried his hand at dairying and farming near Buffalo Lake before joining the old R.N.W.M.P. in which he served for five years. He turned from that to reporting on the old "Leader" under Nicholas Flood Davin. Later he was editor of the Moosomin Spectator, served with the provincial department of agriculture until he rose to deputy commissioner. Resigning that post, Mr. Honeyman entered business. In 1908 he was appointed librarian.

Mr. Honeyman is survived by his widow at Victoria, two daughters, one in Regina and one in Morristown, N.Y., and a son in Winnipeg.

He was born at Langside, a suburb of Glasgow, Scotland. His father was a distinguished Scottish architect, a fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects who had the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature conferred upon him by his alma mater, the University of Glasgow.

Lure of the West Too Strong.

Although he attained some skill as an architectural draughtsman, Mr. Honeyman was not enamored of the idea of meekly following his father's footsteps. He had served about three years in his father's office when he came across a pamphlet describing the lure of the last great west in Canada. The call of the west seemed irresistible to him so he set about preparing himself for the great adventure of migrating to the comparatively unknown Canada. First he entered a cabinet maker's establishment, where he learned to handle tools sufficiently and was an expert wood-worker by the time he got through. Then he went to a blacksmith's shop to get inside knowledge of that business, which he felt would be very useful when he migrated to Canada. He also took another preparatory course by learning to milk cows at the establishment of the Glasgow City Dairy Company, where 600 cows were kept.

In March, 1885, feeling he was fully prepared, Mr. Honeyman celebrated his majority by setting forth on the liner Germanic, a vessel of about 8,000 tons which was the crack leviathan of those days. He had arranged to learn farming at the farm conducted by the late Mr. Eckford at Pense, Saskatchewan, in return for his board. He travelled with the late Gerald Spring Rice, who was also heading for Pense.

Had To Build a House.

On arriving at Pense Mr. Honeyman found that his first job was to build a house for Mr. Eckford who went east to buy horses and cattle for the homestead. The hired man assisted in the building of the house.

Pioneering in Saskatchewan in those days was no joke for the young city-bred Scotsman, Mr. Honeyman found, but one thing that helped him to endure it was the ever-ready hospitality of the people who, although they were terribly hard up, were always ready to share whatever they had with the stranger within their gates.

A Rainless Summer.

In the spring of the next year Mr. Honeyman took up a homestead in the Buffalo Lake district and built himself a small house. He laid in a stock of provisions, bought oxen and a plow and started to break the virgin prairie. He also rented 15 acres, which he sowed by hand. Not a single drop of rain fell in the district from the time the snow disappeared in the spring until it came again the next fall. Mr. Honeyman's wheat crop grew up about six inches, headed out and then the gophers cleaned it up.

Prairie fires flourished during the drought, the countryside for miles around being nothing but a black mass. Practically all the homesteads were protected by adequate fireguards. The terrible drought gave Mr. Honeyman his fill of farming under those conditions, so he sold his stock and equipment and moved into Moose Jaw. A spare time occupation in those days was the collection of buffalo bones piled up high on hay racks. The settlers, after collecting a load, hauled it 20 or 30 miles to Moose Jaw, when they received $5 in trade for the buffalo bones.

Mr. Honeyman said the only thing that saved the country in those hard times was the Riel rebellion, the good side of which was that it gave the hard up settlers an opportunity to go freighting supplies to Saskatoon. They were paid $5 a day and were able to obtain supplies, canned meats and other things. The money brought into the country through the necessities of the Riel rebellion saved a lot of people from ruin.

Joined Mounted Police

After spending his second winter comfortably in Moose Jaw, Mr. Honeyman in the spring of 1887 joined the Royal North West Mounted Police in which he served for five years. His first two years were spent on police duty and the last three years in the office of Commissioner L. W. Herchmer. Mr. Honeyman learned shorthand and typewriting, probably using the first typewriter brought to the west. Mr. Honeyman and another man were engaged by Commissioner Herchmer to take the evidence given at the sitting of the Herchmer commission, which sat at McLeod, Lethbridge and Regina. Nicholas Flood Davin was counsel for the prosecution.

Resigning from the R.N.W.M.P. after five years' service to take up the position of reporter and editorial writer on The Leader of which Nicholas Flood Davin was then proprietor and J. J. Young, editor, Mr. Honeyman spent about a year in newspaper work before taking up an appointment in the Indian commissioners office, where he served under the late Hayter Reed and Mr. Forget until 1896 when the office was closed down.

From the Indian department Mr. Honeyman went to the Moosomin Spectator as editor and served another year in newspaper work. The paper changed hands and Mr. Honeyman found himself again out of employment. He then took a position as salesman of life insurance before returning to Regina, where the government departments were just being organized. He obtained a position in the agricultural department in which C. W. Peterson was deputy commissioner. Mr. Honeyman rose to the position of chief clerk and when Mr. Peterson resigned he succeeded him as deputy commissioner of agriculture for Saskatchewan under Dr. Elliott.

During his service with the department of agriculture the cattle branding system was taken over from the Western Stock Growers' association and all the brands were reallotted; the vital statistics system was organized; and the department records were copied separately for Alberta and Saskatchewan while many other services were initiated.

U. S. Meets Canada On International Bridge

International goodwill and friendship between the United States and Canada are exemplified by Leo F. Dolan, RIGHT, American Boy Scout, and Donald Rutherford, Canadian Boy Scout, as they give the Scout handshake across the border between the two countries, while standing on the new Blue Water international bridge between Port Huron, Mich. and Sarnia, Ont.

The bronze tablet between the two youths marks the boundary. Half of the tablet is on the American side and the other half is in Canada.

The bridge, built by Michigan and Ontario, with the state bridge commission of Michigan co-ordinating their efforts and supervising construction, will be opened in September. President Roosevelt and a high Canadian official will dedicate the $3,250,000 structure.

Suffered Crucifixion

Because he refused to join his former companions in crime for a new series of burglaries, 27-year-old Edward Collins, Reno, Nev., ex-convict, was literally crucified by two men. This was the story he told police when he was rescued from a wooden cross to which his hands and feet had been nailed, by passers-by who heard his screams. Collins was released from prison three weeks earlier and declared that his decision to go straight angered former confederates.

Eire's New Minister

Robert Brennan, who sat in a prison cell 22 years ago awaiting execution for participation in the Sinn Fein rebellion in Ireland, talks happily over the telephone after being named as Eire's (Irish Free State) minister to United States succeeding Hon. Michael MacWhite. Brennan has been charge d' affaires at the Eire legation in Washington for several months. His former superior goes to Italy as his country's consular representative.

2,000 To Get Jobs At Malton On New Planes

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—Plans for operation of a central assembly plant manufacturing bombing airplanes for the British government were closer to realization today with the annoucement by Mayor Ralph C. Day a $600,000 facory would be constructed at Malton, 14 miles northwest of Toronto.

Mayor Day said after a conference last night concerning operation of the Malton airport: "I am reliably informed an assembly plant for a group of 10 Canadian firms will be built at Malton within six weeks, giving employment to 2,000 skilled and unsilled laborers."

Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, and E. L. Cousins, general manager of the Toronto harbor commission, attended the conference at which was discussed operation by Trans-Canada Airlines of the Malton and Toronto Island airports, both under construction. The Dominion government agreed to operate the Malton port for a two-year period ending Dec. 31, 1940.

Mayor Day also announced he understood the National Steel Car Company planned to double the capacity of its $500,000 airplane plant at Malton. Following completion of construction work, the company will raise the number of employees from 450 to 900, the mayor said.

Names of the 10 participating aircraft companies which would construct the assembly plant were not disclosed.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and family of Peterborough were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Densil Moffatt.

Church service will be held at three o'clock Sunday, with a special speaker from the temperance association of Toronto in charge.

Cool And "Hot"

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 (CP).—Even if the temperature soars to a record high, it is doubtful if Kee Hong will take off his trousers again in an effort to keep cool—not after last night.

He told police he hung them on a peg near the rear door of his shop and resumed work when suddenly a man slipped in, snatched $5 from one of the pickets and left so swiftly that he could not describe him.

Looking Back
On This Date

SEPTEMBER 1

Many years ago I happened to be in Charlottetown on a first of September. Of course, one of the first sights of the city to be visited was the ancient legislative building, in which the intercolonial conference to consider a proposed maritime union had been held on that same date in 1864. I was shown what was claimed to be the original table at which the commissioners sat. Years later, in Regina, I was shown a similar table, which was said to have been the table of 1864, my western informant asserting that the one at Charlottetown was "just another table."

However that be, this is no place to write about the battle of the tables. What I set out to tell was that on that table in the council room on that Sept. 1, when I was there, there lay two wreaths, one of roses and lilies of the valley, with silver white ribbons dedicated to "The Dominion of Canada"; the other a garland of cypress, laurel and ivy, with dark black crepe attachments, dedicated to the "Departed Colony of Prince Edward Island." I do not suppose there are any of the anti-confederates left now, but for many years after "The Island" joined the Dominion in 1873 there were men and women who asserted that they had been coerced into Canada by the colonial office to avert annexation designs from Boston (about which I shall revive a story tomorrow).

That conference of 1864 was the true cradle of the Dominion of Canada. The provinces by the sea had arranged to meet to consider union. The government of the province of Canada heard of it, and, probably instructed from London, decided to send delegates down. They were welcomed and heard, and it was agreed that the maritime delegates should consult their governors and colleagues as to whether they would join in a larger conference at Quebec.

The Canadian delegates visited Halifax and Saint John, where they were entertained, and returned to Quebec satisfied with their mission. The commissioners of the three maritime colonies advised their ministries to accept the invitation to Quebec, and went there for the greater conference in October, out of which grew the Dominion of Canada ,though "The Island" did not not join the family circle for six years after 1867.

That was due not so much to any spirit of aloofness as to the fact that "The Island" had its own special problems, the absentee landlordism, for example, and that it asked special treatment.

Canada has never had any cause to regret that the Dominion was completed by the adition of Prince Edward Island. Let us hope that the ancient "anti" sentiment died with the generation of which I wrote in the opening sentences.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

That Was 35 Years Ago

In a column of the Brantford Expositor devoted to recording reference to events of 35 years ago there was this item:

"A number of Italians arrived in the city to work on improvements in connection with the G.T.R. line between Brantford and Paris."

When that piece of news was first recorded 35 years ago there would not have been anything unusual in it because that is the way we were doing business then. If there were railway lines to be built or large sewers to be dug, or if there were foundries where it was necessary to cut sand and clean up during the night, then we had foreign labor to do such jobs. Our young and able-bodied men at that time were doing other things. They were learning trades, working in factories and entering busines generally. That was why foreign labor was considered necessary and it seemed right enough as an arrangement at that time.

Today it is different. We dare say if it were necessary to have a number of men working on the track between Brantford and Paris today it would be possible to secure them all in Brantford, and likely there are people there as elsewhere who would gladly go and do the work. There has been quite a change in 35 years.

Going On A Farm

At a meeting of municipal representatives in Toronto there was more discussion on the old question of having people leave the urban centres when they had nothing to do and go out on the land. We have a feeling that suggestion is made because the people making it do not know of anything else to offer.

It is possible there are people who might be able to make a living by working a piece of land. That is, they could be self-sustaining, but they would not be what we call farmers. They would be making use of the land to grow produce which they would need in order to live. Whether they would have anything for sale would be a secondary consideration.

But to speak of putting people on the land as farmers is quite another matter. Some time ago we noticed where there was a clearing sale on a farm and the implements were all listed. In order to find what the investment had been information was secured from a dealer in implements and the machinery being offered at that sale would have a replacement value of $2,700. We have been told that the average farmer has an investment of $9,000, and that includes land and buildings, stock and equipment. There are farms where the figure is well above that; other where it is lower.

A farmer who is situated only a few miles from Peterborough informed the Examiner that it was not an easy thing for a man from a city to start farming. If he had been unemployed and was without capital he did not see how he could make a start at all. His view was that is was necessary to start with a reasonable amount of stock and equipment otherwise it was not possible to secure sufficient revenue to make the thing go. With prices at their present levels he considered the man who had debt and payments to handle would be severely handicapped. Our informant's parting shot was this: "Why do city people always want to have their unemployed go and try farming? Why do they never suggest that they start running more grocery stores, more shoe stores and more of everything in the cities?" Making farmers out of unemployed is not an easy matter, but having an unemployed family on a bit of land where self-support might be reached is within the range of possibility.

He Has Found Out

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture told an audience at New Westminster, B.C., that there were well defined limits past which a government would not dare go in fixing prices. He was referring to a suggestion that eggs should receive the same sort of treatment as wheat; that is, that there should be a fixed or pegged price. Mr. Gardiner said plainly enough he was certain it could not be done.

Turning to the price of wheat which has been placed at 80 cents he admitted the Government, through the operations of the Wheat Board, might lose money to the extent of from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000. It should be understood that the 80 cent price to which Mr. Gardiner referred is the price of wheat delivered at Fort William, and the price of shipment and elevator charges comes out of the amount which the producer receives.

There is plainly a limit to the extent to which governments can become the sales agency for any commodity which requires a great deal of capital and financing. If there were a loss of $30,000,000 on the wheat crop for the current year, then that loss would become the property of the Dominion Government. The Government does its financing out of the Consolidated Revenue fund, and in some way or other the people of the country, wheat producers included, would have to put $30,000,000 into that fund.

It is not sound business. What we are actually doing is growing more wheat in Western Canada than can be profitably sold in an average year. Then because we had that surplus of wheat we went ahead and sought a new $50,000,000 outlet to the European market by bringing into existence the Hudson Bay Railway, a venture which results only in a splendid annual deficit. Mr. Gardiner is on solid ground when he comes to the conclusion that government action is not necessarily the solution to our sales problem.

A Man With An Idea

An interesting report comes from a section of Bruce County and it has to do with farmers and junk. One of the farmers with an idea for organizing suggested that farmers in his district should gather together all their scrap metal and junk and then sell it direct to some dealer. The suggestion was accepted and there were pieces of old machinery, a good many odds and ends with metal in them; there were old batteries and in general a collection of such stuff as the average farmer would be glad enough to have taken away from the premises.

The next move was to hire a truck and take the load to Toronto. The expenses were to be pooled and so was the money secured from making the sale. The load was sold in Toronto and after the expenses were paid the farmers had $10 each. The man who thought of the idea said the farmers were pleased at the outcome. He put it this way: "We are not going to make much money out of it but $10 in cash is acceptable enough to any farmer these days."

The same farmers, we learn, are now ready to repeat the operation. They say they have enough junk ready to make another load. Other farmers hearing of it are going to do likewise. And this junk had been lying around the premises for a long time!

The Regard For Law

When the time came for the new amendments to the Criminal Code to be effective regarding slot machines and pin ball games, the remark was made that "it wouldn't be well to take a chance on operating the things because it looked as though the law were going to be enforced."

There are two things in that remark, (1) the common sense and good judgment of the man who made it, and (2) a quite proper respect for law because it was going to be enforced.

And that in turn shows how much better it is to have one law governing the whole province or country rather than a law which can be interpreted in as many ways as there are municipal authorities to do the interpreting.

It would be much better for the province or the nation if our daylight saving time vs. standard time issue were dealt with in the same way. Better to if there were a provincial standard regarding the place where traffic lights are to be placed in municipalities. But best of all is the expressed feeling that it will not be worth while taking a chance against a new law because of the feeling that it is going to be enforced.

As It Was On The Tenth

We read with a bit of regret that our Prime Minister has sciatica, and it has become so bad at times that he has had to miss cabinet council meetings. Mr. King is not a dodger of work and when the news from Ottawa says he could not leave home it means just what it says.

We have no way of knowing what sort of neighbors he has living next door or across the road, but we are certain if Mr. King had been living on the Tenth Concession some years ago the folk would have done all they could. They were good neighbors. It did not seem to make much difference what a person had in the way of sickness they would be ready to make a frontal attack on it. Sciatica, lumbago and rheumatism would all be classed pretty much the same there. The doctor when he drove out from the village might have been able to show that one was quite different to the other, but they seemed to work about the same on the person suffering from any of them.

'Twas a good many years ago since we saw the neighbors trooping in when there was a spell of sickness to be attended to, and if memory plays no tricks then sciatica would have been subject to attack by heat and ointment or liniment or lotions of some sort or other. The hot water bottle may have existed at that time but it had not come to liye on the Tenth, and of course there was no such thing as an electric pad. But there was the small bag filled with salt and bran and when they came out of the oven in the kitchen range they had a lot of heat in them. Something was almost bound to happen when they were applied. Then there was the old earthenware bedwarmer which was filled with hot water, and the flat irons wrapped in flannel could always be counted on to add a few more degrees to the sum total of existing heat. If thawing out would provide remedial treatment for sciatica then the methods of the Tenth would be effective.

There were others who seemed to lean toward the theory of rubbing. Nearly every family along the road and up the sidelines had something that was good for rubbing in. The thing had not been standardized and no two families seemed to recite the same articles of faith when it came to a bottle of liniment. Most cases they had gone to the village and ordered the stuff made up; so much of this and that and so much turpentine and camphor. The women folk would come along and bring their bottles with them, and they wouldn't ask for them back when they left after their errand of mercy. If when they did get their bottle back they found some of it had been used they were pleased as though a compliment had been paid to them. If the person was soon up and around then they were sure the contents of their bottle had been the cause of speedy recovery. People soon learned that was one way to be popular on the Tenth. Make certain that a little was taken out of each bottle of liniment that was brought to the house when some person was sick.

We have not the least doubt that Mr. King has the best possible advice and treatment for his sciatica, but we hope he also has neighbors like the folk who lived along the Tenth Concession all the way up to the Broken Front Road. They didn't just drop in to ask how a person was getting along and perhaps express a little sympathy. When they came they brought along visible implements to support their sympathetic desire for a measure of good health and they never called to reclaim them until the afflicted person was up and around again.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The ideal wife is the one who thinks she has an ideal husband.

A great many of those little summer cabins are near the season when they are not going to have much to do until 1939.

Chatham News tells of an apple tree which has ripe fruit and blossoms at the same time, indicating of course that we are not going to have any cold weather this winter.

A man in United States won $25,000 by submitting the best set of rules for safe driving. Chances are most people know all those rules and refuse to observe them.

Police record in the town of Leamington for the past month shows 25 prosecutions and 25 convictions. And even in the big leagues they do not bat that way.

R. S. Dalgleish of Newcastle, Eng., when in Regina said the people in the West asked for the Hudson Bay route and the country spent $50,000,000 to give it to them and now they dont' make use of it. Mr. Dalgleish has found out something that the people in this country have known for some time.

We read that the name of Capt. Eyston is pronounced Ice-ton. That is the opinion of the St. Thomas Times-Journal. But if Eys is pronounced ice, then what does the St. Thomas paper call that stuff we have on the ground in cold weather?

Toronto finds it has a number of people on its relief list who are now starting to repay the city for advances made in past months. There is no law to force such payment but people with such an outlook are a law unto themselves. Likewise an example in gratitude.

There have been 30 Blue Water Beauties selected and they are to have something to do with the official opening of the international bridge between Sarnia and Port Huron. And like as not Messrs. Hueston and McKenzie of the Sarnia Canadian Observer will have something to do with the same event.

STUPID

(By A R K.)

¶ Why flies come in here I don't know, there's other places they could go, they're stupid so I think; they cannot find a peaceful seat, there's not a thing that they can eat, and nothing here to drink.

¶ The eating places down the block, have got a stack of food in stock, there's sugar and there's cake; if they would go in there and sit, and sort of hang around a bit, there's something they could take.

¶ They might get apple pie and cheese, or any kind of pie they please, they might work in a group; they might get pork chops now and then, or cutlets served to hungry men, or they might taste the soup.

¶ There's grocery stores along there too, when doors swing then the flies get through, and pop in off the street; if they would stick around a while, I know they'd find the trip worth while, they'd find a bit to eat.

¶ But flies just come and stay in here, they always do this time of year, sit on the telephone; an awful lot of time they waste, when they gaze at my pot of paste, or scamper on my dome.

¶ I often wonder how they live, there's nothing here I have to give, no crumbs upon the floor; there's very little they can know, for if they did they'd up and go—and try the corner store.

Watches Events In China Today

By Lilian and Wallace Crawford, West China Union University, Chingtu, Szechwan, West China—In London Free Press.

WE SAW THE Japanese watchdogs outside the 12-mile limit as we came down from Canton one day and one can better imagine their chagrin than describe it, as they stood there and watched the British ships go up and down the Pearl River whith their overladen cargoes of all kinds of merchandise, much of which the Japanese would dearly love to confiscate but dare not. We saw them challenge two ships with British flags, but both were regular registry and nothing could be said by the Japanese. But it does hurt when they know that there is leaking through to the Chinese all manner of material which will be used against the Japanese, but what can they say, for the Japanese are not at war with the Chinese (so the Japanese say), at least they have never declared war, hence the freedom of the seas is open to all who wish to carry cargoes to China, and British shipping is not losing the chance. Incidentally the Chinese realize that the greatest help at the moment is coming from the good old land and they are more than grateful to us for what assistance is given in any way.

Leaving Hong Kong, one can go to Canton, the first big Chinese port, by river or by rail. We went up by rail and had not gone far before we realized that there was one group of men who, when the war is over, should have a special medal struck for them, namely the men of the railway.

Ever since last September, the railway has been bombed almost daily, and it is almost miraculous that, in spite of the tons of bombs which have been dropped on the right of way, not yet have trains been stopped for any length of time. It is true that a couple of trains have bee n struck and with terrific damage and loss of life, but the running of the trains has not yet been seriously interfered with.

The bridges are protected by excellent anti-aircraft guns which shoot with deadly accuracy, which the Japanese know to their sorrow, so keep away from that sector, and in places the bridges have had every other tie withdrawn so that, where a bomb has dropped on a bridge it has gone directly through and done practically no damage. This, together with the doggedness of the trainmen and stationmen, has made it possible for the trains to continue almost uninterrupted ever since the Japanese began to rain their bombs on the right of way.

Little Damage

The stations are equipped with telephones and as soon as a bombing squad comes over, they are informed. The trains then scuttle into the tunnels and wait for clearance when they go on again. Thus the Japanese are unable to do much damage to the trains themselves, and very seldom is a train hit. If a bomb does drop near the trainway, the crews are out at once, the damage is repaired and the trains carry on.

Canton is the busiest city I have seen in China and I have seen many. We used to think that Shanghai was busy, but it is a cemetery compared to Canton. This city also bears the distinction of having been bombed the most of any city in China.

I was there in March and they had had 268 bombings up to that day. I came back the first week in April and the count was up over 300. And the interesting thing about the Canton bombings is that there have been less than 20 soldiers killed. It looked to me as if the Japanese followed the same rules in bombing a place as they follow in all other procedure, for they never seem to have any initiative, but come over with the same precision, and with the same program time after time.

All I saw of damage was to civilian property. It is true that they have bombed the airport, and upon one occasion they dropped 119 bombs on the airport, but their ships were hardly out of sight before the crews at the airfield were out with their instruments and had covered up all the holes and nothing could be seen of the damage done. I have heard that the Japanese complain that the Chinese do not fight fairly, for they make imitation airplanes from bamboo, paper and paint, and put these dummy airplanes in conspicuous places where the Japanese waste bombs on them. Actually, from my observations, the Japanese have wasted untold numbers of bombs. I saw a shell hole in a field, the hole was about 40 feet across and 20 feet deep, but no damage other than the hole had been done.

Canton is also full of war materials, waiting to get pushed up to the front, motor lorries by the hundreds, and these are going up to the front all the time. One airplane a day leaves Canton for somewhere in China, and the Japanese have not yet been able to stop the daily flying of the plane from Canton. The day I was there four took off at dawn for unknown destination, and the Japanese came over two hours after and bombed the fields and cabbage patches of the farmers in the vicinity of the airport, but did not succeed in dropping a bomb that day on the airport. We got quite used to the hum of the planes and the heavy drone of the bombers, as we travelled up the highway to Changsha.

NO—NOT SO FUNNY!

(San Francisco Argonant)

AN AMUSING, but not at the moment, little scene took place the other day in the Moya del Pino menage, when Madame del Pino (Helen Horst) woke, or rather, did not wake up. For Helen, who had been dreaming very soundly, found that she could not open her eyes. Surprise turning to alarm, she called to her spouse, who in turn tried to undo the stubborn eyelids. Nothing doing. The next try was the family physician, who talked to the perplexed Helen (she was wide-awake with her eyes closed), and eventually got the lids to undo themselves. Explanation: Helen had apparently dreamed something which had caused self-hypnosis.

Sshh!—his lordship is sleep-walking again."

• Dead Men Helping the Treasury

(Montreal Star)

THE CREDITABLE and luminous financial statement for Quebec Province released yesterday by Hon. Martin B. Fisher, Provincial Treasurer, was no doubt read with general satisfaction. On ordinary expenditures, Mr. Fisher was able to show a pleasing surplus of over three millions. This was accomplished without the smallest increase in taxation, and without reducing expenditures. Indeed, the expenditures followed the revenue up.

Only a carping critic would point to the fact that Mr. Fisher really owes his surplus to the discrimination of the Great Archer who has long been credited with "loving a shining mark." That is, it was the sharp increase in the succession duties that carried the tide over the deficit line. In 1936, death contributed to the coffers of the Province only a trifle over four millions, while last year the Grim Reaper came through with nearly twelve millions. This is a source of revenue that can hardly be trusted to keep up, and no doubt the Provincial Treasurer will frame his estimates for the next year with this fact well in mind.

Indeed, if it were not for "the quick and the dead"—the motorists and the class to which their victims belong—the Province would come off badly in the way of revenue. The motorists contribute over fourteen millions a year, and the dead come next with nearly twelve millions. Seven more millions seem to be due to the depletion of our natural resources, and we get over four millions from the sale of liquor. These comments on our sources of revenue have nothing to do with any particular Government. They are the traditional practice of all governments. But some of them might be worth consideration by our citizens.

• The Situation As It Is In Europe

(Toronto Star)

TO A SURPRISING degree Hitler is adhering to the plans for the German domination of Europe outlined in his book, "Mein Kampf," the prescribed textbook of the nation. His aim was to obtain possesison of Austria and Czechoslovakia, so that he might dominate Roumania and Poland and seize the Ukraine. With the oil, metals, munitions factories, and cereals provided by those countries he would be in a position to challenge Britain and France and seek world power. So long as Czechoslovakia retains her independence Soviet Russia and France are comparatively safe from German attack and the British-French combination has cause to hope for the military co-operation of Roumania, Jugoslavia, Russia and possibly Poland in the event of a general conflict.

As matters stand, the forces arrayed against Germany are too formidable even with the possibility that Italy might join her. But only a firm attitude on the part of the democracies can keep their friends on the other side of Europe in line. Should Britain and France leave Czechoslovakia to fight a hopeless war, unaided, against Germany, all the friends of the democracies would side with Germany and the odds against Britain and France would become terrific. Italy then would make her choice. She would have to line up with Germany or become a third rate power.

Italy, it so happens, has grandiose ambitions in the Mediterranean that she cannot gratifly without the aid of Germany. For reasons of her own she wished to get control of the Balearic Islands which would interfere with the French sea route for Moroccan troops and weaken British communications with India. For similar reasons she is glad to see Germany place guns to dominate the straits of Gibraltar and obtain submarine bases in northern Spain and military airdromes on France's southwestern flank. The main interest of both Germany and Italy is not the domestic government of Spain but the hamstringing of the democracies, in a military and naval sense, before a general war begins or to compel the submission of the democracies to the will of the dictators without a conflict.

• Finds Japan Calm and Busy

(Ottawa Journal)

IN THE NEW YORK Times Magazine Mr. Ernest O. Hauser writes of a recent visit to Japan. He was surprised by its calmness. There seemed, he says, to be nothing unusual in the picture of Japan's "buzzing cities and industrious villages". Life was going on about as usual, "and if it were not for the headlines in the newspapers one would hardly believe that Japan is engaged in the most portentous struggle in her history as a nation."

Japan, Mr. Hauser points out, has no food problem. The Japanese diet is mainly rice and fish, there is abundance of both, and this he finds "a weighty factor both physically and psychologically". Wounded and mutilated soldiers are not seen on the streets, even in Tokyo—they are concentrated in resorts and hospitals. The public are not informed about military reverses or casualties, and in perfect confidence over the outcome of the Chinese "affair", places of amusement are crowded, social life is not restricted, money is being spent freely.

This is on the surface. Mr. Hauser did find plenty of signs, however, that the war is interfering with normal life. "More and more articles are disappearing from the market." Oil and gasoline are scarce. The cost of living is mounting rapidly. More women and children are working in the fields, replacing men called to the colors. The tourist trade is "almost ruined". There are indications of "sporadic discontent" from groups most affected by the war.

The Times writer's general conclusions are interesting. He thinks it is quite probable Japan still has ample reserves of commodities essential for the making of war. He suggests that the confidence of well-informed Japanese business men and industrialists "might lead one to believe that reports in the Western press of an imminent collapse of Japan's national economy are tinged by the wishful thinking of the writers". No one, he says, can tell when Japan will reach the limit of her resources; but "the greatest and most important of Japan's national resources has not been tapped thus far—the dogged nationalism of the Japanese people. . . . Here is a silent reserve of vast and incalculable potentialities".

This is a picture of the Japanese to be considered along with the recurrent suggestions—usually by people far from the scene—that Japan is on the verge of collapse, that her armies are hopelessly entangled in the vastnesses of China, her people sullen and discontented, her finances in a state of the utmost confusion. Mr. Hauser seems to have found nothing to justify stories of that sort.

TWO PRINCES.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

HOW MANY BOYS in Canada, sons of moderately well-off parents or quite wealthy, would be content with a pocket-money allowance of sixty cents a week? There are tens of thousands of boys in the Dominion who get more and think it little enough. But Prince Tomislav, heir to the throne of Yugoslavia, and his younger brother, Prince Andrej, are holidaying from school in a litte English village—and that is all they have. It is the wish of Queen Marie, their mother.

TOO FEW HANDS.

(Regina Leader-Post)

IF AN EXTRA Cabinet Minister or two are needed to enable a government to do a better job, to keep its work up, and to relieve the pressure on individuals, The Leader-Post feels that they should be in office. The key to the matter is the efficiency of government. If more Cabinet Ministers will make it more efficient, the cost of them is of no consequence. The same principle applies as trying to run a private business without enough help to serve the public efficiently. We do not know how many Cabinet heads are required to give efficient government at Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina or Edmonton, but there should be enough to have the job done as well as possible without putting such a load on men that they crack under it and go out.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

O LORD OUR LORD, how excellent is they name in all the earth! Who hast set thy glory above the heavens. . . .

When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained; what is man that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him. . . .

To The Editor

NOT NEGLECTING BAND

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Replying to the letter by "Ambitious" concerning the affair of Lieut. Peryer and the Millbrook band winning a prize at Orono, July 13th, may I say that the writer is not very well informed.

There was a prize given at Peterborough on the same day, but it was for the best JUNIOR band, which would let the Ranger Band out as far as competition went. I believe that the Lindsay Boy's Band took this prize.

If Lieut. Peryer wants to go out of town and lead other bands, that's his business and I wish him luck. In the meantime the public can rest assured that in no way is he neglecting his duty toward the Ranger Band.

Yours truly,

RECORDS FALL, OTHERS EQUALLED AT GRAND CIRCUIT MEET

Two World Records Are Broken At Grand Circuit Races 17-Year-Old Record Also Falls

SYRACUSE, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Two world's records were broken and another equalled while a 17-year-old track record also fell in Grand Circuit races at the New York State Fair on Wednesday.

Her Ladyship, owned by Hotel Baker Stables, Charles Ill., and driven by Sep Palin, equalled her own world's record for pacing mares when she covered the first heat of the 2.15 pace in 1.58¼ and came back with miles in 1.58½ and 1.59¼ for a world's three-heat record for a pacer.

Rosalind, 1936 Hambletonian winner, trotted a mile in 1.57¼, accompanied by a prompter, to cut two full seconds from her own best mark and establish a new world's record for trotting mares.

The bay mare, owned by Gibson White of Lexington, Ky., and driven by the owner's father, Ben White, also erased the track record of 1.58 set here in 1921 by the great Peter Manning.

Billie Direct, world's champion pacer, scored a straight-heat victory in the $2,000 2.07 pace, with Vic Fleming of Dundas, Ont., handling the reins.

Kinsmen Win Over Lions

Kinsmen eliminated Lions last night in the Midget lacrosse semi-finals, and will meet Y's Men in the finals. It will be a two-in-three series, first game to-night at seven o'clock. The semi-finals was a home-and-home arrangement, goals counting, with Lions winning the three-period tilt last Friday by a 4-1 score. Kinsmen upset the dope last evening in the five-frame fixture to take a 7-3 win and cop the round by an 8-7 count in a tidy tussle, free of penalties.

Lions got the lone marker of the first period, Kinmond scoring on Detlor's pass. Mattucci counted for Kinsmen and Maloney for the Lions in a tight second heat. Mattucci got the only counter in the third to tie up the game. The Kinsmen won the game and round with a big splash in the fourth, tallying four markers with Mattucci getting two, Amyotte one, and O'Toole the other. In the final frame, Mattucci (who shone all night) bulged the twine for Kinsmen and Maloney got one for Lions. The teams:

Referee—R. Chute.

Stamford Double Pays $1,136:05; Weston Woman Clicks

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 1.

THOMAS PHELAN of St. Catharines and a Mrs. Woodcock, Weston, Ont., collected $1,136.05 at Stamford Park today for coupling Lisby Coat and Ida King, a pair of outsiders, in the daily double. They held the only tickets on the combination.

Tanners Square Play-off Series With Elgin

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 1.— With a chance to eliminate the Tanners, Elgin met defeat by a 19 to 4 score in the second game of the local softball league play-offs, Elgin defeated the Tanners 9 to 6 Friday night in the first game and a win last night would have sent them into the finals against either the Clerks or the Outlaws.

The Tanners took a first innings lead when Hahn homered with one on. They scored another in the third and 3 in the fourth when McCoy homered with 2 men on. Elgin got 2 back in their half of the fourth on 2 hits and the only 2 errors made by the Tanners in the game. The Tanners went away out in front in the fifth innings when they scored 7 times. McCoy got his second successive homer in this innings with 3 on bases.

Elgin got 1 in the fifth and 1 in the sixth to complete their scoring. The Tanners got 5 more in the fifth and their final run came in the seventh.

Tanners Had 19 Hits.

The Tanners collected 19 hits from 2 Elgin pitchers. J. Richardson lasted till the seventh, when he was taken out in favor of R. Richardson. Hahn tossed a nice game for the Tanners as he set Elgin down with 7 hits. He fanned 5 and passed two.

Sargent of the Tanners led the batters with a double and 3 singles in 5 times up. Fleming topped Elgin with 2 singles in 4 trips to the plate.

R. Scott, Elgin centre fielder, made the outstanding fielding play of the game when he went back to deep centre to take Kelley's long drive.

The teams:

Elgin—E. Preston 2b, ss; Fleming, lf; G. Richardson, 3b; R. Richardson, ss, p; Grady, rf; J. Preston, c; J. Richardson, p, 2b; M. Scott, 1b; R. Scott, cf.

Tanners—C. Scriver, rf; Thompson, 2b; Ibey, c; Hahn, p; G. Scriver, ss; McCoy, lf; Kelley, cf; Sargent, 3b; M. Scriver, 1b.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Tanners .....201 375 1—19	9	2
Elgin .....000 211 0— 4	7	6

Umpires—Gillespie, plate; Herrington and Wellman, bases.

Roman Marcus Wins Alberta Derby

CALGARY, Sept. 1 (CP).—Roman Marcus won the seventh renewal of the Alberta Derby, a mile event for three-year-old Western Canada breds, at Chinook Park yesterday.

Approximately 4,000 enthusiasts saw the son of Marcus Aurelius and Lady Hammond carry the blue and gold colors of owner K. M. Leach of Calgary to victory.

Jockey Albert Bodiou piloted the winners to a head decision over J. V. Drumheller's Contributor.

Net value to the winner was $1,275, while the breeder, Mrs. L. S. Eckhardt, of Toronto, formerly Mrs. Steadman, of Calgary, received $125.

Soccer Notes

According to the laws of the association, no team or teams can forfeit a scheduled league game to Deloro and the local clubs must travel to Deloro to complete their routine otherwise they will forfeit their guarantee to the P. and D.F.A. Brinton and C.C.F. have a league game in Deloro; while Politicians have two games here with the C.G.E. to complete the competition.

The draw for the Duffus Injured Players cup resulted as follows: Brinton vs. C.C.F. Saturday, September 3rd; C.G.E. vs. Deloro on Saturday, September 10th, and final the following Saturday afternoon.

Tonight is the last evening game for the season when C.C.F. meets C.G.E. Referee D. Buchan. Kick off at 6.30.

The Peterborough and District Football Association is indebted to J. J. Duffus, M.P. who transferred the following donations over to the association for the purpose of obtaining goal nets for the teams in the city: Hugh Campbell, (Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., Ltd.); Morley Lyle (Canadian Canoe Company); E. B. Fowler, (Canadian Hood-Haggie); George Clarke (Canadian Nashua Paper Co.); Claude Rogers (Canadian Watercraft Ltd.); J. J. Turner, (J. J. Turner & Sons); John H. Vernor (Western Clock Co. Ltd.); E. W. Borbridge (B. F. Ackerman Son & Co.); R. Vernon Dawson (Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd.); and Harold R. Scott (H. R. Scott, Lad). At present, no nets can be obtained in Canada and the committee will endeavour to obtain the nets in England.

William Curtis was given permission to sign for the C.C.F. after being adjudged a free player through Corinthians becoming inactive.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ALL THE PETES NEED IS A little encouragement for their big ball game in Oshawa on Saturday. So with a few licks of the lead pencil on our tongue, a rattling shake of the noggin and a rush of poetry (sure, it is), we will burst forth into song. And if our pitchers, fielders and hitters can't do the trick themselves on the diamond, we feel assured our poetic prediction will leave the GM-men (if not our readers) shaken to the core! And here 'tis:

Once they were happy but now they're forlorn,
Their ball pennant hopes tattered and torn,
'Cause McNally did cause their batters to mourn
And look like kids in their 'teens.

Oh, their hopes were so bright two weeks back,
They felt they could lambaste our gees——
But those Murphyites are toughies,
Two games they have won in a breeze:

(altogether now)
Ooooh, they sail through the loop with the greatest of ease,
Those daring young Petes who hit twos and threes,
They glory in going on big batting sprees——
And Oshawa hopes are fading awayyyy! ! !

We Hope, We Hope, We Hope

BUT FOOLING ASIDE, the Petes should win this scrap Saturday in the aft and their third-game protest in the eve down Oshawa way. If they lose the latter, than the official rule book needs revising, as well as the umpiring situation. The Murphymen will be at full strength, except for Cy Whatley, and they'll be battling a bunch of bozos who have been on top of the heap too long. Getting kind of mildewed. Russ Kitchen may get the slab assignment for the Petes, with Jack Turner the probable starting choice for the homesters. Again a good gang of local followers will motor down the highway and raise jinks in the stand at Alexandra Park. Next game here will be Monday, Labor Day.

FROM 30 TO 40 PROSPECTIVE gridders are drilling these nights at the Exhibition Grounds, with a flock of railbirds giving 'em the double-o each e'en. Curly Krug is in charge of thepractises, with Bill Horrocks—boxing instructor—handing out the calisthenics with a liberal hand. He had the huskies hanging on the ropes last p.m. with p.t. paces that put the players in pretzel shape. And darned if they didn't even play a glorified game of leap-frog! This is not for publication, but we have a strong suspicion that big Gil Putnam, aided by Curly Krug, will do the coaching for the Orfuns this semester in senior O. R. F. U. competition. If we are wrong we will most humbly apologize, but we haven't had to say: "Oh, I say, awf'ly sorry, old chap!" since we stepped on a pug's pet corn in a downtown shopping rush late last spring. Generally, our celerity saves our servility.

Down Around The Gridiron

ORFUNS' OFFICERS HAVE BEEN plenty busy lately and the squad is fairly well lined up now. Dope available in a few days, they state, and our anxious public must bide a bit. Herb Hendry and Joe McNulty were on hand last p.m. but didn't practise, Herb 'cause he had a damaged finger, and Joe just because. The latter is quite a pukist, too. Joe Jakafby, big hurler of the Petes, has been training lately. Bill Irwin of Balmy Beach, classy inside wing whom Sarnia have been after, is coming here. The two Woodstock gees have been dropped, we hear. Work has commenced also on the grounds, and all will be hunky-dory for the locals early this month.

AFTER SPOTTING LIONS a 4-1 lead in thefirst of the midget lacrosse semi-finals, the Kinsmen crew upped and yanked out a 7-3 chuckle last gloamin' to win the round by an 8-7 score. And now meet Y's Men's in the finals, first one tonight at seven. An upset but the winners hit a four-goal splurge in the fourth frame to earn the win. The all-star O. L. A. midget team will be chosen by Rowan Chute tonight or tomorrow. Pete King was at an O. L. A. meeting in Toronto the other evening and discovered Brooklin were trying to get East York to release two players to them. Nothing was done at the time but they may work it early next week when another meeting is held in Toronto to arrange O. L. A. senior "B" playoffs—and no doubt the locals will argue heatedly. Those Brooklins are tough enough now without borrowing any stars from other squads. We'd advise the Petes to eat lots of spinach and let their beards grow—and don't forget to wear knuckle dusters these cool evenings under the gloves!

BILL JACKSON'S JUVENILE P. C. I. ballsters put up a dandy showing in Toronto yesterday, losing a 2-1 thriller to St. Mary's in the first of the O. B. A. playdowns. Next one will be here Saturday aft at three in Riverside, and the locals deserve a big crowd of supporters. In their first year of baseball, after the local City Loop game had declined for several seasons, the Students came through in good style but weren't given much chance of doing anything against a Toronto team. Yet they gave the Saints a terrific fight away from home yesterday and stand an even chance of winning the serial. 'Twas a hurling duel with Fowler of Toronto giving but two hits and fanning 10 while Foster of P. C. I. was reached for only seven safeties as he struck out nine, He got both hits, and Moorhead shone afield. Good stuff.

Only 36 Runs Scored!

LITTLE HARLEM WHOOPED it up last night after tying up the Southend Softball League final series with a 19-17 win over Maple Leafs. Yep, it was 19-17 and that's a softball score, not a war year. The lead changed hands seven times and fans had at least that many coniption fits, whilst the scorer was banging his head against the walls of a padded cell at a late hour last p.m.! A wet ball and a barrage of base-hits on both sides made for the boxcar number on the score sheet. Some pitchers also played. Next fray, the third, in this three-in-five affair is tonight at 6.30 in the Brinton Field, and another humdinger or something is likely.

Captain Ben Pine Plans To Retire After Classic Race In October

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Win, lose or draw, Captain Ben Pine, veteran of many such sailing duels, insists the series opening off Boston, October 9 for the International Fishermen's trophy will be his last.

On that date his Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud will meet the Canadian champion, Captain Angus Walters' big salt-banker Bluenose of Lunenburg, N.S.

If Captain Pine stands by what he says—and he usually does — it probably means the curtain will drop permanently on the most picturesque of blue water sports, for no one has appeared who has shown a disposition to carry on in his stead.

At considerable cost in time and money, Captain Pine has been largely responsible for the survival of the international classic during the past two decades.

The Thebaud was the last fishing schooner built in New England and with power stripping the fleet of its white wings, there seems little likelihood, unless the oil wells go dry, of another ever being launched.

The committee estimates approximately $50,000 will be required to stage the four out of seven series.

Moosonee, Ont., Sept. 1.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD Lester C. Essig of Chicago claimed today to have killed an 800-pound bear with three arrows on Twin Island in James Bay. The youth said two arrows fired from 60 feet hit the bear in the shoulder, and that one from 30 feet drove into the animal's heart.

To prove the story to the folks back home, the modern young Robin Hood is shipping the hide to Lane Teack High School in Chicago.

Chess Champion Can't Quit, He's In Too Deep

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 — (CP). — There are times in the life of Boris Bluminswhen the last thing in the world he want sto see is a chess board. Months can go by without his playing a game, and he doesn't miss it at all.

But when the 30-year-old Russian-born salesman does sit down at one of his rare tournament appearances, it's usuall ythe man on the opposite side of the board who has the regrets. His long lapses from competition haven't stopped him from holding the Canadian title two years in a row or from setting out this week after his third straight championship.

It's around tournament time, as a rule, that the slender young master gets to thinking of packing his chessman away for good. "Sometimes I feel like giving the whole thing up," he says, "and the only thing that keeps me in it now is that I'm in so deep I can't get out. I've got to keep up whatever prestige I've earned, and that means more competition."

But even that can't make him play between competitions, and so there are long stretches when he doesn't go near the chess table at all. Maybe enough to try out some new formations he's been reading about, but little more than that. And almost always with no one on the other side of the board.

The result is that Blumin usually is shaky, he says, at the start of a tournament after long inaction. Then he steadies down, and at the end, when the stain is telling on the other fellows, he's just hitting his peak.

The Canadian champion is strictly no "genius." HeH's picked up his chess over the last 14 years, mostly from books, after starting out as just a fair-to-middling player when he landed in Toronto from Russia 14 years ago.

Tigers Win 11 to 2 From Greyhounds

Tigers advanced into the Junior City Baseball League finals by defeating Greyhounds 11-2 in a sudden-death game. They now meet the Pirates in finals. Sanderson, Tigers' hurler, held his rivals to four hits and three walks as he fanned 10. Smith on the other mound allowed eight hits and six walks, while striking out seven. For the winners, W. Shea, Wade, and McDermott each had two hits; McDonald led the losers with two. Nice fielding was shown by Mortimer, T. Shea and Giardino. The teams:

Umpire—Quigley.

Kawartha Tennis

Men's singles advanced to the third round stage as the Kawartha Club tournament got under way on Tuesday evening. As a result of the first night's play Rolly Hull and Yvon DeGuise have won their way to the semi-final round, while Roy Tranter and Jack Kirkwood, ceded first and second respectively, have one more hurdle to leap before they reach this spot. Tranter has to play H. Salvadge and Kirkwood has to dispose of Jean Demarais. Here are the results of the matches so far played:

First Round—H. Salvadge defeated G. Broadley 6-1, 6-0; Jean Demarais defeated Jack Sullivan 6-1, 6-2.

Second Round— Roy Tranter defeated Don Emery 6-1, 6-2; H. Salvadge defeated Claire Sullivan 6-2, 6-1; Yvon DeGuise defeated Harold Wilson 6-1, 6-1; Dr. McGee defeated R. Halverson 5-7, 6-0, 6-2; Rolly Hull defeated Art King 6-2, 6-3; Orm Benson defeated Bert Blanchard 6-3, 6-4; Jean Demarais defeated Bob Maybee 6-2, 6-2; Jack Kirkwood defeated Jack Osborne 6-0, 6-1.

Third Round — Yvon DeGuise defeated Dr. MaGee 6-5, 5-6, 6-1; Rolly Hull defeated Orm Benson 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

No Mollycoddles With Roughriders This Year Says Confident Coach Backfield Has Been Revamped

REGINA, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Regina Roughriders, their backfield revamped and a sturdy line reinforced, are poised for what Saskatchewan folks believe will be the famous football club's biggest year. Riders have won the Western Canada title 12 times in the last 18 years.

With the opening Western Interprovincial Union game scheduled here Friday night against Edmonton, even Coach Dean Griffing, an admitted pessimist who seldom makes predictions, is confident.

"It's the spirit of the club I like," he said. "Two years ago we hit them and meant it. The result was a championship. Last year we were a bunch of molly-coddlers—and that includes me."

Roughriders won the western title in 1936, dethroning Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Dominion champions the previous year. Riders failed to reach the Union playoffs last year and Bombers regained the title.

5 New U.S. Imports

Five new men from United States and several youngsters from last year's western junior champions, Regina Dales, have bolstered the team. Riders have lost Ralph Pierce, fleet backfield ace, and Paul, Kirk, halfback. Pierce retired and Kirk has gone to Edmonton.

Howard (Hickpockets) Cleveland, ace of the Kansas State team a year ago, will take the quarterback job, do most of the punting and passing and run back punts.

Jim Lander, last year's quarterback, moves to blocking half, his old position with Kansas State. He will share the kicking with Cleveland. Bert Nelson, husky iron foundry workers, will plunge.

Most important line adition is Alec Shellog from Notre Dame University where he was a regular the past two years. He will play middle wing along with Bob Walker, veteran from South Dakota.

Little Harlem Wallops Leafs

Little Harlem deadlocked the Southend softball finals at 1-all by taking last night's slugging bee from the Leafs by a 19 to 17 count. Both teams had difficulty handling the ball on the slippery diamond but found the pitching very much to their liking ,a total of 39 base hits being registered off the offerings of Heffernan and Price, rival hurlers, which although not of championship calibre kept the fans in an uproar the lead changing hands no less than seven times.

Both teams countered three times in the initial innings and from then on it was a see saw battle. The Leafs finally scored six runs in the seventh to get a substantial lead, only to have Litle Harlem duplicate the feat in their half of the ninth to win the tuttle.

J. Connelly, Lazure and Ashmore with four hits apiece led the Leafs at bat all three having a homer each as did Holden. For Little Harlem Calladine had two triples, and two doubles, Price and Dennie a homer, triple and double each and F. Maloney three singles.

Despite the numerous miscues some neat defensive plays were made with Lazure, J. Connelly and Holden for the Leafs and Calladine, F. Maloney and McNabb especially prominent.

The teams:

Little Harlem: Price, p; Dennie, rf; Calladine, 1b; McNabb, 2b; J. Maloney, ss; Gray, c; G. Connelly, 3b; Tomkins, 3b; Conroy, lf; Hodgson, cf; G. Maloney, cf.

Leafs: C. Corbert, 3b; J. Connelly, 2b; J. Corbert, ss; Heffernan, p; Laure, 1b; Ashmore, c; Cartier, rf; Holden, cf; Kitchen, lf; Crary, lf.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Maple Leafs 350 100 620—17	21	7

Umpires—Coursey and Smith.

Tonight these two teams hook up at 6.30 p.m. in the Brinton Grounds in the third game of the series and another exciting tilt is looked for.

LATIN IS STABLE

The reason the Latin language is used in medicine is because of its unchangeableness. Also because it is an old language and the most universal.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

From the reports handed into us this morning it looks as if the Peterborough bowlers just about cleaned up all around this district in tournaments.

At Bowmanville—12 men's rinks entered with 3 coming from Peterborough, H. Freeman's rink taking first place and the Goodyear Tire Co.'s big trophy. We believe it is the first time this trophy has come to Peterborough. The rink was, B. Chesler, J. Fitzpatrick, L. Loftus and H. Freeman, skip.

At Brighton—Fifteen rinks entered, two coming from our club. J. McDonald's rink taking first place. On his rink were H. Taylor, V. Tully, T. Donaldson and J. McDonald, skip.

At Cannington — Twelve mixed rinks entered, three from our club. J. Cullen's rink came second and J. Kingsbury's rink third. The personnell of the rinks were: Mrs. N. Killingbeck, K. Sloane, Mrs. W. Hepburn and J. Cullen, skip; Mrs. H. McIlmoyle, G. Soulby, Mrs. J. Kingsbury and J. Kingsbury, skip.

At Peterborough — Eighteen pairs entered in the men's doubles competition. Three 10-end games were played with the folowing results:

H. Darling and A. Gillies, each a pullover sweater; J. Baird and E. Wall, each a pullover sweater; B. Jeffries and W. Jeffries, each a brush and comb set; F. Dawe and R. Martin, each an electric lamp.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world land speer record and "movie" boat driver, eclipsed Gar Wood's motorboat record at Locarno, Switzerland, one year ago today with an average speech of 125.795 miles per hour. He boosted it to 129.416 m.p.m. the following day. Captain George Eyston of England now holds the land record with 345.49 set last Saturday.

HOLLYWOOD

MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard and little David Lee are in the bungalow kneeling by the sink. They are whispering through a trap door to the others who have been putting one over on the management by sleeping in the garage.

You can learn from the dialogue that the band has flopped in a try-out and is breaking up.

On the third take, he is satisfied. "Cut! Print that one," he says.

Fred MacMurray comes off the set flexing his legs which are cramped from knelling so long.

We ask him if he was ever broke during his musician days.

"Was I?" he says, and laughs. "I remember one time in Chicago when four of us were so strapped we had nothing to eat but pancake flour. Then one of the boys was lucky enough to get a case of guava jelly from an uncle in Hawaii.

"We lived on that and pancakes for a whole week."

✧ ✧ ✧

An hour later, at Twentieth Century-Fox, we are watching Director John Ford line up a scene in a hotel room in Alexandria, Egypt.

The picture is "Four Men and a Prayer". It is a melodrama about four sons who band together to avenge the murder of their father. David Niven, George Sanders, William Henry and Richard Greene are the sons.

In this particular scene, they are to confront Berton Churchill, an arms manufacturer, whom they suspect of the crime. To make the situation more dramatic, she is the Loretta Young, the sweetheart of Greene.

Loretta and the other principals are standing around waiting for the scene to be lined up.

On movie sets, they refer to the stand-ins as the second team.

So, as the lights go on, the stand-ins take their places where the stars later will play the scene.

As their title implies all that stand-ins have to do is stand while the camerman lines up the lighting for the shot.

But, to-day, these suddenly start speaking the lines. Loretta looks up in amazement, so do all the actors.

Oblivious to the sensation they are creating the stand-ins play the scene right through to the finish— and without once blowing up in a line.

By this time, Ford is grinning and the stars are bursting with questions.

Some of them won't know until they read this how it happened. Ford framed the gag with the stand-ins the night before. A director's trick to keep things lively on the set.

✧ ✧ ✧

Don't know any Hollywood player mixed up in a stranger business venture than the one Buddy Ebsen plans. Buddy's father runs a dancing school in Orlando, Fla. But, in his spare time, he has developed a formula to keep sand fleas from coming through screen doors. Buddy will back him in its manufacture.

This is the first time we ever saw this particular gag used, but a certain amount of clowning goes on on every set. It helps keep the troupe in good humor.

For instance, on the next set we visit, "Alexander's Ragtime Band". Camerman Peverell Marley has pasted two newspapers pictures of Alice Faye on the camera. They are what is known in the trade as "leg art." One is captioned "Symmetry of Limbs Enhances Her Charms".

In the picture, so far, Alice is wearing the long skirts of 1916 and the contrast is good for a laugh.

You also notice that Director Henry King has a pair of miniature boxing gloves suspended from his lapel.

Earlier in the film, he was fighting a severe cold and Alice Faye gave them to him as a gag.

HOLLYWOOD.—In one way at least, Kay Francis and her German baron showed Hollywood something new in courtships. Most of their notes to each other were written in shorthand. The pair discovered their mutual accomplishment on the day they met at Dorothy Di Frasso's party, and Baron Barnekow's first dinner invitation to Kay came in the form of a note written in shorthand. Kay, once a private secretary, replied in kind and the two fell into the habit of communicating in this way.

The unluckiest man in Hollywood will get a break at last. Duncan Renaldo, who made a hit in "Trader Horn" only to have an avalanche of marital and citizenship troubles, cut short his screen career, is working at Paramount in "Tropic Holiday." He believes the role will mean the turn in his fortune, says he found many loyal friends in his adversity.

If the estate of late Harry Houdini will agree, M. G. M. wants to use three of his tricks in "Snug Harbor": The handcuff escape, ditto from a packing box and from the bottom of a lake while bound with chains. In the film, George Givot would perform the feats.

Plan probably will draw protest from the society of magicians as it is proposed to explain the tricks.

Attempt is being made to persuade Cecil B. De Mille to exhibit his art collection for charity. The Paramount Producer - director owns $300,000 worth of paintings and camera studies (insurance company appraisals) and has a collection of historic motion picture stills valued at another $147-000.

The penguin in Shirley Temple's "Little Miss Broadway" wears a tuxedo in one scene of the film. Which was responsible for the funniest studio memo of the week:

"Please have the penguin at the wardrobe department at 2 p.m. for a costume fitting."

La Hepburn is a model of consideration since she went to work at Columbia, they say. But she still don't relish news photographers. Her classic answer to one who cornered her was this:

"I get $5,000 a week for posing for pictures."

Don't know if they are authorized, but offers being made to Hollywood pilots to fly in the Chinese war zone top even movie salaries. Some of the boys report inducements amounting to $1,000 in cash, transportation, $1,200 a month and a bonus of $1,000 for every enemy aeroplane brought down. William Wellman, directing Paramount's "Men With Wings," has just put 20 pilots under contract just to be sure they won't be lured.

In a recent interview, Freddie Bartholomew told about owning a printing press and about earning money running off cards for his Hollywood friends. The story was a boomerang, for now the fans are swamping him with orders and are enclosing money to pay the charges. The studio is taking over and is sending the cash back.

George Raft tells us of another experience with fans. He is building a new home and two girls came up and put their footprints in the wet cement of the sidewalk. He was burned up at first and determined to put in new blocks. Now he has decided to let the prints remain.

Few stars will admit curiosity about meeting other celebs. Joan Crawford is an exception. She was as eager as a high school girl to meet Greta Garbo. And the other day, in all the rain, she was planning to go to the Twentieth Century-Fox studio so George Murphy could introduce her to Shirley Temple.

Bowel Complaints of the Children

During the hot summer months most children are subject to diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera infantum or some other bowel trouble.

All mothers should use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on the first sign of any looseness of the bowels.

"Dr. Fowler's" is an old and tried remedy. It has been used by thousands of Canadian mothers for over 90 years. Do not experiment with your child's health by using some new and untried remedy.

Get "Dr. Fowler's" and feel safe.

THE AVERAGE MOVIE-GOER SPEAKS HIS MIND...

IT'S HARD for a fellow like me who thinks apple pie is one of nature's greatest gifts to man to believe that there are folks who honestly don't like it at all.

On the other hand, I can't abide liver and bacon — though I know it's highly regarded by many.

We all have our likes and our dislikes. We're all different — thanks be! A dull world it would be if we weren't.

That's why I say that the most remarkable thing about motion pictures is that they hit such a high average of pleasure-giving.

Take any individual picture and you'll find that most people who see it will get a lot of enjoyment out of it.

Not all, naturally. For example, I think a certain star is tops — while, to hear the way my next-door neighbor goes on about her, you'd think she wasn't good enough to be an "extra".

Or my wife sees a picture during the afternoon and raves about it at dinner. Maybe son and I take it in that evening — and come home feeling that Mother is losing her judgment. And there you are. It's the apple pie situation all over again.

But, taking them all together, I figure that the "movies" give more pleasure to more people at a lot less cost than most anything the mind of man was ever responsible for — and have done the human race more downright good than all the medicines concocted since creation.

And I'll say this: The times when I've been disappointed in a picture have been a lot fewer than the other times when I've gone to see one I wasn't especially excited about in advance and been mighty glad I did.

Sure, I criticize the pictures. I pay my money and that's my right. As a matter of fact, I kind of figure that it's the criticism of average folks like me that's largely responsible for the pictures getting better and better all the time.

* * * *

Through the years the motion picture has given its public countless hours of entertainment, countless hours of escape from harsh reality. It has taken millions away from trouble and sorrow, lightening their burdens and brightening their lives . . . making the world a better, happier place to live in.

ST. MARY'S JUVENILES DEFEAT COLLEGIATE 2-1 IN FIRST GAME

Terry's Giants Split With Pirates As Pennant Hope Fades; Sox Whitewash Senators 7-0

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The fanning bee was in full blast. The subject under discussion was the year's hard luck champion—the manager who's been taking it on the chine the most from Old Man Jinx and still sticking.

Jimmy Dykes, the big cigar man and hero of Chicago's riddled White Sox, was mentioned. So was Will the Terrible Terry, whose Hubbellless Giants, after yesterday's doubleheader split with Pirates, now seem definitely out of the National League pennant race.

But nearly all hands were willing to admit none was in the same league with Casey Stengel in this respect, that not one pilot had a weaker lot to start with, ran into more hospital trouble, and still was in their punching.

Sox Take Senators 7-0.

Dykes and his Sox, of course, were counted out last spring when Luke Appling broke a leg. Their best to date is the American League's sixth place, despite occasional flashes, like the four-hitter Johnny Whitehead pitched to top the Senators 7-0 yesterday.

Everyone knows Terry's troubles: Hubbell's left arm on the shelf; Jojo Moore out for some time with an injured leg; Catcher Harry Danning sidelined with a kidney ailment, and Prince Hal Schumacher with a sore shoulder. Still the Giants are in second place, although 6½ games back on the Pirates. The New Yorkers took the opener yesterday 6-5, on a run in the ninth, but then the Bucs banged out 16 hits for a 12-3 nightcap win.

Cubs Miss Again.

One of the larger reasons the Giants hang on, however, is because Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds get as jittery when they come within shouting distance. Yesterday the Cubs had another chance to climb into the runner-up spot, but instead they fell apart in the ninth inning, lost to Stengel's Bees 6-4, and dropped to fourth place.

This left the Bees two games over the .500 mark, in fifth place, and only 4½ games out of the first division. The Reds trounced Brooklyn Dodgers 9-3 in a night tilt behind the eight-hit flinging of Red Barrett in his major league starting debut to take third place from Chicago by half a game.

Thus, it is conceivable that Stengel's aging and ailing Athletes may yet wind up in the money. Casey, to begin with, had a minus quantity so far as power is concerned. Then Gene Moore, one of the abler hitters, went out for the year with an ailing leg; Debds Garms, promising recruit, has been on the sidelines off and on; Stengel has had to shift three men around on first and third bases all year; Al Lopez, No. 1 catcher, was laid up for weeks with a hand injury.

Tigers Take Yanks 12-6.

Casey's chief heritage from Will McKechnie was pitchers. But Deacon Danny MacFayden, the major bequest, broke a finger and was out for nearly six weeks, and Milt Shoffner, one of the cooler and more capable hands, had a surgeon working on his insides.

Yesterday's American League headliner saw the Tigers trounce the Yankees 12-6, with Hank Greenberg hitting homer No. 46 to remain in front of Babe Ruth's 1927 record pace. Ken Keltner's two homers led the Indians to an 8-6 win over the Athletics, and Boston Red Sox knocked off St. Louis Browns 6-3.

St. Louis Cardinals came through in the late innings twice to flail the Phillies 2-1 and 7-6.

On His Game

Playing a great game in every round, Stan Horne, ABOVE, of Ottawa, one of Canada's outstanding golfers, led home all but one of a classy field of U.S. pros in the $3,000 Lake Placid open, to take second place and $500. Gene Sarazen was the winner with a 281 total for the 72-hole route. Horne posted a 283.

Tweed Captures Cooke Cup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Sept. 1—Tweed softball team were victorious in the replayed tie with Havelock at Marmora on Wednesday winning the J. R. Cooke cup with the score of 7-2. The nine innings game was finished within ninety minutes, both teams playing keenly.

Features of the game were a homer by Mathison of Havelock in the sixth and a similar feat by Prevost of Tweed in the seventh. J. McInroy umpired at the plate with Eugene Reynolds doing duty on bases. Score by innings:

Havelock ..... 000 101 000—2

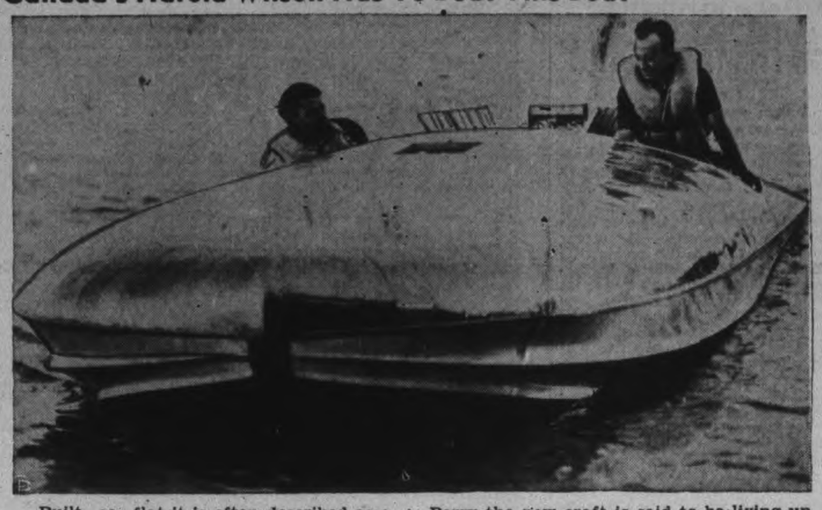
Canada's Harold Wilson Has To Beat This Boat



Built so flat it is often described as a "pancake on the water," Notre Dame, with which H. Mendelson will defend the Gold Cup in annual Labor Day motorboat races at Detroit, is seen about to start a trial spin on the St. Clair river. Designed by Clell Perry the new craft is said to be living up to expectations and Mendelson plans to drive it in quest of other honors. In the Gold Cup races opposition will be furnished by Harold Wilson of Canada and his Miss Canada III.

Toronto Girls Tie Ottawa In First Game

OTTAWA, Sept. 1 (C.P.).—Toronto Gerrards and Ottawa Montagnards tied 10 to 10 here last night in the first game of their best-of-three series in the Provincial Ladies' Softball playdown.

On the short end of the score from the first inning, Gerrards shoved across two runs in the ninth to tie it up. The visitors scored eight runs in the tenth inning, but Umpire John Northey of Toronto called the game on account of darkness with two out.

Monties scored five runs in the third to take a 9 to 6 lead and drive Madge Brown from the Toronto mound. Bea Hughey replaced her and allowed only one run. Doris Ward started for Monties, but was replaced in the ninth by Lois Hudson, Lil Brennan and Bea Hughey hit two homers each for Toronto, while Olive Harrison and Dot Harris had one each for Monties.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Sept. 1 (C.P. Cable).—Close of play scores in English cricket matches started Wednesday follow:

George St. Buzzers Defeat Majors 12-9

In an exhibition grudge softball game at the Oval on Tuesday night, the George St. Buzzers took a 12-9 win over George St. Majors. The Buzzers, Church Loop champions, had previously beaten their church rivals two games. Akers, the losing hurler, was wild and walked nine; while Rennie twirled nice ball for the winners. Gatfield hit a homer. Nifty fielding was shown by Dunkerley, Weir and Ash. The teams:

Roseneath Loses To Bethany, 7-3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 1.—Bethany defeated Roseneath last night by a 7-3 score in the first round series of the O.B.B.A. intermediate "C" playdowns. It was a neat game of ball with both hurlers stingy with their hits and fanning a number. Smoke struck out 10 and gave eight hits, while McGill of Bethany fanned nine and held his rivals to six bingles. The fielding was good and the winners got the nod on timely clouting. Staples and Scriver stood out in this contest. The teams:

Newark Bears Defeat Syracuse 7-0

TORONTO, Sept. 1—(CP)—While the champion Newark Bears have approached the point where they can assure themselves of no worse than a tie for the International League pennant tonight, Syracuse Chiefs find Rochester Red Wings right on their necks in their battle for runner-up honors.

The Bears put the crusher on the Chiefs, 7-0, last night behind the six-hit pitching of Joe Beggs, and moved 14½ games in front of the contenders with 16 games to go for each team. A Newark victory over the Baltimore Orioles, combined with a Syracuse defeat by Jersey City tonight, would make it impossible for the Chiefs, the Lone team left in the race, to beat out the Bears since the champions have had one game cancelled.

Beggs was in fine form as he scored his third straight victory. He walked none and fanned seven while his mates were belting Long Johnny Gee and George Miner for 13 hits. Buddy Rosar and Merrill may set the pace with three hits each as every man in the Bears' lineup got at least one safety.

Meanwhile the Wings bowled over Montreal Royal 6-4 and drew within 1½ games of the Chiefs. The Jersey City-Baltimore tilt, the only other game on the schedule, was postponed because of threatening weather. Buffalo and Toronto had an open date.

The Wings had to call on Si Johnson for relief work in the ninth inning before they were able to check a Montreal uprising. Trailing 6-1 going into the final frame, the Royals scored three runs on three hits, a walk and an error before Johnson retired the side. Johnny Hopp's three-run homer in the third inning was the big blow for the Red Wings.

Pitchers Of Both Teams Give Splendid Exhibitions Turning Back Many At Plate

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—St. Mary's Boys Club, Toronto, defeated Peterborough Collegiate of Peterborough 2-1 here last night in the first game of a best-of-three series in Ontario Baseball Association juvenile playdowns. The second game will be played in Peterborough Saturday, the third, if necessary, on neutral territory on a date yet to be set.

The pitchers of both teams starred throughout the close game. Fowler, for St. Mary's, held Peterborough to two hits and struck out 10 opposing batsmen. He also aided his own cause by hammering two solid hits.

For the visitors, Foster hurled seven-hit ball, weakening only in the fourth and fifth innings when Toronto scored both its runs. Foster also obtained his teams only hits, two hard singles.

Excellent support helped Fowler to turn in his victory in the first round of the O.B.A. playdowns. Stenoff, at left field, and Gresko, in right, performed well for the St. Mary's team. Moorhead, Peterborough's first baseman, was best for the Eastern Ontario juveniles.

Oshawa Defeats Columbus Boys 8 to 3 in First of Series

OSHAWA, Sept. 1.—Behind the four-hit pitching of Ralph (Highpockets) McCabe, Oshawa Juniors defeated Columbus Boys of Toronto, 8 to 3, in the first game of the second round O.B.A. playoffs at Alexandra Park last night. The game was a close affair until the eighth frame, which was played in a steady downpour of rain, when the Oshawa squad tallied four times to put the issue beyond doubt. While McCabe allowed but four hits and struck out eleven, his teammates were guilty of eight miscues to keep the losers strictly in the running. Walker, on the mound for Columbus, was touched for nine hits, while the visitors also were lax defensively, chalking up seven errors. Walker also hurt his own cause by handing out eight free passes, although he struck out eleven.

Hartnett Displays Injured Thumbs

Manager and Catcher Gabby Hartnett of Chicago Cubs exhibits his bandaged thumb to Stan Hack the Cubs' all-star third baseman. The popular Chicago leader suffered a fracture of his digit when struck by a foul tip and is directing his men from the bench for a couple of weeks. His absence from active participation is a big handicap to the Cubs as the National League pennant race enters the stretch drive.

Suggest Police Be Umpires In Strike Cases

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP).—Police should act as umpires and not strike-breakers in strikes, Director Otto P. Higgins of the Kansas City, Mo., police force declared in an address prepared for delivery today to closing sessions of the International Police Congress.

Higgins told policemen from Canada and the United States of his experience in handling more than 200 strikes of various kinds during the past three years "without a fatality or serious injury."

"When a strike breaks, we call in union heads and explain the rights of the union, the employer and the public," Higgins explained. "They always agree with us, for every union leader will agree he does not want bloodshed or destruction.

"We call the employer in and lay down the same formula. Additionally we tell him he cannot use armed guards, except within his property.

"We keep on the up and up with both sides, and have their confidence and respect. We try to conduct ourselves the same towards labor as management.

"Officers on strike duty are never permitted to carry clubs. There is the great temptation to swing it on someone's head that is many times the match that lights the conflagration.

Arms Only Last Resort.

"I think we are all agreed that the use of firearms against a riotous mob should only be a last resort, and that the chief weapons of the police in dealing with these mobs should still be the nightstick and an adequate amount of tear gas," Chief Smith declared.

He opposed all officers being armed, and urged only a dozen marksmen be kept in reserve as a last resort to bring down active ringleaders attacking the police.

Chief Smith urged police to have their own motion picture cameramen take pictures of disorders as evidence.

Tough Muggs

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Sept. 1 (A.P.). — The Police Department bought a new camera to take pictures for their Rogue's Gallery. "Mugging" six prisoners with the new equipment broke the camera. Policemen wailed about the toughness of their prisoners—and sent the camera back to the factory for repairs.

Escapes Bullets

H. L. Wood, of Winfield, Kansas, chief pilot of a huge Chinese-American airliner, who escaped with his life, as Japanese fighting airplanes brought his ship to earth, near Macao. Wood was flying a ship-load of passengers from Hong Kong to Wushow, when the Japs attacked. According to his dispatch to the China National Aviation Corporations, owners of the airplane, 12 passengers, the copilot ,and steward, were all killed by Japanese machine gun fire. Only two others beside himself, escaped.

jury system—whereby these juries inspect buildings and poss on the case against a defendant before he goes on trial—Mr. Common said the system had its merits but its defects were plentiful.

A Safety Valve.

"I thing the Grand Juries may have outlived their usefulness in some instances," Mr. Commons said. "I will not say in general."

The Grand Jury system acted as a safety valve on prosecutions which may have been maliciously started or started without proper groundwork, he added. The jury could refuse to return a true bill against a defendant, thereby voiding the case.

Present system of handling assessment notices should be changed, the assessors decided in approving a Timmins proposal. The group wished the Government to amend the present Act requiring notices to non-residents be mailed by ordinary post and sent to residents by registered mail when they are not delivered by hand. Supporters of the resolution argued the registered letter method was too expensive and mailed notices should go by ordinary post.

The change would apply only to cities and towns, municipal experts explained, because hand delivery is the general rule in rural areas.

Another assessment resolution approved would allow a refund of a person's taxes when the party ceases business after paying business tax for the full year in the same year as he is assessed. Harry Webster, Windsor assessor, sponsored the move. At present, no refund is permissible.

Patrick Conroy Dies Suddenly At His Old Home

A man who reached the age of 85 and yet who never grew old, died suddenly Wednesday night. He was Patrick Conroy, who lived on Lot 32, Concession 8, Otonabee Township.

For years Patrick Conroy has amazed people by his immense vitality. He worked every day in the week, rose early in the morning. He tilled his soil, he cultivated, he harvested the land that he loved, the land on which he had lived ever since his birth. He was known far and wide as a good farmer, a man who loved his land. His death at his residence on Wednesday evening was tragically sudden, for he had been in Peterborough on Monday and was in good health.

He lived all his life on the same farm in Otonabee, caring for its soil as only a man who holds it in deep reverence can. The home in which he lived was only a stone's throw from that in which he was born. He was the son of the late John Conroy and Elizabeth McGrath, was born on March 15, 1853.

Widely known throughout this community, he was a member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and of the Holy Name Society of that church.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Helen Heffernan; two sons, James Conroy of Cranbrook, B.C., and John of Otonabee; and four daughters, Mrs. Timothy Garvey, Mrs. Loretta Allen, and Mrs. Thomas O'Connor of Peterborough, and Mrs. Gregory Thomas of Victoria, B.C; also two brothers, James and Alex Conroy of Peterborough; and four sisters, Mrs. Catherine Flaherty, Mrs. Bridget Quinlan, Mrs. Brisbois, and Mrs. Collins, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning at 8.20 o'clock daylight time from the family residence to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Enlistments in Britain's Royal Air Force in one week were 524.

Wall Collapses As New York Firemen Fight Fire

Here is a view of the spectacular three-alarm fire which caused nearly $100,000 loss and sent a flood of fire apparatus to New York city's crowded lower East Side. The photo was made a moment after the entire front wall of a wool-jammed warehouse collapsed. Quick work on the part of firemen held the injuries down to one.

W.M.S. In Charge Hastings Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 1—A most impressive service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. Due to the absence of the Rev. D. K. Perrie, the service was in chargeof the members of the W.M.S. The guest speaker, Mrs. A. G. Thompson of Campbellford, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S., gave a most challenging address on "Courage". The scripture reading was taken by Mrs. J. A. OBITUARY

MARY JANE CREALOCK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 1.—The funeral of the late Mary Jane Crealock who died in Campbellford on Tuesday was held Thursday afternoon, September 1. The deceased who was in her eighty-sixth year died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. V. Marks, Grand Road, following a heart attack. Born near Brighton she spent the greater part of her life at Morganston coming to Campbellford about ten years ago. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crealock and a member of the United Church here. The funeral was held from Bennett's funeral home, Frank street, and following services at Norham Church interment was made at Stone cemetery.

American beauty parlor furnishings may be introduced into Paris.

TOO OLD AT FIFTY?

There are far too many men and women in the forties and fifties who think they're "beyond" enjoying work or play. What a mistake! Just when you're old enough to know how to enjoy yourself, to give up because sluggishness and general unfitness make you feel "not up to it"!

Take a look at wealthier people. Do they give in to middle-age? Not likely! They try to keep themselves in the pink of condition until advanced old age; bodies young, minds alert.

How do they manage it? Many by taking the waters at famous Spas. But I can't afford to go to Spas, you'll say. You don't have to, now. Similar benefits of Spa waters can come to you! The combination of the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fynnon Salt gives you remedial effect similar to that which wealthy people go miles to get from Spa waters. "Salts of the Earth" break up the painfully pronged Uric Acid crystals—aid in removing poisons from your body—help stimulate the liver to do its job thoroughly again.

Your regular morning ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water will help drive Rheumatic pains from your joints. Feel 3t at fifty. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt 75c at all druggists'. ad

Toronto Needs 80,000 Tons Coal For Relief

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—In order to provide assistance for the unemployed during the coming winter, Welfare Commissioner A. W. Laver estimated yesterday it would be necessary for the city to purchase 80,000 tons of fuel. A total of 74,024 tons of fuel of all types had been purchased by the city for relief purposes during the winter season last year, and the cost had been more than $700,000. Board of Control, on motion of Controller Dr. F. J. Conboy, postponed action with regard to the purchase of the fuel necessary for this winter. Additional information was required, Dr. Conboy said, before he would vote for such a large expenditure.

In five weeks 2.725 have enlisted in Britain's Royal Air Force.

Windsor Gets $60 Back Of $20,000,000 Relief In 9 Years

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 1. PAYMENT OF $60 on account by a Windsor woman who received welfare aid until recently was acknowledged today by welfare administrator Charles G. Hays. Last week Hays announced that although approximately $20,000,000 has been distributed in relief during the past nine years, only one repayment—the sum of $60—had been made.

"This woman who paid the $60, who incidentally is not in very good health, came to my office and a little money had come to her from an estate so that she would not have to remain on welfare," Hays said.

Doom Prophets Miss "End Of the World"

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1—(AP)—The "End of the World" played to a capacity house at the Franklin Institutes Fels Planetarium Tuesday, but no genuine prophet of doom saw it.

Walter Saunders, a white-haired Danbury, Conn, hat maker, who has never predicted doomsday but believes it near watched the spectacle and pronounced it a flop.

None of the half-dozen men, who have set definite dates for the supercalamity and whom the planetarium invited, turned up.

The show depicted through a light projector sound effects, how the world may end if the sun cools off or grows hotter or if the moon explodes.

In the scientists conception of the latter event "the man in the moon" swelled up like a ballon and blew his head off with a flash. Earthlings screamed, and there were deafening thunderstorms, complete with lightning.

Saunders was unimpressed. "It was rather ridiculous," he said and not like it really will be."

The mild-appearing religious sect leader announced that the end of the world "may come any time."

Robert Reidt, who alarmed Long Island in 1925 by designating the end of the world for Feb. 6, wrote from New Orleans that it was "financially impossible "to make the trip. He sold all his belongings 13 years ago in preparation for the end of everything.

Company Requests Writ Of Restraint

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Suit was filed in Queen's County Court by the Pepsi-Cola Company against the Coca-Cola Company, asking for a restraining order to enjoin the Coca-Cola Company from interfering with the Pepsi-Cola Company, its subsidiaries and licensees throughout the United States.

Simultaneously with the filing of this bill of complaint against the Coca-Cola Company, the Pepsi-Cola Company stated a petition had been filed in the U.S. Patent Office in Washington by the Pepsi-Cola Company attacking the validity of the Coca-Cola trade-mark.

The petition further states that the names "Coca" and "Cola" are both descriptive names, are public property and, therefore, cannot be used exclusively by the Coca-Cola Company.

Police Commission To Deal With Deroche Report At Meeting On September 14

Police Commission at the regular monthly meeting held on Wednesday afternoon decided they would not deal with the report from Judge Deroche on the recent police inquiry until it has been received by the City Council at the regular meeting next Tuesday night. Judge Smoke stated a special meeting would be called on September 14 to consider the contents of the report and to decide whether the findings warrant any action by the Board.

The report was made public a short time ago when the Legal Committee of the City Council read the report and passed it along to the Council without any resolution or comment, and indications are the report will sail smoothly through the hands of the Council to get final consideration from the Police Commission.

Confidence in Force.

A vote of confidence in Chief Constable Samuel Newhall and his staff of police officers was contained in a letter received by the Commission from the officers and executive of the Police Association of Ontario which met at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on August 17. The letter was received without comment.

The wording of the resolution as set forth in the letter and passed unanimously was: "That the officers and executive of this Association being aware of the charges preferred against Chief Newhall and his staff of the force of the City of Peterborough and reading the reports in the public press desire to put on record a vote of confidence in the honesty, integrity and capability of Chief Constable Newhall and his staff and also desire to express their appreciation of the co-operation and assistance given by the Police Department of the City of Peterborough during the tenure of office of the present Chief as head of the Peterborough Force," and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Simon R. Armstrong, secretary of the Police Commission for presentation to that Honourable Body.

Maintaining Cars.

Passing the accounts Judge Smoke remarked that the expense of maintaining the motorcycle and the two police cars appears to be excessive during the month of July when the total bill for gas and repairs was $260. A checkup of the August accounts shows the sum to be less than $100 for that month.

A request from a junk dealer in Toronto for a licence to purchase second-hand goods from house to house and ship them to Toronto without setting up any place of business here was refused. "The city is not big enough to accommodate any more such dealers, and besides a few men are keeping off relief now by engaging in this work," remarked Mayor Hamilton. The by-law provides that all dealers must keep a list of goods purchased to aid police in locating stolen articles and a man carting the goods to Toronto immediately would not be in a position to give this information.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall was called in and asked by Judge Smoke to investigate charges made by Alderman G. N. Gordon that several store owners in the city and holders of eating-house licences were abusing the privileges, by selling chewing tobacco, meat, groceries, and magazines on Sunday.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

RESUME USUAL CLOSING

The 4 p.m. closing hours for lawyers' offices in the city ended Wednesday, another period to summer.

OPEN UNTIL TEN O'CLOCK.

Starting Friday, September 1, the reading room of the Library will be open till 10 p.m., and the stock room till 9 p.m.

SUMMER TIME ENDS.

Peterborough's period of summer time ends at midnight Labor Day when the city's clocks will be turned back one hour for Tuesday morning.

CHANGE IN STAFF

A change in the staff was made at Wednesday's meeting of the Public Utilities Commission when the board appointed Miss M. Lundy to take the place of Miss M. Donaldson, whose resignation was received.

RELIEF BILL DECLINES

Relief Officer A. G. Metheral informed the Examiner today that the city's relief bill for August would be less than July's, but still exceeded the expenditure during August of 1937.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings as reported today for the past week showed an increase over the corresponding week one year ago. For the week ending today clearings totalled $536,710 and for the same week a year ago $515,187.

VISITED HATCHERY.

When an Examiner reporter drove into the property at Deer Lake, where the government's fish hatchery is being constructed, he met Alex E. Elliott, M.L.A., Max J. Swanston and E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, on their way out.

CUSTOMS RETURNS UP

Customs returns rose in August nearly $20,000 over July's total to reach a peak of $172,377.33, down $62,000 from the same month last year. Import duties were $71,062.35 last month, excise tax amounted to $101,203.72, and sundry collections totalled $111.25.

STOVE BADLY NEEDED.

A woman and her young nephew are sadly in need of a stove. They have been cooking outside all summer but now with fall weather they find it difficult and would like to get a stove which they can cook with and also heat their small home. Anyone having a stove if they will phone 830 they will see that it is called for.

FIVE LUNGE CAUGHT

Lunge are biting at the south end of the city now. On Wednesday three fishermen bagged five lunge at the second bridge, near Nichol's Boat Livery. E. Sturgeon, F. MacFarline, and B. O'Dette landed the five, largest of which weighed eight pounds, smallest three and a half pounds. All were caught within two hours.

TRAFFIC HEAVY

A baker driving from Bewdley to Peterborough this morning early reports that traffic was at least three times heavier than normal and the majority of the vehicles bore local license plates. He says all were filled to capacity with passengers bound for the Toronto Exhibition.

LAKEFIELD DIRECTORS MEET

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, returned from Belleville Wednesday evening, where he assisted in the judging of the junior farmers' section of the fair that is being held this week. He went on to Lakefield where he sat in with the directors of the village fair especially in regard to the program for the boys' calf club.

LUCK IGNORED THEM

In the cleaning up the Exhibition Park last week some wads of tickets on the four cars given away by the Board were found, indicating that some persons had probably considered themselves well fortified in the gamble with chance. But, at that, luck plays no favorites, and one ticket is even better than one thousand if it happens to be the right one.

SAFE DOOR BROKEN

On Monday night of this week the steel handle of the large safe in Purity Bakeries on Dublin street was smashed, the guilty person evidently attempting to break in being frightened away by the night shift employees. Last night two men seeking a meal were turned away and an hour later were noticed entering the back door. When accosted by one of the men and asked if they were hungry the two turned and fled.

HAY AT CITY HALL

A bale of hay standing at the door which leads to the Mayor's office and the City Council chamber attracted the attention of many people this morning. Enquiries revealed the hay was not for members of the City Council but for guinea pigs used in the Provincial laboratory on the top floor of the City Hall. They eat a great deal of hay, said Dr. Waite.

HONESTY PAYS.

Miss Eillen Haggart of Toronto age 10, who is visiting her aunt Mrs. Vandenburg at 177 Sherbrooke Street found a cheque for $142.50 lying on the street Thursday. This morning she reported to the police station and waited there while police notified the owner. The man on arriving handed the little girl a two dollar bill as a reward. He said another cheque could have been obtained but the time and bother saved by the girl's honesty was well worth two dollars to him.

TAKE NO. 7 HIGHWAY

Local residents returning from the Toronto Exhibition last night report the traffic was a nightmare particularly from Toronto to Oshawa. Milk trucks and transports which crept up the hills at speeds as low as five miles an hour, slowed down long lines of cars in their wake. Many of the people who were caught in these slow moving lines said today a motorist would be farther ahead to take the No. 7 Highway through Lindsay to Yonge Street in Toronto.

Jail Man For Beating Expectant Mother

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Basil O'Donnell, 28, of Toronto, was arrested last night on a charge of assault and causing bodily harm in connection with injuries suffered by his wife, an expectant mother, who is in hospital in serious condition.

Police said that Mrs. O'Donnell, 27-year-old mother of three children, was beaten and kicked. Doctors told police the woman's body was marked from the shoulders to her limbs. They said she also suffered abdominal injuries. Mrs. O'Donnell's upper lip was so swollen it was difficult to make a statement to police.

Six Feet High

When Jack Masters, 10 Langton street, planted these flowers in the spring he thought he was going to have a pretty little bunch of lilies growing at his doorstep. Imagine his astonishment when they turned out to be cannas, soaring to a height of 6 feet 6 inches. His daughters, Mary and Charlotte, seen in this picture, are wondering whether the stocks will keep climbing like Jack the Giant Killer's bean stock. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Five Are Injured In Car Crash Near Newcastle

Five residents of this city miraculously escaped serious injury one mile west of Newcastle on No. 2 Highway Wednesday night when their car went into a spin on the wet pavement and toppled sideways into a six-foot ditch on the south side of the road.

Mrs. A. A Fowler who was sitting in the back seat with her husband and their 26 months old grandson, received the most serious injuries. She was practically unconscious when taken from the car and to a doctor at Newcastle but was able to proceed to her home. She will be confined to bed for several days, and is suffering from shock and body bruises. Mr. Fowler, well known optometrist, had bruises and cuts on his right leg but was at work this morning. The baby was cut on the face by flying glass but not seriously. Mr. and Mrs. Harley Weir who were in the front seat escaped with a few bruises. The car however was almost wrecked.

The party of five left Peterborough early in the evening to visit Toronto where Mrs. Fowler, her daughter, Mrs. Weir and the baby, 26 months old Bobby Weir intended to spend three days with relatives. Just outside of Newcastle in a drizzling rain the car dropped off the highway to a soft shoulder and when Harley Weir brought it back to the paved portion, he believes he must have stepped on the brake, for the car went into a spin on the wet pavement and plunged into the south ditch. The back of the car was stoved in by the crash into the ditch.

Bombproof Shelters Offered Londoners At $100—15c Week

London, Sept. 1.

AIR RAID SHELTERS on the hire purchase system at 15 cents a week are being provided for tentants in a housing estate at North Harrow, Middlesex.

Built of concrete the shelters cost $100 an dare disguised as rockeries. Building societies which advance the money for the purpose of the houses, have agreed to allow $100 to be added to the sale agreements. The idea of the shelters is that they shall accommodate four people in comfort and have gas-proof doors.

Peel and North York Lead With Jerseys

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—Peel and North York counties took an early lead today as judging of jersey cattle started at the Canadian National Exhibition. T. A. Gowland and Sons, Brampton, Ont., scored two championships in the first four classes.

Results:

Jersey bull, three years or over—1, T. A. Gowland and Sons, Brampton, on Broadview Sultan Volunteer; 2, Rosyln Park Farm, Galt; 3 and 5, J. W. Innings, Woodstock; 4, D. J. Begg, St. Thomas.

Bull, two years—1, D. J. Begg, on Regal Design Mixture; 2, Glen Alden Farms, Unionville; 3, J. W. Innis; 4, William Kendall and Son, Brantford.

Bull, senior yearling—1, James Bagg and Son, Edgeley, and W. F. Batty and Sons, Brooklin, on Bernouse Brown Boy; 2, Roslyn Park Farm; 3, J. W. Innis.

Bull, junior yearling—1, T. A. Gowland and Sons on Volunteers Dreaming Count; 2, D. J. Begg; 3, R. Cockrum, Wychwood Farm, Concord, Ont.; 4, W. Kendall and Son.

G. W. Smith Named To Grove Staff

Lakefield Preparatory School has appointed G. Winder Smith, B.A., to be assistant to the headmaster, Kenneth MacKenzie. Mr. Smith has been on the staff of Upper Canada College, Toronto, St. Andrew's College, Aurora, and previously taught at Lakefield. He is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, but received his Bachelor of Arts from Queen's.

Hugh Ketchum, B.A., is another new member of the school staff.

CLEAN GETAWAY

Allan Brown Is Champion In Honey Section

Highest honors for honey in the whole of Ontario and shown at the Canadian National Exhibition have been awarded to Allan Brown, well known apiarist of this city.

Brown took first prize for white honey in the class open to all honey producers in the province and by virtue of this win is awarded the grand championship prize, which includes the handsome silver trophy given by the Ontario Honey Producers Co-operative Ltd. At the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition he won three firsts, one second and two thirds.

The winner chose twenty bottles of honey from the lot shown at the Exhibition here and shipped them to Toronto, never dreaming that he would take top honors. He placed second in the Dominion wide class.

The number of entries at the Toronto Ex. was so great that three judges were kept busy one whole day working into the evening before completing the results.

Allan Brown, who sells honey regularly at the market in this city lives at 154 Benson Avenue and has 350 hives of bees within a ten mile radius of this city, covering roughly 100 square miles of territory. Annually he produces thousands of pounds of the delicacy.

U.A.W. To Ask Boycott Of Windsor Plant

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 1.—(CP).—United Automobile Workers of America officials of Detroit and Windsor told a mass gathering in Lanspeary Park here last night that the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Ltd., would be asked to cease buying automobile parts from Walker Metal Products, Ltd., Windsor, scene of a strike called by the U. A.W. one month ago.

The meeting was sponsored by Windsor locals 195 and 503 of the U.A.W.A. and among the speakers were R. J. Thomas, Detroit, vice-president of the U.A.W.A. and C. H. Millard, Oshawa, Ont., regional director.

Thomas said he would make sure that Walker employees now on strike got "a square deal, contract or no contract."

(The Walker strike began when company officials refused to sign a union agreement replacing one which expired July 31.)

He contended he had had "to put the pressure on Chrysler's in Detroit" to obtain re-employment for union members who were not called back to work in the company's Windsor plant in accordance with seniority rating. He added, that in future, Windsor Chrysler employees would be covered by contracts signed with the Detroit plant "if I have to come over here and do it myself."

Millard contended that Canada was in the grip of a labor war with manufacturers and other employers allied in an attempt to stop organization of workers.

Boy Of 12 Grins As He Picks Parking Ticket Off Judge's Car

"Golly Mister I guess that cop didn't know who you were," said a grinning 12-year-old boy as he picked a blue parking ticket off Judge Smoke's windshield wiper and handed it to the owner of the car in front of a local bank yesterday morning.

This was the highlight of the story as told by His Honor after the regular meeting of the Police Commission meeting Wednesday as the three members discussed the parking problem in the city.

"I drove around the block and failed to find a parking spot," said Judge Smoke, but after completing the turn located a place right in front of the bank and nosed my car into the curb. It was sticking out of line a bit and although I was only in the bank two minutes, there was a blue ticket on my car when I came out."

As the chuckles subsided Mayor James Hamilton added that he might as well confess that he had been reprimanded also, on the same day and by the same officer. His Worship said he pulled in to the curb on George street flush against a fire plug to greet an out of town visitor whom he knew well. We had just started the conversation when the officer drove along and said he had handed a man a ticket for parking in front of the same plug for half an hour, just a short time previously. I piled the visitor into the car and picked a safer spot," said the Mayor with a grin.

Building Permits For August Are Double Those Of One Year Ago

BUILDING PERMITS for August amounted to $32,173, as compared with $15,465 for the corresponding month in 1937. The total for the first seven months of this year was $236,024, the highest since 1930, as against $170,507 up to the end of August last year. Six dwellings and four garages were included in the seventy-one permits issued by City Engineer Parsons.

From several men engaged in the building trades it was learned that employment has reached the highest level this year, with an encouraging outlook for the fall months, and the probability that the work will be maintained until late in the season. Construction of houses has shown no decline, and from recent reports of enquiries among builders the activity of the last few months is likely to continue until the cold weather sets in.

Farmer Driven Same Team For 25 Years

A quarter of a century of service for their master, through rain, sleet, snow and sunshine is the remarkable record held by a team of horses owned by John Blakeley, a farmer living on the south-west rim of Lakefield village, and the two horses are still going strong.

The two have a combined age of 58 years. Paddy is 30 and Dan his team-mate is 28 and they were bought by their present owner 25 years ago and trained as a team. One is white and the other is a roan. Paddy was purchased from the late Charles Waldron for $155 and the other horse was taken on a deal from the late William Lawson of Otonabee for a price of $125.

Farmed in South Monaghan.

Blakely used the team first in South Monaghan, later, when he moved to Otonabee and in recent years at his farm near Lakefield in Smith township. They have gone through the entire routine of labor, plowing, harvesting and all the incidental tasks, and during the winter months have been used to haul wood. Side by side through all the seasons, the strong pair of horses have delivered goods when called on and even today can be depended on to do a fair day's work.

Both are sound despite their years, and neither of the two are blind. They have no sore shoulders and there is not a ridge showing along the ribs, indicating they have not been overworked and are well fed and cared for.

When seen this week they were doing shallow plowing being hitched to a gang plow, and were being driven by a young hired boy in the employ of Blakeley who was learning the art of plowing and wished a quiet, easily managed team.

Bought Young Team

This spring the owner purchased a pair of four-year-old Percheron colts which will replace the two veterans, and he stated the old horses will only be used sufficiently to keep them in good shape. His instructions to the boy plowing were that the horses must be handled easily and allowed to rest if they showed any indications of fatigue or heavy sweating.

Blakeley evidently is the type of farmer who gives his horses as much care as a mother gives her young and this point is borne out by the splendid condition and appearance of the two old work horses.

Three-storey temples, built about 500 A.D., have been found in Huarez, Peru.

Vancouver, Sept. 1.

POLICE TODAY sought an armed holdup man who changed his tactics to begging after one of his would-be victims slapped his face. The man attempted to hold up two women, whose names were withheld. One of the women slapped him. Then he climbed into the back seat of the car and begged for money. They gave him $2.50 and he left.

O.M.A. Approves Peterboro's Hospital Idea

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (CP).—Unemployed single men "are up against it," Ald. Peter Grant of St. Catharines today told the urban section of the Ontario Municipal Association. Municipalities did not know what to do in the face of the serious situation, he said.

The section approved a St. Catharines resolution asking federal and provincial government to devise a plan for assisting single unemployed following Mr. Grant's plea for these men.

In his city, officials found single unemployed had been compelled by circumstances to sleep in freight cars or "in the jungles near the city." He thought that a tragedy. Many of these men had fought overseas.

The section defeated a resolution from Stamford township and London urging relief rent be paid on the basis of 300 per cent of taxes instead of the present 200 per cent.

Opposing the resolution, S. K. Watt, St. Catharines finance commissioner, said relief rents were too low and people on relief therefore could not obtain suitable housing but he favored a different rent system. There should be a province-wide maximum of $20 a month.

By a vote of 27-23, the urban section supported a St. Thomas resolution asking amendment of the public Utilities Act so a surplus from operation of the utilities could be used "to the immediate financial advantage of the tax payers."

"How are we going to have service at cost if we are going to milk the utilities?" asked Mr. Watt.

Alderman Griffith of St. Thomas contended the Hydro Commission there had a $70,000 surplus. The city, seeking such a sum, had to borrow it at 4½ per cent from another source. He thought the city should have authority to use such funds temporarily.

Mayor Carl Hannawell, Niagara Falls, stressed the need of keeping Hydro intact. Taxpayers should enjoy some benefit from a surplus 'but it shouldn't go back to the city treasurer for social services.

The section approved a Timmins proposal to compel owners in urban municipalities to install sanitary conveniences. Another approved resolution from Timmins sought institution by the Department of Municipal Affairs of a system of municipal audits and reports. This would permit a municipality to ask the department to survey the condition of that municipality.

An approved Peterborough resolution asked amendment of the Hospital Act so indigents must be resident and gainfully employed in a municipality for a full year to make the municipality responsible for their hospitalization.

Search Bus Riders To Halt Bombings

Although terrorist activities continue throughout Palestine unabated, no major incident has taken place in Jerusalem proper, but the search for arms and explosives continues as a check. Here, a husky policewoman, who is Russian Orthodox Christian, searches Jewish woman near the point where some weeks ago a bomb, thrown into a passenger bus, such as that shown in background, caused a number of deaths and wrecked the vehicle. The government now has ordered that all these cars should be caked in with heavy steel meshing to prevent a recurrence of the attack.

No Payments On Relief Made To City

A poor woman in broken health who yesterday paid back $60 to the Windsor Welfare Department is without a rival in this city, according to Relief Officer Art Metheral.

The Windsor woman had received city relief and paid it back as soon as she got work again. It was the first time in the board's nine-year history, in which they have distributed more than twenty million dollars, that any money has ever been returned.

Busy making up a Government report Art Metheral could not say how much money had been spent on relief here during the past nine years, but was certain that no one had ever voluntarily paid back any money he received. Of course, a few have been caught defrauding the committee of money and have been forced to return it, but they don't count. "No, we never got any of it back, and I don't suppose we ever will," he said.

A signal honor was bestowed upon Peterborough's relief officer in Toronto on Tuesday when he attended a conference of relief administrators. Of fifty who attended he was chosen one of five to form a special relief resolutions committee to lay recommendations before the Ontario Municipal Association, now holding its fortieth annual meeting.

Establish Equal Rates.

The committee recommended that the association ask the Ontario Welfare Department to consider advisability of establishing equal rates of relief according to living costs throughout the province. The step, said Mr. Metheral, would have to be taken by equalizing the amount of food and supplies given, rather than by fixing a definite sum to be expended upon each relief recipient. "It would be ridiculous to fix the same amount for Peterborough and, say, Lakefield, because costs vary," he explained.

Another recommendation was that the Hepburn Government should attempt to arrange an inter-provincial agreement regarding residence of relief recipients, and that the matter of educational and hospitalization costs be included. It was the committee's contention that persons should not be considered proper residents, able to qualify for relief, until they had been residing and employed in a municipality for at least a year. Hospitalization costs would be charged back to the municipality from which recipients came who were not residents.

Back to the Land.

The committee's recommendation for a back to the land movement, whereby some relief recipients would be placed on farms of small acreage, was intended not for all reliefees, Mr. Metheral explained. The persons selected, he said, would be only those who had originally come from agricultural districts, or who had owned and lost farms through some misfortune or other.

The committee objected to winter fuel for mothers' allowance recipients being charged to relief departments as in the past. If such fuel were needed it should be charged to the Mothers' Allowance Board, was the contention.

It also recommended that the Government attempt to devise some housing scheme by which cheaper dwellings might be erected than is now possible under its plan.

Greatest Of Atlantic Grey Hounds Liner Queen Elizabeth Is Ready For Clyde Launching

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 1.—(CP).—The bustling Clyde is preparing to launch its "biggest and best" product—the Queen Mary's sistership, Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen herself will perform the ceremony at John Brown's yard Sept. 27. A description of the ceremony will be broadcast to the world.

Embracing all the superlatives of modern shipbuilding and containing the fruits of Queen Mary experience, the new ship will be impeded by 2,350 tons of drag chains when she rumbles into the narrow Clyde. She will go into service in 1940.

Lines of the ship are more graceful than the Queen Mary and the steep rake of the stem rising 150 feet is as delicately proportioned to the rest of the structure as in a racing yacht.

The Elizabeth is 1,030 feet long, 15 feet longer than the Queen Mary and one foot longer than the Normandie, and 85,000 tons, about 3,700 tons heavier than the Queen Mary.

The new ship's beam is 118 feet, depth to top of superstructure 120 feet; the length of one of her 14 decks—the promenade deck—is 724 feet.

There is accommodation for 3,500 passengers. Swimming pools for cabin and tourist classes, cinemas, sun lounges, shops, radio telephone service, children's playrooms, gymnasia and all public rooms are similar to the Queen Mary's.

Theatre for Cabin Class

An innovation is a theatre and garden lounges for the cabin passengers and a gymnasium and extra sports rooms for third class. There is also a restaurant deck on which passengers of all classes can obtain "boulevard" meals.

Difference in design and improvements on the Queen Mary will probably produce a much speedier Atlantic service. The Queen Elizabeth has special under-water stream-lining. A new plastic composition has been moulded on to smooth over the two-inch overlay of the steel plates.

Contributing further to her streamlining is her flush main deck with no well-deck break.

Her power plant will consist of a system of Parsons' single reduction geared turbines and each of the propellers—weighing 32 tons—will be driven by an independent set comprising a large gear wheel operated by four turbines.

Steam will be supplied to the 16 turbines by 12 of the largest high-pressure water-tube boilers ever constructed. They contain 71,000 tubes. The boilers will burn oil fuel.

MORE ABOUT—
Hatchery Set

ernment the long trench that was blasted out of the solid rock up the slope from the power house to the dam at the west end of Deer Lake.

Two of the men who were employed by the Cordova Mining Company in 1900 on this same location have returned after 38 years to work on the hatchery. They are Alvin Chard of Havelock and Terry Fitzpatrick of Cordova.

In discovering this remote beauty spot of Belmont township Wednesday afternoon, an Examiner reporter was diverted by three facets of attraction, nature's endowment of charm, Ontario's investment in a fish hatchery, and the remnants of a past enterprise in which a tremendous amount of capital must have been sunk with inadequate returns.

Excavating Twin Ponds.

Forty-two men were working on the excavation of twin ponds that will straddle the old trench and its new pipe line replacing the dilapidated flume only recently torn out of the rocky bed that was made for it in 1900. Few of them may have comprehended the extent of the job that was done there, in the self same place, nearly forty years ago. If you are sensitive to all the work that men do, so much of it seemingly for naught, you would find your thoughts wandering back over those forty years, and wondering how they accomplished it all.

It was easy enough to erect a concrete dam, thirty or forty feet long, across the west end of Deer Lake, but it must have been slow and laborious blasting that long trench through the rock up the slope to the dam. The trench is about 1,500 feet long, 12 to 15 feet wide, and varying in depth from 6 to 24 feet. Then they laid a six-foot flume from the dam to the power house; and in the meantime the power house had to be built.

The Plant in 1911.

Here is a description of the power plant written about 1911 when a new company was trying to revive the Cordova mine and its further exploration. It is quoted from a prospectus issued at that time:

"The Cordova Mine has its own hydro, pneumatic and electric power development of 1,200 horse power, located at Deer Lake, three miles from Cordova. This development is made by two concrete dams at the foot of Deer Lake, forming a reservoir about ½-mile wide by three miles long, the supply of water coming from a chain of lakes and rivers extending about sixty miles north, and these upper lakes are controlled by three additional dams.

The water from Deer Lake dam is conveyed through a six-foot flume a distance of 1,550 feet, giving a head of 74 feet at the power house, where it drives two turbines of 800 and 400 horse power respectively.

The 800 horse-power turbine drives by means of 30 endless cotton ropes a large two-stage air compresser, having a capacity of 5,000 cubic feet of free air per minute.

The air is conveyed through three miles of twelve-inch steel pipe to the mine at one hundred pounds pressure per square inch.

The 400 horse-power turbine is direct connected to a 250 kilowatt generator, and the electric current, 2,200 volts, is conveyed over three aluminum cables a distance of three miles to the transformer station at the mine, where it is stepped down to 550 volts for driving motors and to 110 volts for lighting.

The prospectus is lavishly illustrated showing, for instance, the machinery of the power house and the huge air compresser, and you wonder how those laborers of 1900 ever hauled that heavy equipment from Havelock, fifteen miles or more almost to Cordova, and then by the four or five miles of narrow winding road through the woods to the west end of Deer Lake.

Very Little Left To-day.

Well, there's not much of it left to-day. Five years ago, the exact number probably doesn't matter much, left nothing that could be burned, only the concrete foundation, the long, heavy shaft of a generator, probably that 250 k.w. machine, its armature stripped of the copper wire with which it had been wound, the shells of two transformers, and a few other pathetic odds and ends.

Those three miles of steel pipe carrying the compressed air from the pneumatic plant to the mine for use in the operations underground disappeared long ago in the subsequent salvaging; the electric wires and their poles, gone too. What happened to the giant wheel of the air compresser?

Now the Government is building a modern fish hatchery, and you have a feeling that when the job is complete not a trace will be left of the old power plant. With some sense of dismay you expect them to obliterate the remnants, the foundation walls and so on. Perhaps it doesn't matter, anyway.

And besides some persons would be bound to regard the ruin as an "eyesore"; and if it is already a "heartsore" to the imaginative, why should it still stand beside the new hatchery?

The natural facility of the Deer Lake location for the government's new hatchery lies in the fact that the water in its outlet spills down the gorge of the Deer River in a roughly semicircular route, and the trench slashed up the incline represents the diameter of that figure.

The blasting of the trench hasn't cost the government a dollar. That expenditure was made long ago for the mining company's power house. Wednesday morning one group of men began laying the new eighteen inch pipe of British Columbia fir, specially reinforced and treated from the dam leading down toward the location of the future ponds. The sections are jointed together and will be supported on concrete trusses spaced along the trench. The dam itself will be improved with a new facing of concrete and the crumbling logs will be replaced with new ones. The intake opening will be reduced from its original six feet to fit the 18 inch diameter of the new flume.

Clearing Ground.

Workmen have for weeks been clearing away the trees and brush on the pond sites, one on each side of the flume trench, and are now grading and levelling them. One retaining wall is being thrown up with earth from the higher pond, and the entier inner surface will eventually be faced with clay. J. K. Sheehy of Peterborough, who is in charge of the work, said the clay was for the purpose of preventing leakage. The nearest deposit is 18 miles away, it is understood, and apparently the detail of hauling it will assume a bigger operation than might appear at first thought.

Each of the big ponds is about 36,000 square feet in area, and on the east side there is also a minnow pond. The water from Deer Lake, flowing from uncontaminated sources off in Belmont and Hastings counties, will be controlled by valves from the main pipe line to smaller pipes leading to each pond. And the entire water system is carried by gravity. Not a pump will be required anywhere, and there is also a comparatively small stretch of containing wall to be built.

Progress Speeded Up.

Since Mr. Sheehy has taken charge of the work the progress has been more rapid, and the payroll of 42 men will probably be increased to 60 next week. The main ponds have to be levelled and graded and piped, and finally surfaced with clay. The main hatchery building has to be constructed, also a residence for the caretaker of the plant, and an ice house and garage.

At present the detail is developing in the preliminary stage. The men on the pipe line laid quite a stretch of it for the first day, but in another month the general location of the ponds and buildings will be more clearly and objectively shown.

This review of the old industrial history of the locality, and the survey of its present development, makes no reference to the natural beauty of the site, the rugged and steep gorge of the river plunging down 70 feet; and above the dam, the calm lake with its islands and bays, and not a cottage in sight. The scenery is splendid, and the whole setting will be pleasing revelation of Belmont's natural beauty to those who visit the place for the first time.

72-Passenger Clipper Tries New Rudders After Flunking Tests

America's latest bid for international supremacy in long-distance commercial flying, the 72-passenger Boeing clipper built in Seattle, was turned over to mechanics after she had "flunked" her preliminary flight tests, for re-designing. Here she is again, complete with a new set of rudders and newly designed hydro-stabilizers, speeding over the waters of Lake Washington, near Seattle in fresh trials. Pilot Eddie Allan declared the alterations had corrected previous errors. The new equipment will be submitted to stress tests before the clipper again takes the air.

Amendment To Criminal Code Raises Knotty Problem

A constitutional point was raised in city police court proceedings yesterday by T. J. Carley, K.C., which resulted in an adjournment of a reckless driving charge against Donald McNaughton of Young's Point and also a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was suspended.

Counsel contended that certain sections of the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario have been superseded by amendments to the Criminal Code, which were passed at last session of the Dominion Parliament and became effective on July 1st of this year. In effect the passing of these amendments virtually repealed the various sections of the H.T.A. dealing with the same offences.

Lay Further Charge

If the point had not been raised and McNaughton were convicted under section 67 of the Highway Traffic Act there would be nothing to prevent the Crown from laying a further charge under the Criminal Code and the first conviction according to Mr. Carley, could be quashed, and on conviction of the second charge accused would be liable to a heavier penalty.

If the contention of Mr. Carley is sustained by the court it will mean that in future all charges of this nature will be laid under the Criminal Code rather than under the H.T.A. and accused persons would then be liable for more severe penalties.

The charge in question was laid by Provincial Constable Broughton following an accident on Highway 28, north of Lakefield on the evening of August 21st, when a car allegedly driven by McNaughton, with American license plates became involved with another being driven in the opposite direction by Edward Higgins of Toronto. Mrs. Higgins received serious injuries and is still under a doctor's care.

Virtually Same Offence

By the amendment to the Criminal Code passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, virtually the same ofence, that is reckless and negligent driving, was made a crime. Prior to this change the Criminal Code required that personal injury be sustained, and now it has been extended to cover property damage as well, with the language in the Traffic Act and the amendments being practically the same. Mr. Carley therefore raised the point that once the Dominion Parliament chose to make the offence criminal offence, then it superseded the sections contained in the Highway Traffic Act, constituting it a penal offence under that act.

An additional charge has been laid against McNaughton for operating a vehicle while his license was suspended. An amendment to the Criminal Code also covers this situation and the same point was raised as to whether the Dominion Legislation did not supersede the Provincial Legislation.

To Study Point

Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C. and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., thought an adjournment was advisable to give all concerned an oportunity to study these points further. Magistrate Langley said it was the first time the point had been raised before him and neither he nor Mr. Kerr had previously been afforded a chance of studying the amendments. The Magistrate had not been furnished with a copy of the amendments to the code, but Mr. Kerr secured a glance at these when Provincial Constable McClure brought his copy into court.

Mr. Carley remarked that under the British North America Act jurisdiction over crime is given exclusively to Dominion Parliament and until the Dominion Parliament chooses to make it a crime, the Highway Traffic Act containing these offences was intra vires or within its powers, on the other hand once the offence was made a crime then the Provincial legislation was superseded.

The case will be heard on Tuesday, September 6th.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, September 2

Propitious and very progressive conditions may be read from this day's planetary configurations, the most powerful of which is a sign of a definite breaking up of old frustrating or crystallized affairs. The relaxing of impediments should make way for an expensive and lucrative turn in the fortunes.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very propitious and productive year, with affairs flourishing after a prolonged seige of stagnation. The upturn may be due to a profitable investment, a decided uptrend in property values, or it may be the bequest or gift of an elder.

A child born on this day may be steady, studious and capable, attracting the support and goodwill of elders who are powerful in shaping and advancing its future career. It should have a bright, tactful, courteous and happy disposition, enhancing its personal popularity and prestige.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The result of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

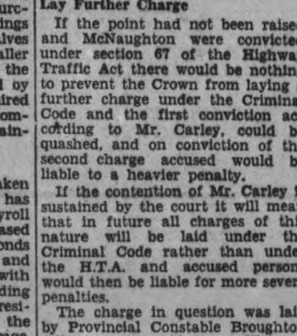
In Baby's Bottle

THERE is a milk for baby's bottle which has many recognized advantages. It contains all the food value of whole, cows' milk—it is very easily digested—always the same wherever you buy it—easy to prepare and easy to keep—extra-rich in "sunshine" vitamin D—irradiated Carnation Milk.

Homogenization and heat treatment make Carnation so digestible. Nothing has been taken out but part of the natural water content—nothing added but extra "sunshine" vitamin D from ultra-violet light rays. And every tin of Carnation Milk is exactly the same as every other tin.



When bottle days are over there is no question of "weaning" baby—he goes on getting his Carnation Milk in his cup. Carnation Milk also adds extra creaminess, smoothness and flavour to cooked dishes, and is delicious and economical for creaming coffee and cereals.

Write for two Carnation books. "The Contented Baby" is free. The Carnation Cook Book, containing a host of ideas and recipes, with full-page, full-colour illustrations is 15¢ (postpaid). Carnation Company Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

Charles Wallis, Pioneer Of West Dies In Vancouver At Age Of 83

VANCOUVER, Sept. 1 (Special).—A distinguished Canadian citizen, once a resident of this city, who contributed greatly to the development of his country, passed away in Margaret's Convalescent Home on Monday. He was Charles Stayner Wallis, 83. Member of a noted family, the son of prominent pioneer settlers in Peterborough district, he moved to the west shortly after graduation from Osgoode Hall and admittance to the Ontario Bar.

Father a Pioneer

He was born October 10, 1854 in Peterborough, the son of James Wallis and Louisa Forbes. His father James Wallis, was one of a group of early pioneers of Ontario among whom were John Langton, for many years Post Master General of Canada and Judge Robert Dennistoun—grandfather of Mr. Justice Dennistoun of the Supreme Court of Manitoba.

James Wallis was the first importer of pure bred stock, cattle, horses, pigs, etc., both in Canada and in the state of Virginia as he was also the builder of the first sawmill in Ontario at Fenelon Falls. He, with his group, brought out many families from famine-stricken Ireland and gave them the opportunity of a fresh start in a new country.

Charles S. Wallis was educated at Trinity College School, Weston (at present at Port Hope), Ontario, and was graduated in law from Osgoode Hall and admitted to the Ontario Bar in 1880. In 1881, he was called to the Manitoba Bar in company with the well-known David Glass, K.C., of London, Ontario and John S. Ewart. Shortly after this, he entered into partnership with Thomas Smith Kennedy, late of Toronto and was in close relationship with the late John Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, who, when attorney general Millar resigned, pressed Mr. Wallis to take the attorney generalship of Manitoba.

40,000 Whites in West

When C. S. Wallis arrived in Winnipeg, the census of the Dominion was being taken and it showed that the white population of the Great West—from the lakes to the mountains—was 40,000, 20,000 of whom were in Winnipeg. In that year, too, the West imported from Montreal 20,000 barrels of flour and 120,000 bushels of wheat—required for feeding the people and seed for spring sowing. There was no railway in the West, other than the branch line from Emerson to Winnipeg—built by the Great Northern. Sections A and B of C.P.R., north of the Great Lakes, was under contract for construction by Manning Macdonald & Co., but the road was not completed into Winnipeg for some two or three years.

Not a city or town exists today, west of the Great Lakes, that he did not know, either in its infancy or even before it was ever dreamt of.

Handled Vast Fortunes

In 1903, he came to Edmonton, Alberta, and it is from this city that Mr. Wallis carried out his wide-spread activities that included the handling of vast fortunes from England; Wall Street, New York City, Sioux City, Iowa, Virginia and practically every state in the union.

His self-appointed task—to which he devoted his entire life—was to bring capital into Canada for the development of Canadian business. From coast to coast, from New York to San Francisco, from Montreal to Vancouver and in Great Britain, Charles S. Wallis was the "confidential" link with business interests. He, and his father before him, made the development of Canada their life work—and although unheralded and unsung, their work lives on in Canada today.

Besides his sister, Miss Katherine E. Wallis, internationally known sculptor, who has been with him during his long illness, he is survived by another sister, Miss Adah Wallis of Link Cottage, Burrington, England; a niece, Miss Kathleen Wallis of Toronto, and his two nephews, J. Harold Wallis, manager of the Dominion Engineering Co., Ltd. of Montreal and Colonel Hugh M. Wallis of Montreal.

TOURISTS NUMEROUS

SYDNEY, N.S.—(CP). — Tourist travel to Cape Breton is reported heavy this year. To date more than 5,000 persons have registered at the tourist bureau here. It is estimated their visit brought a total revenue of more than $17,000 to businesses in this city.

Yellow "Blackboards"

Jail Head Says Steam Order Unauthorized

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Superintendent William Mills today named Guard Sergeant James Hart as the man "responsible" for turning on the heat that killed four convicts in punishment cells at the Philadelphia County Prison.

Mills, testifying at a coroner's inquest in the deaths, said Hart gave an "unauthorized" order to an assistant engineer to turn steam into a battery of radiators in the prison isolation building where 25 hunger-striking convicts were confined.

"There should have been no heat turned in the building in August weather," the superintendent said.

He said Hart did not have authority or his permission to have the heat turned on.

Paying Proposition

CAIN CITY, Kas., Sept 1—(AP)—A half century ago an aged priest at Holyrood, Ont., urged a group of Canadians to make a fresh start, settle in Western Kansas. Prospering here, the group in gratitude deeded a plot of land to the church. Now the land gives promise of even greater return to the church. An oil company has leased the site and may soon be paying royalties.

Reventlow's Hold Re-union In Venice

TRENT RIVER

Mrs. Thomas Lloyd, of Toronto, summering at "Isle of View," received word of the sudden illness of her sister, Miss Clare Major of Ottawa, Monday morning, and left immediately for Ottawa, a later message brought the news of her death before Mrs. Lloyd reached the city. The late Miss Major with her sister Margaret spent a month's holiday during the summer at "Maple Inn" Cook cottage.

FICTION AND FEATURES

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 31

NOEL WALKED slowly and thoughtfully home after leaving the restaurant. She had had such a happy day with Chris, had enjoyed every minute of it. But all the time she had been anticipating the late afternoon when she would go to the De Luxe and see Julian. She was so disappointed that he didn't come, the tears were very near the surface of her eyes. But she forced them back resolutely, and told herself that she was 40 different kinds of a sap to let herself go on thinking about a man who apparently never gave her a thought.

She was so tired and depressed that she fell into bed about 9 o'clock, after doing a few of the things she always had to do in her spare time. Washing her hose and handkerchiefs, and perhaps a blouse, so they would be ready to press in the morning. Straightening up the room, for now Noel didn't let Laurie do all their simple housekeeping. A number of times Laurie had come home to find everything in spotless order, and had complimented Noel on her work. Everything had to be in order with Laurie, or else hhe couldn't sit down and relax.

Once Noel told her that she was a "born old maid," but, of course, she was teasing. She knew the man who married Laurie would be very lucky indeed.

Sometimes Noel smilingly told herself that she was really learning, under Laurie's tutelage, to make quite a respectable wife for a poor man. She was actually able to do her own linen blouses herself, ironing them without a wrinkle, and that, Noel thought, was an achievement. She remembered how difficult it had seemed when she had first tried.

The next morning Noel awakened feeling beautifully rested. She had a long night's sleep, the first time she had slept the clock around since she had gone to work at Luigi's

Today was Saturday and Laurie had to be at work at 7. She was up as usual, moving around, getting dressed noiselessly when Noel opened her eyes.

Noel looed at her for a while in silence. There wasn't any doubt but that Laurie was entirely well now. There wasn't any danger whatever of a relapse. But there was a sad expression in her eyes. It was there often now. Noel knew it was because of Jimmy.

She said on a sudden impulse, "Aren't you and Jimmy acting very foolish not seeing each other just because—you can't get married yet?"

The look of pain came into Laurie's face just as it always did whenever Jimmy's name was mentioned. "No," she said in a low voice, "we're only trying to be sensible. The more we see of each other, the harder it is to—to give each other up." Laurie picked up her purse and began putting the things in it that she would need during the day—a fresh handkerchief, her compact, a small comb which she had washed and sterilized last night before going to bed.

"It's simply not fair that you and Jimmy should be separated like this," Noel said rather heatedly. There were times when she felt that Jimmy's mother must be about the most selfish woman in the world.

Laurie was ready to go now. She put her little red, rol-brim hat over her dark curls, and picked up her gloves and purse. Then she looked at Noel. "We—you and I—for some reason don't seem to be lucky in love, do we?"

"Not very lucky, no," Noel said in a low voice.

"That's why I'm going to—going to—" But for some reason she couldn't finish. Her voice seemed to choke in her throat. Then she began again, "But you're lucky anyway, Noel, in having such a wonderful chance. Think of going to Hollywood. You'll probably have dozens of men in love with you when you get there."

Noel managed a little smile. The thought of having dozens of men in love with her, even if true, didn't excite her at all. "Would you like to have a dozen men in love with you?" she asked, just as Laurie was moving to the door.

Laurie shook her head. "No, only one—the real one."

She went out then, leaving Noel still busy with her thoughts. She supposed any girl in her right senses would jump at the chance of going to Hollywood. But Noel knew she never acted logically about anything. he was swayed almost entirely by her emotions. And last night, when she had told Laurie that she was going to Hollywood, she really had not meant it at all. For she wasn't certain yet that she would go, if she had the chance.

Even if Ruth Chester did succeed in marrying Julian some day, which she probably would do from all indications, Noel knew her feelings toward Julian would not change.

"Why are women such idiots about love?" she demanded of the faded wallpaper. She and Laurie, both of them, eating their hearts out because they both loved a man they could not have. And probably both of them better off, if only they knew it. But Noel quickly dismissed that thought. No use trying to be cynical, she concluded. No woman could possibly be better off without the man she loved.

Then Noel's thoughts went back to Hollywood. How could she go off and leave Ruth Chester a clear field? Not that she believed the pretty nurse could influence Julian against his will. Nobody could accuse Julian of not knowing his own mind. But Ruth Chester was clever and crafty too, and quite, quite unscrupulous as Noel had cause to know. And Julian certainly did seem gullible where she was concerned. He might not be in love with her yet. There were times when Noel was almost able to convince herself that he wasn't, and at times when she was almost certain he was.

After a while she decided to stop thinking. Her thoughts just seemed to go around in circles. She never could come to any definite conclusions.

the uninviting tub, dressed leisurely

About 10 she managed to bath in and a little past 11 found her on her way uptown to meet Chris for luch at the little Spanish place where they had lunched yesterday.

He was waiting outside when she came up. "You're a few minutes late, loveliest," he said, taking her arm, "but I'll forgive you because you're looking so beautiful."

Noel smiled. She wondered if a girl could really look beautiful in a $1.98 dress?

When they were seated and Chris had ordered, he said: "You think I say things like that to you because I'm a sort of flirt, don't you?"

"Sort of——" Noel teased.

Then Chris said, his voice sounding husky. "Look at me, dear."

Noel raised her eyes questioningly to his. Then Chris put his hand across table and closed it over hers. "You see, Noel, I'm really in love with you. Rather dreadfully so, I'm afraid."

Noel hadn't expected this. For a moment she couldn't answer. "You're such a dear," she began at last. "I'm fond of you, very fond of you, but Chris, dear, it—it isn't love."

"I'll wait," Chris said, settling back in his chair. "I won't give up hope. You see, I—I couldn't ask you to marry me now anyway, because I well, I belong to the new poor, if you know what I mean, My father and I lost everything we had in the stock market crash. But I thought when we made good on the dancing act, we could be married then—maybe sort of secretly, if necessary. For, of course, in Hollywood you have to consider that sort of thing."

"Chris, I'm not sure I can go to Hollywood," Noel said unhappily.

"Not go to Hollywood? But Noel?" Chris was aghast.

"You see, I—" but Noel couldn't explain.

Chris was looking at her smilingly. "You've probably got an advanced case of stage fright," he said goodnaturedly.

Noel new that wasn't it. She also realized a little desperately that she had to make up her mind one way or the other. She couldn't go on in this state of indecision much longer. She had to decide whether she would go to Hollywood with Chris, or out to the Garwoods' to take the position as governess. They were expecting her on Monday. She ought to let them know before then if she did not intend to go.

When they finished lunch, Chris said, "What about a long drive in the country?"

Noel was able to smile. "You do think of the nicest things," she said, the thought coming to her that the fresh air would help her to decide what was best to do.

So they went out in the country and got ludricously lost. For hours it seemed Chris drove the car around in a circle. At last they came across a funny little inn, had a nice country supper, and got back about 10 o'clock.

"Chris, it was fun," Noel said when they bade each other good night.

"We always have fun together," Chris said in his blithe way.

Noel went into the house, wondering why in the world she couldn't love Chris instead of Julian. Chris was such a darling, so good-natured, so gay and understanding. Any girl would be lucky to marry Chris.

Laurie was asleep, so Noel didn't even turn on the light. She undressed noiselessly and slipped into bed. And this was why she didn't see a note which lay on her pillow addressed in Julian's handwriting.

The Examiner Fashion Service

A smart rayon crepe mixture that gives the effect of wool, fashioned this dress of slim coat-like lines. It's the sort of dress one finds so useful for now and right through autumn. A detail of interest, are the front kick plaits that lend gracious fulness to the slender skirt. The model also includes a high neck version with shirt collar. It's so wearable in black crepe marocain with white bengaline collar and cuffs. School and college girls will adore this version in clan plaid woolen, wool jersey, alpaca and rayon, etc. There are just a few easy steps to the making of this easy dress that will be the envy of all your friends.

Style No. 3353 is designed for sizes 14, 16 18, 20 years, 32 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 years. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material with 1½ yards of binding and ¼ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Cantor's Contract Cut

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1—(AP).—Eddie Cantor and Darryl Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief, agreed today on cancellation of the screen comedien's contract, which had two more pictures to run.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am very fond of my husband, who has always been exceptionally good to me, but I am afraid that we are coming to the parting of the ways because he is not willing to buy flowers to put on the grave of our baby, while he does not hesitate to give money to his little boy, who is a child of his first wife. This child comes to see us two or three times a week and he gives him nickels and dimes, but when I want to buy flowers to take to the cemetery he says it costs too much. This is making me very bitter toward my husband. I cannot stand the thought of my own baby not having flowers on his grave all the time. Don't you think my husband is being selfish and not showing my baby and me the proper respect? A WEARY MOTHER.

Answer:

I think that both you and your husband are acting like a couple of idiots. You are showing little sense in making a great issue out of what is, after all, a small fault on your husband's part, and a fault that comes more from a lack of understanding than from any intentional unkindness. He is showing still less intelligence in not buying for you whatever comfort you can get out of putting a few cents' worth of flowers on the baby's grave.

One of the strangest things about marriage is that husbands and wives so often lose their sense of values in arguing their differences and so seldom seem able to use any common sense in settling them. You furnish a vivid illustration of this. Here you are, willing to add a greater sorrow to a great sorrow and to lose your husband as well as your baby for the sake of putting a few flowers on his grave. Here's your husband willing to have your love turned to hate and the happiness and peace of his home broken up, rather than to give you the dollar or so a week to gratify your morbid desire for decorating the child's tomb.

It seems incredible that in such a situation like yours that you have not intelligence enough to realize that your only comfort in your bereavement must be in your husband's love; that your only chance for happiness lies in him, and that it is far more important for you to keep things pleasant between you and him than it is for you to put flowers on the grave of a baby who cannot know or care whether it is done or not. It is equally incredible that your husband has not intelligence enough to say to himself: "Poor soul, she is half mad with grief. Let her have the flowers if they are any solace to her." And so let the matter end by drawing you closer together instead of separating you.

Of course, in reality, so far as there is any logic in the situation, your husband is in the right. It is bad mentally and physically for you to make a fetish of your child's grave and spend your time worshiping it and adorning it. It only keeps your sorrow alive. When those we love die, we cannot bring them back, and the wise and brave thing is just to accept our loss and forget it as much as it is possible.

Your husband is right in thinking that the money is better spent on this live little boy who needs so much more than on a dead baby who needs nothing. The real remedy for your grief is in taking your little stepchild into your heart and lavishing on him all of your mother love and yearning.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have found the remedy for the uninvited guests who wish themselves upon you, and are such pests. It consists in putting them to work. I used to slave myself to death preparing meals for friends and relatives, who thought it would be so nice to spend a few weeks with "Dear Sadie" at no expense to themselves, and who lolled in hammocks while I perspired over the kitchen stove. But no more. As soon now as my dead-beat friends arrive I meet them with a beaming smile and tell them that I am so glad they have come to help me with the cleaning. Next morning bright and early I set them to cleaning out the attic or washing the windows. If it is summertime, I introduce them to a hoe and put them to work in the garden or to canning vegetables and fruit or if they came late in the Fall, I ring them in on putting up meat. After that, there is wood to be put in the shed, and I set the male guests at the wood pile, which I assure them is even better exercise than golf. Then, of course, there are always quilts to quilt, and I draft them into the kitchen and the pantry. Believe it or not, you'd be surprised that after a day or two on my treadmill, they have a call back home. Last Fall a woman I only casually know drove up with her brood in an automobile and told me that she felt that she just had to come to see me, and that she was going to stay two weeks. I said: "Fine. I am so glad to see you. You have come at the opportune moment, because I have been just waiting to get somebody to take care of the house, the milking, the chickens and all while I go to the hospital to have my tonsils out. Now I can go with a free mind, because you can look after everything for me." But, strangely enough, she said the next morning that she felt that she had better go on to her Aunt Lucinda, who was in poor health and needed her company. Result, I still have my tonsils, but I have never had a return visit. If you doubt the efficacy of this remedy for getting rid of uninvited guests, try it. It will work every time, and rid your house of the pests. MRS. A.

Answer:

A Solomon. A second Solomon in petticoats come to judgment. I feel that any words of mine added to this recipe for circumventing the arts and wiles of those who feel that it is cheaper to visit than pay hotel bills would be gilding the lily and painting the rose. And I am perfectly certain this is one of those recipes that will never fail if directions are faithfully followed.

DEAR MISS DIX—While I was in school—I am now 35—I received excellent marks in all my studies. For the last few years my mind has become lazy and I cannot seem to retain anything I have read. I am beginning to feel as if I am dull and uninteresting. My husband has a keen mind and remembers all he has read and seen, and I feel that I am falling behind him. My time for studying is limited, as I do all my own housework, and have a garden and a baby to take care of, but that doesn't excuse me for neglecting my mind. What can I do about it? Mrs. F.

Answer:

I don't think any woman who is worried about getting dull is in any danger of doing so. She'll keep keen and interested. But often that logy feeling comes from a physical cause, so you had better go to see your doctor.

Easy to Make Your Own Dummy

There's nothing mysterious about ventriloquism. It's just ordinary talk plus a little deception. And so easy to learn! With a little practice you can become the most popular entertainer in your crowd. And make money, too!

As a starter, try this simple exercise: Stand before a mirror. With lips and teeth slightly parted, pronounce vowels—a, e, i, o, u. Surprising how many words you can say without moving your lips! When lip action is unavoidable, focus attention of audience on the dummy.

But where can you get a dummy? You can easily make one as engaging as Charlie McCarthy. Archie, pictured above, a first-class workable dummy, cost about 75 cents. His head and neck are rubber balls; his body, a wooden box; his legs, stuffed stockings; his arms, muslin; his spinal column, a broomstick, a few bits of wire, rubber, and wood.

Our new 32-page booklet gives exact list of materials needed, full instructions, diagrams for making boy and girl dummies. Tricks of the ventriloquist fully explained. Clever dialogue for you to use.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of SELF-INSTRUCTION IN VENTRILOQUISM AND DUMMY MAKING to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf, the shadow boy, was standing in the meadow, leaning on a daisy. You mustn't be surprised that he was able to lean on such a small flower. Knarf—and this is something that all shadows, even yours, can do—had drawn himself together until he was just a little taller than the daisy itself.

"I'll just wait here and see if anything happens," he said to himself.

At that moment he heard a loud buzzing. Turning around he saw a bumble bee with a basket over her arm come flying up to the daisy. She buzzed around and around it several times.

"Good morning, Mrs. Bumble Bee," greeted Knarf as she finally lit on a daisy.

"Good morning, Whatever-Your-Name Is. What are you doing except leaning on this daisy?"

"We haven't any time to waste."

"Oh," smiled Knarf, "I'm waiting for something exciting to happen. What are you doing?"

"I'm gathering honey. It's much more useful than waiting for something exciting to happen. What makes you so lazy?"

He's Sure Lazy.

"I'm not lazy."

"You're the laziest thing I've ever seen. Waiting for something exciting to happen! Such nonsense! Go get yourself a basket and help me gather honey."

"But how do you do it? I'd like to know first."

"You go from flower to flower. Do you see all the buttercups and bluebells and bread-and-butters and clover in this meadow?"

"I see millions of them," the shadow boy answered, gazing around on all sides.

"Well, you have to visit every one of them. It takes from early morning until the sun sets to do it. When you get to a flower you reach down with your tongue and lick out the honey. Now come along! We haven't any more time to waste."

But Knarf shook his head. "No—I'm going to stay right here. It's much more fun just leaning against a daisy and waiting for something exciting to happen. Good-by, Mrs. Bumble Bee. Good morning to you."

And Mrs. Bumble Bee buzzed off. And if she still thought that Knarf was the laziest thing she had ever seen, perhaps she wasn't so very wrong.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE —with Major Hoople

$38,464.88 Has Been Collected On 1937 Smith Township Roll

The municipal council of Smith Township met in the county council chamber, Peterborough, on Monday. The members were all present, with Reeve Mann in the chair.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and of the communications, a report from Tax Collector J. A. Middleton was presented as follows:

Total revised roll for 1937, as at July 1, 1938.....$42,328.99
Total collected to date.... 38,464.88

Total balance due.....$ 3,864.11
Total collected since last meeting 731.64

The time for the collector to return his roll was extended until Saturday, September 24, at 10 o'clock a.m., which will be the date of the next council meeting.

A cheque for $185.86 was issued covering pay sheets Nos. 137 to 149; and also one for $82.50 covering pay sheet No. 150, and as follows:

Ellwood Crapp's div., weeds, $4.60; James Mace's div., weeds, $3; Reg. McConkey's div., weeds and dragging, $16.80; C. Hancock's div., dragging, $34.20; Fred Mann's div., weeds and dragging, $13.55; V. Young's div., culvert, $1.50; J. Howard Hall, tile, $20.71; T. H. Graham, stamps and salary, $28.20; R. J. Tully's div., culvert and dragging, $15.70; H. Milburn's div., weeds and culvert, $25.00; J. Grant's div., dragging and gravel, $11.00; F. Tedford's div., dragging and brush, $4.40; J. Grant's div., gravelling, $7.20; C. Hancock, F. Heard, E. Rosboro and Reynolds' divs., gravelling and ditching, $82.50.

Improvement Ordered.

Moved by W. J. Tedford and seconded by M. Clark, that the clerk write John Douglas of Chemong Park, advising him of the lack of toilet accommodation at the Chemong Pavilion, and requesting him to erect two suitable toilets for the use of said pavilion within five days from receiving the clerk's notice so to do. Carried.

Motion by M. Clark and H. Fowler, that council interview the township solicitor as to what legal steps may be taken to drain the water off the 3rd Concession Line, east of the Quarter Line.

The clerk was requested to write Con. Young of Young's Point that council appreciates his desire to beautiful the property filled in some years ago by Mr. Young, but feels it cannot either lease or sell the property referred to, and also does not care to have any buildings erected thereon.

Moved by H. Fowler and seconded by G. McIlmoyle, that the clerk insert the additional lots and buildings obtained by the assessor in his inspection of summer dwellings in August, 1938, in both the assessment roll and the collector's roll for 1938; and also that the list of arrears of taxes as supplied by the county treasurer be entered in the collector's roll. Carried.

Names Deleted.

Moved by M. Clark and seconded by G. McIlmoyle, that the clerk delete the names and taxes of Samuel E. and Bessie James from the 1933 assessment roll and collector's roll, being an error in the "list of transfers," for 1937.

Moved by W. J. Tedford and seconded by M. Clark, that the following accounts be paid: Franklin Press, Toronto, account printing debentures, $64.80; J. N. Brown, August relief ac., $12; W. A. Sidey, August relief ac., $10; G. D. Mann, inspection of cottages and transportation, $50; V. A. Fife, August relief ac., $6; F. Trude, sheep injured causing death, $8; Peterborough Utilities Com., ac. street light, July and August, $15.16; Geo. H. Simpson, on account salary, $20; trees on 5th Con. Line, $10—$30.

Birthday Party Is Happy Event

A happy event of last evening was a delightfully arranged birthday party at the home of Mrs. A. E. Barrie, Water street, given in honor of Miss Olive Cullen.

During the evening games and contests were enjoyed, which was followed by a birthday supper at a table centred by yellow marigolds and lighted with yellow tapers. The guest of honor received many lovely birthday gifts.

Miss Margaret Beavis Is Entertained At Shower

Mis Margaret Beavis, September bride-elect, was entertained recently at a miscellaneous showed by Miss Florence Vickers, George street, who was hostes to about thirty girl friends of the guest of honor, including a number of nurses from Nicholls Hospital.

Many lovely gifts were received by Miss Beavis, and the evening was amusingly spent in making a bride's book from illustrated magazines. Refreshments were later served by the hostess.

Trousseau Tea Is Charming Event

Gladioli, asters and other flowers in lovely shades were used to adorn the home on Lock street of Mrs. W. J. Grady, when she entertained at a charmingly arranged trousseau tea Wednesday evening for her daughter, Miss Mary Grady, whose marriage to Mr. Francis Bacon takes place on Monday, September 5.

Mrs. Grady and the bride-elect received the guests in the drawing room.

Tea was served in the dining room, where the table was lace-covered, and centred with a silver basket of deep red asters. Lighted ivory tapers in silver holders brought out the gleam of silver services, which were presided over by Mrs. T. Bacon, mother of the groom-elect, and Mrs. J. J. McCabe. Tea assistants were Mrs. E. Ainslie, Mrs. Leonard Foster, Miss Armine McCarthy and Miss Mary McGarth.

The trousseau and gifts were shown by Miss Grace Sharpe, Miss Grace Shaughnessy and Miss Mary McCabe. Miss Agnes Grady, sister of the bride-elect, welcomed the guests at the door.

Marshall—Wood

OMEMEE, Sept. 1.—The marriage took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Omemee, of Miss Cora Georgina Wood, daughter of Mr. Charles Wood and the late Mrs. Wood of Cobourg to Mr. James Bell Marshall of Cobourg, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall of Newcastle. Rev. James Young officiated.

The bride, who was unattended wore a gown of navy blue sheer with matching accessories and a corsage of orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left by motor for a trip to the coast.

Cassie—Anderson

The first wedding to be solemnized in the new Cambray United church was that of Eva Catherine Anderson, Cambray, who was married to Mr. George M. Cassie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Cassie, Peterborough. Rev. G. S. Maxwell officiated.

The bride was gowned in white sheer over satin, and carried a bouquet of gladioli. Miss Pearl Anderson was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of yellow sheer and carrying sweet peas.

Mr. Ivan Cassie of Huntsville was groomsman.

Following a motor trip to Muskoka the couple will live in Hillsburg.

We Noticed

....That lots of hair ornaments will be worn this season, and more earrings than for many a moon!

✧ ✧ ✧

....Crudely carved charms and bands of antique watch chains that serve as bracelets for jingling charms will be much to the foreground as costume jewelry this year.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Late autumn will see peak shoulders, a high throatline, and a movement towards hip-length jackets. Hats high, but tilted forward. Natural waist, double revers and full skirt slightly flared. Return of the peplum, which means slim waistlines.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Buttons, but big, almost the sie of doughnuts, and not much bigger than powder puffs, give the buttoned-down-the-front dress and jacket a new look. Not just plain buttons, but with frilled edges, and often made of fabric.

Guelph Girl To Sing American Opera

GUELPH, Sept. 1.—Adding to high laurels already won since she went to Hollywood three years ago, Ann Jamison, gifted Guelph soprano, has been chosen to replace Rose Bampton in the first all-American opera to be produced on this continent. Word has been received here that Miss Jamison will sing in "Gettysburg" in the first performance of the opera in the Hollywood Bowl on September 23.

Miss Jamison, who is scheduled to sing the roles of Musetta in Puccini's "Le Pelleas" and Yniold in Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande" with San Francisco Opera Company this autumn in both San Francisco and Los Angeles, will step into a leading role in the new opera.

Violet Influence

Violet to red tones—blue to violet—this entire family of muted or brilliant shades in which blues and reds are blended to varied degrees of prettiness or vitality glow through the Paris fashion reports.

They involve such shades as orchid pink, American Beauty, raspberry and other violet reds as Chanel interprets them. They are given a romantic phase by Adanse as her violet blue, pale Parma mauve and antique rose have royal names.

Pin-on Pocket Is "The Last Word"

The "pin-on" pocket seems to strike a new high in functionalism. It is described as the "floger-sprinkled leather pocket." You pin it on sports dresses, sweaters, any tailored clothes. The effect is of a sportsy boutonniere, but it goes much further than its decorative looks because it can do something; in short, it's a little pocket. You wear it or don't wear it and you wear it here one day and there the next. Alone for Monday, in pairs for Tuesday, and wherever it goes, it's still a pocket.

Rhoda L. Cullen Is Married In Trinity Church

Ferns and gladioli decorated Trinity United church for the wedding at ten o'clock this morning, September 1, of Rhoda Lillion, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cullen, 190 Charlotte street, who became the bride of William Arnold Parsons, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Parsons, Hastings. Rev. G. S. Easton officiated. Wedding music was played by Mr. Harry Northrop, organist of Mark Street church, and during the signing of the register Mrs. William Hepburn sang.

The bride wore a lovely gown of peach-bloom marquisette over taffeta with insets of lace, and a short, puff-sleeved bolero jacket. Her white shoulder-veil was caught with white gardenias, she wore white satin slippers and white lace mittens, and carried a graceful bouquet of Butterfly roses.

Miss Mildred Mullett was bridesmaid, frocked in Maris blue lace over satin, redingote style, with short, puff sleeves. She wore a white feather turban, white slippers and white lace mittens, and her corsage was of briarcliffe roses.

Mr. Edwin Parsons, brother of the groom, was best man.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Montreal, New York, Buffalo and Detroit. For travelling Mrs. Parsons wore a frock of navy sheer with pleated jacket and touches of white. Her accessories were navy. On their return the young couple will live at 193 Aylmer street.

Mrs. W. A. Millen Is Tea Hostess

In honor of her daughter, Miss Jean Millen, whose marriage takes place this week, Mrs. W. A. Millen, Waterford street, entertained at a delightful trousseau tea Tuesday afternoon and evening for over 100 guests.

Mrs. Millen and Mrs. R. Armstrong, mother of the groom-elect received with the bride-to-be, who was charmingly gowned in pale blue taffeta and corsage of sweet peas.

The rooms were decorated in pink and white, and bright with baskets of gladioli.

Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Pink, Mrs. M. Latimer and Mrs. A. W. Rutherford, Toronto, and the table was arranged with a lace cloth, pink candles in silver holders, and a centre bouquet of gladioli in a silver basket. Tea assistants were Mrs. Art Millen, Miss Dorothy Dodds, Miss Claire Killoran and Miss Jennie Butcher.

Mrs. Gordon Millen and Miss Phyllis Pink attended the door, and the trousseau and gifts were displayed by Miss Mildred Sutton, Mrs. L. Hiscox, Mrs. Vincent Millen, Miss Hilda Sutton, Mrs. G. Millen and Mrs. Art Millen.

England's dart craze is growing.

LOOK FOR THE GRADE MARK when you buy...

When ordering your beef, eggs, poultry, canned fruits and vegetables, and creamery butter, ask for the quality you want, by grade—then look for the grade mark on your purchase. When you buy by grade you buy with confidence.

BEEF

EGGS

GRADE A (three sizes: Large, Medium, Pullet), best quality, suitable for poaching, boiling, frying; GRADE B, good quality, slightly inferior to Grade A for poaching, boiling, frying, but entirely suitable for cooking purposes; GRADE C, lowest graded quality. (Grade A1, Large, Medium, Pullet, finest quality fresh eggs from Government inspected flocks, are available in limited quantities in certain localities.) Grade names are marked clearly on egg containers.

POULTRY

The Government grades of Poultry are GRADE "A" - GRADE "B" - GRADE "C"

GRADE A, superb birds, well-fleshed, especially fattened for tenderness and flavour; GRADE B, good birds but not as well-fleshed, fattened or flavoured as Grade A; GRADE C, lowest graded quality. Graded poultry may be identified readily by a coloured tag on the wing or breast of the bird — Red for Grade A — Blue for B — Yellow for C.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The Government grades of Canned Fruits and Vegetables are FANCY QUALITY - CHOICE QUALITY - STANDARD QUALITY

FANCY QUALITY, packed from a selection of the best fruit and vegetables available; practically uniform in maturity and free from blemishes; uniform in size and colour, canned at the proper time, so that excellence of flavour and appearance may be preserved. CHOICE QUALITY, packed from fruit and vegetables selected for tenderness and flavour. Not as uniform as "Fancy Quality;" allows slight variation in size, colour and maturity. STANDARD QUALITY, packed from fruit and vegetables of good quality but not necessarily meeting the higher grade requirements as to size, colour and maturity.

CREAMERY BUTTER

The Government grades of Creamery Butter are FIRST GRADE - SECOND GRADE - THIRD GRADE

FIRST GRADE—highest quality; excellent flavour; well made; smooth, waxy texture; uniform in colour. SECOND GRADE—usually imperfect in flavour; may be defective in texture or uneven in colour. THIRD GRADE — inferior to second grade in flavour, texture or colour.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Happiness is much more equally divided than some of us imagine. One man shall possess most of the material, but little of the thing; another may possess much of the thing, but very few of the materials. In this particular view of it, happiness has been beautifully compared to the man in the desert—he that gathered much had nothing over, and he that gathered little had no lack.—Colton.

Dear Friends:

Do you get the idea behind this quotation? Yet it is so very true. Some people go after the material things in life, like lots of money, much land, houses and the furniture inside these houses.

They fill their lives so full of these things, that there is no room left for the joy of living. I can never feel poor when I look at the much that someone else has, nor do I ever compare it with the little I may have. These, to me, are the non-essentials, they are only the means to an end.

Have you never seen a person, so taken up with the taking care of a home that they had no time to enjoy it? They go around with a duster in their hand, or a floor mop, ready to pounce on the least little atom which will mar this sort of perfection.

They do not possess their home, it possesses them. And it is the same with some men in their business, they have elevated it beyond all else, until it is a burden they cannot lay down. Even on vacation the business is with them, until they are no pleasure to themselves, and certainly none to those about them.

Our Lord said: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" And what will it profit anyone of us if we clutter up with so many of the material things, that our eyes and our thoughts never rise above them.

Things are necessary, but they have their place. If you are so taken up with your home or your business that you never have time to have friendly contacts with others, one day when you are truly in need of friendship, when you are starved for company, you will find either of these things cold and unresponsive to your needs.

Not so long ago a woman said to me, "Roberta I am a sad embittered woman."

I said "How come?". Then she told me about having a mania to own her own home. So she sacrificed everything to that end. Her husband could have had a better job in another city, but the home had to be paid for.

She could never have a vacation for taxes were always in the background. She did not only sacrifice herself, but her whole family had to pay the price also in never enough money for decent clothes, or adequate amusement.

And now, her husband was dead, her children married young, for they sought elsewhere the things and the joys she had denied them. So, she was left with her house on her hands, and she hated it with a large hatred. What pleasure was there in a lot of empty rooms, even although they were furnished?

She had chosen the shadow for the substance. And many of us do just that, although maybe not in the same way. Things, what are they? I told you before that no matter how many chairs you have, you can but sit on one at a time, and occupy one room at a time, and sleep on one bed and wear one dress or hat or coat.

And while your hands are full of things, you have no room in them to take the joy of living which God is handing out to you. I can be poor in a palace and rich in a cottage. I can own the whole world within my vision when the joy of life is with me.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

COLLEGE BENEFITS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (CP). — Radcliffe College is the chief beneficiary of the $75,000 personal estate of the late Miss Edith Mary Coe of Cambridge.

Here's What Smart Girls Will Wear This Fall

California, here we come — to choose some of your delectable fashions for autumn wear. If you are looking for clothes that are flattering, clothes with a sporty air or a picturesque look, as the need may be, then give more than a thought to the California designers.

The dress shown is of bottle-green wool angora. It has a zipper front fastening, sheer wool scarf of red, white and green plaid, and plastron buckle of embossed dull silver metal. Even so, the frock manages to look simple. The jade green felt hat has a green and red feather trim.

The coat shown is of brown, beige, burgundy and white checked wool. It is cut on rather straight lines, with a yoke back and front, and it is buttoned high at the neck with a fringed scarf of the material. The brown leather hat is stitched in brown with self-color grosgrain band and bow.

Cuts Her Tongue To Stop Nagging

KRIZHEVTSI, Yougoslav, Aug. 31—(CP)—Josip Lipovetz, tired of his mother-in-law's continual nagging, took matters into his own hands and is alleged to have cut her tongue. He said she was driving him to insanity.

The father-in-law said Lipovetz than attacked him "because I tried to defend my wife, although God knows I have stood more from her tongue in the last 30 years than anyone can imagine. But I have never lifted a hand against her." The woman is critically ill in hospital.

Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have been following your articles which have been a great help to me in more ways than one.

I would appreciate what suggestions you might have to offer in the line of a wedding breakfast—informal and buffet style—the wedding is scheduled for late August. Thanking you.—Mrs. C. N. C.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

The weather will probably influence you in choosing between these menus—that was my purpose in making them so diverse.

Informal Buffet Wedding Breakfast No. 1

Cider Punch
Olives Celery Nuts
Pressed Chicken Moulds (Individual or large) Mayonnaise
Cucumber, Potato and Celery Salad
Buttered Parker House Rolls
Chocolate Ice Cream with Orange Sauce
Cakes (Shortbreads, Chocolate Indians or Diamonds, Petit Fours)
Bonbons Coffee

Informal Buffet Wedding Breakfast No. 2

Fruit Punch
Creamed Chicken or Shrimps or Chicken a la King on Toast
Potato Chips
Tomato Cups filled with Green Peas and Ripe Olives
French Dressing
Whole Wheat Buttered Crackers
Cheese Straws
Peach or Pineapple Ice Cream
Salted Almonds
Lace Wafers Lady Fingers
Coffee

Cider Punch

One gallon new cider, 3 cups lemon juice, sugar and strained honey to sweeten, 4 quarts soda water just before serving. Pour this all over large cake of ice—a large scooped out watermelon skin makes an excellent punch bowl.

Orange Juice (for Chocolate Ice Cream—suitable for other frozen creams or puddings)

Grated rind ½ lemon, juice ½ lemon, ½ cup orange juice, 1-3 cup sugar, few grains salt, yolks, and whites 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix the grated rind, fruit juices, sugar, salt and yolks which have been slightly beaten. Put over double boiler and stir constantly until it thickens, then add gradually while beating constantly to whites of eggs which have been beaten stiff. Cool, then add flavoring and chill before serving.

Fruit Punch (Menu 2)

Nine oranges, 6 lemons, 1 cup grated canned pineapple, 1 cup raspberry or strawberry syrup, 1½ cups 3-minute tea, 1¼ cups sugar, 1 cup hot water, 1 quart white rock or soda water. Mix juices from oranges and lemons with pineapple and raspberry syrup and tea. Then add the syrup made by boiling the sugar and water together 5 minutes and cooling. Turn into punch bowl over large piece of ice. Chill well. Just before it is to be served add soda or white rock water.

We hope these suggestions help you in planning the wedding. Let me urge you to do everything possible to simplify food preparation, for it takes so much time to set the table, arrange the line, silver, chairs, flowers, etc. on the day of the wedding—and you should allow yourself some time for a rest before the event.

Write again if we can help you.

When Utopia is here and all a farmer has to do to let the countryside know that his windfall apples are yours for the asking—by shouting into his private microphone—then you will have plenty of apples for all the one-crust pies, new apple sauce, spiced apples and apples bettys I coax you into serving—plus

Okanagan Apple Marmalade:

To every 6 lbs. shredded apples add 6 lbs. granulated sugar, 3½ cups water, grated rind of 2 oranges, juice and grated rind 3 lemons, 2 level teaspoons fresh ground ginger. Bring to a boil the water and sugar and add rings and ginger. Let this simmer 5 minutes, then add the shredded apples. Allow to simmer over very low heat for 1 hour—this should not boil but merely simmer so that apples do not break up. Do not stir—if gas is used put asbestos pad under kettle. Chill thoroughly before using. As you will see this is actually a preserve—if you wish to bottle it, it must be sealed—paraffin will not do.

Serving Vegetable Dinner Which Will Be Relished

(By Mary Moore)

A bride of not-so-many months writes me in part:

"...Many a time I have tried serving a vegetable dinner because it is economical and 'good for us' but it never seems to be relished as much as a dinner is when built around a meat course. I've about come to the conclusion that it can't be done."

This is not a solitary complaint, as some of you know who have also written me along these lines. But she—and you—are wrong about that 'can't be done' for I've done it again and again and can tell you a few wrinkles if you'll lend me your ears for these few minutes.

With all the golden and other-colored harvest of vegetables in our markets and gardens these weeks, surely you just want me to prove to you that you are wrong and tell you how we have combined vegetables for dinners that make the boarders call for more.

First of all, I like to keep a few major rules in mind. Vegetables of the same consistency, like spinach and cabbage should not appear together. Choose vegetables offering a decided contrast in color and texture, such as tomatoes and string beans, or squash and corn. One easy way is to plan on a red or brightly colored vegetable—such as carrots, tomatoes, beets—and one green vegetable—beans, spinach, cabbage, broccoli, etc. Then you can fill in as your imagination dictates. Maybe something yellow, such as corn, summer squash, turnip, etc. And—a starchy vegetable—as potatoes, rice, cauliflower, lima beans, etc.

The simple method not only gives you an attractive vegetable plate but as a general rule it works out to a well-balanced meal from a nutritive standpoint.

Of course, one vegetable should be specially dressed up as the 'piece de resistance,' and you would not serve two baked stuffed vegetables—but let's look at a few methods of preparing them, and then discuss what combinations go well together.

First of all, a tasty way of preparing that almost-universal favorite, the tomato:

Devilled Tomatoes

Broil or panfry tomatoes, allowing three thick slices per person, and serve with this hot devil sauce.

Devil Sauce: 1 hard-cooked egg yolk, mashed, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, a litti emustard and black pepper. Mix these ingredients together in a saucepan and beat one minute. Add 1½ tablspoons vinegar place on stove and bring almost to boiling. Beat one raw egg, stir into hot mixture, until thick (about 1 minute). Serve hot. This recipe makes one half cup of sauce.

With the devilled tomatoes, you might serve corn on the cob, Swiss chard, and a baked stuffed potato—or look at the combination under Dinners of the Week in Monday's issue.

One day you will want to prepare a vegetable dinner in record time. That day, you'll be glad to have a recipe for Sauteed Sliced Eggplant handy. Here it is, then:

Sauteed Eggplant

Pare an eggplant, cut in quarter-inch slices, dredge with flour, salt and pepper and saute in hot fat. The slices should be cooked until they are crisp and a delicate brown, turning occasionally (cooking time about 15 minutes).

Another method is to soak the slices of eggplant in salt water (1 tablespoon to 1 pint) for an hour; or to sprinkle the slices with salt, pile one slice on top of another and cover all with a heavy plate. Let it stand 1 hour to extract some of the extra juices. Dry slices thoroughly before cooking. (From one eggplant you can get 10 to 12 slices).

Shoe-string carrots would go well with this, creamed cauliflower and boiled, buttered rice—none of them difficult to prepare nor requiring long cooking.

Crisp Sweet Peppers are plentiful on the market just now. Stuffed and baked they will give any dinner that certain something!

Stuffed Baked Peppers

Cut peppers in halves lengthwise and parboil in a small amount of boiling salted water. Stuff with a forcemeat made of 1 cup corn, 1 cup crumbs, 1 cup chopped ripe olives, 1 beaten egg. About 2 tablespoons of this mixture will be used for each stuffing. Cover bottom of a baking dish with hot water and bake for 30 minutes.

Try serving scalloped potatoes, buttered beets and greens with the peppers.

Red cabbages are something not often used by Canadian cooks except for pickling, yet they make a delicious vegetable when used as

Baked Red Cabbage

Prepare cabbage by cooking it first, shredded and cooked uncovered for 15 minutes in a large amount of boiling, salted water. It should be just tender. To preserve the color of the cabbage, 1 tablespoon vinegar may be added to the water for each cup of cabbage. Do not overcook as this develops a strong, undesirable flavor. For 6 portions, allow 2 pounds of cabbage.

After this first cooking, drain the cabbage, and reserve 1 cup of the liquid. Place one layer in a buttered baking dish. Make a mixture of: ½ cup seedless grapes, 2 cooking apples sliced, 1 small onion chopped, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¾ teaspoon salt.

Arrange this mixture in alternate layers with the cabbage, making top layer cabbage. Add cabbage liquid mixed with 1-3 cup claret, dot top with butter. Cover and bake in moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 1 hour. Sprinkle lightly with flour, mix with fork and bake uncovered for 15 minutes longer.

Baked Crumbed Marrow Rings

Wash, slice, pare and remove seeds from marrow. Dip in fine crumbs, egg and crumbs. Lay on buttered baking dish and sprinkle with paprika, and bake at about 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 minutes until marrow is tender, but not too soft to lift from pan.

See dinners of the week for menus using the above recipes and other interesting vegetable combinations.

IN MEMORIAM

DARLING. — In ever-loving memory of a dear Wife and Mother, Mrs. C. J. Darling, who departed this life, Sept. 1, 1924.

Calm and peaceful you are sleeping,
Sweetest rest has followed pain,
And we who loved you, sadly miss you,
But trust in God to meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by Husband, Sons and Daughter.

GARDNER. — In fond and loving memory of Mrs. Russel H. Gardner, who died Sept. 1, 1937.

Sweet is your memory, dear to our hearts,
The place you hold there will never depart.
For all through the years, be they many or few,
Will be filled with fond memories, dear Dorothy, of you.
—Lovingly remembered by Mrs. R. W. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miles.

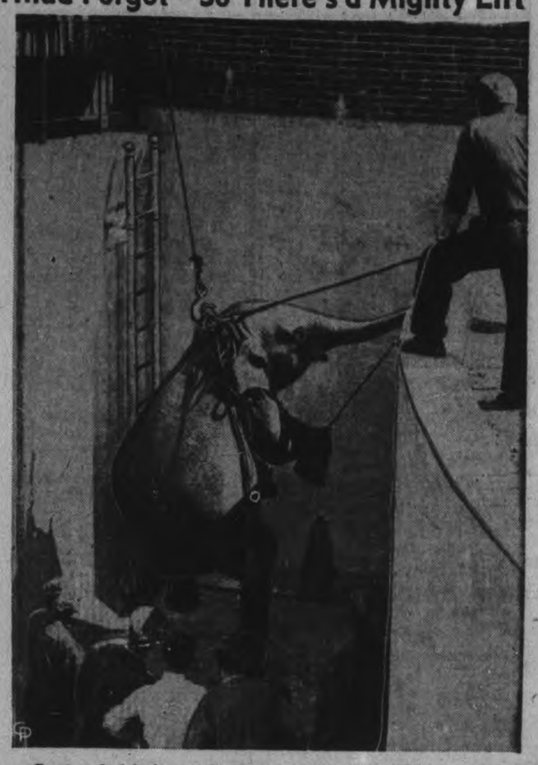
Hilda Forgot – So There's a Mighty Lift



Suspended between heaven and earth is Hilda, a pachyderm at the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn, N.Y., after she had demonstrated that an elephant can forget. Hilda forgot that there was a deep moat around the zoo pen, and Hilda fell therein. Keepers with a block and tackle got her out as shown. Some say that Bill, the bull elephant, pushed Hilda into the moat after a spat.

Record Attendance Visioned By C.N.E.

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Prospects were bright for a record-breaking year at the 60th annual Canadian National Exhibition went into its sixth day today aided by favorable weather forecasts and great spending crowds that have flooded through the huge $21,000,000 exhibition plant.

Fair executives marked women's and music day today with fashion shows and musical competition. Sir Ernest MacMillan, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, was guest speaker at the directors' luncheon.

Directors were hopeful last night's sudden rain storm that sent hundreds of thousands fleeing for shelter would not be repeated. Attendance yesterday totalled 103,000 directors said.

Sir Henry Page Croft, veteran Conservative member of the British House of Commons, told directors yesterday his wide travels in Canada and his inspection of the farm products on display at the exhibition convinced him Canada has great possibilities for the development of mixed farming and immigration should be renewed from Britain as soon as possible.

Cattle judging started today with the finest showing of cattle the C.N.E. has had in years. S. Foster agricultural superintendent, said the Holsteins on display were the greatest collection anywhere on the continent.

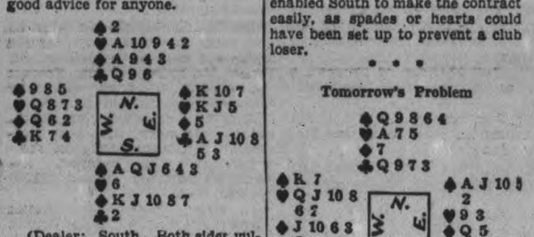
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

A RULE TO BE BROKEN

"DON'T lead away from a king" is a pretty good rule for openings against suit contracts, so long as the word "never" is not incorporated in it. At the proper time that rule is more honored in the breach than in the observance. "Know the rules and when to break them" is good advice for anyone.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

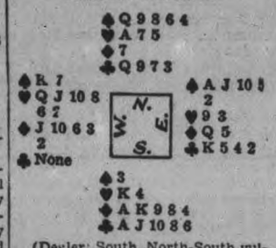
North and South reached a contract of 6-Diamonds on this deal after an opening bid of 1-Spade by South, 2-Hearts by North, 3-Diamonds by South, 4-Diamonds by North, 5-Diamonds by South and six by North.

West was "on the spot" for a lead. With hearts bid in the North and spades and diamonds in the South, a lead of any of those suits would apparently make an extra trick for declarer. He therefore decided to try the unorthodox lead away from three to the K of clubs.

This play prevented declarer from making his contract, as he played for a trump break and was set one. Any other lead would have enabled South to make the contract easily, as spades or hearts could have been set up to prevent a club loser.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is South's safest play to make his 5-Club contract, the heart Q being the opening lead?

Key To A Murder

JERUSALEM, Sept. 1—(CP-Reuters).—A British army rifle which came to Palestine some 20 years ago was found by a party of British troops searching a Bedouin encampment near Bethlehem for hidden arms. The search was a sequel to the murder Aug. 13 of Captain John Scott Howy, Royal Engineers. On the butt of the rifle was carved the words "Royal Scotts."

Wheat Growers Demanding Seed From New Variety As Rust and Hoppers Cut Yield

175,000,000 Bushel Crop Is Expected In West Thatcher Yielding Well

By ANDY McDERMOTT
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

REGINA Sask., Sept. 1.—Saskatchewan today is busy with the harvest, the first in five to nine years of drought. It will not be the harvest that June's miles of waving green promised—rust and grasshoppers have seen to that.

But Saskatchewan really hopes to harvest 175,000,000 of the 300,000,000 bushels she hoped for. Whether she will or not will be known sometime in late September, when tractors will stop their cough and chatter, threshers their hum, combines their whirr and the roar of the freight trains headed to eastern and western points will decrease.

But as every farmer threshes—or every farmer that has a crop to thresh—over and over in his mind today goes the refrain: "Next year I plant a rust resisting wheat."

Thatcher Yielding Well

That is the biggest lesson the Saskatchewan farmer got out of the 1938 nightmare. The death knell of the beautiful, bountiful Marquis and Reward wheats have been sounded. Rust, tiny spores that floated in on hot, vagrant breezes from across an international border they care nothing for, turned anticipated 40-bushel-to-the-acre fields into brown stained stalks that yielded only three to seven. Like an electric shock the word went through the countryside: "Thatcher isn't rusted! It will go to 30—35 bushels to the acre! Apex and Renown have beaten the rust too—and the early planted stuff is even outwitting the grasshoppers!"

Everywhere farmers met one another and predicted next year they would invest in Thatcher, Apex or Renown seed. Mostly they just thought of Thatcher, it was the best known.

Those three wheats, new words and brands to most farmers in the last two years, are the rust-resistant varieties developed by the Canadian government's special anti-rust laboratory. From a few bushels a few years ago there has grown more and more seed until, according to Manley Champlin, of the field husbandry division of the University of Saskatchewan, at Saskatoon, there cannot help but be sufficient stocks of rust-resistant wheast next spring to meet the requirements of all farmers in the rust areas...and that means three-quarters of the province's wheat growing area.

But there are many who fear that too much of the good wheat will find its way east to the Great Lakes ports and the sea, to be lost as seed. Demands grow for opening of government storage elevators at Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and even Churchill to hold seed.

Farmers are madly scrambling about in their districts trying to arrange for purchase or trade in order to get Thatcher wheat for next year. It is freely predicted the Thatcher will bring as high as $2 a bushel next spring, yet farmers who must sell at the elevators today in order to get money enough to live can only obtain 63 cents for it. But most of those who have any are trying their best to hold it.

Early Varieties Helped

Added to the farmers' desire to get rust resisting wheat is the knowledge that early planted varieties of this wheat proved too tough for even the grasshoppers this year. The 'hoppers, descending on the whole southern part of the province in a plague such as never seen before, ate their way through an estimated $20,000,000 to $25,00,000 worth of wheat—nearly double the amount damaged in any previous year. They stripped Reward wheat fields to the stems, chopped oats off like scythes, and took what Marquis the rust forgot.

They even cut into late-sown Thatcher wheat fields. One of the Regina plains areas biggest power farmers, who counts his fields by sections not acres, estimated the 'hoppers ate 15,000 bushels of his $1.50 a bushel Thatcher.

Complicating everything, the 'hoppers were so numerous they got into the combine threshers and the threshing machines, were chopped up and mixed into the grain. It meant a cut in the wheat grade so many farmers had to invest in expensive cleaning machinery or spend considerable having their grain cleaned. Manufacturers could not keep up to the demand for cleaners.

Not quite so well known as Thatcher the Apex wheat, developed by the University of Saskatchewan, may become even more in demand than Thatcher.

Says Marquis Doomed

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, one-time federal minister of agriculture, from his prize farm at Abernethy, Sask., has come out to join the popular swing to rust resisting wheats. "When a westerner's whole life, the well-being of his family ,and the entire trade of this province depend almost wholly on wheat, the farmer has no option but to buy the wheat that will bring him a return. Marquis must be forgotten. It was a good wheat, a grand wheat, one that really made this province the bread basket of the world. But it could not stand rust, so, like the worn-out farm horse, away with it! We must advance."

And now, with rust no longer a bogey ,everyone's eye in the west turns to the entomologist to solve the next major problem—elimination of the grasshopper. Already there is a growing movement to have the federal government set up a special laboratory to deal with that problem just as a laboratory turned to defeat rust.

Time alone can tell.

Love, Wine And Ponies O.K.'d By Wifey For Hubby's Vacation

London, Sept. 1.

RON WHYTE of South Australia is on vacation here and is going to have a good time—his wife has given a written permit to do so.

"This is to certify that I, Jackie, the legally wedded wife of Ron Whyte do hereby permit my husband to go wherever he pleases, drink when he pleases and whatever he pleases, and I furthermore permit him to keep and enjoy the company of any lady he sees fit, as I know he is a good judge. I want him to back horses and enjoy life in this world, for he will be a long time dead."

Thatcher Wheat Brings Smiles To Farmers' Faces

Their wheat crops cut by rust and grass-hoppers, Saskatchewan farmers are turning to Thatcher wheat, which has proved itself most resistant to the rust which destroyed other varieties. Hon. A. P. McNab, lieutenant-governor of the province, smiles at top from a waving field of Thatcher. It is Thatcher, too, that brings the smile to the farmer's face (at LEFT)—his crop is No. 1 Northern hard and going 30 bushels to the acre. At RIGHT two crews fork the sheaves into a threshing machine, proving that the more modern combine has not yet completely displaced the threshing gang.

Shorts 'So Darn Short' Leamington Worries

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Sept. 1.—(CP).—Women's shorts were "getting so darn short" that many citizens complained, Mayor Dan Kennedy said to-day in regard to action to ban shorts on streets on this Essex county town. Council passed a ruling Monday giving police committee power in the matter.

"I like to look at women as well as anyone else," Kennedy said. "I don't care how they look, but people are complaining—and there are lots of complaints."

Despite a sign at Seacliffe Park on Lake Erie warning bathers not to appear above a certain point in bathing suits, women and young girls were also parading about Leamington streets in swimming attire, Kennedy added. He said that, generally, women's summer styles on Leamington streets were conspicuous because "they are getting them whittled down pretty fine."

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh, boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two-quart container. While hot, add 1 to 1½ cups of granulated sugar and juice of 2 lemons, strained. Stir well until sugar is dissolved, fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chipped ice.

Thugs Kidnap Rancher's Wife At Coast

YUBA CITY, Calif., Sept. 2—(AP)—Two masked, roughly dressed young men kidnapped Mrs. W. R. Meeks, 55-year-old wife of a wealthy Sutter County rancher, from her home early today for $15,000 ransom, Sheriff Bert Ullrey reported.

Meeks said the kidnappers, one of them threatening him with a pistol, forced their way into his home shortly before midnight, bound both him and his wife and then ransacked the house.

They fled with Mrs. Meeks, in her husband's automobile, leaving the 58-year-old rancher bound hand and foot on his living room floor.

As they were leaving the house the pair stood over Meeks and demanded the ransom. He said they told him:

"We'll contact you in a couple of days for that fifteen thousand."

Notified of the kidnapping by the Associated Press, Federal Bureau of Investigation Agents left for the scene early today to join Sheriff's officers and the State Highway patrol.

It was the first kidnapping for ransom in northern California in nearly five years.

Manion Advises Better Planning

HALIFAX, Sept. 2 (CP). — Solution of Canada's economic problems requires planning by governments, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, national Conservative leader, said here last night in the second of a three-speech tour of the Maritimes. Today he left for Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Dr. Manion for the second time in two nights declared he would not be guided by advice from those who would have the Conservative party stand still. The party must stand for essential social and economic reforms if it were to justify itself. Along those paths, his leadership would take it.

"I am not suggesting planning as we know the word in Italy, Germany or Russia," he said. "I mean a methodical effort to give greater justice, to preserve our institutions, not to curtail our liberties. I am advocating no 'ism except good decent Canadianism."

Research into marketing problems and the greater use of the nation's resources would be planning. The troubles of Nova Scotia's fishermen might be alleviated. The spread in price between what the fishermen received and what the consumer paid is too great.

"It is a condition that must be corrected even if we have to jettison some machines," he said.

Third parties accomplished nothing in Canada, said Dr. Manion, in asking the Nova Scotia miners, who recently decided to affiliate to the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, and others to look over the ercord of Canada's smaller political groups. Reform would come easiest from within one of the old parties.

Sidney Back Rewed

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (A.P.). — Sylvia Sidney, the movie actress, and her new husband, Luther Adler, returned from England yesterday on the liner Champlain. They were married three weeks ago in London, where Adler was playing in "Golden Boy." Sylvia Sidney will stay here for the filming of the Works Progress Administration theatre show, "One Third of a Nation." She is the former wife of Bennett Cerf, publisher.

We Don't Know

WAYNESBORO, Va., Sept. 2—(A. P.). — Someone hurled a rock through the window at Fishburne & Sons' drug store. Hundreds of persons, eyeing the splintered glass, asked hundreds of questions. So the firm finally posted this sign above the hole: "We do not know who broke the window."

$10,000 Bet To See Race of Robert E. Lee Re-enacted Up Mississippi in Spring

St. Louis, Sept. 2.

A RIVER BOAT race with all the color and frills of the historic fight between the famous Robert E. Lee and the Natchez in 1872 is to be staged over the same course, New Orleans-to-St. Louis, early next spring.

It will be for a $10,000 purse—just a friendly bet—and an effort to smash the Robert E. Lee's record of 90 hours and 20 minutes. The distance is 1,154 miles.

The contest will put the fastest steamer on the Mississippi River, "The City of St. Louis," against the fastest river boat on the Pacific Coast, "Delta Queen," pride of the Stockton-San Francisco run.

All this became known today when Commodore Edward Koenig, owner of the steamer, City of St. Louis, announced his challenge had been accepted by the Delta Queen owners of Stockton, Calif.

Hitler and Henlein In Accord On Sudeten Question After 2-Day Conference

Berlin Heads Hint Dictator May Propose Internationally-Run Vote In Area; Runciman Reported Back Of Henlein Visit

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Sept. 2 (CP Havas))—"Perfect harmony" exists between Chancellor Hitler and Sudeten German leader Konrad Henlein on the Czechoslovak situation, an official communique announced today.

The official announcement said Hitler and Henlein had found themselves in complete agreement in their views of the crisis arising from the deadlocked Sudeten German-Czechoslovak autonomy negotiations.

Henlein left Berghof, the chancellor's villa, after a luncheon with Hitler which was attended by Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, and Marshal Herman Goering's aire-de-camp General Von Bodenschatz.

The communique made it clear Henlein had come to see Chancellor Hitler at the request of Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the Czechoslovak crisis. It said the peer had desired that his views on a possible Czechoslovak settlement be communicated to the Reich chancellor by the Sudeten German leader.

The communique read:—

"The fuehrer and chancellor received this morning at Obersalzberg Konrad Henlein who in compliance with Lord Runciman's request outlined to the fuehrer the negotiations between the Praha government and the Sudeten Germans.

"The fuehrer followed with the greatest interest the declarations of Henlein and at the end of the conversations it was noted that there was perfect harmony in their opinions on the present situation.

"Henlein, who was Chancellor Hitler's guest at luncheon, left Obersalzberg this afternoon."

A Vote on the Question

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(CP-Havas)—High Nazi political circles to-day asserted Chancellor Hitler may propose an internationally-controlled plebiscite to settle the conflict between the Sudeten Germans and the Czechoslovak Government.

They said the matter was being considered during conversations between Hitler and Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German pro-Nazi leader, at the Fuehrer's Berchtesgaden retreat.

Observers recalled that in the Saar Plebiscite controlled by the League of Nations the Nazi Regime won an overwhelming vote from the Saarlanders and the territory was annexed to Germany.

It was indicated the line of argument in favor of the Plebiscite was that negotiations had proved futile and that there was no outlet from the deadlock but to allow the Sudeten Germans to decide their own fate at the pools.

Political circles felt Germany has not the least doubt as to the outcome of such a Plebiscite and would welcome international control.

Other Questions To Handle.

It was of great importance, said this spokesman, that the Czechoslovak question be solved, and promptly because "England, France and Germany have bigger and more important questions to handle, but each time statesmen get together, the Czechoslovakian question emerges and disturbs all efforts of work for the benefit of all Europe."

(Britain and France have feared that Germany might force a war in aiding the Sudeten Germans. Germany is known, however, to

Italian Schools Are Closed To All Jews

ROME, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Italian government to-day excluded Jews from State-recognized schools, universities and all academies, institutes and associations of science, arts and letters.

The decree, announced after a meeting of the cabinet, imposed the first restriction on the participation of Jews in the life of the nation since the expulsion, ordered yesterday, of foreign Jews coming to Italy since 1919.

To-day's decree applies to both teachers and students.

Jewish graduates of secondary schools may continue studies in universities "in a transitory manner" the decree said.

That was the only exception. The enrolment of Jewish students in any grade of an educational institution recognized by the State was otherwise forbidden.

The curtailment of cultural activities of Jews was expected in further restrictions which, the decree indicated, would be imposed by the Fascist Grand Council when it meets Oct. 1.

U.S. Forms Fleet For Atlantic

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The United States Navy is designating 14 warships as an Atlantic squadron, giving the east coast its first organized sea force in nearly seven years.

The new squadron becomes effective September 6 under command of Rear Admiral Forde A. Todd. It will consist of seven cruisers and seven destroyers.

The Navy announced last night this would be a temporary arrangement to prepare for general manoeuvres next year, and to visit "such ports as are designated." No ports were named.

The general manoeuvres will bring the main fleet of about 150 warcraft from the Pacific to the Atlantic for war games involving defence of the Panama Canal. The fleet was moved to the Pacific during the 1931-1932 Sino-Japanese crisis and has remained there except for a visit to New York in 1934 for a presidential review.

The 14 ships in the new squadron were completed only recently and had been assigned to the main fleet in the Pacific. The order left the way open for speculation whether a revision of defence strategy was in prospect and whether European tension influenced the decision.

Britain Feels Poles Out On War Plans

Desire Neutral Policy, Think She'll Wait Try To Pick Winner

LONDON, Sept. 2—(AP)—Great Britain was understood today to be seeking a new understanding with Poland in what was interpreted in some quarters as an effort to persuade Germany to adopt a policy of moderation in Central Europe.

A pro-British or neutral Poland, informed quarters felt, would be invaluable to the Anglo-French cause in any dispute with Germany.

This was thought to be the main reason for recent visits of the British charge D'affaires to Colonel Joseph Beck, Polish Foreign Minister, in Warsaw, and the visit Wednesday of the Polish charge D'affaires to Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary.

Wedged between Russia and Germany, Poland would be in a difficult position in any major European conflict, it was pointed out. Poland has a 10-year friendship agreement with Nazi Germany, but belief was expressed in informed London quarters that the main Polish hope in a war would lie in choosing the winning side.

No Saturday Surprise

The London Press seemed somewhat more confident Hitler was not preparing a "Saturday surprise" for this week-end. General opinion seemed to be the German Chancellor would permit Czech-Sudeten German negotiations to resume but with some reservations.

The urgency of the international situation has stirred British Labor leaders. The General Council of the Trades Union Congress and the National Executive of the Labor Party will meet Wednesday in Blackpool with executives of the Parliamentary party. It was suggested they might ask for an early meeting of the House of Commons.

Robert Boothby, Conservative member of Parliament, wrote a letter to the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) advocating a formal and immediate consultation among Britain, France and Soviet Russia on the Czechoslovak situation. He suggested also that "the President of the United States be kept informed of any decisions that may be jointly made."

Operates Own Farm

Davis Dismissed In Surprise Move

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (A.P.). — Defence counsel in the racket conspiracy trial of James J. Hines caused surprise to-day by dismissing J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, a star witness for the State and the man who "put the finger" directly on Hines, without asking a question beyond yesterday's five-hour cross-examination.

"No further cross-examination," Defence Attorney Lloyd Striker said crisply as court convened.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, taken aback at first, said he also was finished with the witness.

Thus the dapper Dixie, 33-year-old former "kid mouthpiece" of the multi-million dollar Dutch Schultz "policy empire," disappeared from the courtroom drama after one of the shortest cross-examinations of a major witness for the prosecution.

Lindbergh Leads U.S., Czech Officials Merry Chase At Praha Field

Praha, Sept. 2.

COLONEL Charles A. Lindbergh entertained Praha with unexpected airplane stunts today when he landed here from Olmuetz, where foggy weather had held him overnight.

As he was taxing after landing here with Mrs. Lindbergh, the flier twice raced his plane across the field with four automobiles bearing Czechoslovak and United States officials in pursuit.

Without lifting his plane, Lindbergh managed to evade about 500 Czechoslovaks who broke through a small police guard and chased the plane with bouquets and presents.

Durham's Oldest Active Farmer Operates Own Farm At Age Of 81

(By Staff Reporter)

JANETVILLE, September 2. — Oldest active farmer in all Durham county, and one of Ontario's oldest for that matter, is William Anderson, 81, who operates a 100-acre farm on the outskirts of Janetville. He has no help other than his brother Harry, who is 72.

"I've never been sick in my life," is Billy Anderson's boast. Robust, tanned, with a handclasp like taut steel, he says he is as vigorous now as he was a quarter of a century ago and he hopes to continue as much longer.

He and his brother work about forty acres of land, lease the remainder in pasture. Together they do all the farm work—tilling and planting and harvesting and feeding their live stock—and on top of that Billy does all the housework. He even cooks the meals.

These men know no reason for their robustness other than that they started to work young and have never got out of the habit of it. "I've been ploughing ever since I was a litte gaffer no higher than the plough handles," said Billy.

Thursday afternoon Harry Anderson was away when an Examiner reporter called at the farm. "He went to Bethany yesterday and he isn't back yet," said Billy. 'I guess he's taking a few holidays." But Harry came back before the afternoon was out—driving a horse and buggy.

The two Andersons have lived in the vicinity of Janetville all their lives, are sons of pioneer settlers in that district. They have lived together on their present farm for the past 55 years. Billy's wife died two years ago and his daughter is away in Toronto. Harry has lived there all that time.

They were born a mile east of Janetville of Irish-Canadian parentage. The McGills came in 1832 and "father sailed from Ireland in 1847," said Billy. Only two houses in all the Janetville of to-day were the same as when he was a boy. "Most of the houses then were shacks, but it was a good sized village at that," he said.

The Andersons' farm is not going to rack and ruin because it is cared for by two old men. On the contrary there are flowers planted all about the house and the entire farm has an air of neatness about it as though it were receiving gentle care from a matser who had long ago learned to love it.

Mexico's cotton industry may have a 34-hour week.

Spy Executed

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—(AP).—Ernst Weisser, 36, was executed today for spying into State secrets and theft. The People's Court sentenced him to death June 16. For the first time in the history of the court, the exact nature of the offence was revealed, as Weisser was accused of stealing the mechanism of the latest German development in munitions with the intention of selling it to an unnamed foreign government.

German, Italian Films Split Highest Award

VENICE, Sept. 2—(CP-Havas).—Over the protests of the British and United States delegates, the highest award for 1938 motion pictures—the Mussolini gold cup—has been given by the International Film Festival's Jury to a German and an Italian film.

Walt Disney's fantasy "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was awarded the grand trophy "Hors Concours"—outside of competition—because of its special character.

The Mussolini cup was divided yesterday between the German film "Olympia"— a documentary review of the 1936 Olympics—and the Italian motion picture "Luciano Serra Pilote," directed by Premier Mussolini's son Vittorio.

Neville Kearney, the British representative, and Harold Smith, the United States delegate, resigned from the jury in protest against award of the Mussolini cup to "Olympia."

Two cups donated by the Italian Fascist party were awarded to "the adventures of Tom Sawyer, a United States film ,and an Italian picture on the life of Giuseppe Verdi.

The Volpi cup for the best performances—given by Count Giuseppe Volpi of Italy, who presided at the Festival—was awarded to Norma Shearer, native of Montreal, for her portrayal of Marie Antoinette in the picture of the same name and to Leslie Howard for his acting in the British film "Pygmalion," based on George Bernard Shaw's play.

Sisters Play With Death—One Hurt In Fatal Crash—Other Saves A Man

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 2 (C.P.).—Less than 12 hours after 26-year-old Willa Culbert of Lucan, Ont., heroically pulled a man from a flaming car, her younger sister Eva was injured early to-day in another automobile accident in which a man was killed and two other persons injured.

The older Culbert girl was driving along the highway at nearby Centralia when she came upon a ditched and blazing automobile driven by Joseph Carruthers, 42-year-old Parkhill district farmer. The girl switched off the motor and pulled Carruthers from the machine. Carruthers was taken to hospital where his condition is serious.

Eva Culbert was injured shortly after midnight when a car in which she was a passenger failed to negotiate a curve. Fred Rumsey of London, a telegraph operator, was killed when the car hit a tree. Miss Culbert, Jack O'Keefe of London, and Ellen Austin of London were injured. Miss Culbert's condition was reported as serious. Rumsey died in the ambulance on the way to hospital.

The accident in which the 23-year-old Miss Culbert was injured occurred on the highway just outside of London.

St. Gregoire Mourns After Slide Kills 4

ST. GREGOIRE DE MONTMORENCY, Que., Sept. 2 (CP).—A sea of knee-deep mud holding part of the wreckage of two dwellings was all that remained today of a landslide that swept 250 feet down the steep cliff ove rthis little town of 3,000 and killed three women and a child.

The two buildings, housing 10 families and nearly 60 persons, were crushed early yesterday in the worst landslide in the history of the district, six miles east of Quebec on the St. Lawrence River and in the shadow of the flood-swollen Montmorency Falls.

The death-laden sweep of the hundred tons of rain-soaked earth and stone swept the foundations from under the buildings and left them a crumpled heap of splintered wood and broken plaster and brick. The wreckage yielded the bodies of the four victims within six hours after the tragedy struck at 4.30 yesterday morning.

The four victims were Mrs. Patrice Delisle, 30, whose husband was stunned by the falling debris, and a daughter of a few months, Gloriosa Lachance, 20, and Mrs. Corantin Audet, whose daughter of a day survived the crash.

The spider spinning a web on a rose bush, finished the words, "kill my—," but failed to complet the sentence. The design was nine inches long and a quarter-inch wide, Gortner said.

N.S. Distress No Fake Says Writer

Stories Too Moderate To Do Justice He Answers Premier

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP)—Norman MacLeod, member of the Ottawa press gallery, last night made the following statement regarding criticism by Premier MacDonald of Nova Scotia of MacLeod's writings at "Rideau Banks" dealing with conditions in the eastern province:

Having regard to the conditions which I witnessed at first hand among the fishermen and miners of Nova Scotia, I now make the carefully considered statement in reply to Premier MacDonald that, in my opinion, the articles which I wrote were, if anything too moderate in their tone to do justice to the situation. In that respect, they stand in rather noteworthy contrast to Premier MacDonald's statement, which I cannot regard as anything other than an amazing document, which will yield its fullest measure of surprise and mystification to the people of Nova Scotia.

I did not overdraw the Nova Scotian picture. Neither, I am pleased to add of my own volition, did Mr. Harold Dingman, whose excellent articles I have read. And neither has Mrs. Evelyn Tufts, my other press gallery colleague, who has written extensively on conditions in the fishing and mining villages.

Like Mr. Dingman, I come under Premier MacDonald's condemnation for not having visited "a single government department nor a single government official to ascertain the facts." Like Mr. Dingman, I went to the fishermen and miners themselves. Similarly, if the parliament buildings were burning, I would not go down to the Ottawa fire chief's office for my story; I would go to the fire itself.

This One Was Right.

Premier Macdonald refers to my articles as being as inaccurate as my prophesies in the provincial general election in 1933 in which his government was returned to power. I covered that campaign and prophesied Mr. Macdonald's election. I well remember that fact because so often my predictions have failed to govern the subsequent results that the occasions on which I have been right are engraven in my memory.

I might say in conclusion that I have received a considerable correspondence as a result of my Nova Scotia articles from fishing, mining and other interests to which I attributed—along with provincial and federal government inactivity—responsibility for conditions existing. While some have sought to disclaim my reasoning in their case, none has contended that I exaggerated the distress which prevails.

My articles have been non-political. They were done to serve no ultra interest. What I wrote was simply my independent testimony as an eye-witness—testimony which Mrs. Tufts and Mr. Dingman, both competent and, I fully believe, impartial observers have strongly supported."

Urge South Ontario Try Reforesting

BOURGET, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP).—A general program of reforestation in the southern parts of Canada was forecast here last night by Roy Cameron, director of the Dominion Forest Service, mines and resources department, speaking at a banquet closing the first forestry field day in Prescott and Renfrew counties.

The time is coming when it will be cheaper to grow wood in the southern parts of the Dominion near the mills than to go into the north, cut the supplies and bring them to mills, he said. The program would mean the application of timber reproduction through reforestation and the low sand areas and poor farms near the mills would be put to productive uses in growing timber.

He said that one third of the timber making up Canada's lumber output in 1930 came from farmers' woodlots. Wood should be considered as another crop from the farms and an important feature of the national economy.

W. H. Porter of London, Ont., secretary of the Ontario conservation association, urged aggressive campaign for reforestation and said "the forests we have saved should be just symbols of what every farmer should be doing on his own farm."

Kennedy Holds U.S.-British Example Of Settlements As Tip To Europe

ABERDEEN Scotland, Sept. 2. (AP).—Joseph Kennedy, United States ambassador, gave Europe's leaders a tip today—to follow the example of Great Britain and the United States in settling their differences.

He expressed confidence that Anglo-American devotion to the principle of "good natured settlement" would "keep us out of war."

His reference was to settlement of British and American claims over Canton and Enderbury Islands in the South Pacific by which both countries decided to use them in common.

"Fighting, whether called war or not, and threats of fighting come from the impatience and inability of leaders to work out pacific settlements," Mr. Kennedy said.

"They are unwilling or unable to keep hold of the past while marching toward the future."

Mr. Kennedy made a plea for renewal of faith and spiritual courage in the world in his address at the church ceremony.

"It appear to me that we have come to a point where spiritual values have so declined in men that incentive is disappearing," he said. "We must reawaken the flame of faith and spiritual courage which has always enheartened men of right vision in the world's history."

The ambassador laid the cornerstone of a memorial to Bishop Samuel Seabury, who was consecrated Bishop of Connecticut Nov. 11, 1784, in Aberdeen. The ceremony at St. Andrew's Cathedral of the Scottish Episcopal Church marked the bond betwen the Scottish Episcopal Church and the American Episcopal Church dating from that time.

Serb Lass Weds 2nd Choice Hubby In Rush When Juggling Peeves Ottawa

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—(CP). — Marko Oreskovich, husky driller in the McIntyre mine at Schumacher, Ont., married Anka Oreskovich, 19-year-old Serbian immigrant girl, here to-day after winning her freedom from a deportation order.

"I am glad," said the tall young bride in her brand new English. Immigration authorities at Ottawa lifted the deportation order when Oreskovich, who is no relation to his bride of the same name, satisfied them his desire to marry the girl was bona fide.

Anka came to Canada to marry another man, but changed her mind when she saw Oreskovich. Her betrothed, however, had posted the $250 bond required to allow prospective brides into the country, and the immigration department told Anka she would be sent back to Jugoslavia if she failed to marry the man who brought her here.

Marko, however, was not easily defeated. He appealed the deportation order ot Ottawa. When he told authorities he would go to Jugoslavia with her and marry her there if she was deported, the immigration department was satisfied.

Detained here since being brought from Timmins, Ont., last week, Anka walked out of immigration dete ntion qaurters a free woman to-day. Dressed in the white clothes she had purchased in Schumacher for her wedding, Anka went right to the Slovak mission where Father Felix C. Felicko married them in the Roman Catholic faith.

Central Bank For Eire Districts Opposed By Irish Bankers

DUBLIN, Eire, Sept. 2—(CP). — Irish bankers are opposed to creation of a central bank in the former Free State area, one of the recommendations of the Commission of Banking Currency and Credit.

The commission endorsed the advice of its predecessor in 1926 that there should be a central banking authority to watch monetary and finacial considerations and give counsel to the government generally. Some of the functions of a central bank are at present exercised by the Currency Commission but the Banking Commission considered the Currency Commission in its present form was not adapted to wider tasks of monetary responsibility.

Besides acting as a watch-dog on Government financial activities, the new central bank would take all necessary steps to maintain parity of the Irish pound in sterling. It was recommended that the wider responsibilities should be entrusted to a reconstituted currency commission, the name of which should be changed to denote authority the new body should exercise.

Irish bankers, although welcoming recommendations that they should have a greater say in financial policies, oppose the Central Bank idea. Lord Glenavy, for the Bank of Ireland, has pointed out that seven of the Irish banks operate throughout the whole 32 counties of Ireland, an arrangement, he claims, is wholly beneficial to the general public. If a central bank in the 26 counties tried to introduce different principles from those now operating in Ireland as a whole it might prove impossible in a short time for banks to continue to do all-Ireland business.

Textile Strike Worries France

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(AP).—A strike of 14,000 textile workers in Amiens to-day added to the problems faced by the French cabinet already perturbed over the International crisis and workers' opposition to lengthening the 40-hour week.

Protesting against proposed pay cuts ranging from 11 to 19 per cent, the Amiens employees refused to begin work and occupied several large factories. Company representatives said the reductions were necessary to keep the plants running.

At Lille 800 muncipal street car emplcyees refused to begin service. Residents were forced to walk to work. The dispute concerned the

Coroner Orders Nine Held In Jail Deaths

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—(AP)—A "blue ribbon" coroner's jury was asked today to hold for grand jury action on charges of criminal negligence two top-ranking officials and at least six guards of the Philadelphia county prison where four convicts baked to death in a punishment "klondike."

Deputy Coroner Vincent Moranz, charging the jury of six business men and clubwomen at the conclusion of a two and a half-day inquest, specifically asked that the following be held:

Superintendent William B. Mills, Deputy Warden Frank Craven, Guard Captain James McGuire, Guard Sergeant James Hart, and Guards Francis Smith, Alfred Brough, Robert Morrow and William J. Borbridge.

Moranz also instructed the jury to consider carefully the testimony of three other guards and to hold them for grand jury action if it considered them involved in the deaths. These were Joseph Lippo, Edward Corkery, and Samuel James.

The Deputy Coroner told the jurors, however, to exonerate the guards if they were found only to have been acting under orders in turning on the heat in the punishment building.

Three 'Tory' Ridings An Ottawa Problem

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 (CP). — The Federal government today was faced with the problem of completing the House of Commons membership by holding by-elections in four constituencies—three of which have not returned a straight Liberal candidate for a full term n 30 years.

Death of David Beaubier, Conservative member for Brandon, in his home city yesterday increased the Commons' vacancies to four. There have been reports that the government plans to hold the by-elections late this fall.

Brandon was represented by Mr. Beaubier since 1930 and before that by Progressive, Liberal-Progressive and Conservative members back to 1908 when the late Hon. Clifford Sifton, minister of interior, last won it for the Liberals in a general election.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, present minister of mines and resources, was the Brandon member for a few months in 1930 following a by-election.

The London riding was opened when Major F. C. Betts, the Conservative member, drowned on a fishing trip last spring. It has been Conservative since 1907. Rumors persist that Conservative leader Manion will seek a seat in the Commons by running in this constituency.

Waterloo South was made vacant when Alex. Edwards, another Conservative died during the last session of parliament, and it has been predominantly Conservative since the turn of the century.

The fourth riding where a by-election will be held is Montreal-Cartier which has been represented since it was created in 1925 by the late Samuel W. Jacobs, a Liberal.

'Apart from speculation on by-elections, appointment of W. Charles Folliott, prominent Western grainman, to the Canadian grain board succeeding A. M. Shaw and the decision of Defence Minister Mackenzie to hold a judicial inquiry into the Bren machine gun contract with the John Inglis Company of Toronto were topics of political interests here.

New Recruits Report

MOSCOW, Sept. 2—(AP).—The Red army's new recruits—the class of 1917 and part of 1918—reported for duty today.

The aggregate number was not revealed, but the army paper Red Star said 10,000 of them could fly airplanes and use parachutes, having learned this during spare time as civilians. They will serve two years.

PLANE ATTACKED BY EAGLE

Diving 1,000 feet, an eagle attacked a large passenger plane flying at 10,000 feet in a mountainous region of New Guinea, and badly dented a metal wing of the machine.

Portneuf Tragedy Costs $400,000

PORTNEUF, Que., Sept. 2.—(CP)—This St. Lawrence Valley town of 2,000 resumed its normal state of quiet today after 24 hours tragedy and confusion, brought on by floods that caused the loss of seven lives and damage of at least $400,000.

The narrow Portneuf River which divides the winding, hilliside settlement on the St. Lawrence north shore, coursed again harmlessly and almost at its usual level, after a sudden, violent rise on the heels of torrential rain.

The heavy rainstorm struck quickly late Wednesday and in a few hours had transformed the river into a turbulent current, sweeping bridges, homes and even roads before it.

Three railroad bridges collapsed or were broken by the flood and into a small ravine one of them spanned plunged part of an express train with death to engineer and fireman.

The surging water a few yards further on tore from its foundations a small wooden home and took the lives of Mrs. George Marcot, 45; Rose Alma Marcot, 20; Briget Marcot, 7; and a 10-month-old baby.

In the derailment of the train after washout of a culvert on the Canadian Pacific Railway between Montreal and Quebec, Engineer Ovide Carrie and Fireman Donat Jobidon died. Several passengers were injured and four were brought 40 miles to hospital at Quebec.

Moved To Kingston

CALGARY, Sept. 2 (CP).—Col. C. V. Stockwell, D.S.O., adjutant and Quarter-Master General for military district 13 in Alberta for the past three years, has been appointed to command the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery Brigade with headquarters at Kingston, Ont. He will leave for the eastern station at the end of October.

Col. Stockwell will be succeeded here by Lieut.-Col. M. K. Green, at present commanding the Royal Canadian Regiment at London, Ont.

Moscow, Russia, now has 2,520,146 registered voters.

"Mistaken Identity," Hines' Plea

Carney Hines

When witness after witness in the policy rackets trial of James J. Hines, New York Tammany leader, had marched to the stand and sworn to having seen Hines in the company of Gang Overlord "Dutch" Schultz. Hines lawyers indicated that their defence may be "mistaken identity." They may seek to convince the jury that the man whom prosecution witnesses identified as Hines was actually Larry "The Deacon" Carney, a former member of the Schultz mob. Carney has not been located for the trial. Here are pictures of Carney and Hines for comparison.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 2 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures sagged late to-day for the fifth consecutive session and again made new lows for five years. Dealings were dull and volume of business small.

At the final bell futures were ⅝ to ¾ cent down, October 60⅝, November 60½, December 59, and May 63¼ to ⅝.

Canadian export sales were estimated at 300,000 bushels, including stocks out of Vancouver. Export orders were below those of yesterday and there appeared to be little inducement to stir outside buyers.

Selling, believed largely hedging sales, increased slightly in late trading. Intermarket spreading and other dealings were drab.

Stories Of 10,000 Starving Fishers By Ontario News Writer Gets Scotia Premier's Dander Up

HALIFAX, Sept. 2 (CP).—Premier Angus L. Macdonald expressed resentment yesterday against "these inaccurate representations of conditions in this province by uninformed and ill-advised outsiders."

"If one reads certain Nova Scotian newspapers nowadays he will be lead to believe that all the poverty the misery, the distress, the squalor of Canada is concentrated in Nova Scotia," said the Premier, speaking at a meeting of the Nova Scotia Women's Liberal association.

"Some of our native journalistic ogres, not satisfied with their own home-made brand of frightfulness, are now receiving a measure of aid from two wandering journalists from Ontario—of all places—who have come down here to tell us what is wrong with us and with our province.

"One of these, Mr. Harold Dingman, represents the Toronto Globe and Mail. He had been in the province only a few days when he discovered and proclaimed to the world that 10 thousand people in our Nova Scotia fishing villages were on the verge of starvation.

Often Given Loans

"Let me say this: no one in Nova Scotia or out of it desires more keenly than I do the improvement of the lot of our fishermen. Repeatedly the present government has interested itself in the fishing industry, though that industry is entirely outside of the province's scope and is regulated and controlled by the federal government. In co-operation with the federal authorities we have given loans for the past two years to needy fishermen to provide themselves with gear and equipment. Out of our own funds entirely we gave last year a bonus to those engaged in the salt fish industry.... These matters are not referred to by Mr. Dingman, who has never visited a single government department nor, so far as I know, a single government official to ascertain the facts. I challenge the accuracy of his figures, and anyone who knows Nova Scotia will say that his figures are grossly inaccurate.

Some Dispute.

"They are as unreliable as his interview at Terrence Bay with a man whom he called a fisherman, but who actually has not been physically able to do any real fishing for years, who does not own a boat, and who is a war casualty....They are as unreliable as his statement that it took weeks of haggling with the Provincial Government to have relief provided in Thorburn, when, as a matter of fact, relief was arranged for within one hour of the first and only visit to the Government of a relief delegation from Thorburn."

The Premier continued: "They are as unreliable as his statement that I received a cold reception at the miners' convention in Truro (N. S.), when the fact is I was not at the convention at all.

"Another journalist writing in The Saturday Night of August 20 under the name of 'Rideau Banks' makes statements regarding the fishing industry that are equally at variance with the facts. They are just about as wide of the mark as the prophecies which he made in this province prior to the 1933 provincial election."

(The Macdonald administration first came to power in Nova Scotia in the election of 1933.)

"Rideau Banks declares that no Government has attempted to develop the tourist attractions of this province except in a perfunctory way.

Praise for Roads.

"Almost on the same day that the Saturday Night article was being written, Mr. A. B. Conant of Boston, who is a director of the Eastern Steamship Lines, has this to say: Remarkable progress has been made since I visited this province two years ago. Your paved highways alone will undoubtedly pay you big dividends in tourist travelling. They represent a good job and you should be proud of them.

"What lies behind all this unfair blackening of the name of Nova Scotia? I do not know. It is known however, that The Globe and Mail correspondent has been seen frequently in the company of a member of the Halifax Herald's staff. And it is evident from the articles that both the Globe and Mail correspondent and the Saturday Night writer rely on, if they are not actually inspired by, what they read in the Herald."

A few short weeks ago the world seemed a cruel place to 16-year-old Ruth Hilder Somer. She had been forced to flee her home in Austria and seek refuge from Nazi persecution in America. But even before her arrival she found that America is indeed "the land where dreams come true." Eddie Cantor, movie and radio star, heard Ruth play the piano at a ship's concert while coming over on the S.S. Normandie. He signed her to a contract to appear in his next motion picture.

Dutch Girl Quilted By Fraserville W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FRASERVILLE, Sept. 2. — The Women's Association held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Moncrief on Wednesday with a good attendance.

The quilting of a little Dutch girl quilt, took up the first part of the afternoon, after which the president Mrs. W. A. Wood, called the meeting to order. A hymn, "He Leadeth Me" was sung, with Jean Holden at the organ. Mrs. B. Seabrook read a Psalm and Mrs. J. O Pue, secretary, read the minutes and the roll call was taken to which eleven members answered present The business period followed, after which supper was served. The collection was taken and the meeting brought to a close.

Among those present were: Mrs. W. A. Wood, Mrs. B. Seabrook, Mrs. Kidd, Mrs. K. Moncrief, Mrs. J. O. Pue, Mrs. Downs, Mrs. S. Hogg, Mrs. Colon, Mrs. A. Hewitt, Mrs. B. Cunningham, Mrs. W. Moncrief, Miss Jean Holden, Mrs. E. Shortt of Peterborough, Mrs. W. McIlroy, Keene, Mrs. Kenneth Syer and Mrs. Pritchard of Cavan.

Mill Rates Set By Cavan Council

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 2. — Cavan Council met in regular session on Wednesday at 8 p.m., Reeve W. A. Wood presiding, and all members present.

A communication from the Workmen's Compensation Board was read by the clerk, informing council of the position of municipalities under the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Deputy-Reeve G. Shield introduced by-laws to levy rates and taxes and also to raise special school rates for the year 1938.

Quebec Floods Take 14 Lives

Torrential rainstorms in the province of Quebec were blamed for the death of 14 persons at three different points. When the Portneuf River, west of Quebec city, flooded and washed away their home, a woman and five of her 10 children were drowned. At Portneuf village the raging waters washed out a railway bridge, derailing a fast train and killing two of the crew; at St. Gregoire de Montmorency, nine miles east of Quebec, and in the shadow of the famous Montmorency Falls, floods undermined an apartment house and brought it tumbling down upon its sleeping occupants. Five were known dead and two score were injured or unreported. The Montmorency Falls and the area immediately surrounding it, over which the flood waters raged, is shown ABOVE; the map indicates where the tragedies occurred.

Young's Point Honors Miss Mary Hatton

(Examiner Correspondence.)

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 2.—Miss Mary Hatton, who leaves next week to take charge of a school at Sandy Lake near Buckhorn, was guest of honor at a shower which was given in St. Aidan's Parish Hall, Young's Point, by the members of the Women's Auxiliary on Tusday evening.

A large basket, which proved to be filled with a variety of lovely gifts was carried in by little Miss Betty Scollard and Master Jimmy Johnston and placed before the guest of honor. Rev. E. C. Moore in his kind and loving manner presented the gifts to Mary.

Progressive euchre was played during the evening and refreshments were served by the ladies of the W.A.

Car Turns Over On Hastings Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 2.—A car driven by Allan Oakley, Asphodel township turned over twice just outside the village limits, when the driver missed a corner, resulting in minor cuts and bruises to its six occupants. They were said to be going to a show in Campbellford. Arnold Lobb was the only occupant knocked unconcious. The car is believed a total wreck. Other occupants were: James and Jack Moore and Walter and Harold Edwards.

Arabian Weds Missouri Lass, Faces Jail As Parents Fear Harem In Store

St. Louis, Sept. 2.

AGENTS OF the Federal Bureau of Investigation in New York and other port cities were asked today to prevent an Arabian, Nijib Toonie, 27 from departing for Iraq with his Missouri bride, the former Doris Hisaw, whose parents feared she would be placed in a harem.

The father of the 17-year-old Neosho, Mo. girl obtained the warrant, charging Toonie and his brother, Kemal, 23, with violation of the Mann Act.

The two Arabians, dark and handsome, came to southwest Missouri recently in reported search of "American brides." An older brother two years ago married the former Miss Eileen Kirk of Diamond, Mo. she is in Iraq with her husband.

Nijib Toonie and Miss Hisaw were married at Bentonville, Ark., Aug. 24, after a courtship lasting less than a week.

He Finds Liberty Here

Joseph Festoso, a resident of Stratford, has returned to that city after spending three months with his parents and other relatives in Italy. Before coming to Canada several years ago Mr. Festoso had served his time in the Italian army. Now he is a naturalized Canadian citizen.

When he arrived in Stratford a few days ago he talked with a reporter. Going back to his old home had not made Mr. Festoso think he had made a mistake in coming to this country or in taking out his naturalization papers here. He found the people in Italy were heavily taxed; his own phrase was "to the limit," and he was certain they enjoyed no such measure of freedom as we have here. They cannot come and go and leave their country as Canadians can. Mr. Festoso says it is not right to state people in Italy are all working and happy. Many of them are out of work and many more who are working are not receiving enough to meet the cost of living which is very high.

The Stratford man says a loaf of bread such as we buy in this country would cost at least forty cents in Italy, and what we refer to as baby beef would be nearly one dollar a pound. The people in his native land are making sacrifices for their country, and it is a process which does not end. When one sacrifice has been made then there is a demand for another. The chief difference between Canada and Italy according to Mr. Festoso is that here one can attend to his own affairs, mind his own business and be left alone. That is what he considers the highest and most desirable form of freedom, and it is something which he did not find in Italy. The man from Stratford was certain the people of Italy did not want any war, but the trouble is they have nothing to say about it.

Perhaps we take our freedom in this country for granted and accept it as our right and therefore place little value on it. Mr. Festoso after having lived here for many years and then finding opportunity to visit the Italy of today, has no hesitation in his selection of Canada as the more desirable place.

Courting Hungary

Admiral Nicholas Horthy of Hungary is 70 years of age. He is regent of his land but he cannot well serve in the capacity as Admiral because he has no navy. His name has not been much to the front in recent times but when he went to visit Hitler in Germany a few days ago he made the front pages of the world. Both of these men were in the war against the Allies, and for his benefit Hitler paraded the German fleet. The Admiral is said to have been impressed, but there are well-informed people who say Horthy understands Hitler too well.

There may have been a number of quiet conversations, and the fact that Germany is the best customer when it comes to taking what Hungary has to offer for sale may have had some bearing on the situation. Hungary is immediately east of Austria, which is now part of Germany. If Hitler could get his hands on that country—or his troops in it—then it would go far to complete the steel ring around Czechoslovakia.

When Horthy was visiting with Hitler there was another little gathering when the little entent, in conference in Yugoslavia, agreed to recognize Hungary's right to rearm, which had been forbidden by post war treaty. In return it was announced that Hungary would join with Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Roumania in pledging to refrain from "employment of force of any kind against each other." There is actually little danger of these smaller powers attacking each other. There is more greater danger of their being swallowed whole by some of the larger European plotters.

Hungary came into existence as a result of post-war making of geography when the former empire of Austria-Hungary was being carved to make a number of lesser nations. As it was finished in 1919, Hungary was left with 36,000 square miles of territory and 7,500,000 people; the old Hungary had contained 126,000 square miles and had boasted a population of 21,000,000.

Hungary may well consider that Hitler's interest in that nation has nothing whatever to do with the welfare of Hungary. The hand that reached out and took in Austria was a hard one a brutal thing. It moved and acted for the glorification of Germany. Hitler is incapable of thinking in terms of mutual benefit and Admiral Horthy probably knows it. If he does not then it would be well for him to remain at home in Hungary rather than go visiting in Berlin.

Youth Should Speak

The Mayor of a small town in northern New York state felt moved to give his opinion about some youth congress going on in his country. This he said:

"They don't know whether to make up their minds on any course. They haven't had experience and experience comes with age. They talk about a lot of things which they do not mean. People used to work their way into conventions and discussions after they grew up, and when they get some years on them people they will pay more attention to them."

Perhaps there are other people who have about the same idea regarding youth, but we believe youth is thinking a great deal more today than it did a quarter of a century ago. Thinking because it wants to; because it has to; because it is facing a world where opportunities are not frequently encountered.

The World Youth Congress in session at Vassar College for instance considered and passed resolutions on these subjects:

They demanded limitation and reduction of armaments.
Economic reconstruction on the basis of international justice.
Adherence to international law.
Respect for treaties.
Non-interference in the internal affairs of other nations.
Equalization of the races of the world.

We doubt whether the youth of 25 years ago was discussing and thinking in any such terms. Each and every one of those subjects has been born within recent years; virtually all of them came to the surface in the years since the war and since the depression. And who can say that youth has not a right to speak and a right to pass resolutions—chiefly because the world has an ugly habit of expecting youth to go forth and fight its battles.

We Hope He Can Do It

Hon. Dr. Manion has been speaking in the East, and it is fitting that he should address himself to some of the greatest questions facing the people of this country. Taking unemployment as his text, the Conservative leader is reported:

"This Canada of ours should be a land of huge opportunity. We must correct this relief system or we will see wreck, anarchy and barbarism and I don't think so very far in the future. The Dominion has everything in the way of natural resources. Production is ample, but the failure is in distribution."

Dr. Manion said he was determined to set his course toward the solution of this problem. Just how he proposed to bring about the cure he did not say; for the moment he appears to have been satisfied to present an analysis of the situation that confronted him. It may be too much to expect that he would be ready now to tell just how he intends to work.

We cannot follow him to the point of believing we are headed toward wreck, anarchy and barbarism, and our reason for that statement is that we have too much confidence in the people of Canada to believe that will or could come to pass. With the rest of his delineation of our conditions we are inclined to be in agreement. It represents a form of synopsis which is readily reached and concerning which there can be no argument. We have resources. Agreed. We know how to produce abundantly. Admitted. We have failed in being able to distribute so that consumption can be increased. No argument about that. If Dr. Manion has the cure for these conditions we hope he loses no time securing a seat in our House of Commons. If he has the something for which the country has been seeking then the country will be prepared to listen to him. We wish him well.

There Has Been A Change

Being a member of a municipal council is a more complex thing than it used to be. The Ontario Municipal Association has been holding its fortieth annual meeting, and if the minutes of the 1938 session were to be compared with those of 25 years ago it would be found that the questions under discussion were largely different. Matter coming up this year reflect accurately enough what councillors and aldermen have been dealing with in recent months.

It was suggested that there should be an interprovincial understanding about the residence rules of those who receive relief; not merely moving from one municipality to another but from province to province. And on relief.

Many delegates were deeply interested in any suggestion which would show the proper way to secure houses for families on relief. One city reported 75 per cent of the landlords would not now rent houses to people on relief because they had found in many cases they were not receiving their rent. There were plenty of municipal representatives who wanted to talk about houses because they were so closely related to the relief situation. And of course that matter and the question of people moving from one province to another is all new ground for municipal councils. Twenty-five years ago there never would have been occasion to mention it.

Three or four cities have resolutions, the gist of which is that the age limit for old age pensions should be changed from 70 to 65 years. They believe in that way a number of persons can be taken off the municipal relief rolls and so a part of the burden will be shifted to a larger government. Others talked of the problem of border municipalities which are often enough forced to provide for the care of persons who are deported from United States and who have no place to go. It may be entire families will land suddenly on a municipality in this way and they have to receive assistance.

That is why we say it is a more complex matter to be a member of a municipal governing body today than it used to be. It is not merely a question of providing service for those who are ready to pay for it through taxation, but the greater question is providing for those who have for the moment nothing which they can pay.

Giving Children An Allowance

There are people today who make a business knowing how to bring up children. They specialize in it much the same as other people do in building houses, trimming whiskers or raising prize poultry. They write articles for newspapers about it and get paid for the work. One of the articles we saw today contained this:

"The father or mother who do not give their children an allowance each week are courting trouble in days to come. They are not making their children responsible for the spending of money, and the children when they come to older years will find they have missed important experience and instruction which their parents denied them."

Probably there are families where it has always been possible for the children to have an allowance, but there are many more families where it has never been done because it could not be done. There are families where it is done and works well, but to state that not following such a plan is piling up trouble for days to come is making a claim which is rather to broad. Looking back to the village we can think of few families where the boys or girls could ever have received anything at all for spending money. We do not hesitate for a moment to state the reason—the people were for the most part poor. It was quite the accepted thing for children then to wear clothing which was made from the garments of their relatives. There were plenty of boys there who did not know what it was to have a "store suit" until after they had found something to do and had earned their own money. In the summer season for a few weeks there was a chance to earn a little money by pulling flax; there were a few stores and offices where the wood-box required to be filled in season; there was one old gentleman in the village who for a few cents bought up in a sack of bones or old iron. There was the day when pigs were weighed on the village scales and then they had to be driven to the shipping yard at the station and ten or fifteen cents could be earned there. Most of the boys had work to do at home in the garden because people produced their own vegetables, kept their own chickens and often enough a pig for fall killing.

But of actual money in circulation there was little indeed and there was not much complaint about it. No person was trying to keep up with the next neighbor because they were all pretty much in the same class. Such sport as there was was home-made and inexpensive. So it is easy enough to see why there were no allowances made by parents to the children; that is, they did not hand out to them their share of spending money for the week or teach them how to buy their own clothing, and the reason was primarily that the money was not there to be handed out. Whether the children of such a generation were being spoiled for future years is something about which the present-day experts can argue. But it is worth noting that there were no juvenile courts then because the need for them had not become apparent.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It's hard for a telephone operator to keep on good terms with the boy friend because she is always speaking to so many men whom she doesn't know.

It is proposed that the U.S. army shall have new uniforms made of "invisible blue." We have no idea how the thing will work out but admittedly there is a degree of comfort in the suggested color scheme.

Germany wants $200,000 worth of lumber from Vancouver, but having no money to pay out wants to trade a fireboat for the lumber. If this trading keeps on the Windsor Star sees the day coming when Germany may desire to swap a second hand dictator for a little common sense.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus talked with me last night; he didn't seem exactly right, nor yet alarming bad; but back behind the things he said, before he started off for bed, I knew that he was sad.

¶ I talked to him on going to school, how he'd soak up each known rule, get things packed in his head; he should remember all he heard, and grab each adjective and verb, remember all he'd read.

¶ His chance for getting on I said, was storing good stuff in his head, and doin' his figures good; in knowing history and stuff, of learning he can't get enough, I talked like how I should.

¶ Dan's father owns two stores he said, he's got smart brains inside his head, knows what's on every shelf; his days at school were short and few, he found the things he had to do, and then he learned himself.

¶ And Uncle Jake though lean and lank, has lots of money in the bank, he earned it and it came; but Uncle Jake don't know a lot, he had to go once and get taught, so he could write his name.

¶ I fear I failed in my apeal, to try and rouse Wee Angus' zeal, I knew not what to say; I'll have to urge him on toward fame, to build a great and noble name—I'll try some other way.

U.S. Magazine Looks at Canada

NEW YORK.—All that glitters is not gold in Canada. "Fortune" magazine warns the business executives and directors.

The Canada which some American businessmen dream about as the last great unexploited country where business is allowed to manage its own affairs while government minds the budget is in reality only a legend. Fortune declares, despite the many surface indications that Canada is "in the act of repeating the halcyon days of United States business history."

"Like all legends that have vitality, this legend of the businessman's Canada is founded upon a certain number of unquestionable facts," Fortune admits. "Canada is still in the developmental stage. There is still need for capital and a hearty respect for it.

Debt.—"But the spinners of legend omit or gloss over certain other facts, such as the staggering burden of the public debt which amounts to $535 per capita in contrast to the per capita figure of $430 in the United States. Of this $638 the federal debt accounts for $389 (United States federal debt per capita is $382) and a fair sized chunk of the federal debt is due to the war as it is here too.

"Most of Canada's debt represents the cost of essential services which are still bitterly complained of as inadequate. And behind the fine gesture of the Dominion in approaching a balanced budget are the sorry finances of many of the provinces.

"To keep going most of the provinces are forced to borrow from the Dominion, often without much hope of being able to repay," Fortune points out. "Even the brave near balance of the Dominion's budget is achieved at the expense of heroic measures, chief of which is an 8 per cent. sales tax levied at wholesale on manufactured goods and responsible for over a quarter of all Dominion revenues.

Income Taxes.—"Income taxes, the second largest source of Dominion revenue, are stiff too. Personal income taxes are levied at rates which, at least up to the $100,000 bracket, run higher than those in the United States, and there is a flat 15 per cent. tax on corporate net income.

"A Canadian administration bent upon reforming business literally could, with no more than the laws at hand, raise hell," Fortune states, adding that many of the laws which die-hard United States businessmen fear and oppose were accepted in Canada before they were even widely discussed here.

"There has been a women's minimum wage law in Ontario for 17 years, mothers' allowances for 15 years, and old age pensions for nine years. Workmen's compensation and child labor laws were accepted so long ago that they are forgotten as issues.

Reform.—"To-day there are minimum wage laws in nearly all of the provinces. There is anti-trust legislation in the combines investigation act, and arbitration has long been provided for under the industrial disputes investigation act. Provincial and Dominion Governments are in business up to the hilt, operating railroads, airlines, radio stations, telephones, and electric projects.

"The point of all this lies in the caution with which the Canadians have handled their social legislation. In passing the laws the government has never bullied the businessmen, and in discussing the laws with the government the businessmen have been readier to give an inch than the Americans usually are."

PHILADELPHIA HORROR.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

STANDING OUT in bold relief among the prison horrors of modern times is that of the Philadelphia county prison, where helpless prisoners were "baked to death." It seems not to belong to the present days, but to the storied dark ages. The "agitators" in a hunger strike against "monotonous" food being served in this jail were placed in punishment cells. They were 24 in number.

These cells were evidently in an air-tight "block." The windows and ventilators were closed and the steam heat turned on. For two days these prisoners were in greatest agony. The torture ended, four of the men, naked and battered, were found dead.

It is suggested that the "turning on of the heat" was not deliberate. Investigations are in progress. If the act of "roasting" these unfortunates was deliberate, it is hoped that the men responsible will be given the full weight of the law that justice be satisfied.

CAN'T FIGHT BANKS.

(Zora, Sophia, Bulgaria)

THE U. S. A. does not want to start dipping into its pocket, nor Britain. But on the insistence of France John Bull is at last preparing to untie his money bags for the benefit of certain Central European countries. Parliamentarians who for years fulminated against giving British money to foreigners are now very subdued. During the debate on the Turkish credits there was not one protest, nor will there be any when other Balkan credits are tabled later on. Everybody realizes that Germany will swallow everything unless British bankers open their tills and trade at slightly easier terms. Already German firms are beginning to be worried. They got the cream of the Balkan trade as long as there was no cash, but they cannot fight Britain's banks.

BIG WHEAT FIELDS

(Lethbridge Herald)

GUESS WE'LL have to stop commenting on big wheat yields or we'll overlook some good farmer. Ed. Hocking's 42-bushel story hardly got going the rounds before Ben Matkin, another Magrath district farmer, reported a 52-bushel-to-the-acre return in one field, his son Charles an average of 50 and 100 acres while E. Wintermute of Macleod had 50 bushels to the acre. Looks as though 40 and 50-bushel averages might be common in the good crop districts.

• Please Be of Good Courage

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR: — RECENTLY a barber was fined for giving a haircut at a lower price than the minimum fixed by the Ontario Industrial Standards Act. In you issue of August 25 you give special prominence to a letter from Dr. J. H. Putman denouncing this law as a violation of democratic principle and declaring, "We are headed straight for state Socialism." In your leading editorial of the same day you praised Dr. Putman's letter, but indicated that the tendency of today is toward Fascism. You closed with these words:

"Whither? The Journal doesn't know. The Journal agrees with Dr. Putman, sometimes shares his wrath, wishes there were more like him, but, alas, knows there aren't. And what can a few of us do against so many?"

Instead of dropping the subject there you comment today on the fact, as reported, that one-third of the population of the United States is directly dependent on the U. S. Treasury for income. You ask if such a condition does not make for state control and regimentation, from which it is but a step to Fascism.

I agree with you and Dr. Putman as to facts and conclusions. But, not sharing your sentiments of indignation and disquiet, I write to ask you both to be of good courage.

The regimentation of the people has done much harm, and may do much more. But it seems to me to be a receding tide, not a rising one. The dictators in Europe are not the demi-gods they once seemed to be. President Roosevelt may spend public money by the billion, but his clever young brain-trusters are not so vigorous as they were in the crazy work of destroying crops in order to make the country richer. Mr. Farley may still be the President's chief of staff, but Mr. Cordell Hull is far more prominent than he was even a few months ago.

As to "a few of us against so many", if that were the whole case, we believers in freedom might well despair. But all prophets declare, and all history proves, that these numbers are not constant. Numbers can be won by a Macdonald or by a Laurier. When such a leader comes he, or she, will hold the light of truth aloft for the enlightenment of all. Meantime "a few of us" can keep the lamp trimmed and burning.

• What'll We Do With Our Wheat?

(Financial Post)

A FEW YEARS AGO, when Canada was greatly worried by a 25 million bushel wheat surplus, The Financial Post asked Henry Ford what he would do with the wheat surplus if he had it.

He replied that he would set half a dozen chemists to work to find out what wheat really was; what it could be used for other than making flour.

Mr. Ford then saw clearly what other wise men are only now beginning to see; that Canada may ultimately have to solve the markets problem of its western prairies by research work to find new uses for a wheat crop that some years—this year, for instance—is bigger than the apparent market.

International Nickel Company has created new markets for nickel and made itself prosperous. Our pulp producers have found new markets for cellulose and lifted themselves out of the slough of depression. The same can be done with wheat.

Corn has set an example. Here are some of the industrial uses of corn, uses that are growing relatively more rapidly than the feeding of hogs and of other domestic animals, which is now the chief outlet for the corn crop of this continent.

Soap	Foundry work
Salad oils	Colors
Cooking oils	Fireworks
Yeast	Confectionery
Edible starch	Table syrups
Textiles	Corn sugar
Paper	Molasses
Laundry chemicals	Canned food
Adhesives	Bread
Dusting powder	Ice cream
Explosives	Cake frosting
Baking powder	Chewing gum
Cough syrup	Chewing tobacco
Wines	Twine
Vinegar	Jams and jellies
Soft drinks	Leather
Brewing	Rayon
Calico printing

The Financial Post does not know the chemical constituents or possible uses of wheat. It doubts if anyone else does. We have devoted many millions of dollars to wheat research. Most of it has been spent to tell us how to grow more and better wheat more cheaply.

It might be a good investment to devote some of the money to finding out how to sell the more and better wheat when we grow it.

• A German's View of Hitler

(Hamilton Spectator)

HERR KURT LUDECKE published a book some months ago entitled "I Knew Hitler," which may not be a classic, but at least gives some detail of the German leader in his earlier days that will serve to make an understanding of his peculiar disposition a little difficult.

Ludecke, who is 48 years of age and the son of parents of some means and social position, was somewhat of an adventurer in his youth, but returned from America in 1920 in search of "a cause and a leader" and in 1922 found Hitler. This was at a Nazi demonstration in Munich. Ludecke was 32 and he thought Hitler another Luther.

"The intense will of the man, the passion of his sincerity seemed to flow from him into me. I experienced an exaltation that could be likened only to religious conversion." He immediately put himself and his purse at Hitler's disposal. He and Reventlow also secured the adherence of Ludendorff, and it was he alone who brought Hitler in touch with Mussolini when he carried Hitler's greetings to Il Duce about a month before the march on Rome. He reported to Hitler that Mussolini was to be cultivated and Hitler agreed.

Shortly afterwards Ludecke seems to have become critical. He describes the failure of the putsch in Munich as due to Hitler himself not being thorough, though courageous, lacking as an Austrian the Prussian quality. Hitler was imprisoned in a fortress, where he wrote Mein Kampf, and came out a changed man.

He presently came to terms with Hugenburg "and sold his party's soul to Big Business." This was resented, but Hitler ended opposition by a blood purge, and Ludecke was rewarded by being committed to a concentration camp. With a new set of comrades, Hitler set up his dictatorship. Ludecke objects to it as not being German.

The real German Nazi, he says, "never intended that Germans should be degraded as serfs of an arbitrary party dictatorship, surrendering body and soul to a single leader, and cringing in Asiatic servility before an un-German dictator." Ludecke is not the only German with this view.

• Says There Will Be No War

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

EVERY EUROPEAN correspondent of Canadian and American newspapers, every newspaper in France, every newspaper except one in Great Britain, and every newspaper in Germany are expressing fear of imminent war or of how their governments will act if war comes. Several hundred million people appear to sense war in the air, although all the heads of governments say they do not want war. The one exception which calls the present situation "A False Alarm" is Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express.

Throughout the long sequence of crises the Daily and the Sunday Express have said there will be no war The Daily Express has the largest circulation of any newspapers in the world, somewhere around 2,400,000 copies a day. Perhaps it has won that position partly because it gives the masses what they want. The people do not want war, therefore it helps to keep their spirits up to read an optimistic paper that keeps telling them there will not be one.

Every British citizen hopes there will be no war. At the same time Germany has not built up her tremendous military machine merely for show purposes when heads of foreign countries visit Berlin. That machine is intended to be used if and when Hitler thinks he can profitably use it. If he thinks that time is at hand he will employ it. He is having it tuned up right now—in case. Beaverbrook may be right; he may be wrong. He does not know any better than anybody else. But he is assuming a tremendous responsibility in assuring the public there will be no war; that this is just a false alarm. If he proves right he will have made a lucky guess.

But if all the other papers had adopted the same attitude, the British nation would be caught unprepared and unready.

COST OF SCHOOLS.

(Windsor Star)

ACCORDING TO Miss Agnes Macphail, too much is being paid for schools, especially "when you consider that they are only used a few hours a day."

Perhaps some citizens will agree with Canada's first woman M. P. On the other hand, if one were able to examine all the schools in the country it is probable that the average would be found to represent no great degree of extravagance. On the contrary the reverse would probably be the case.

Windsor has to mumble and make excuses about her lack of a decent city hall and an adequate railway station, but she steps right out in the front rank when it comes to schools.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

BEHOLD, I SEND an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared. . . . And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.—Ex. xxiii, 20, 25.

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.—Isa. xxvi, 3.

For a certain woman, whose young daughter had an unclean spirit, heard of him, and came and fell at his feet: the woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by nation; and she besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter.

But Jesus said unto her, Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs. And she answered and said unto him, Yes, Lord: yet the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs.

And he said unto her, For this saying, go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter.—Mark vii, 25-29.

THE ATTRACTION.

(Manchester Guardian)

A Lancashire man, much against his own desire, was persuaded by his family to desert Blackpool or Douglas this year for a quieter place. Unfortunately the family went to extremes and chose a spot which apparently abhorred Luna Parks and the like and catered solely for lovers of pure tranquility. The only amenities were the sea and the air. On his return the man lodged a complaint to a full tap-room. The only diversion lay in walking about or sitting down. There were candles in the digs, candles in the pub, and everbody expected to be in bed by ten.

"But surely," a listener suggested, "there must ha' been some scoart of amusement?"

"Aye, there were", the complainant ceded. "They wer mending t' road and they'd one of them new concrete-mixers working. But unless tha were theer early tha couldn't get near."

TEACHING THE YOUNG.

(London Daily Mirror)

SCHOOLBOYS should be taught to throw bombs.

This was suggested at Spalding Grammar School conference today when Headmaster L. J. Driver, proposed to include javelin-throwing at the annual sports.

"Why not let them throw dummy Mills bombs?" said Dr. S. H. Perry. "It would be training for the boys for the next war and would be just as good sport."

Dr. Perry told me he was serious in his suggestion.

"It would be much more sensible than showing them how to throw these silly old-fashioned javelins."

RAILWAY PROBLEM.

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

CANADA IS NOT the only country to face a critical railway problem. The United States, also, finds itself perplexed by the difficulties of operating an efficient system of rail transportation which will at the same time pay its own way. The railways in the eastern states have recently been granted the right to increase their passenger rates, but with competition from bus lines and trucks it is doubtful whether any general solution can be attained through higher charges.

U.S. Air Armada Visits C.N.E. On Press Day

TORONTO, Sept. 2—(CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition will play host today to the Press. But while the day is officially "press day" the attention of the crowds will continue to be drawn to the regular "Diamond Jubilee" features for from the little red building where the reporters have their headquarters.

Main spectacle of the day is a scheduled mass formation flight over the grounds by an air armada of 37 planes from the United States. The armada, making a good will trip to the Exhibition, spent last night in Hamilton. The trip is intended to demonstrate the safety of flight by small land planes.

Bobby Pearce of Hamilton will continue defence of his professional sculling championship in a one-mile test with three Australians, Evans Paddon, George Cook and Percy See. Joe Burke, Canadian amateur champion of Philadelphia, also will defend his title in the Joe Wright one-mile race. Amateur eights also will participate in the regatta.

Judging rings in the Agricultural Coliseum will be given over to Hampshire Downs, Shropshires and Lincolns in the sheep pavilion; Berkshires, bacon hogs and carlots in the swine pavilion; Holsteins, Guernseys, Jerseys and Ayrshires in the main cattle ring; and poultry, waterfowl, rabbits, cavies, pigeons and cage birds in the east annex.

The 37th international cat show ended its three-day meeting last night with Toronto animals capturing all major awards in competition with Detroit, Lansing and Chesterland, O., entries. Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Pugh's "Blue Bonnet of Maple Leaf," one of the few females to win a major prize was judged best cat.

Attendance figures continue to mount with 115,000 passing through the turnstiles Thursday, women's and music day. This was about 25,000 higher than the average for the past three years and puts this year's attendance ahead of any since 1934 or earlier.

In his music day address to the directors at luncheon Sir Ernest MacMillan, director of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, pleaded for a return to Canadian music. Canada should no longer depend on the United States for her musical nourishment, he believed. W. F. Prendergast, assistant to the president of the Imperial Oil Company, is the luncheon speaker for press day.

Gordon Consoles Oshawa On Road Says Diverting Highway Boosted Business In Peterboro'

OSHAWA, Sept. 2.—That the diversion of tourist and other traffic from the main business section of a city when a new provincial highway is constructed away from the business section, does not necessarily mean a loss of business to merchants, but, in some cases, is a business booster, is seen in the case of the City of Peterborough. The story of what happened to that industrial city a few years ago when it had an experience which the City of Oshawa will have to face when the new four-lane highway is routed away along Jackson street, in South Oshawa, a long piece from the business section, is told in a letter received yesterday by Ex-Mayor Frank L. Mason from the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., a former cabinet minister, whose home is in Peterborough. Hon. Mr. Gordon wrote the letter after reading in the Globe and Mail, Toronto, that objection had been made to the routing of the provincial highway through the south of Oshawa, and, he points out, Oshawa's case is very similar to the case that Peterborough had.

Tells of Peterborough

Hon. Mr. Gordon writes:

During the last year of the Henry government, No. 7 Highway was linked up with No. 28, and No. 7 was carried along the boundary road between the townships at the south of the city of Peterborough and the city. The No. 7 highway is the highway running from Peterborough through to Perth and Ottawa and No. 28 Highway is the highway from Port Hope to Peterborough. We all thought we would lose business, on account of the tourists coming to Peterborough, missing Peterborough as the No. 7 highway was running between the exhibition grounds and the city and the motor traffic would not pass directly through the city. Formerly No. 28 highway came along Charlotte street and brought the traffic directly into the city, and people had been moving off Charlotte street and property had been depreciating by reason of these 40,000 pound trucks going along this residential street at three and four o'clock in the morning keeping people awake and shaking the houses.

The result was a very great depreciation of values on property on one of the best residential streets. The carrying of the No. 7 highway south of the city connecting with No. 28 highway, was vigorously opposed by a great many persons including myself. It was a very satisfactory change because the heavy trucks carrying logs, market fruit and other heavy merchandise, is largely diverted from the centre of the city, and it has relieved the motor traffic congestion on our main streets and is making Charlotte now reasonably safe, and relieving us of the burden of keeping the pavement up for these heavy trucks to drive upon.

Our main street running north and south known as George street, connects with No. 7 and we have placed markers there, pointing to the Municipal Tourist Camp and also to the business section of the city.

Get More Tourists

Since I saw today's Globe and Mail I spoke to three restaurant keepers and three of the leading merchants and they have all agreed that there has been no loss of business and they believe they have had an increase in tourist business. We have had a larger influx of American tourists this year buying Hudson Bay blankets and other merchandise, before going to the fishing areas north of Peterborough, than we have had for several years. The summer business in Peterborough has been extremely good this year. In addition to that, our pavements have been relieved of a tremendous lot of traffic from these trucks that go through from Peterborough to Toronto and the trucks from the northern areas bringing timber, milk trucks, and trucks carrying hogs and cattle to the Packing house, and general merchandise.

My own opinion is that your main street would be very adversely affected if all trucks and other motor traffic was routed that way, because I frequently pass along that street and it is often difficult to find a parking place when we stop to obtain meals. Oshawa, like Peterborough, can readily be seen from a diverted highway and tourists pretty well know when they are arriving in the neighborhood of a city.

I am writing to you because many of your citizens' apprehensions were identically the same as a great many of the Peterborough people, but we find that the engineers performed us a good service in connecting No. 7 Highway with No. 28 highway immediately south of the city.

21-Pound Lunge Is Caught By U.S. Tourist

Hastings, Sept. 2.

THE LARGEST lunge to be seen in this village in the past two months was displayed by Bernard Yates of Cleveland, Ohio here Thursday night. It tipped the scales at 21 lbs. Following a half hour battle in Rice Lake, the fish was landed about three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

A strong jerk would have lost the fish as it was hooked very lightly, Mr. Yates said. Two, 4lb. pickerel were also landed. Walter Wallett, Cleveland and Owen Phillips, Hastings were included in the party.

Hall's Bridge Honors Miss Margaret Riel

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALLS BRIDGE, Sept. 2.—A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mrs. H. A. Shearer Monday evening, when the W. I. met to say "Au Revoir" to one of their members, Miss Margaret Riel, who is leaving to take a special course of study at the Bible College, Toronto.

Mrs. Howard Pearson read an address and Mrs. W. Shearer presented Miss Riel with a brief case on behalf of the members and Miss Gertie Bolton a purse from the girls' ball team.

The ladies also sponsored a shower to a family who have recently lost their all in a fire.

On Tuesday evening Miss Margaret Riel was a guest at the home of Mrs. Dave Montgomery where the members of St. Matthew's were assembled to bid her farewell and present her with a purse subscribed to by her fellow members.

An address was read by Mrs. R. Fawcett and the presentation made by Miss Marie Lyttle. Miss Riel replied in a pleasant little speech, thanking her friends and expressing the pleasure, their good fellowship had given her during the years she has spent in Hall's Bridge and especially the enjoyment of the messages conveyed by the Rev. E. C. Moore in his sermons.

A member of the village band of Horsmonden, England, has completed 60 years of tooting in it.

Fraserville Y.P.A. Enjoys Corn Roast

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FRASERVILLE, Sept. 2—On Tuesday evening the young people of Fraserville gathered at the church for a corn roast. The boys soon had a blazing camp fire. Games were played for a couple of hours: then benches were drawn up around the fire. The corn was boiled in a large iron kettle and everyone enjoyed a real feed. A sing song followed. It was decided to start Y.P.U. meetings in the church on Thursday, September 8, with Williss Cunningham as convenor. The young folks departed to their homes around the midnight hour.

Britain now has over 4,000 soldiers in Burma.

CARDS ARE TODAY STACKED AGAINST BIG LEAGUE PITCHERS

There Is Something Wrong With Major Leagues Ailing Arms Are Proving It

By IRVING VAUGHAN
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Somewhere in the present big league pitching system—if you can call it a system—there is something radically wrong. Pitchers are becoming scarcer every year. Serious injuries to the arms of good pitchers are becoming common. The latest victim is Carl Hubbell, the southpaw star of the New York Giants staff. Hubbell is only one of about a dozen similar standout cases in recent years. And there will be others.

Who or what is to blame? With every new case there is a fresh theory, none of which can be proven. Is it the jack rabbit ball which magnates have kept in play for about the last 20 years? Is it because the modern pitchers either are sissies or don't give enough attention to their physical conditions?

Magnates Can Take Rap

It appears that the magnates should be given the rap, not alone for the lively ball for which they are responsible, but for at least one way in which they now conduct their business.

The lively ball has been discussed pro and con for years and nothing has happened. Because Babe Ruth became a great drawing card with his homers the magnates got the idea the public wanted that kind of a free-for-all game. Nobody can prove that this is not an erroneous idea.

Along with their introduction of the new ball the magnates put one restriction after another on pitchers, thus furthering the hitting possibilities. The spitter and all sorts of trick deliveries were outlawed. New balls are always in play at the present time whereas in the old days an entire game would be played with as few as a half dozen. If a ball was cuffed it wasn't thrown out of play. In other words a pitcher had a chance to get by. Nowadays he's lucky if he isn't maimed by a jack rabbit drive.

That's why pitchers are becoming scarce. A youth with a desire to play ball will try for a different position if it is possible. He knows that the cards are stacked against a pitcher simply because of the magnates' silly legislation.

The present ball doesn't permit the pitcher a chance to ease up. With the ball in use before owners destroyed the perfect balance between the bat and the mound, a pitcher could concentrate on the great hitters and take it easy against the chumps. There are no real chumps any more. The poorest of hitters are likely to drive the lively ball out of the park. So the pitcher bears down all the time and what happens? His arm goes dead under the constant strain.

Training Trips Enter Case.

Present training trip fashions also are entered into the case. Years ago it wasn't customary for big league teams to play together on the training trips. The exhibitions would be against minor opposition and the pitchers could take their work gently. Now they are called on to pitch against big league opposition. They want to win and they bear down. Their arms aren't ready and soreness develops. Monty Stratton, Chicago White Sox star, hurt his arm that way last spring. A year ago Bob Feller, the Cleveland sensation, encountered a similar mishap in an exhibition against the Giants. And the chances are that injuries which pop up during the regular season had their start in just such games.

Last winter the National league announced that it had adopted a deader ball for this season. It was hailed as the start of a movement that might eventually return the game to a normal basis. The parent major may have thought it had taken such a step, but somewhere along the line there was a hitch. The new National league ball is almost the same as the item formerly employed, at least that is indicated by the hitting in the two leagues and hitting is the only basis for comparison.

Just run over a few of the names involved in arm troubles the last few years and you have all the evidence needed to prove that the magnates had best act before they have ruined the game Lon Warneke hurt his arm in the 1935 world series and was never the same. Tex Carleton was out last year with a chipped elbow such as Hubbell developed. Dizzy Dean's arm is gone although a year of rest might restore some of his cunning. Then there are Bob Grove, Johnny Allen, Schoolboy Rowe, Paul Dean, Charley Ruffing, Wes Ferrell, Clint Brown, Bill Dietrich and any number of other lesser lights.

Oshawa Team Here Monday

There will be a Labor Day senior ball playoff here Monday at three in the afternoon at Riverside, Oshawa GM-men meeting the Petes. It may be the final ball game seen here this season, regardless of how the Petes make out tomorrow in the Motor City. Each team has won two games up to date, the Petes play Saturday in Oshawa, and the Petes' protest over the other squad's win in Oshawa two weeks ago (in the third game) will be settled at a meeting this Saturday night. It will either be ordered replayed or will stand as an Oshawa victory, leaving the squads tied at two wins each—not counting tomorrow's tussle. The series is four out of seven for the loop title and the right to enter O.B.A. semi-finals, loser dropping out.

With so much keen competition and good ball dished up by these playoff rivals, the holiday crowd should be a record one for the year with close to 2,000 city and district fans on deck. It is impossible to guess at the twirlers in this duel, until the result of tomorrow's game is known. But both outfits will be at full strength and battling bitterly all the way in a determined effort to cop this contest in Peterborough. With a break in the weather, a fine fixture before a big crowd should be run off here.

Flying French men Release Three Veterans

Aurel Joliat

Pete Lepine

Marty Burke

When Montreal Canadiens step on to the ice to open another National League hockey season three familiar faces will be missing. The management of the Flying Frenchmen announced the unconditional release of this trio of veterans, Aurel Joliat, Pete Lepine and Marty Burke. None of the releases, except possibly Burke's, came as a surprise, the other two having indicated they might not play during the coming season.

Outlaws Defeat Hastings' Clerks

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept 2.—The Outlaws took the first game of their series with the Clerks by a 7 to 5 score in the Town Softball League playoffs. After two attempts they finally completed a game. They were rained out in the third innings in the first game and darkness halted the second one in the fifth.

The Outlaws scored all their runs in the second innings on five big errors, two singles and Stickles' triple. The Clerks scored twice in the fourth when Jones was safe on a nice bunt and scored on G. Gibson's triple. Gibson scored on Tape's single. They scored three more in the sixth on two singles, an error and G. Gibson's second triple.

McKee allowed the Clerks seven hits, bunched in the fourth and sixth inings. He had three strikeouts and passed three men. G. Gibson cannot be blamed for the Clerks' defeat as he limited the Outlaws to six hits. Six errors by his fielders proved his downfall. He fanned two and walked two.

Stickles with a triple and a single topped the Outlaws' batters while Tape with a double and two singles led the Clerks.

The Tanners and Elgin hook up in their final game tonight. Each team has one win. The teams:

Clerks: Wilson, rf; G. Petticrew, 3b; Stevenson, 1b; Jones, 2b; Gillespie, c; G. Gibson, p; Tape, cf; Downs, ss; Blackburn, lf; Crate, rf.

Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Clerks	000 203 0—5	7	6
Outlaws	070 000 x—7	6	4

Umpires—Wellman plate; Dr. Hay and G. Scriver, bases.

Draw Made Today For The Davis Cup

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—(AP)—A likely patch of meadow grass has been lined off into three tennis courts, a set of circus bleachers are being knocked together around the pock-marked surface of the tilting ground, and everything is set for the start of the Davis Cup challenge round to the Germantown Cricket Club.

All that remains to be done is the draw at noon to-day at the club when the names of the United States defenders and the Australian challengers will be plucked from a hat in pairs and the order of singles play determined. The names of Donald Budge and Bobby Riggs will be in the pot for America, Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich are carrying the entire burden for the Aussies.

The first pair drawn will clash in the opening singles match at 2 p.m. tomorrow, best three out of five sets, with the second singles to go on immediately after. The doubles will be played at 3 p.m. Sunday, with Budge and Gene Mako opposing Quist and Bromwich. The two concluding singles, with the pairings switched, are scheduled Monday.

The United States lads still are firm favorites to retain the mug, won from the British at Wimbledon last summer.

Joliat Is Offered Coaching Job

PERKINS MILLS, Que., Sept. 2 (C.P.). — Aurel Joliat, vacationing at his camp in the Gatineau Hills, near this village, twenty miles north of Ottawa, said to-day his future plans were "indefinite" when asked about reports he had been offered a coaching job by a Saskatoon hockey club.

Joliat said he had received a wire from the club but had made no decision pending developments in Montreal. It was understood Montreal Canadiens, for whom he played in fifteen campaigns before he was released two days ago, would offer him a job coaching one of their farm clubs.

"It is still too early in the season to decide, but I would prefer a coaching job near Montreal to one in the West," he said. "My plans are indefinite, however, and I will be in Montreal on Monday, when I may decide what to do."

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

About this evening—We expect 11 mixed rinks up from Cobourg and 8 mixed rinks from Port Hope. We ask the local bowlers ladies and gents, to please phone their names in before 7 p.m. We are looing forward to a big crowd.

On Monday, Labor Day, we are holding a mixed tournament, draw from the board at 2 p.m. This invitation is open to everybody. The fee will be 25 cents and good prizes will be offered.

And then on Wednesday of next week (Sept. 7), we will hold the mixed tournament that was rained out on Tuesday, Aug. 16. There were 20 entries out that night and the committee is hoping that all will reenter and maybe a few more.

Down at Oshawa yesterday our ladies section again came through to win first and third places in an entry of 16 rinks. Three rinks motored down from here with the above results.

Mrs. L. Deyman, playing her regular schedule rink, came first, and Mrs. G. Coleman, third. Mrs. W. Hepburn skipped the third entry.

Mrs. C. Renaud, Mrs. L. Riley, Mrs. W. Oke, and Mrs. L. Deyman, skip—each a table cloth.

Miss P. Coleman, Mrs. G. Borland, Mrs. C. Williamson and Mrs. G. Coleman, skip—each a set of pillow cases.

A few of our boys motored up to Lindsay last evening and enjoyed a game of Scotch doubles Rinks were there also from Port Perry and Cannington. C. W. Williamson and H. Renaud from our club took first place.

Our ladies playing in the Mail and Globe Scotch doubles yesterday in Toronto, did not go very far. They report having had a good outing and also gained a lot of experience.

SPORT SPICE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Patty Berg, freckle-face threat from the West, is a red-hot favorite to walk off with Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page's women's golf title at Chicago this month...You'll likely see more strange faces on Boston Red Sox next season than on any other major league team...Tom Yawkey, they are gossiping, can't understand why, with 200 minor league farmhands, the Sox had to put Roger Cramer (a fly-chaser) in to pitch the other day...Big mystery here right now is whether Burleigh Grimes or Babe Ruth will manager the Dodgers next summer.

The way Hank Greenberg is pounding out doubles and triples these days shows he isn't aiming for the fence every time he goes up there...The betting locally is that Hank (who now has 46) will not bust Babe Ruth's homer record of 60 this year...Doc Painter, trainer of the Yanks, has deevloped a new pair of sun glasses which he'll market next year...

It is now pretty well established around the Yankee Stadium that Tommy Henrich will be Lou Gehrig's successor when the Iron Horse decided to step down. Along comes Howard Brickey, sports editor of the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times to call Oscar Vitt's Indians the "Vanishing Americans."

Joe Cronin gave his wife the robin's egg blue sedan he won for being named on a cereal firm's all-star team...Even Col. Jake Ruppert and Ed Barrow have got around to admitting the present Yanks have it on their old pets, the 1928 team which featured Ruth, Gehrig, et al.

Hard-Hitting Manush Likes Daylight Ball

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 2—(AP). — Heinie Manush, a .330 hitter in his 15 years of major league baseball, is happy to be back playing baseball by daylight.

The srtapping outfielder, bought by the Pittsburgh Pirates from Toronto of the International League, said to-day that "night baseball is a pitcher's game—not so good for the hitters."

Manush, who broke into the majors under Ty Cobb at Detroit, called Lefty Grove "the best pitcher I ever faced."

Y's Men's Club Beat Kinsmen

Y's Men's Club took the first of the three-game midget lacrosse finals last night with a 5-2 victory over Kinsmen at the George St. arena. It was a hard-checking affair throughout with all the boys turning it on in a good effort. Y's Men's showed a little more punch in this opener to gain the nod. Martin, Land and B. Dundas looked best for the winners; while Mattucci and O'Toole were outstanding for the losers.

J. Easton scored on Martin's assist for the Y's Men's Club in the first frame, with McMahon making it 2-0. Mattucci got one back for the Kinsmen in the second heat. In the third Land and D. Dundas tallied for the victors, and Rochetti for the other squad. Martin scored the only tally in the fourth frame. The teams:

Kinsmen: Goal, Miller; defence, Bloom, Plumpton; centre, Fallon; wings, OToole, Griffin; rover, Mattucci; alternates, Amyotte, Mills Rochetti.

Ys Mens: Goal, Willshaw; defence, McMahon, B. Dundas; centre, Land; wings, G. Easton; rover, Martin; alternates, Joiner D. Dundas, OConnor, Dunsford.

Referee—R. Chute.

Kawartha Tennis Holds Doubles

Play in the mixed and men's doubles of the Kawartha Tennis Tournament is progressing nicely and first and second round matches in the ladies' doubles will be played tonight (Friday).

Jack Kirkwood and Boy Maybee are already in the finals, after having played only two matches, due to the scarity of entrants. One semi-final match remains to be played. That one is between John Donaldson and C. H. Crowe and Roy Tranter and Yvon DeGuise. The winners of this clash will, of course, meet Kirkwood and Maybee. Here are the results of the matches played so far:

1st Round— Rolly Hull and Art King defeated Jack Osborne and Harold Wilson 6-4, 6-4; Jack Kirkwod and By Maybee defeated Al Drynan and Jean Desmarais, 2-6, 6-4, 6-0.

2nd Round—C. H. Crowe and J. Donaldson defeated H. Salvadge and Bert Blanchard, 6-1, 6-2; Roy Tranter and Yvon DeGuise defeated Don Emery and Art Jones, 6-5, 6-4; Kirkwood and Maybee defeated Hull and King, 6-4, 5-6, 6-2.

In Mixed Doubles, due to the small entry, very evenly matched couples are being paired in the first round, so that, as a result, one of the pairs who are really quite strong, are being eliminated at the start. This is unfortunate from the standpoint of those who are being ousted, but it does make for well contested matches all through the tournament. Play in the mixed doubles has reached the semi-final stage with Nan Boorman and C. Crowe, Ruth McKee and Roy Tranter, Anna McKenzie and Jack Kirkwood, and Margaret Jackson and Ormond Benson still being left in. Results of matches so far played are as follows:

1st Round—Ruth McKee and Roy Tranter defeated Mrs. W. Jackson and John Donaldson, 4-6, 6-4, 6-5; Anna McKenzie and Jack Kirkwood defeated Vi. Davidson and Art King, 6-0, 6-1.

2nd Round—Nan Boorman and C. Crowe defeated Eleanor Stacey and Jack Osborne, 6-1, 6-2; Ruth McKee and Roy Tranter defeated Hazel Jackson and Al Drynan 6-2, 6-3; Anna McKenzie and Jack Kirkwood defeated Isobel Duthie and H. Salvadge, 6-0, 6-2; Margaret Jackson and Ormond Benson defeated Anne Davis and Art Jones, 5-6, 6-2, 6-2.

It should be noted that in the semi-finals and finals of all tournament matches, short-set rulings no longer apply and all sets should be played out to their completion. That is, each set should be won by at least two games. As a matter of fact, short sets should never be played in a tourney of this kind. It is unfair since the service plays an important part in the outcome of the game and possibly the match.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

WESTCLOX WILL WIND UP their series in Oshawa tonight, the O. S. A. intermediate "A" teams having the rubber match at six in the Motor City stadium. Pat (Pop) Hayden's hopefuls figure that Mister Whitely will be a pitcher who went once too often to the well, and that a hit in time saves nine—or something. They ought to knock the "shaw" out of Oshawa and prance into the next playdown round 'gainst the Kingstons. It'll be Lorne Bateman on the Westclox slab with Whitely almost a sure starter, if not finisher, for Scribe Campbell's crew. Toronto umps will be imported. We suppose baseball and softball umpires are insult-proof or they wouldn't be in the game, but we'd feel hurt in pride and pocket at the way these arbiters are ankling into Central Ontario for playoff gravy. Ah, yeah, verily.

• • • • • • •

AT TWO BITS A THROW, GRANDSTAND gratis, the O. B. A. juvenile playdown tilt at three in Riverside tomorrow after lunch should draw a big crowd. It's between St. Mary's of Toronto and our P. C. I.-ers, and the kids dished up a lovely 2-1 ball game in Toronto in the first of the series the other e'en. A pitchers' battle between Fowler and Foster, the latter going fine for the locals but edged a trifle by the other, who Dan Howley says is the best kid pitching minor ball now in Ontario. Podden us if we go to town a trifle for the local lads, but it's a long time since we had a good young ball club in Provincial playdowns, and we feel these fellows might go places.

Students Try O.B.A. Exams

COACH BILL JACKSON'S COLLEGIANS cleaned up in the Junior City Loop here this summer like the law on slot machines. Beat 'em badly, and then entered juvenile Ontario playdowns. Fooled everyone by their fine showing in Toronto and they can lick the boys of St. Mary's (if they were gals we could call 'em belles of St. Mary's, eh?) here tomorrow. Forcing a third game. Big Nels Foster will likely fling again and he can smoke the apple across the platter like Daffy Dean used to do it. Local lineup may be: Rochetti, rf; Moorehead, 1b; Cutting, cf; Foster, p; Wilson, 2b; Scriver, ss; Wade, 3b; Parnall, c; Lewis, lf, or Craig, lf. Maybe a few other'll get into the game, too. Come on youse fans and cheer the boys along.

• • • • • • •

REGARDLESS—OR "IRREGARDLESS," as second cousin Egbert used to say—of how the Petes make out in Oshawa on the morrow, there will be a C. O. B. L. playoff number at three Monday in Riverside Park. Probably the last jamboree of the year between these rivals on local terrain. A huge holiday crowd of customers will undoubtedly pack the place for this promising scrap. At present, the Petes and GM-men have two wins each in the four-in-seven continuity, and the Petes' protest on the last Oshawa win will be dealt with after the locals' game in the Motor City tomorrow. So we can't tell you now how the clubs will stand when they meet here Monday, nor who will do the pitching—all we know is that it'll be another torrid tilt, and these gees are playing for keeps. So don't let anything short of a shotgun in the wife's hands keep you away; in fact, you might pawn the shooting iron and bring the missus along, too!

Those Southend Bombers

NEARLY 500 FANS wended their ways southward last twilight to see what the softball gods had in store for them and for Little Harlem and for Maple Leafs. In the third game of the Southend Loop finals, which have been featured by pitchers' battles—the like of which have never before been seen. The pitchers battle to duck return volleys and keep from getting hurt! It is strictly a hitters' series. Well, Leafs took the Payne entry by a 13-11 count in an exciting joust and a win for 'em tonight will wind it up. If Harlemites cop it, they'll play the decider tomorrow after supper. Better let the dishes wait over an hour or so this eve.

TRENTON FLIERS TOOK Lindsay's he-male softballers in two straight in intermediate "B" playdowns. Busher Jackson didn't play this fray for Lindsay, but he's been getting in a little softball with the Scugogers and a trifle of baseball with Sunderland recently. The Fliers, faithfully followed by Fred Collins—whose 200-odd pounds used to hold down one end of the Petes' baseball bench—have a number of puckists on the lineup. Gees like Legris, Lecompte, Lalonde, Gibson, Davis and one of the McNeely twins. Which might lead one to believe that the Airmen may return to the puck wars intact again, though it was rumored early this summer they'd seek a different grouping to the one which included Peterborough last winter. And we wouldn't blame 'em. Soon as our vacash ends we'll get busy and detail Operative 4.4 to drop in on the airport in a parachute and get the lowdown.

Give It To Brooklin, Shorty

LOCAL LACROSSERS WILL hold a practise at seven tonight, with everyone asked to attend. Team is okay and biding its time till the O. L. A. says "sic 'em, Petes" again. But Shorty Reid, speedy little forward, will be on the sidelines for a time, having gathered unto himself a juicy dose of poison ivy to celebrate the ending of summer. Y's Men's Club midgets opened the three-game finals last p.m. with a 5-2 win over Kinsmen. Dunno when the next struggle will be. Coach Chute tells us he plans to pick the all-star midget team for O. L. A. playdowns next Wednesday when all five teams will attend a practise for the purpose. No lacrosse tussle listed here tonight.

• • • • • • •

CRISP AUTUMN EVENINGS seem to be with us and the gridders are hitting it up harder in nightly workouts. Quite a gang on deck at the Ex. every twilight and the team will soon be taking shape. Looks like efforts to line up a pre-schedule exhibition fracas with Queen's are out, though the boys might do worse than have a practise session with Cobourg's Rapid Wraiths. Coach Chuck Peck is lining up a powerful intermediate "A" team to go in against Belleville, Trenton and Kingston, with some half a dozen new players on top of the 1937 "B" champs. Quite a few new faces—slightly scarred from senior goings-over in other centres in other years—are seen here at drills, and prospective lineup will be released next week. Work is proceeding on thenew gridiron nicely. Group doesn't open till next month.

• • • • • • •

HITHER AND YAWN: Quinte Ballsters evened their series with the Gibbards the other night, and deciding tilt is this eve in Picton. . . . Kingston softballers slipped over a 7-4 win on Point Anne in their first playdown jamboree. . . . Freddy Kitchen, Oshawa softball catcher, had a finger broken in the game with Westclox here Tuesday. . . . Cobourg gals got the first playoff win over Bowmanville on Wednesday by an 11-2 score; they're not in P. W. S. U. competition. Catcher Miskimmons of Stratford, who nearly came here this year as playing manager, batted .384 in the Inter-County Loop. . . . In the Petes' game in Oshawa tomorrow, Calladine will likely play right field with Clark at second and Starr catching. . . . Ross Craig couldn't be obtained by the Orfuns this season, and he'll hoof them for Hamilton Tigers. . . . C. G. E. Athletic Club will have a flock of sprinters, dozens of men and gal fencers and some boxers, all working out anytime now. . . . Java Joe says he doesn't wish to "cast any asparagus at some of the lighter suspects workouting with the gridironers here" but he thinks he might try for a spot himself. . . . We trust the puck officials haven't forgotten that September is the month to bolster the teams. . . . Oh, all right, boss, here it is; we weren't loafing—mumble, mumble!

Maple Leafs Win Second By A 13-11 Score

The Leafs built up an early lead in the third game of the Southend softball finals played last night at the Brinton Grounds and thereby took a 13-11 decision from Little Harlem to go ahead in the three-out-of-five series, two games to one.

Close to five hundred fans saw a well played exciting tilt which was not decided until the last man was out. The Leafs scored four in the initial innings on two walks and doubles by the Corbert brothers and Ashmore and continued the assault in the second and third frames to drive Crary to cover. Dennie, who relieved him, yielded three more runs in the fourth and then settled down to turn in a neat relief effort allowing five hits while walking four and striking out a like number over six innings he worked. Craig was nicked for nine hits and four walks during his short stay on the mound.

Little Harlem, faced with a nine-run deficit, nicked thirteen hits off Butcher's offerings and although they failed to score more than two runs in any one innings they made things close pushing two runs across in the last of the ninth and had the tieing runs headed for home when Calladine was thrown out at first on a close play to end the tilt.

J. Corbert with four hits and J. Connelly and C. Corbert with three apiece lead the Leaf attack while Calladine helped himself to four hits and played a whole of a game in centre field for the losers. Both teams turned in a good defensive game with the outfielders of both squads having a busy evening to turn several bids for homers into neat putouts.

Line-ups:

Maple Leafs: C. Corbert, 3b; J. Connelly, lf; J. Corbert, ss; Heffernan, rf; Lazure, 1b; Ashmore, c; Giardino, 2b; Holden, cf; Butcher, p.

Little Harlem: Price 1b; Dennie, cf, rf, p; Calladine, 3b, cf; Craig, p, rf; McNabb, 2b; F. Maloney, ss; Tompkins, 3b; Connelly, rf; Gray, c; Conroy, lf; Hodgson, lf.

Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Maple Leafs	413 300 020—13	14	3
Little Harlem	002 021 222—11	13	3

Umpires—Smith and Coursey.

Tonight these two teams clash in the fourth game, with a win for the Leafs giving them the championship while a Little Harlem victory will make a fifth and deciding game necessary Saturday night.

NEW YORK YANKEES DROP SECOND STRAIGHT TO DETROIT 6-3

Pirates Take Giants, Cubs Nip Bees To Mix First Division Like Boarding House Hash

The National Baseball league pennant race—if there's going to be one from here in—is now squarely up to Will McKechnie and his streaky Reds.

With the Pittsburgh Pirates riding along on a seven-game lead at this writing, and what is left of the once-proud Giants resting in fourth place, Cincinnati's alternately hot-and-cold outfit either can make a fight of it, or just let it die a natural death.

For, with the season down to its last 30-or-so games, the Reds tangle with the Pirates nine times before they ring down the curtain Oct. 2. No other club meets the blazin' Bucs more than five times the rest of the way, and 15 of the 32 tilts still left on the Pittsburgh calendar are against second division outfits.

Thus, if Wily Will can get his boys steamed up when Pittsburgh comes to town (six of the nine games are in Cincinnati), things still are likely to pop, although the chances are the smoky city crew, looking like the McCoy in taking three out of four from the Giants in their latest manoeuvring, will breeze in. You can't overlook the fact that the Pirates already have won eight of their 13 engagements with the Rhinelanders.

A Nice Mixup

The Pittsburghers, after a sloppy showing all through August, had just about everything yesterday as they opened the final month with a 6-0 whitewashing of the Giants. Bob Klinger, coming off the hospital list, tossed a seven-hitter, and Lloyd Waner led a 12-hit attack with a triple and three singles.

This defeat for the Giants, coupled with the Cubs' tight 4-2 decision over Boston Bees behind Clay Bryant's classy elbowing, mixed up the first division standings like boarding house hash. The Cubs and the Reds, who were idle, climbed into a second-place tie, seven games back of the Bucs. The Giants—pygmies would be the more suitable name—nose-dived to fourth, half a game farther back.

And since the Giants must meet up with the fifth-place Bees in nine games, it is conceivable that Terry's Terriers may slide right out of the first division.

Yankees Are Beaten.

The American league has no such fuss for the flag. The Yankees, although dropping their second straight to Detroit Tigers, 6-3, boast a 13-game lead, and they've been holding it with a patch-work line-up, minus three key men who are sidelined with "miseries."

Boston's second-place Red Sox nipped Buck Newsom and St. Louis Browns 5-3 on Jimmy Foxx's 39th homer. The third-place Cleveland Indians walloped the Athletics 11-4. And Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox swept their series with the Senators on an 11-6 finale win, despite Al Simmons' 19th homer, a new high for a Washington walloper.

For the third straight game, the Cardinals went all out to outlast the Phillies 6-5, winning in the ninth behind Curt Davis' steady flinging.

HOLDS GERMAN TITLE

FRANKFORT — (CP). — H. G. Bentley, Hesketh, retained the German amateur golf championship when he defeated H. J. Reimenschneider, 18-year-old German schoolboy, by 4 and 2 in the 36-hole final.

German Davis Cup Tennis Team Ordered Home

Defeated in five straight matches by Australia's Davis Cup team of Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich, the German team, winners of the European zone play before clashing with the antipodeans, was "requested" to return home for a "rest." The members of the German team, shown ABOVE, from LEFT to RIGHT, Rolf Goepfert, Georg von Metaxa and Henner Henkel, were stunned by the news, having expected to take part in the U.S. national championships and other tournaments. Word to cut short their American visit was received from German officials after the Aussies had already clinched the round and before play began in the final two singles matches.

Stu Martin, Cardinals—His single in ninth drove in winning run to down Phillies 6-5.

Long Key Wins Governor's Stake At Grand Circuit

SYRACUSE, NY., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Long Key, owned by E. J. Marckle, Columbus, Ohio, and driven by Ben White, Thursday won the $7,500 Govenor's Stake, outstanding event of the six-day Grand Circuit meeting at the New York State Fair.

McLin, upset winner in the Hambletonian, finished eighth in the first heat and fourth in the second as Long Key came through, but the Hanover Shoe Farm's prize colt conquered his tendency to break and led all the way in the final heat, staving off Long Key's closing burst by a whisker.

Vic Fleming, star reinsman from Dundas, Ont., scored two seconds, the first with Clever Hanover in the third race and with The Widower in the fourth race.

Chicago Sailors Win Trophy For Second Year

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y., Sept. 2 (A.P.). — A crack crew of eight-meter yachtsmen from Chicago took the Commodore Otto Barthel Trophy and championship of the Great Lakes home to-day for the second consecutive year.

They successfully defended their title in a series of six races in a three-day regatta that ended here yesterday.

Captain Robert Haynie was in charge of the Chicago crew that represented the Lake Michigan Yachting Association and amassed a winning score of 13 points.

Chicago wound up one point better than Detroit and two better than Toronto, challengers who represented respectively Lakes Erie and Ontario. Losing skippers were William Fisher of Detroit and Robert Grant of Toronto.

Individual crew scores on a basis of first 3, second 2, third 1, were:

Chicago—Two firsts, three seconds one third.

Detroit—Two firsts, two seconds, two thirds.

Toronto—Two firsts, one second, three thirds.

Bears Wallop Orioles 9-4 Clinch Pennant

BALTIMORE, Sept. 2.—(AP). — The Newark Bears, a made-over ball club that couldn't lose the championship touch, were being hailed to-day as "winners and still champions" in the International League.

The Bears clinched their second straight pennant last night when they walloped the Baltimore Orioles, 9-4, while the second place Syracuse Chiefs were losing to Jersey City by the same score. As a result the Bears moved 15½ games in front of the Chiefs with 15 games to play for each team.

Sporting a new manager in Johnny Neun, who replaced Oscar Vitt when the latter moved up to the Cleveland Indians, a new infield and other strange faces, the prized farm team of the New York Yankees jumped into the lead at the very start of the season and never was headed.

While their record wasn't as devastating as that of the "Wonder Bears" of 1937 who won the pennant by 25½ games, it was enough to spoil the race by mid-May.

Late in April the Bears went on an 11-game winning streak. After dropping three games in a row to Buffalo they won 14 more in succession, a club record for consecutive victories, and just about ended the race.

Defeat by Jersey City left Syracuse only one game ahead of the Wings who, along with Toronto Maple Leafs, were idle yesterday. In the only other games on the schedule, Montreal won a double-header from Buffalo 5-1 and 8-1.

O.B.A. Playoff Here Saturday

A ball game will be staged at three o'clock in Riverside Park here tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, an O.B.A. juvenile playdown struggle. It will be the second clash between Toronto St. Mary's and the local P.C.I. crew. If Toronto wins, they advance into the next round of the Provincial playdowns, with the locals dropping out of further competition. But a home win would sew up the series and force a third game on neutral grounds. The Saints nosed out a 2-1 nod over Peterborough in a thrilling twirlers' duel between Fowler and Foster in Toronto the night before last, and another nifty playdown contest is likely here tomorrow.

Coach Bill Jackson of P.C.I. has a smart young squad this season. They romped through the local Junior City Ball League and then went into O.B.A. juvenile playdowns, all being young enough. Not figured to do much against a good Toronto team, the scrappy P.C.I.-ers surprised everyone with their excellent showing Wednesday, losing this heart-breaker. They promise to even the series in Peterborough and then eliminate the St. Mary's outfit. It is uncertain what pitchers will be used, but both teams are strong in this department, and another fine ball game is expected. It ought to draw a good crowd of fans, both school followers and ball fans in general.

C.G.E. Defeats C.C.F. Team In Close Game

One of the smartest soccer games of the season took place Thursday night, on King Edward Park, between Canadian General and the C.C.F. in a league game that the former won by the score of 4 to 1. The Politicians had a well balanced eleven on the field.

Smart Combination

Both custodians were called upon to save many in the early stages. A break away by Harris, on the left wing, culminated in the parting shot hitting the upright and the full back clearing the rebound. Scrimmage after scrimmage ensued in the vicinity of the shooting zone where the forwards were held in check by the stalwart defensive tactics of the full backs. The half back division never allowed any freedom to the attacking line thereby confining the activities to mid-field where excellent combination was produced on the wings. Henwood and Jobe tested Bolton, C.C.F. goalie, with drives that had the ear-mark of danger upon them. Time and again Curtis, C.C.F. custodian, brought off spectacular saves from the foot of McMaster who was in his element shooting from all angles in an endeavor to open the scoring. He was rewarded later when the C.C.F. custodian ran out of his goal to clear in a melee in front, but was surprised when McMaster connected with a smart drive into the empty net, just before the interval. C.G.E. 1, C.C.F. 0.

Goals plenty

On resuming, after five minutes of play, Harris equalled the score when he scored from close in on Keith, across the goal mouth, at the other end E. Jobe scored on an individual effort. O'Halloran shot a first timer at the C.G.E. custodian who made a faulty clearance to permit a C.C.F. tally. The same player on the next visit, sent a lighning drive across the C.G.E. goal to find his teammates letting the opening slide. With five minutes to go, McMaster registered the fourth count. Canadian General 4, C.C.F. 2.

Goal scorers—C.G.E., McMaster (3), and Harris; C.C.F. O'Halloran and Jobe.

C.C.F.—J. Bolton, goal; A. Mitchell and S. Murduff, full backs; F. Earle, J. Buchan and T. McPhate, halves; H. Keith, A. Ross, B. McMaster, J. Goodhue and W. Harris, forwards; sub, J. Cribbis.

Canadian General — W. Curtis, goal; W. Denisin and Art OHalloran, full backs; F. Mayette, H. Clapham and E. Denisin, halves; S. Henwood, E. Jobe, F. Dyer, P. Thorn and R. Smelt, forwards; subs, G. McDonald and J. Lang.

Referee, J. Hanlon; linesman, J. Flynn and Art Bromley.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Sept. 2—(CP Cable)—The touring Australian cricketers Thursday obtained some measure of revenge for the innings defeat inflicted by England in the final test last week by whipping an England eleven at Blackpool by 10 wickets. The home players were dismissed for 132 and 99, the Antipodeans replying with 174 and 58 for no wickets.

Frank Ward took 10 English wickets for 64 runs during the match, and W. J. O'Reilly nine for 74. Amar Singh, Indian bowler, now playing as professional in the Lancashire league, appeared against the Aussies, and in the first innings took six wickets for 84 runs.

Nottinghamshire defeated Kent by 10 wickets in a county championship match concluded a day ahead of schedule. Somerset trounced Leicestershire by an innings and 140 runs.

Close of play scores:

Kent 84 and 122 (Voce six for 53); Nottinghamshire 133 and 74 for no wickets; at Dover.

Leicestershire 113 and 179 (Watson 72, Wellard five for 37); Somerset, 432 (Lee 95, Buse 67, Wellard 56); at Taunton.

Essex 553 (Nichols 159, Avery 138, O'Connor 83, Pearce 71); Gloucestershire 97 (Nichols 9 for 37) and 210 for four (Barnett 105 not out, Crapp 64 not out); at Gloucester.

Surrey 270 and 133 (Wilkinson six for 53); Lancashire 164 (Nutter 77, Watts five for 43), and 14 for no wickets; at the Oval.

An England Eleven 132 and 99 overtime after tying the count 10-all at the end of regular time.

Orillia, Brampton, St. Catharines Take Lacrosse Openers

(By the Canadian Press.)

It's playoff time again for the boys who wield the lacrosse sticks and to-day three teams emerged victorious from first-round games of the Senior Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association.

In tilts played last night, Orillia defeated Fergus 21-15, Brampton triumphed 11-9 over Mimico and St. Catharines won 15-12 from Hamilton-Burlington. Each game was the first of a best-of-three series.

Hydro Offers Millbrook Power Plant

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 2.—A representative body of citizens gathered in the Town Hall on Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. to hear Mr. D. I. Nattress, of the Hydro Power Commission discuss the matter of having the municipality purchase its local distribution system.

Reeve W. E. Ball occupied the chair, and mentioned the fact that in 1928 this proposition had come before the council, but had not been entertained at that time. In recent months the matter of such a purchase, and the advantages which might accrue therefrom had again been brought rather prominently before the public, with the result that the Council had decided to ask the Power Commission to send a representative who would place all the facts before the ratepayers.

Only three municipalities in a specified Central Ontario area have failed, so far, to buy their local distribution system, according to Mr. Nattress, these including Orono, Millbrook and Newburgh. Those which have made such purchase are Belleville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Napanee, Deseronto, Trenton, Brighton, Newcastle, Bowmanville, Oshawa, and Lindsay. Belleville and Port Hope have retired their 20 years debenture issue in less than 10 years out of their surplus, and a number of other places have most of their debentures paid, while some of the other corporations will have completed their payments this year.

Price of $9,116.61.

According to information given by Mr. Nattress the Commission is willing to dispose of the local distribution system to the municipality at the net price, as shown on the books of the H.E.P.C., of $16,679.74, with a credit for accrued renewals of $7,563.13, making a net sale value of the system, as to date of October 31, 1937, amounting to $9,116.61.

The Commission will accept the Corporation's 20-year debentures, bearing interest at 4½%, in payment for the property, and provision will be made for the Corporation to redeem any debentures prior to their date of maturity out of any surplus funds which may come into its hands, through the operation of the Utility, in future years.

The figures, in the statement as given by Mr. Nattress, showing the estimates annual operation of the system based upon a supply of power at $40.35 per horsepower, being the cost of power delivered to the village from the Eastern Ontario System of the H.E.P.C., were as follows:

Net book value of system	$ 9,116.61
Suggested debenture issue	9,000.00

"Assuming that a debenture issue of $9,000.00 would be made, for the payment of the property, the Commission proposes that it would continue to operate the property in trust for the Corporation until an agreed date, when the Corporation would be prepared to take over the management of the system, at which time a final statement would be rendered to the village showing the receipts and expenditures on behalf of the H.E.P.C. for the Municipality while it was operated in trust."

Must Buy Stores.

"The Municipality would be required to take possession of any stores on hand at the time of the purchase at the book value, estimated approximately as $500.00, but of which it would be necessary to make a detailed inventory. It is estimated that the surplus earnings, between the date of transfer and final settlement, would be sufficient, in addition to the $9,000.00 debentures, to fully provide for the payment of the property."

Figures covering a theoretical operating statement, prepared October 31, 1937, for the Millbrook Electric System, if purchased by the Municipality for $9,000.00, with a 4¾%—20 year serial debentures, and based on the Commission's operating costs and revenues for 1937, include:

Revenue:

Lighting, domestic	$3,668.04
Lighting, commercial	1,978.22
Power	318.30
Street lighting	867.60
Merchandise and job work	31.20
Miscellaneous R.O.S.	49.18
	$6,912.54

Expense:

Power 66, 7 H.P. at $40.35	$2,691.35
Distribution system, operation and maintenance	337.28
Transformers, operation and maintenance	1.63
Meters	82.50
Street lights	11.18
Billing and collecting	379.42
Superintendence and general expense	724.00
Stores and utility equipment expense	71.57
	$4,298.93
Operating surplus	$2,613.61

Fixed Charges:

Debentures $9,000.00 at 7.86%	$786.00
Depreciation $9,000.00 at 2%	$180.00	$ 966.00
Balance, when this is subtracted from $2,613.61		$1,647.61

Should the proposal of the H.E.P.C. be favorably considered by the Council, it will be submitted to the ratepayers at a date to be announced, possibly not until the beginning of the New Year, in which case a purchase agreement will be prepared by the Commission providing for the sale of the property on the first of the month in which the election takes place. The property will be transferred to the Corporation at the end of the month in which the debentures are delivered to the Commission, and the Corporation would have final possession of the plant at a future date as to which agreement had been made.

Like Other Agreements.

Mr. Nattress explained that this basis of sale is similar, in all respects, to that employed by the Commission in disposing of other distribution systems in the Central Ontario district, to the respective municipalities, and gave assurance that when the council had decided to go on with the proposal the H.E.P.C. would prepare the necessary documents including the purchase agreement and debenture by-law, as well as other detailed documents which will require the sanction of the local electors.

A number of questions were asked Mr. Nattress, before the meeting closed, the reeve and council meeting him afterward for further discussion of plans and details.

More Spindle Trees

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (AP).—The cultivation of the spindle tree, also known as witchwood or pricklewood (evonymus europacus) is officially urged as important under the four-year economic independence plan, on the ground that it yields gums, oils and pharaceutical substances that would otherwise have to be imported.

Textile Strike discharge of 37 workers last week after employers declared the payroll too large.

The Cabinet was summoned to discuss the International crisis as the spreading threat of strikes endangered the internal security of the country.

The session with President Albert LeBrun himself presiding originally was scheduled to be devoted mainly to the Czechoslovak government's strife with its Germanic minority over autonomy demands.

Decree Another Threat.

But increasing opposition of workers to the Cabinet's decree assuming the right to extend working hours beyond the usual 40-hour week in industries vital to national defence assumed such proportions that it was expected the strike threat would receive equal attention.

The government, in fact, considers the two problems as one, for it fears the crisis at home might give Adolf Hitler a go-ahead signal to settle the Sudeten Germans' autonomy by force.

Premier Edouard Daladier has reminded France repeatedly in the last two yeeks that Chancellor Hitler remilitarized the Rhineland March 7, 1936, and annexed Austria March 13, 1938, when France was weakened by internal struggles.

Chancellor Hitler in his discussions with Henlin yesterday was understood to have rejected specifically that part of the present Czech plan calling for a three-month truce in negotiations.

To-day's German press discovered another grievance attributed to Czechs, printing reports that German parents in the Hultschin district were unable to send their children to German schools and were told instead to enrol them in Czech institutions. The German press complained also that Gablonz police had forbidden display of portraits of Hitler, but that pictures of Soviet Russia's Stalin were shown freely.

Hogs Up 25 Cents But Cattle Prices Slump

TORONTO, Sept. 2—(CP)—Cattle prices dropped 25 to 35 cents on most grades of killers with around 500 head unsold at the close on the Toronto Livestock market this week, the Dominion Livestock Branch reports. Calves were steady while hogs gained 25 to 50 cents. Lambs were firm to 25 cents higher and sheep steady to strong.

The heavy run of cattle included only 1,300 from the west. Trade was dull from the opening and the Monday holdover was 3,300 head. Prices on all grades of killers except bulls were down 25 to 35 cents with spots as much as 50 cents lower. Weighty steers sold at top of $7 with most sales from $6.50 down. Butchers sold mostly between $4.50 and $5.50 with extreme tops at $6 a cwt. Butcher cows ranged from $3 to $4.25 with canners at $2.25 to $2.50. Good bulls sold at $4 to $4.50 and bolognas at $3.50 to $4. Fed calves opened at $9.50 for tops but closed at a range of $6.50 to $9. Stockers were fairly active at $4 to $5.35 cwt. Good mikers and springers were stronger at $65 to $70 for tested tops.

Calves were unchanged for the week at $9 to $9.50 for choice vealers with a few tops at $10. Common heavy calves sold downward to $5. Grassers were from $4 to $4.75.

Hog Supply Light.

Hogs gained 25 to 50 cents cwt. on a light supply. Bacons closed at $9.50 off trucks, the high mark for the week. Sows sold at $6.50 to $7 cwt. off trucks.

Sheep and lamb prices were stronger with the run fairly heavy. Good lambs sold mostly at $8.50, with several hundred making $8.60 to $8.75. Bucks sold at a discount of $1 cwt. and culls ranged from $6.50 to $7. Sheep were mostly at $2 to $4 cwt., according to quality, with a few good, light ewes at $4.50.

Request Denied

DETROIT, Sept. 1—(CP)— John Louis Detroit, asked Common Council for permission to put chairs on a section of a downtown street car line which he could rent to persons waiting for trolleys. In this way, he said, he could make money and be taken from welfare rolls.

Council, perhaps a little indignant at this unintended slur on the trolley service, denied the request.

Pushed Into Sewer Pipe

HAMILTON—Allan Hunter of Toronto told police he was robbed by a group of men early today who took off his shoes and then jammed him into a narrow sewer pipe lying on a vacant lot. Hunter, who said the men took $4.50, succeeded in wriggling out after some effort.

Church Hold Up

CHICAGO—Two gunmen wearing dark glasses held up 50 men and 40 women in the basement halls of St. Helen's Catholic Church last night and escaped with $200. To announce their presence one of the robbers fired shot into the ceiling. He stood guard over the men while his companion walked into an adjoining hall, where the women were meeting.

Bridge To Wait Until 1939 Aldermen Order

Residents of the north end of Ashburnham will have to continue to take the longest way round to reach the west bank of the Otonabee and the center of the city, possibly until some time in 1939, according to the trend of opinion at last night's meeting of the Board of Works.

Mayor Hamilton reported that a copy of the agreement between the city and the C.P.R. permitting the construction of the footbridge at the railway crossing of the river, had been sent to the Chicago offices of the Quaker Oats Company. He said that R. E. Cutting, manager of the local plant, and the company generally was not opposed to a footbridge at the London street dam.

Alderman Dutton said he understood the company would have to be assured of the fullest responsibility for any possible accidents that might occur if children could have access from the proposed footbridge to the railway crossing along the dam into the Quaker Oats yards.

"Overhang" Too Great

Cost of the bridge was estimated at $3,100 by City Engineer Parsons, and by engineers of several steel companies all the way up to $5,100. Mr. Parsons expressed doubt last night that the walk could be laid on arms projecting from the dam on the west side because the "overhang" might be too wide.

Alderman McCannan pointed out that there was no money provided in this year's budget for the proposed bridge, and Alderman Gordon suggested that the Utilities Commission should be asked to turn into the city treasury their surplus of $19,276. According to the auditor's report the Commission had $69,276 in reserves but were permitted to carry only $50,000.

Both Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Dutton questioned the statement that the Commission had $19,000 surplus in cash.

"It is in their plant," His Worship said.

"But, they set it up as money invested," Alderman Gordon argued.

"Have they $5,000, enough to build the footbridge?" Ald. Wilson enquired, and Alderman Gordon replied that he was simply depending on the information in the auditor's report.

"I'll find out for sure by Tuesday night," he added, and Mayor Hamilton undertook to consult Mr. Cutting again today.

The members of the Board, and that means all the members of the council, were unanimously in favor of providing the footbridge as requested by the deputation from Ashburnham a month ago, but they intimated that there wasn't much likelihood of the bridge being built this year.

To Restore Sidewalk

Mayor Hamilton moved, seconded by Alderman Juby, that the City Engineer Parsons proceed with the laying of a concrete walk on the north side of Lansdowne street east of Monaghan Road, replacing the sidewalk that was torn up by the Department of Highways when the street was being paved. It will be 938 feet long and the estimated cost is $1,084. The Department has agreed to pay for the work and have the city do it.

A. Wander & Company requested that the boulevard on the south side of Lansdowne street from the Park street corner to the company's west gate be improved. Alderman Stocker suggested that twenty loads of top soil might be sufficient. The Board instructed City Engineer Parsons to examine the frontage and report on what would be required.

W. B. Gordon, representing Frank Schiarizza, applied for damages on account of a rupture alleged to have been suffered by his client while employed at the city's quarry on the Lakefield road. Mr. Parsons reported that Schiarizza had quit work as a powderman June 21 because, it was said, he had been reprimanded by the foreman for alleged carelessness in blasting the limestone rock The Board decided to try to obtain information as to whether the rupture was a recent disability.

APPLE CONTRACTS

KENTVILLE, N.S.—(CP).—A representative of an English firm of importers has signed contracts in the Annapolis Valley for the purchase of 200,000 barrels of apples this season. Some of the individual contracts are large, running as high as 75,000 barrels.

A "Bomb" Alright

CHICAGO, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Eddie West was sure it was a bomb. He and the policeman who looked at the package called in Sergt. William Kane of the Bomb Squad. And then, while Eddie stood by with his fingers in his ears, a hole was cut in the side of the package. A peek within disclosed 100 baseball lottery tickets. Blushing Eddie was detained for questioning by Federal agents who are investigating a national lottery ring.

Man Badly Hurt When Struck By R. R. Jigger

Wheeler Patterson, 72-year-old North Monaghan township farmer was critically injured Thursday evening when he was run over by a gasoline powered railway jigger on the C.P.R. track near Archie Patterson's gravel pit, south-west of the city.

He is in St. Joseph's Hospital and is suffering from a broken leg, which is badly bruised and also head injuries. Fears for his recovery are entertained owing to his advanced age.

The elderly man was on his way to bring the cows home at five-thirty and was about to cross the railway at the gate to the gravel pit when he was struck by the jigger, knocked down and the steel wheel passed over his leg.

How the accident occurred is rather confusing but a reliable source revealed that the elderly man stopped when he saw the jigger, and the operator of the machine, Ed. Warner, Toronto, believed the farmer intended to wait until the machine had passed. The farmer on the other hand apparently believed when the machine slowed down that he should proceed and both started together with the accident resulting.

Cooking Of Meat Fall Project Of Roseneath W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 2. — An address by A. H. Martin, agricultural representative for Northumberland county, a varied musical program with a brief business session, combined to make a most interesting meeting of Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Alfred Sherwin was the hostess, Mrs. B. Thackeray, president, presided, and the meeting was held in the town hall.

Mr. Martin's subject was 'Review of Garden Insect Pests and How to Control.'

Previous to beginning his talk Mr. Martin touched on the rapid strides made in household science.

Fall Project.

During the business period the president announced the fall project would deal with meat cookery, the characteristics and care of good meat. Mrs. George Mouncey and Mrs. L. Tucker were appointed delegates to the class.

Mrs. George Mouncey presided over the program, which opened with a piano solo, "Marche Mignonne," played by Miss Margaret Atkinson. Misses Audrey Mouncey and Gwendolyn Varcoe sang a duet, "There's a Little Red Barn." Mrs. Lily Turner read an article, "The Farmer's Wife." Catherine Hugh executed a tap dance, and Misses Joan McGrath and Gwendolyn Varcoe sang and yodelled, "I'm Goin' to Ride to Heaven on a Streamlined Train." Joan McGrath won a birthday prize, and the program closed with a contest, arranged by Mrs. Edgar Carew.

Votes of appreciation were tendered the hostess, the guest speaker and the program committee.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting, and the hostess served refreshments.

WHAT SPIDERS ARE

A spider is not an insect. Spiders belong to the class Arachnida, which includes scorpions, mites and ticks. They differ from insects in several respects. Spiders have no feelers or antennae, as insects have. They also have four pairs of legs and two pairs of jaws. Insects have three pairs of legs and three pairs of jaws.

Three American Visitors Wind Up Holiday Fishing In Blaze Of Glory

FURTHER PROOF that the muskies are biting this week was displayed at Bobcaygeon Thursday when three American visitors closed their holiday fishing in a blaze of glory, landing one of the finest catches to be made in these waters this year.

The exciting afternoon's fishing might well be termed the battle of the guides, who in this particular village are all closely related and always vie with one another for the honor of bringing in the party with the largest catch. Three members of the Nichols family long famous as guides in this section dug deep in their tackle boxes for their favorite plug and paddled round and round the weed beds in Sturgeon Lake just opposite Muskrat Island, coaxing the elusive muskies to strike.

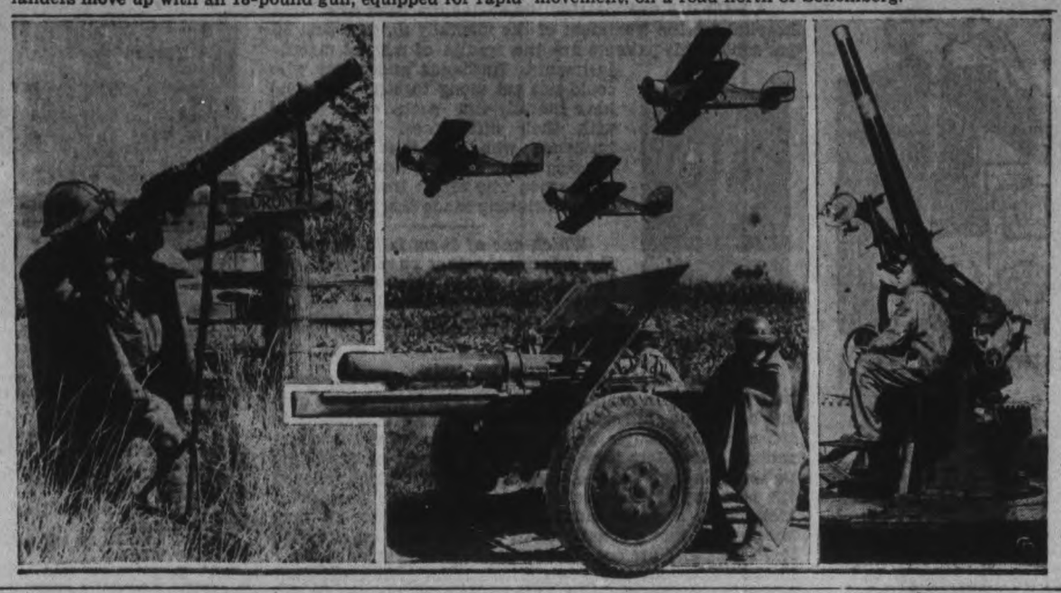
The honors for the day were carried off by the Shoemaker family of Hamburg N. Y. who with Percy Nichols Jr. as guide brought to gaff three beautiful muskies weighing 10, 14 and 20 pounds as well as a nice mess of bass. Mr. Shoemaker used both a Pal-o-Mine and a Rainbow Pikie with great success. Mr. and Mrs. Phillip C. Shaeffer Sr. of Buffalo fellow guests at Locust Lodge paddled by Herb Nichols were content with landing two muskies weighing 8 and 15 pounds, having the day before brought in 21 fighting bass.

Another contender in the battle was Dr. Lichtenfels of Pittsburgh, who has been a visitor to the village since June 7 and reports excellent fishing. With Percy Nichols Sr. as guide and using a Pikie Minnow the Doctor had two large muskies at 10 and 15 pounds to show as his prize.

Keen fishermen report that catch this year has been excellent and proof of this may be seen any evening in Bottom's Hardware Window which has always been reserved to display the day's largest catch.

War Games

Northland and Southland armies—the former rated as defenders and the latter as invaders—met in an extended engagement in the hills of Simcoe County, as the Canadian permanent forces went through the greatest war games since the great war. At LEFT, a machine gunner defending the road to Toronto, far to the south, swings into action as attacking airplanes of the R.C.A.F. (bottom CENTRE) roar across the front line. Also set to pepper the attacking aerial squadrons is the anti-aircraft gun at RIGHT, one of a battery whose effective operation was watched by both permanent and non-permanent forces. BELOW the attacking Southlanders move up with an 18-pound gun, equipped for rapid movement, on a road north of Schomberg.



Traffic Hazards Be Cleaned Up

Hedges that create a traffic hazard at street corners were listed for pruning or removal by the Board of Works, Thursday night. One of them is at the southwest corner of Murray and Water streets, another at Sherbrooke and Aylmer streets, the location of the Utilities Commission's sub-station, a third at Hunter and Belmont and so on.

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to interview the owners of these properties as a preliminary to lessening the hazard of which a number of citizens have complained to members of the council.

Incidentally, it was remarked that there are stop signs at these corners, especially the first two mentioned, and automobiles east bound should come to a full stop if they were complying with the law. Apart from that aspect, the Board felt the hedges did extend too close to the street line or beyond it, and they could be altered without impairing the appearance of the lawns.

Terrorists Burn Jaffa Synagogue

JERUSALEM, Sept. 2.—(CP)—A Jewish synagogue near the boundary between the Port of Jaffa and the Jewis city of Tel Aviv was partly destroyed by fire today as a new wave of disorder swept the district.

Nine Jews were wounded by a bomb explosion on the Jaffa-Tel Aviv Road. This region has seen some of the bitterest strife in the Arab-Jewish conflict. At Jaffa last week a bomb which exploded in a crowded marketplace killed more than 30 persons.

Authorities pressed a hunt for the chief Arab assistant of the British regional authority, and three other men, kidnapped yesterday as they returned by automobile to Nazareth after collecting a $1,000 fine levied on a nearby village for sheltering terrorists.

Saved By A Girl

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(CP).—Joseph Carruthers, 42, Parkhill district, was in a serious condition in hospital to-day and police hailed Miss Willa Culbert of Lucan as a heroine for dragging Carruthers from his wrecked and burning automobile last night. Carruthers, a farmer, drove into a ditch, hit a culvert and turned over twice.

Two Men Living In Vienna Answer Peterborough "Advt." In London Times

CITY CLERK Armstrong received this morning an enquiry from Vienna in reply to an advertisement of Peterborough in the Canadian color number of the London Times, subscribed for by the city council.

Two brothers are anxious to leave Austria "because Jews have no chance to make a living in this country", one of them wrote. They manufacture wall painting colors, paint materials and a preparation used in artificial tanning, and like so many others of their race in central Europe they are virtually restricted from leaving Austria because under the Hitler tyranny they are prohibited from taking any money with them if they do leave. The amount is limited to 20 marks the equivalent of about ten dollars.

These two men are hoping that somewhere possibly in this country, they could enlist financial assistance to enable them to begin life anew. They need £100 or around $500 for machinery and $1,500 for raw materials. Their preference is to attract a partner who would be willing to finance them here and share with them in what they say would be "a really good business".

Mr. Armstrong will no doubt show the letter to any persons whom it might interest.

Road Engineers See New Plant

Directors of the new industry east of Havelock, the Non Skid Pavement Limited, located on the property of the Ontario Rock Company, were hosts on Wednesday to fifty engineers, muncipal representatives and others who buy and use road making material.

George A. Downey is the president and general manager of the company who expect to maintain employment for ten or fifteen men in their own plant. They use three-quarter inch crushed rock which is cleaned with a coal oil spray and then mixed with a heavy oil. It is delivered in condition to be spread on a road either for new construction purposes or for repairs.

The province of Ontario is using the Non Skid Pavement material on No. 2 highway east and west of Belleville, and it is believed a wide market is likely to be developed through road construction programs of urban and rural muncipalities.

Among those from the city and county who looked over the plant were Warden E. N. McDonald, E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, and Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A. The company entertained their guests at Horace King's summer resort on Belmont Lake. The dinner was excellent, and those who have been there know that the King meals are something to remember.

AIR-COOLED TEXTILES

Textiles which are air cooled, waterproof, and will not crush, crease or spot, are to be introduced in England.

Bear With Cattle

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 2—(CP). — Deers have been seen pasturing with cattle in this district. But bears, well that's different. Delmar Rosaiter said today that he and his wife were driving along he highway outside Sarnia when they saw what they thought was a big black dog in a field with cattle. They stopped their car and discovered it was a bear.

Offer Of $400 Is Accepted For Lot

The Parks committee of the council decided last night to sell another of its vacant lots and bargain for a better price on a second one.

An offer of $400 by H. G. McKenzie for a 79 foot lot on the east side of Monaghan Road, north of Bolivar street, was accepted on condition that construction of a house be begun within thirty days after delivery of the deed. It is understood that a another house will be built on the property next year.

Mrs. A. Berardi tendered $100 for the lot at the corner of Sophia and Rogers streets, 64 frontage by 146 feet in depth. It was said to be opposite the residence of E. A. Peck, K.C.

Alderman McCannan's committee balked at letting that property go for $100. The opinion of the members was that the lot was worth $200, and Alderman Bradburn moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that it be offered to Mrs. Berardi for that sum.

More interest is being taken in football in England than ever before.

Tory Executive To Meet In City

Thos. H. Stinson, K.C. of Lindsay, president of the East Centre District Conservative Association has called a special organization meeting to be held on Friday September 9th at the Empress Hotel in the afternoon at 2 o'clock standard time. Cecil G. Frost, K.C. of Lindsay is secretary.

Those asked to attend are the executive of the East Centre Conservative Association, all presidents and officers of the riding associations in the East Centre district, all members of Parliament and defeated candidates in the same district.

The district includes the following ridings: Durham, Muskoka-Ontario, Northumberland, Victoria, Ontario, Parry Sound and Peterborough. About 50 members of the Associations are expected to attend.

2 Charges Face Girl Driver

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 2—(CP)—Charges of criminal negligence and reckless driving were preferred against Miss Emma Dafoe today after a coroner's jury found Mrs. Mary McNally was killed by a car driven by Miss Dafoe in this city on Friday night last. The young woman will appear in court after the Labor Day holiday.

The evidence showed that Miss Dafoe, holding a beginners permit for driving attempted to turn a corner and when the right wheels struck the curb, the car darted across the road, onto a lawn and struck Mrs. McNally, who was sitting on a bench. The woman was carried 50 feet by the impact.

Miss Dafoe's father, Albert Dafoe, with his daughter at the time, said he tried to turn the wheel but the girls hands "froze" on the steering wheel.

Peaches From Pits

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Sept. 2.—(CP)—Four years ago, Dan Tucker planted three peach stones in his back yard. Tucker said his friends laughed at him, but now he has the last laugh. Three trees have grown up and today Tucker showed a peach, from one of his trees, which measured 10 inches in circumference.

Grand Old Lady Who Is 93 Returns To Where She Spent Her Youth

(By Staff Reporter)

BETHANY, Ont., September 1.—Even when a woman has reached the age of 93 years, she doesn't want people to think she's any older, according to Mrs. Sara Kearns, who is visiting in this district where she spent her youth.

This grand old lady, still as alert as many a middle-aged woman, is 93 now and she hastily corrected a reporter when he said "You are 95 aren't you?" "I am not," she said quickly. "Don't make me any older than I am."

Mrs. Sara Kearns was born in Yelverton, spent a number of years near Fenelon and Eldon, and has lived in Manitoba for the past 36 years. She is on holiday now with her sister, Mrs. R. H. Staples, a few years her junior. The two of them came from Winnipeg by train, expect to return when the cold weather sets in.

Still possessed of every faculty Mrs. Kearns is an active woman. She pieced quilts and did tatting until last winter when she decided it was time to stop. "I just put my tatting needles away and I haven't had them out since," she said.

In Winnipeg she has her own little apartment, does all her own cooking and cleaning. She likes to be independent and sees no reason why a woman should have to live with others just because she is 93 years old. She has no fear of trains, admitted. "I used to always think would have made the trip alone if her sister had not wanted to come. In fact two years ago she did make the trip alone, and this is the sixth time she has travelled from west to east.

MRS. SARA KEARNS

"I used to like Ontario best," she said, "but I've lost most of that feeling of it as being my home, but sometime now. I like the west now."

She was born Sara Ann Henders in Manvers township at Yelverton and lived there until she was twenty-two. Then she married and moved to Fenelon. Seven years later she went to Eldon and stayed there for 30 years. Thirty-six years ago she went west. Her husband died twenty-one years ago.

She thinks the young people of to-day are "a little bit too fast," she admitted. She doesn't think girls should smoke, says it is not a habit ladies would acquire. "Girls who smoke are not really ladies," she claimed.

Life is a great deal more pleasant in these days than when she was young, and people now have a better chance of reaching an age such as hers, she said. "My gracious, when I was a girl seventy was thought to be a ripe old age," she said.

She recalled how people used to have to ride in cold horse-drawn carriages in the dead of winter when she was young and compared that with heated automobiles of to-day. Such comfort would tend to lengthen a person's life, she believed.

Mrs. Kearns and her sister are visiting friends throughout the district these days. They have relatives, although none of them are immediate, in Cavan, Millbrook, Peterborough, Lindsay, and other centres.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

BAN FOREIGN FRUIT

Sale of imported fruit will be banned from the local market after October 1 if the property committee's recommendation Thursday night is approved by the city council.

NO GROUND FROST

Gardeners in all parts of the city and suburban area report that despite the chilly weather last night no damage was done to pumpkin vines or tomatoes. No ground frost was noticeable in any section.

LOSES HALF THUMB.

Tom Hope, farmer in the Keene district had his right thumb at the first joint cleanly amputated recently when it slipped between the gears in a grain crushing machine at his farm home. He was treated by Dr. Wright at Keene and the thumb is healing nicely.

SEVEN FOOT CANNAS.

It would seem cannas have a penchant for growing to unusual heights. Mrs. G. R. Penhall, 560 Bolivar street, topped the record in Thursday's Examiner by a whole foot. In her garden she has cannas growing seven feet six inches tall.

LARGE CUCUMBERS

Prize for the largest cucumbers in this district goes to W. A. McColl of Norwood who has two specimens in his garden, one of which weighs four pounds and two ounces and measures 15 inches in length, 11½ inches in circumference. The other weighs three pounds and four ounces.

STORES VACANT

A local business man returning from a vacation stopped at Collingwood for a short time, and counted eighteen stores in the business section that are vacant. He also reports that a large building which formerly housed five business establishments has been torn down. A slump in ship building is said to be responsible for the conditions.

EXTRA BLANKETS NEEDED

Quilt boxes and linen closets were raided last night by youngsters in all parts of the city, when the sudden drop in the temperature made bedrooms like ice boxes. Police officers on night duty said it was the first night so far that they had felt the cold, and theatre goers and dance hall patrons, particularly the girls were wrapped in heavy coats.

LABOR DAY AT POST OFFICE

The public lobby will be open from 6.30 a.m. to 6.00 p.m. All wickets will be open from 8.0 0a.m. to 12.00 noon. The regular morning delivery will be given by the Letter Carriers, and the regular delivery by the Rural Route Couriers. The collections will be made from the street letter boxes as usual, and all mail posted will be despatched as usual.

NOT COMPULSORY

Vents from bathrooms into chimneys will not be required by the building bylaw of the city according to a resolution by Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Alderman Wilson at Thursday night's meeting of the property committee. City Solicitor Huycke was asked to prepare an amendment to the bylaw embodying the change, which applies only to rooms in dwellings that are provided with windows.

FISHING IS GOOD

A muskie weighing 8 pounds, measuring 33 inches in length, was caught by Dr. Gilbert Channing in company with Charles Winfield of California, Penn., guests at "Cedar Isle" resort. They also caught several black bass and pickerel the same day. A 6 pound pickerel, measuring 30 inches in length, 14½ inch girth was caught by Allan Tucker of Toronto, while still fishing with a live frog as bait.

A PROSPEROUS DRUNK.

$121.37 in bills and silver was removed from the pockets of an inebriated gentleman brought into the police station late Thursday night. Besides this amount there was a cheque for $65. The man was taking up considerable room on the wide sidewalk when first noticed and when picked up by an officer was being hurried south on George street by three friends. The man said he had paid his taxes but the tax receipt was not in his pockets.

INGRATITUDE

A kindly woman living on Gladstone avenue, listened to the pleas of two down at the heels transients this morning and cooked a breakfast of eggs and other substantial food for them. Following the meal the two men demanded a quarter and when the woman refused stating she had none, both used profane language, abusing her for refusing to add money to her first donation of a meal. The woman telephoned police but the two men had disappeared when two officers arrived.

TO LEVEL "EX" FIELD

Alderman Glover's suggestion to the Board of Works last night that some assistance be given the football club in improving the playing field opposite the grandstand at the Exhibition Park was favorably received Thurday night., but no action will be taken until Tuesday when it is expected that some definite proposal will be submitted, Peterborough's entry in the Senior O.R.F.U. is regarded by the council as an important means of publicity for the city. Ald. Glover said the local games would be broadcast from the park.

MET IN GERMANY.

Ronald Walmsley of Huntsville and well known locally, in a letter to his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. J. Walmsley, formerly Hilda Phillips of this city tells of meeting the Rev. Walter Gilling while cycling through Germany recently. It was a chance meeting and neither knew each other until they started a conversation.

Fire Insurance Premium Tax Favored By OMA

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(CP).—Full approval of the Ontario Municipal Association was given to-day to a Niagara Falls proposal that the Legislature provide for a tax on all premiums for fire insurance written in the province. The resulting revenue would be used for a municipal pension fund or fire protection.

Previously approved in sectional discussions, the resolution passed to-day over the protests of Robert L. Stilling, representing the all Canada Insurance Federation. President William Jelly of Brockville, introduced Mr. Stalling as the fire marshal, but later interrupted the speaker to say he had been misinformed as to his status.

Mr. Stilling told the Association they had chosen fire insurance companies for the tax due to a mistaken idea as to their function. These companies furnished indemnity for premiums received.

"This proposal is discriminatory inasmuch as you single out one branch of insurance to pay tribute to one of your municipal services," Mr. Stalling said. The municipalities might just as logically tax automobile insurance for benefit of police forces.

Reeve John Warren of East York made an unsuccessful attempt to have the convention approve a proposal for a larger relief rent. A resolution from Stamford township and London that relief rents be paid on the basis of 300 per cent of taxes rather than 200 per cent previously was defeated in sectional discussions.

Amendment Fails.

Mr. Warren failed to gain support for an amendment providing a sufficient rental to pay carrying charges and "leave a little over for the landlord." He said present relief rent regulations were causing 'hardship, suffering and evictions" not only in his township but throughout the Toronto area.

"You may have no idea of the suffering we have seen in our own township," he said. "We have had evictions with the sheriff and bailiffs called in."

Councillor Arthur Bridge of Stamford opposed the measure although his council sponsored it. The proposal would mean a hardship for landlords who did not have relief tenants, he said.

The Association upheld the action of the resolutions committee in disapproving a Stamford proposal that the government enact Legislation whereby burdened municipalities might obtain government loans to refund existing obligation.

Approval was given a resolution asking the government to help all single unemployed men and women. By a close vote the Association turned down Kitchener's proposal for a head tax on gainfully employed women between the ages of 21 and 60. The elected representatives' section approved it yesterday but the Assessors' Section and resolutions committee turned it down.

"To put a head tax on every individual in a municipality means the poor man is bearing a burden out of proportion to the others," said E. A. Sanby of Brantford.

Approve use of Surplus

The convention approved St. Thomas' proposal that the Public Utilities Act be amended to allow a municipality to use the surplus of the local Hydro Commission.

Port Arthur's proposal that the government grants be greater than $4,000 for construction of a house of refuge was approved. The convention turned down a Windsor proposal asking the government to allow the municipality to licence not only dry cleaners whose plants are in the municipality but also firms entering the municipality and having the plant outside. It was explained licensing was necessary to prevent violation of the minimum prices fixed by council.

A back-to-the-land scheme failed to gain support. There was not debate and the meeting voted to take no action.

Without debate the convention approved resolutions cancelling the tax exemption on stores and other dwellings rented to religious institutions and cancelling exemption on parsonages.

Another resolution approved without debate asked the Legislature to provide for a business assessment on chain stores.

Walmsley crossed the ocean in a cattle boat last June. Rev. Gilling was formerly curate at St. John's Anglican Church here and is now at Trinity College, Toronto, where he is chaplain.

CRUISER HEADS SOUTH

The 46 foot cruiser "Vivette" owned by Col. O. H. Fogg of New York city passed through the canal yesterday homeward bound from Beaverton. The owner is the most popular tourist to pass through. He treats all lockmasters and bridgemen along the route and has been coming here regularly for the past 28 years. On the return trip he travelled from Beaverton to Deseronto through all the locks in 2 days, making excellent time because he had notified each lockmaster in advance the exact time he would arrive, and all lock gates were open waiting for him.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 32

NEXT MORNING the first thing Laurie saw when she got out of bed was the note which she had not seen the night previously. It was lying unopened on the floor. Noel was sleeping soundly, and Laurie hated to waken her, but she knew the contents of the note would make her happier than she had been for days.

So Laurie gave Noel a gentle shake. "Wake up, honey, wake up," she exclaimed.

Noel opened her eyes. "Where's the fire?" she asked sleepily.

"It's a letter from Doctor Paige," Laurie said happily. "I put it on your pillow last night so you would be sure to see it. But you must have knocked it off when you climbed into bed."

Noel sat up, stretching out her white arms. "Give it to me! Give it to me!" she begged.

Laurie had thought she might tease her a little before handing the note to her, but the look on Noel's face made her change her mind.

Noel opened the envelope with fingers tht trembled. Inside were two of Julian's prescription blanks on which he had written:

"Dear Noel: How about another picnic tomorrow—same place, same hour? I need a bit of holiday, but more than that, I need a glimpse of you. Always thinking of myself, aren't I? Selfish man. Let me know by Laurie. Yours, Julian."

For a long moment, Noel just sat there, holding Julian's note in her fingers. She knew Laurie was looking at her, so she said in a voice that shook a little from happiness. "Am I a fool to—care so much?"

Laurie was looking at at her with an indulgent smile. "Women can't help themselves. That's why," she stopped a moment then went on a little hesitantly, "I suppose lots of them do dishonest things to get the man they want."

"I didn't know you were such a philosopher," Noel said.

"Might as well be," Laurie answered.

Noel looked down at the note she still held in her hand. Then she looked up again at Laurie. "Aren't you ever, ever going to see Jimmy again?"

"We had a date last night after got off from work," Laurie said, a hard light coming into her eyes. "But his mother found it out and promptly had a heart attack. Poor Jimmy! He phoned me he couldn't come."

"Do you suppose she really did have an attack?" Noel asked.

"No, I think it was a phony one," Laurie said decidedly.

"It's hard to believe she'd do that, that any woman would," Noel said feelingly.

"It's harder on Jimmy than it is on me," Laurie said after a pause. "Sometimes he thinks his mother is faking, and sometimes he just can't believe it. But of course if he left her, and she was really very ill, and—and anything happened, well, you see how dreadful it would be for him."

"Yes, I can see," Noel murmured. She could not help believing herself that Jimmy's mother was pretending and was just a completely selfish person. But Noel felt that she, herself, had no right to pass judgment on Jimmy's mother. In a way Noel knew she had been just as selfish. Not that she knowingly had stood in the way of the happiness of other people. But at least she had never given a thought to their troubles, or of any way she might help them. She had lived for herself alone, with no idea in the world except how she might manage to keep from being bored.

It seemed ironic that now, since Noel was in a position to do nothing about it, she could see so many, many places where she could help. Just merely by the slightest exertion on her part—that of signing a few checks. Maida for instance, so gentle and timid and so worn out with the unequal struggle, and Joey, who could be of so much help, if only he had a bicycle. And poor Jimmy, so torn between the two women who loved him, one selfishly, and the other unselfishly, as a woman loves the man she wants to work with and stand by his side as his wife.

Laurie was ready to go to work. "Of course, I'll tell Doctor Paige you couldn't think of meeting him," she teased.

"Sure—tell him I couldn't dream of coming," Noel humored her happily.

"I'll tell him that you'll be there with bells on and banners in your hair," Laurie said as she went out, waving Noel a laughing goodby.

A few minutes later Noel jumped up. She fixed herself a little breakfast, delighted that the coffee was drinkable and the toast not too soggy. She wasn't much in position this morning to realize what she ate. Anything would taste like food for the gods, she was so happy.

Just because Julian had written a note saying that he wanted to see her, her silly heart had started dreaming again.

She ran to the window to see what kind of a day it was going to be, and saw that the sun was already up. She could see it behind the tall elm trees. It was going to be a glorious day.

Then she started dressing. First, her one good pair of chiffon stockings. She was glad she had rinsed them out yesterday. She inspected them carefully for the least sign of a run, having learned from Laurie that that was the best way to keep things in condition, to inspect them carefully every day for the tniest suspicion of a break in the silk. Noel hadn't even known before she and Laurie had roome dtogether that runs could be mended in silk hose. Or that you could take your shoes to a cobbler and have the heels built up until they looked like new.

She had had the oxfords fixed at a cobbler's, and now with a bit of polish they'd look quite presentable. She wanted to look as nice as possible for Julian. It was quite true he hadn't noticed very much the kind of clothes she had been wearing since she had started on her adventure. Or if he had, he hadn't said anything about it. She knew, however, he had disapproved very much of the gold brocade gown she had been forced to wear at the Peacock.

At last Noel was dressed, fully an hour too early. The minutes just seemed to drag by. She sat down in the hard rocker to wait, determined not to start for the De Luxe until almost 10.

She heard the phone ring. Then Mrs. Blascom's dragging step, moving toward her room. Someone wanted her. Noel's heart thudded downward. Was it Julian saying he couldn't meet her today?

When she took the receiver, she heard Chris' blithe voice! "Hello, angel! Grand day—how about lunch and another drive in the country? We might get lost again—lots of fun getting lost, you know."

She said, "Oh, Chris, I'm sorry—not today."

"I see. You're dated up," Chris' voice was complacent. "Some other time then," he said, and there was the click of the receiver.

It was still half an hour before 10. But Noel started for the De Luxe. She walked slowly along, enjoying the mild sunshine, and the Sunday calm which lay upon the city. It was only now and then that a car passed, moving leisurely. So different from week days with the traffic darting in every direction, and even the very air seemingly filled with a nervous bustle.

Noel thought it wonderful to have time to enjoy the sunshine and the sleepy quiet of Sunday morning.

At the De Luxe the same atmosphere of leisure prevailed. A few people were still scattered around the tables, eating slowly and reading the Sunday papers.

Noel sat down near the big plate glass window where she could see the Medical Arts building. She would see Julian the minute he came out of the revolving doors. It was 10 now—in a few minutes he would be here! But the clock moved on to 10.30 and then 11 and Julian did not come.

EPIZOOTIC IS THE WORD

An epidemic only applies to human beings. When there is an outbreak among animals it is properly called an epizootic.

The Examiner Fashion Service

Here's a pattern you'll want for "keeps." It includes a jacket and a blouse. The buttoned-down-the-front blouse assumes an air of a little jacket. It may even be worn as a jacket over some slim frocks. It has a becoming shirt collar and tailored pockets. Long or short sleeves are optional. Make it of a woolly-looking rayon crepe. It will be your favorite for everyday occasions. School and college girls will adore it of a bright blazer striped flannel or of clan plaid woollen to top a black velveteen skirt. The young boxy type jacket is smart and wearable with almost anything. Navy or black velveteen is another popular choice. This easy to follow pattern has a diagrammed dressmaking chart.

Style No. 2118 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material for either blouse.

Girl Blows Bubbles From Her Tongue As If It Were Pipe

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Hastings, Sept. 2.

JANE PRATT, 19, of Vancouver, B. C., can perform the most unusual fete of blowing bubbles from her tongue as easily as one would blow them from a bubble pipe. She has been able to do this stunt for over ten years. The only other person she ever heard of who could do it was a Hindoo fakir in India, she read about.

Also among Jane's unusual accomplishments is a double tone whistling effect. Miss Pratt has been holidaying here.

DOROTHY DIX

Marital Maladjustment Causes More Mental Breakdowns Than Any Other Cause, Hence It Behooves Husbands And Wives To Be Congenial At All Times

A FAMOUS psychiatrist, who is at the head of a large hospital for the treatment of the mentally ill, says that 60 per cent of his patients are the results of marital maladjustments. Husbands and wives who could not get along together and who have literally run each other crazy with their differences. Dipsomaniac husbands who aver that their wives' nagging drove them to drink and neurotic wives who assert that their husbands' drinking made them naggers.

Which one of them is to blame for the catastrophe that ensued no one knows, any more than they know which came first the chicken or the egg. But it makes the family circle the most vicious circle in the world.

The words of this distinguished scientist, who has spent half a lifetime in dealing with those who have passed over the borderline of sanity, should be an awful warning to those married couple whose favorite indoor sport is quarreling. Heretofore they have regarded their never-ending fights as an innocent and harmless diversion which relieved the montony of domesticity and out of which they got a kick, hence could be indulged in with impunity. It may shock them into a consciousness of what they are doing to learn that they are engaging in the most dangerous pastime in the world—one that in its effects is far more cruel than a bloody murder would be. For to slay the reason is far worse than to kill the body.

Probably no man ever deliberately started out to drive his wife insane. The grouchy husband who glooms and sulks around his home until he makes it as dank and dismal as a tomb and who never speaks to his wife except to find fault with her, isn't trying to depress her until she develops a case of melancholia. He is only exercising what he considers a husband's privilege of being disagreeable to his wife and taking out on her all the temper and nerves and cussedness he dared not show to his customers and clients.

The philandering husband doesn't intend to wreck his wife's mind as well as break her heart by his unfaithfulness, and if her unhapiness and brooding over her wrongs lead to a padded cell he thinks it is just too bad, but he doesn't blame himself.

The wife who finds fault with her husband about everything he does, from the way he has his hair cut to the kind of neckties he buys and the way he sits, eats, walks and talks, his politics and religion, isn't knowingly trying to precipitate a nervous breakdown on the bread-winner of the family. She is just getting the same sort of sadistic pleasure out of baiting him that little boys do out of torturing a cat. Besides, it bolsters up her ego to call her husband's attention to his weaknesses and to show him how much cleverer she is than he.

The woman who belittles her husband, who corrects him in public and shows how little respect she has for him, who is always throwing his failures in his face and demanding to know why he can't get along like other men, and who is always whining and complaining because she can't have what other women have, isn't trying to drive him to suicide by inducing in him a discouragement and hopelessness that he cannot endure. She is just indulging in an orgy of self-pity. Nevertheless, the husbands of many of these wet-blanket wives kill themselves.

So it seems that on the ability of husbands and wives to adjust themselves to each other depends not only their happiness but often their sanity. Perpetual nagging is like the continual drop, drop of water that will wear away the hardest stone. No one can stand it indefinitely. Never-ending fault-finding will snap the strongest nerves. The jar and fret of squabbles over everything and arguments about nothing get to be an obsession that the mind cannot throw off. The lack of tenderness, the lack of sympathy and understanding prey on the gentle and sensitive until it saps their reason. Many and many a man and woman take their lives because they have been robbed of all that makes life worth living.

The moral of all of which is: Watch your step when you get married if you want to keep your sanity. There is no such insurance against a mental breakdown as a happy marriage.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Well," said Knarf to himself as he stood in the meadow, leaning against a daisy, "I guess Ill wait here a little longer and see what happens. Maybe it'll be exciting. Anyhow, I have nothing better to do."

He smiled to himself. All about him the bees were humming and the blades of grass were swaying, and the leaves in the cherry tree overhead were whispering to each other. "What a lazy boy that Knarf is!" he heard them whispering. That only made him smile some more. "I'm not lazy at all," he answered. "I'm very busy waiting for something to happen."

Just then he heard a hop-hop-hop

"Have you seen it around here?"

in the grass. He looked around quickly. It was a frog.

"How do you do, Frog," said Knarf. "Where are you hopping to?"

"To the pond, my good friend. To the pond. By the way, have you seen it anywhere around here? I seem to have lost my way a bit."

Now Knarf knew very well where the pond was. It was over at the other end of the meadow, where the land dipped down. But he thought to himself: "Here is my chance to have some fun with this stupid old frog. I'll send him the wrong way."

He certainly shouldn't have done it. But that's how Knarf was.

"The pond?" he repeated to the frog. "Come with me, I'll show you just where it is."

Frog Is Grateful.

"Ah, that is very kind of you, my fine fellow. Very kind indeed. You've been very well brought up, I sow that the instant I laid eyes on you. But something tells me—H'mm...."

"Something tells you what?"

"Something tells me the pond is in the other direction. I seem to be able to hear the ripples. I hear ripples very well, you know."

"Oh, you must be mistaken.. That's just the water in the little ditch," said Knarf. "I know where the pond is very well. You just come along with me. You don't want to swim in a little ditch, do you?"

"Certainly not!"

So the two of them started off together, Knarf walking and the frog hopping. "Oh, this is going to be fun," Knarf kept saying to himself. "Just wait till this frog sees what I'm bringing him to. It's just the flower beds on the other side of the garden wall."

So he hurried along faster and the frog went hop-hop-hop right after him.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 3.

Much high-pressure activity and tension may be expected on this day, judging by the very lively planetary testimonies. The faculties and forces will be found keyed up to fine initiative and enterprise.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with much energy and enterprise stimulated and manoeuvered into progressive and gainful channels. This may be achieved through the co-operation of important persons who will be ready for speculative chances with their funds. There is not much hazard under ruling conditions in practical, constructive projects.

A child born on this day may be versatile, intellectually brilliant and have much energy and initiative for large projects, with leanings toward bold strokes in speculation. It may also have a warm social and emotional nature, probably making an early marriage.

A Red Funeral

WAYNE, Alta., Sept. 2.—(CP).—Serg Bezrookoff, 56-year-old Russian-born coal miner, was given a Communist funeral yesterday, going to his grave with a raised, clenched fist. More than 100 Drumheller Valley men, women and children attended the ceremony here.

Diesels On Bluenose Worry Her Skipper

HALIFAX, Sept. 2 (CP).—Two things are bothering Capt. Angus Walters, skipper of the champion racing schooner Bluenose from Lunenburg, N.S., about his October races with Gloucesters Gertrude L. Thebaud. The worries emanate from a pair of sleek Diesel engines in the Bluenose's hull.

In order to trim the schooner properly for racing, authorities agree the engines must be removed, but that operation will cost money—somewhere between $1,000 and $1,500. So far efforts to obtain government assistance have been fruitless, and Capt. Walters says "I'm not so sure about the outcome of the races, as long as those two chunks of iron are in her."

In other respects preparation for the races, to be sailed off Boston, are coming along apace.

Not For The Nazis

MUNICH, Germany, Sept. 2—(AP).—The inscription, "Lord Make Us Free," has been removed, as being outmoded, from the facade of the Hall of the Marshals, a Nazi shrine where 14 victims of the 1923 Nazi beer cellar putsch lie buried. It was there that Adolf Hitler, marching through Munich with his early associates after reaching a pact in a tavern, met armed state police who shot and killed the 14, venerated as martyrs since the Nazi accession to power.

We Noticed

....At a Trousseau Tea—a fair guest wearing a knitted two-piece suit in a lovely cornflower blue. Her smart little felt hat and trim accessories were navy, and an old-fashioned locket at the neck added a touch of gold.

✧ ✧ ✧

....In a shop window—shirring in deep rows at the waist and edging the short sleeves of a grey jersey dress that had brown heart-shaped flowers appliqued in graceful pattern on the full bodice.

✧ ✧ ✧

....The outlook for top-coats this Autumn is bright by way of color bandings and insertions, and one coat actually combines four colors...deep wine for the body, purplish - wine for the raglan sleeves, green for the shoulder yoke, and a diamond of brown in the back!

Allen—Pilling

Summer flowers decorated the altar of All Saints' Church Friday morning at 10 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Betty Dianne Pilling, daugther of Mr. W. J. Pilling of Rochester, N.Y., to Mr. Victor Allen, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Allen of Epsom, England. Canon J. D. Paterson was the officiating clergyman.

The bride wore a frock of navy sheer with corsage of Rapture roses and lily of the valley, and navy accessories.

Mrs. Jack Pilling of Rochester, sister-in-law of the bride, attended the bride, wearing a pink crepe dress made with a short cape. Her accessories were white, and she wore a corsage of Talisman roses and gypsophilia.

Mr. Ronald Howe attended the groom.

Following the ceremony the young couple left for Toronto and Rochester, and on their return will live on Burnham street.

Jean E. Davison Weds Dr. R. B. McGee

The marriage of Jean Elizabeth Davison, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davison, Alton, to Dr. Richard Barclay McGee, Orangeville, son of Mrs. Samuel McGee and the late Samuel McGee, Norwood, was solemnized Wednesday afternoon in St. Andrew's United Church, Orangeville.

The church was decorated with mauve and pink gladioli, and Rev. C. F. McIntosh, the pastor, officiated. The wedding music was played by Miss Edith White, organist, and Mrs. H. Cameron, violinist. Mrs. Carmael Davison sang during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a redingote of white angel'skin lace over a formal white satin bridal gown. Her white circular finger-tip veil of tulle fell from an orange blossom headdress, and she carried a cascade of pink roses with fern.

Miss Ruth Hopkins, the maid of honor, was gowned in orchid marquisette with shirred square neck, full skirt, and hem-length taffeta sash. The bridesmaids were Miss Marguerite McGee, R.N., and Miss Edna Kettles, R.N., both of Toronto. They were dressed in turquoise blue marquisette, with boleros and full skirts edged with appliqued orchid taffeta flowers. Their veils were of matching shoulder-length circular tulle under pearl Juliette caps. Each carried a cascade of pink gladioli and fern.

Ted McGee of Norwood was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Stewart Davison, Hamilton, and Vernon Davison, Alton, brothers of the bride; Dr. Joseph Sykes, Lansing, Mich., and Dr. Eric Campbell, Drayton.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests, including both the bride's and bridegroom's graduating classes, were received by the bride's mother, who wore a gown of wine triple sheer with mink furs, brown hat, and a corsage of Talisman roses, and Mrs. McGee, mother of the bridegroom, in black silk marquisette with a matching hat, and a corsage of red roses.

Later the couple left for Montreal, Quebec and Gaspe, the bride wearing turquoise blue dress of imported French wool with red robin hat, and gardenia corsage. Dr. and Mrs. McGee will live in Orangeville.

New Hairdress

One of the charming innovations of the season is the diadem hairdress. Tresses are shadow waved. Ends are turned into a single upward roll at the back, a wreath of fluffy ringlets encircle the head.

You are wondering how that is done. The wreath is demountable. You buy it, wear it, tuck it in the dresser drawer at night. "Factory" hair is coming back. It is a time saver.

Margaret Guerin Is Bride of J. Caccavella

A lovely early Autumn wedding took place Thursday morning at 7.30, in the Imaculate Conception church, when Margaret Rita, daughter of Mrs. Guerin and the late William Guerin, 678 Armour Road, was united in marriage to Joseph Caccavella, son of Mr. Michael Caccavella, 506 Elm street, and the late Mrs. Caccavella, Rev. Dean OSulivan oficiated during the ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Miss Leona Hummal, and during the signing of the register Mrs. D. Companaro sang.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Martin Guerin, the bride was gowned in pale blue net over taffeta, made with a full skirt and tiny, puff-sleeved bolero banded in pink. Her blue net veil was in coronet style, she wore lace mittens, and carried a bridal bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Irene OBrien was bridesmaid, frocked in pale pink taffeta, toe-length, with matching jacket and white accessories. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

Mr. Maurice Caccavella, brother of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Following a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Caccavella will live at 673 Armour road. For travelelling the bride wore a wine knitted suit with matching accessories.

Society Honors Miss Mary Tanner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 2.—Miss Mary Tanner, Lakefield, who left on Monday for Hearst, Ont., where she will occupy a position on the staff of the United Church Mission Hospital for the coming year, was honored by the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of Lakefield United Church, when the members of the Society gathered at the home of the president, Mrs. W. W. Yale, for a farewell party and there presented Miss Tanner with a certificate of Life Membership in the Woman's Missionary Society, and with the W.M.S. life member's pin. Mrs. W. W. Yale, president of the Society read an address expressing the satisfaction of the members on hearing of Miss Tanner's decision to go into mission work, and asking her to accept a life membership in the Society as an expression of their interest in her work Mrs. W. W. Leonard made the presentation after which Miss Tanner thanked the ladies for this expression of their support. "This pin will serve to remind me that I have the support of all you ladies behind me; and I shall need your help," Miss Tanner said.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and music. Miss Cora Charlton rendered a number of vocal seelctions during the evening. She was accompanied by Mrs. H. E. Moore.

Dainty refreshments were served after which a vote of thanks was extended to the hostess.

Woman's "Sixth Sense"

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 30.—An inherent "sixth sense" and ages of experience in running households and raising children qualify women especially for participation in public affairs, said Mrs. Millard E. Tydings in a talk on behalf of her husband's campaign for the Democratic nomination for his own Senate seat.

"It has long been my contention that women's place in the political scene is becoming more and more important," she said. "When you consider that it has been only 20 years we've had the vote, it is phenominal the extent to which women are participating in the affairs of their community, state and country."

She said that women's "sixth sense" and the common sense derived for the household and child-rearing problems prevented them from being fooled easily. Men can be, she intimated, because they haven't such valuable experience.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"When a bit of sunshine hits ye,
After passing of a cloud,
When a fit of laughter gits ye,
And ye'r spine is feelin' proud,
Don't forget to up and fling it
At a soul that's feelin' blue,
For the minit that ye sling it
It's a boomerang to you."

—"The Boomerang," by Captain Jack Crawford.

Dear Friends:

The young moderns have a saynig when one of them is not acting as they should, and that is "Be Yourself." Ever try being like that, not copying someone else, not trying to be what you think others may expect you to be, but honestly and truly just "being yourself."

It's surprising how much more good you will do, how much more peple will like you, how comfortable you will feel. When something good comes along you will feel like sharing it, and when you hear something funny or cheerful you will want to tell it.

After all, you are an individual, a little world all to yourself. When you copy others you are not natural, and you are saying in effect that you dont like yourself a little bit. When we see some affect the ways of another, we say they are unnatural. When we see others cruel and unkind, we say again they are not natural.

And so many times we praise a clever person by saying how very natural they are, simply because they dare to be themselves, and not aping others. Why should you let yourself think you are so wrong in every way, and all others so right that you try to imitate them?

You will never be anyone but yourself no matter how you try, and I would rather be myself than any poor copy of another. You are never at ease, you cannot pass on any good thing of any kind, for your mind is always obsessed with wondering how others expect you to act.

Just as you study others, study yourself. You will find some things you don't like (we all do that), but you will be surprised at how many things you do like.

This will make you laugh (I hope). One time long ago I was not at all pleased with my own appearance. I didn't look as I would like to look, didn't like the outer part of me a little bit. So I went into a store to try on a dress still dissatisfied with myself.

The lady said, "You don't like yourself this morning, do you?" I said, "No, I don't." Then I asked her to take a look at a lady over on the other side and said I would be more satisfied if I looked like her. The saleslady smiled and said, "You are looking at a mirror." Was my face red?

When you are natural and act like yourself, it is surprising how many people want to know you. When you see someone at the movies they are not themselves but acting a part, and maybe they would not be the one they are acting for the world.

Then, too, they are skilled at that sort of thing, trained for inflections of the voice, gestures, walking and sitting. Whereas we have not the benefit of all that training when we copy another, and the result is never nice.

So, don't always stop to consider how you appear to others, but send out any good thing that comes to you spontaneously and naturally. And immediately you do you will find other people doing the same to you. How can they ever get to know you truly if you will not "be yourself?"

Samuel Johnson tells us: "Self-confidence is the first requisite to great undertakings," so dare to be at all times: Yourself.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Bride-Elect Given Cup, Saucer Shower

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 2—Mrs. E. VanVolkenburg was hostess at a cup and saucer shower held in honor of Miss Ethel Longmuir whose marriage to E. Childs of Havelock will be an event of interest early this month. A number of guests both from Campbellford and Havelock were present and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent of which a most entertaining feature was tea cup reading by Mrs. H. Tinney of Campbellford.

Dinghy Races Protested By British Crew

TORONTO, Sept. 2. — Official results of the international dinghy races off Centre Island yesterday were held up due to protests by the Royal Norfolk and Suffolk Yacht Club team regarding interpretation of sailing rules. The protest meeting will resume to-day and results made known.

Charles Currey, skipper of the British dinghy Thunder and with Ian Milne as crew, took advantage of variable winds to come from far in the rear at the three-mile mark and win the six-mile race.

The Thunder crossed the finish line about half a minute ahead of Henry Hill's Lisbeth II. of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. Hill's crewman was Bill Gooderham.

Jack Wright of the R.C.Y.C. was helmsman of the third-place dinghy with his club-mate Charles Bourke close behind. Peter Scott, captain of the British team, was fifth.

Colin Chichester-Smith, helmsman of the third British boat, was disqualified for touching the buoy marking the end of the first mile with his dinghy. His crewman was young Keith George.

The British team entered three protests at the end of the race. The first protest dealt with by the Racing Committee was judged in favor of the visitors and Bourke was disqualified. It was learned the protest was made because Bourke tacked his dinghy so that Currey was forced to bear away to avoid a collision.

This ruling brought Scott up to fourth position for points, and if the other two protests are decided in such a way that the finishing line-up is unchanged, the British team will be given 9¼ points to 9 for the R.C.Y.C. The total points after two days' races will be: R.C.Y.C. 22¼, R.N. and S.Y.C. 17¼. The races are a best-of-five series.

The three Canadian dinghies crossed the starting line ahead of the British boats, and held a short lead for the first mile. At the mile buoy Chichester-Smith, while approaching the buoy, made room for Currey to come up, but was caught by a current and touched the buoy, bringing automatic disqualification.

Peter Scott took the lead soon after rounding the first buoy, and was closely followed by Wright. At the half-way mark Scott led Wright past the buoy by about 18 seconds, and tacked off to starboard, Wright still following. The wind changed suddenly from north-east to southeast, and the pair were stranded. Currey quickly taking advantage of the change of wind and taking the lead.

At the four-mile mark Hill had a slight lead over Currey as they rounded the buoy, with the other dinghies far behind, due to wind changes. By the end of the next mile Currey had regained the lead, and passed the buoy 20 seconds ahead of Hill. Wright and Bourke were next, with Scott far behind, trying to catch up by using a spinnaker.

Currey swung offshore, but the wind died, and Hill overtook him and kept close to him for the final stretch. About half a mile from the finish Currey caught a breeze and started extending his lead over the R.C.Y.C. boat, and won going away.

French Flying-Boat Crosses Atlantic

Just 22 hours, 48 minutes out of Horta, the Azores, the 41-ton French flying boat, Lieutenant De Vaisseau Paris, is shown sitting down at Port Washington, N.Y. The Lieutenant De Vaisseau Paris' flight was France's first experimental trip across the North Atlantic. This air view gives a good idea of the huge proportions of the ship.

Cricket Notes

On Saturday at Nicholls Oval the Peterborough Club will play a return match with Toronto West Indians. This should be an interesting game to watch and worth a trip to the Oval. The following team will represent the local club: F. Dyer, J. Lawrence, Rev, J. F. Kelly, G. Langhorne, L. Gould, V. Coleman, A. B. Burrows, T. Williams, J. Barry, J. Chambers, G. Caird, reserves J. Bocthroyd, R. N. Stuart. Start at 2.00 o'clock.

On Monday (Labor Day) the club will play at the Oval, St. Edmunds, Toronto. Play to start at 1.30.

Whitakers play Eglinton in Toronto on Saturday, but have no match on Monday.

Soccer Notes

Saturday afternoon, C.C.F. plays the Brintons in the Duffus' Injured Players' Cup. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee J. Hanlon. On the following Saturday afternoon, Canadian General meets the Deloro aggregation.

There will be a special meeting on Tuesday night of the board to consider correspondence and arrange games for the remainder of the season.

All Brinton soccer players are requested to be on hand at 2.30 on Saturday afternoon in King Edward Park for the game with the C.C.F. team. Players who cannot make it are asked to telephone 1254M.

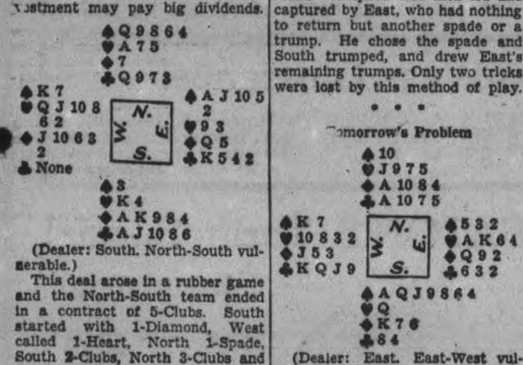
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

LET HIM OVERRUFF

MOST DECLARERS hate to have a defender overruff with a trump which could have been captured. There are contracts, however, which cannot be made except through allowing the opponent to do that very thing. If it saves running several rounds of trumps which use up trumps needed for a number of ruffs, the one trick investment may pay big dividends.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the North-South team ended in a contract of 5-Clubs. South started with 1-Diamond, West called 1-Heart, North 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 3-Clubs and South 5-Clubs.

The play was nicely handled by the declarer, who won the lead of the heart Q with the A and immediately led a diamond. He then cashed the heart K to prevent a discard. Next he played the diamond A and ruffed a diamond with the club 7. East overruffed with the K and returned a club. South won this and ruffed another diamond. He then returned to his hand by means of a heart ruff to enable him to ruff his fifth diamond. A spade was then led and captured by East, who had nothing to return but another spade or a trump. He chose the spade and South trumped, and drew East's remaining trumps. Only two tricks were lost by this method of play.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4-Spades after the lead of the club K?

ROSENEATH

A monster dance was held on Wednesday night in the large agricultural building on the Fair Grounds, under the auspices of the Roseneath Agricultural Society. Jack Marshall's Five-piece Orchestra from Peterborough furnished excellent music for old-time and modern dancing. The affair was a thorough success, as are all events sponsored by the society.

Toad Ends A Snake

OMAHA, Neb. Sept. 2 (AP)—A life and death drama crowded Mrs. Andrew Hislop's tomato patch with action yesterday. A snake swallowed a toad. The resultant swelling prevented the snake from slithering to safety down a gopher hole. Mrs. Hislop slashed at the trapped reptile with her hoe cutting it in two. Her husband slit the snake skin, dragged out the toad, and after five minutes of air the toad survived and hopped away.

Vast New German Chancellery To Be Largest In Europe Structure Planned By Hitler

By PIERRE J. HUSS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Dictator Adolf Hitler is building the largest and without doubt the most modern chancellery in Europe, which at the same time has the distinction of housing the biggest bomb-proof cellar in the Reich.

The exterior shell of this new "brain and nerve centre" of Nazi-land was dedicated the first week in August and expectations are it will be fully completed and in operation by the end of the year.

Some 4,500 workmen, on day and night shifts, broke all records by erecting the 60-foot high exterior in less than four months. The structure encircles a whole block running from the corner of Wilhelmstrasse all along Voss St. and then along Hermann Goering St. to swing back through the old chancellery park and join the original old palace, which has served as chancellery for decades. It contains 400 rooms in its 1,300 foot total length.

Large Underground Space

Since the outer corner of the building, squat and almost austere with huge windows and entrance gates, adjoins Potsdamer Platz—one of the biggest traffic sections in Berlin—it was considered advisable to have as much underground space for air attack protection as possible in that vicinity.

When the Potsdamer Platz subway is finished many thousands can find shelter in those tunnels and underground stations but the deep space under the new chancellery will easily absorb another 10,000. The inner surface courtyard will be used for parking space, so that on days and nights when Hitler is holding diplomatic or state reception, easy access and exit can be arranged for the hundreds of guests sure to arrive in their own cars.

The chancellery is the first building to materialize in the huge reconstruction program undertaken by Hitler. On completion it will house all immediate departments directly servicing the Fuehrer, while all diplomatic and state functions are to take place within its palatial chambers. The old presidential palace adjoining the foreign office becomes merely the residence of the incumbent foreign minister.

Three Main Divisions

The new chancellery structure has been divided into three categories: the presidential section, the chancellery of the Nazi party, the Reich chancellery. In addition there will be the offices of the Nazi party leaders, the offices of the Hitler adjutants and the offices of chancellery adjutants from the three branches of the defense forces.

Administrative and residential chief of the whole is Minister of State Meissner. The historic parts of the old chancellery palace, with its Bismarck rooms, the Hall of the Berlin Congress of 1878, and the remodelled Hitler living quarters remain intact as well as a good deal of the adjoining park.

Huge and lofty reception rooms reached through spacious halls supported profusely by marble columns overwhelm the visitor on entrance. As in less modern palaces of Europe, diplomats will find themselves saluted by military guards in entering the first reception room shimmering in red marble and mosaic.

Round Cupola Hall

Further along is a round cupola hall decorated with old masters and next comes another lofty hall 500 feet long done in red German marble. From there guests can enter the main reception chamber of imposing style, covered with costly gobelins and hung with sparkling chandeliers. Carpets and furniture are designed to match colors and effects and strike the observant eye.

Amidst the whole assortment of architectural pageantry but facing on an inner court so that the windows front on the Chancellery park, Hitler's private office will be located. Done in dark brown panelling and decorated in modern style, it will give him easy access to his living quarters and the garden. An English fireplace gives it a cosy atmosphere for wintertime.

Public Relationship Unchanged

Completion of the new chancellery will not alter its present relationship to the public outside by much. Spectators will still find the Wilhemplatz side the most interesting, for the famous balcony remains and thereon Hitler will continue to make his public appearance for parades and mass demonstrations. Individual callers on Hitler himself will not utilize the huge new entrances on Voss St., except for major state occasions, but will drive in through the old garden courtyard fronting on Wilhelmstrasse. Thus the public gazers gathered daily during Hitler's presence in Berlin will continue to clutter there.

Facing the huge new trances on Voss St., however, stands the rear of Wertheim's, the largest deparment store in the Reich. Reports that the building would be razed to the ground soon to give open space to the new chancellery were sharply contradicted by government quarters, but nevertheless the impression persists that within four to six years the colossal building will have to come down, or at least that wing of the store backing on Voss Street.

High Death Rate

OTTAWA, Sept. 2—(CP)—Death rate in Canada during 1937 was the highest in any year since 1930 according to preliminary figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The heaviest infant mortality rate of recent years contributed largely to the high death rate but maternal mortality showed a marked decline from the previous year the figures showed.

Exclusive of stillbirths, there were 113,695 deaths during 1937, giving a death rate of 10.2 per 1,000 population.

100 Jap Air Bombers Level Way For Drive

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2—(AP)—Japanese troops gained strength for their interrupted offensive across the Yellow river today by reoccupying strategic villages along the north bank of the stream and pushing Chinese defenders from Menghsien in Honan province.

On the Hankow or Yangtse river front, about 300 miles to the south, the Chinese maintained they overcame Japanese smoke screens and artillery fire and repulsed 13 day and night attacks west of Juichang, 100 miles southeast of Hankow, the provisional capital.

Chinese reports said the Japanese lost many men and asserted the defenders were holding firm on all other fronts.

More than 100 Japanese planes in mass flight bombed Chinese positions near Teian, in Kiangsi province and on the Nanchang-Kiukiang railroad, in efforts to flatten defences so the Japanese could advance toward Nanchang, Chinese air base.

Andrew Mellon Left Personal Estate Of $35 Millions Appraisement Reveals

Pittsburgh, Sept. 2

ANDREW W. MELLON left a personal estate of approximately $35,000,000, an appraisement filed with Allegheny County Registrar of Wills disclosed today.

The appraisement did not include real estate possessed by the former secretary of the treasury at his death in August, 1937. Some Attorneys estimated the real estate at $2,000,000.

Executors of the Mellon estate said the financier gave the A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust more than $35,000,000 in securities and cash, and an art collection valued at $50,000,000. Under the Mellon will the entire estate goes to the trust, with the exception of $180,000 willed to domestic and office employees.

Urge Italians To Use Home Grown Tobacco

ROME, Sept. 2.—(CP-Havas).—The Fascist newspaper Massaggero today urged Italians to prefer national as against foreign products.

"There are no reasons for not preferring national products if they are able to compete victoriously with foreign products," Messaggero said. "It is a duty from the point of view of economic morality."

The newspaper cited particularly the case of tobacco. During the first quarter of last year Italy imported 3,493,000 lire ($183,731) worth of tobacco. For the same period this year the tobacco imports increased to 11,423,000 lire ($600,849).

Charge Is Changed In Sears Shooting

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 2 (CP).—Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson said to-day that Mark Sears, who surrendered to police last Friday following the shooting of his brother, Thomas Sears the day previous, has been charged with intent to maim. The charge was increased from one of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Sears surrendered at his farm home to police about 24 hours after his brother was shot while shingling a roof. Thomas Sears was hit in the hip by a bullet, and rolled off the roof to the ground.

Monster Fairies Wander From Haunt And Give Eire Folk Fright

Rathkeale, Limerick, Erie, Sept. 1.

THE GOOD PEOPLE of Donn, King of the Munster Fairies, have come down from the hill of Knockfierna to worry old residents of Ballingarry and Kilfinney who consider their appearance a "bad omen."

John Keely, a schoolboy, was the first to report sighting a Leipreachan, but more than a dozen persons claim they also have seen the little men.

It was at a cross-roads between Ballingarry and Kilfinney, about six miles from here, that Keely said he met the fairy.

Keely ran and told Robert and John Mulqueen, adults, who joined him subsequently in a chase of the little people who fled and "jumped ditches as fast as a greyhound."

Keely and the Mulqueens told newspapermen the fairies were less than two feet high with "hard, hairy faces like men, very short fingers and no ears."

They were dressed in red with knee breeches and "vamps" instead of shoes.

Their appearance frightened many persons and some, mostly girls, won't go abroad after dark.

Car Smashes Kill Ten Near Dayton

Newly-weds, 2 Boys Among Victims Five Are Injured

DAYTON, O., Sept. 3 (A.P.). — Death ruled the highways in this vicinity early to-day.

Ten persons, including two elderly newly-weds and two children, were killed in two separate automobile collisions, one near Lebanon, the other on the outskirts of Dayton.

Five other persons, all critically injured, lay in Dayton Hospital.

Six persons, three of them members of a vacation-bound Dayton family, died in the first crash. Two men and two women were killed in the other.

The dead in the Lebanon accident were C. A. Platt 59, his wife 50, Mrs. Audrey Grigsby, Mrs.. Helen Mylor 42, and her two sons, Thomas 14 and Robert 12.

The Platts were married in July. He was driving east and Mylor south when the cars collided.

Victims of the Dayton crash were Harry White, Paul R. Leonard, and two unidentified women. One of the cars was driving on the wrong side of the road, Deputy George Glanders reported.

200 Observers Watching Mock Warfare

By Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Sept. 3.—(CP).—Warfare which had been allowed to lapse into somnolence flared anew to-day on the Camp Borden front as the Westland defending forces, reinforced by two theoretical infantry brigades, launched a violent counter attack against Col. W. G. Hagerty's Eastlanders.

The infantry brigades theoretically were marched down from Thornburg during the night to aid Col. F. F. Worthington, commander of the Westland force, after a quiet day yesterday, enlivened only by some bombing forays by the Westlanders and one or two minor engagements. The issue of the renewed engagement continued in doubt.

This is the final day of the grand-scale military exercises engaged in over an 800-square mile area south of Camp Borden during the past week. Their purpose has been to practise operations under conditions as near as possible to active service as can be developed in peace time. New armaments and new tactics necessitated by these armaments have been tried out and an effort made to familiarize both the permanent and non-permanent force troops with them.

Planes Play Big Part.

Considerable use has been made of aircraft for all purposes. Aerial bombing, ground staffing, spraying with poison gas, army co-operation and other functions have kept the Royal Canadian Air Force busy both day and night. Armored cars, tanks and anti-aircraft guns have been employed and care taken to ensure the development of circumstances that would bring them into action.

All permanent force troops east of Manitoba are engaged in the manoeuvres, together with two militia units from Toronto, the Royal regiment of Toronto Grenadiers and the Toronto Scottish. A corps of official observers was increased from 40 to nearly 200 yesterday when other officers of the non-permanent militia arrived in camp.

Yesterday Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie flew from Ottawa to survey the area of operations. He inspected the camp, was taken on a reconnaissance patrol of the Eastland defences in a light tank and flew to Toronto in the afternoon.

Woman Gambler Hocks Sewing Machine; Police To Give It Back

Chicago, Sept. 3.

THE STATES Attorney's police possessed a sewing machine today as a result of the current raids on handbooks. It was found by axe wielding officers yesterday while they were chopping up the furnishings of the 46th handbook raided during the past fortnight. He was tagged: "personal loan. Lady $2" police said the woman can have her sewing machine if she can prove it's hers, whether she won the race bet or not.

Rebel Fleet Gets Cocky About Gibraltar So Hood, 5 Wardogs Steam Down

Gibraltar, Sept. 3.

THE "EARLY ARRIVAL" of the world's biggest warship, the battlecruiser Hood of the royal navy, six other warships and five seaplanes was officially announced by British authorities today. Activities of Spanish Insurgent warships near here have been causing concern.

The ships were accompanied from the vicinity of Malta by five flying boats of the 228th General Reconnaissance Squadron they are expected to arrive this afternoon.

The Admiralty said in London the Hood probably would lay off Tangier several days because of a "spot of bother" in the Strait of Gibraltar, where four Insurgent Spanish vessels engaged the Government destroyer Jose Luis Diez in battle Aug. 27. The San Jose Luis Diez was crippled and 26 men were killed aboard her.

1,256 or 48 p.c. Of 'Peg Pupils Flunk Canadian History–Probe Ordered

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3 (CP).—More than 1,200 Grade II. students in schools throughout Manitoba were filled with renewed hope today as they saw prospects a department of education enquiry would show they knew more about their history and economics course than their June examination papers revealed.

Minister of Education Ivan Schultz has appointed a three-member committee to investigate and determine why 1,256 students out of 2,612 were unable to gain a passing mark of 50 per cent. More than 48 per cent of those writing the history and economics paper failed a proportion approached only by that of 1937 in the same subject.

Five Questions to be Solved

The committee, consisting of Prof. R. O. MacFarlane, Miss Eileen Garland, Winnipeg school principal and A. F. Kerr, inspector of public schools, will seek answers to five questions.

1. Was the examination too difficult?
2. Was the marking of the papers too strict?
3. Is there evidence that history is poorly taught in high schools?
4. Is the course in history too heavy for the time allowed?
5. What recommendations might be made with respect to the Canadian history examination?

The paper that started all the trouble had 12 questions in all, divided into two sections.

"Quebec was captured in 1629 by an expedition under command of..."

"The founder of Montreal was..."

"Sir John A. Macdonald's platform in 1878 was called the..."

Another question called for marking a series of places on a map, including three places settled by the loyalists, the capital of New Brunswick, York Factory and the Detroit River.

Plane Industry Boon Seen As Deals Close

OTTAWA, Sept. 3 (C.P.). — A boom in Canada's aircraft industry was predicted to-day following successful conclusion of negotiations by the British Air Mission for long range manufacture of military planes in this country for the British Government.

An announcement made here yesterday on behalf of his Government by Sir Francis Floud, British High Commissioner to Canada, disclosed that orders for fighting planes would be placed in Canada through a central company to be organized to represent the industry generally and allocate business as it arises from the British contracts.

The industry will build two $300,000 plants, one at St. Hubert's Airport near Montreal and the other at Malton Airport near Toronto, where huge bomber planes will be assembled. Later these plants will be developed into factories.

The decision of the British Government to place orders in Canada was made following an intensive

Resign Daladier Yell Red Strikers

PARIS Sept. 3 (AP).—Thousands of workers occupied textile mills in the Amiens region of northern France today in the first of a series of strikes threatened by French labor to force the cabinet to "respect labor laws."

Chanting "Daladier resign!" 14,000 workers took possession of the buildings and raised red flags over 24 factories in Amiens and Abbeville after hasty arbitration efforts of Premier Daladier's government—worried also by the international situation—failed.

Labor leaders estimated 150,000 workers throughout France joined in mass meetings last night protesting against Daladier's extension of the work week beyond the legal 40-hour limit in industries outside those working for the national defence.

The main demonstration was conducted in Paris, where leftist labor leaders reiterated their support for any workers refusing to work the "illegal" additional hours ordered by government decree.

A hopeful note was seen, however, in the fact that most of the speeches urged the workers to remain calm in view of the Czech-German crisis and declared labor had never raised obstacles to the increase of production for national defence.

Five hundred armed mobile guards and 600 police were alert against disorders.

Inquest Is Opened

Insist Upon Full Demands Hitler Is Believed To Have Advised Henlein

Unabated Nazi Press Yammering At Czechs Keeps Europe Pessimistic As German Chiefs Remain Silent

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Sept. 3 (AP)—The supposition persisted today that Chancellor Hitler told the leader of Nazis in Czechoslovakia to insist on official recognition of national socialism by the Czech government.

Hitler kept his counsel about decisions he arrived at in conferences Thursday and Friday with Konrad Henlein, leader of the autonomy-seeking Sudeten German minority in the neighbor country.

So did Henlein. So, also, did other Nazi officials who attended the fateful discussions about the next step in the Czech-German dispute about minority rights.

But it was considered extremely significant the anti-Czech press campaign the controlled Nazi press has waged the past months continued unabated today. Close followers of the present crisis and previous similar campaigns point out with assurnce that had Henlein and Hitler arrived at a complete decision to make peace with the Praha government the attacks would have ceased today.

The Old 8—Point Program.

It seemed logical to assume Hitler advised the Sudeten spokesman to stick to his eight-point program enunciated April 24 and demanding, in brief, complete freedom in Sudeten German districts to subscribe to Nazi ideology. To the Czech government that would mean official recognition of Naziism in Czechoslovakia.

Millions of Germans failed today to find answers in their newspapers to the question they, like millions elsewhere in Europe have been asking—exactly what is the Hitler-Henlein accord on the Sudeten German problem?

There was only yesterday's curt announcement that the two leaders had an intimate discussion of the situation in the seclusion of the Chancellor's imposing mountain home above Berchtesgaden, and had "complete accord in their judgment of the situation."

Reichsfuehrer Hitler himself busied himself to-day with preparations for the annual Nazi party day beginning in Nuremberg Monday.

More Love The Key

SASKATOON, Sept. 3.—(CP). — "A little more love might prevent such terrible chaos as now prevails in Europe and I think that we women should shoulder more of our responsibility and shout humanity outside our homes a little louder," in the opinion of Jenny Morris, "big sister" of Great War days to Canadian soldiers.

Miss Morris was guest at a banquet last night and was presented with a white deer handbag by Mrs. A. E. Potts, wife of Brigadier Potts, a member of the famous Princess Pats' regiment who are making possible her present tour of Canada.

Miss Veronica Turleigh, an actress, bought a copy of "Hamlet" in a store in Dieppe, France, for six cents.

Breach Expected In Czech Case Over Weekend

LONDON, Sept. 3 (CP Cable) — Evidence the Czechoslovak situation may crystallize over the week-end was seen today in an announcement Lord Halifax is returning to the foreign office tomorrow from his country home in Yorkshire.

Lord Halifax hopes to be in the position tomorrow to remove one of the big question marks of the past week's fast moving events—what did Chancellor Hitler tell Konrad Henlein when the Sudeten German leader visited the fuehrer in his country retreat in Obersalzberg mountains at Berchtesgaden?

It is extremely unsual for the foreign secretary to break his week-end by returning to Whitehall, and it indicated the continued gravity of the zech problem. It was also an indication there my be some major development.

There were too many missing factors for London observers to assess the present position of the Czech-Sudeten German crisis.

For instance, it was not known what Hitler told Henlein, whether Henlein was returning to Czechoslovakia with concrete proposals, or even what were the details of the latest Czech proposals which were discussed between President Benes of Czechoslovakia and a Sudeten German delegation yesterday.

The general feeling in official circles was that it was premature to form decisive views as to the effect of yesterday's developments on the situation as a whole.

Czechs Said Nervous.

PRAHA, Sept. 3—(AP)—F. T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin, economic adviser to the British mediation mission in Czechoslovakia, went to Mariebad today to see Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Germans.

Henlein was returning from conferences in Germany with Chancellor Hitler, who backs the Sudeten Germans, and the mission headed by Viscount Runciman was eager to learn at first hand what was the "complete accord" the two Fuehrers found.

The more optimistic Czechoslovak view, however, was that Lord Runciman already had started talks between President Benes and the Sudeten Germany party's steering committee and wanted as exact information as possible to help along the delicate discussions.

Czechoslovakia has lifted its ban on crub trading in stocks.

50 Years Wed

Two hundred relatives and friends gathered at Wallace Point Friday night to honor Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Dawson, residents of South Monaghan on the 50th anniversary of their wedding. The two have spent their entire wedded life on the same farm, the Dawson homestead, two miles east of Bailieboro. Both are descendants of the first families to settle in South Monaghan. Great Piles Of Ore Removed From Mine At Cordova; Working At 1,000 Foot Level

Still no news from Cordova. Smelters have spent $500,000 or more exploring their property in Belmont township during the last four years, but so far they have made no definite announcement about the quality of the ore they have found, the quantity, and their plans for the future.

In fact there is no information definite or indefinite that would reflect the results of all their work and expenditure of capital People living around Cordova are content with the satisfactory condition of continuing employment, but East Peterborough periodically speculates about the progress Smelters are making and especially whether there is any likelihood of a mill being erected to treat the ore that has been thrown up into tremendous piles.

As you turn easterly into Cordova in the vicinity of a little bridge over a creek, and feel the pastoral quiet of the place, it would certainly surprise you to know that men are working 1,000 feet below you.

That is one of the striking developments that have grown out of the activities of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, Limited, since they acquired the old Cordova Gold Mine workings and started their new pumps at de-watering the shafts four autumns ago.

Big Labor Bill.

Of the $500,000 Smelters have already spent following veins vertically and laterally in their concentrated effort to determine just what value lies in the Belmont rock, about 60 per cent has been distributed in wages. At present between 40 and 45 men are employed in two shifts, and the monthly payroll probably exceeds

Daylight Saving Ends In City Monday Midnight

DOES IT SEEM cold these mornings when you ease one foot out of bed very carefully to test the temperature of the hardwood floor in your bedroom?

Then take courage for on Tuesday morning when you slip from beneath luxurious blankets you will find the floor a good deal warmer. And all because the time of day will be one hour later, the sun will have streamed through your window to warm your floor just sixty minutes longer than it did this morning.

On Monday at midnight all the thousands of hands on all the thousands of clocks in the city will be turned back a full hour and weary holidayers will have one hour more sleep to go to work on in the morning. Monday at midnight sees the end of daylight saving for another year.

Believe Decline In Sterling May Aid Trade

By Rader Winget
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(AP).— A belief that depreciation of the pound sterling would be the simplest way to increase sales to the United States was held widely to-day in Great Britain.

Investors, wary of European alarms, bought heavily when monetary relaxation of government control over foreign exchange markets sent the United States' dollar to its highest level in three years, the pound closing at $4.84¾ last night.

The dollar went even higher in fairly active Saturday foreign exchange market. The noon rate of the pound in dollars was $4.84⅝ and the closing rate was $4.84⅝.

Financial authorities believed the demand for dollars and gold would decline when Chancellor Hitler's intentions toward Czechoslovakia became known.

British exports to all countries have been far below the amount of imports for some time and the government is bending all efforts to boost sales abroad. A decline in sterling was believed the easiest method.

Hipel Named Labor Minister

Be Sworn Wednesday, Faces Election In Waterloo Oct. 5

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—(CP).—Ontario's new Minister of Labor, Hon. Norman O. Hipel, will be sworn into office Wednesday and will face a by-election Oct. 5 in his home constituency of Waterloo South to authorize his joining the Liberal Government of Premier Mitchell Hepburn. Mr. Hipel, former Speaker of the Legislature, resigned from his seat prior to his Cabinet appointment.

A by-election the same day will fill the Toronto Parkdale seat left vacant this summer by Fred. G. McBrien's death. The veteran Conservative had held the seat, excepting for one term, since 1923. Nomination day for both seats will be Sept. 28.

Ontario political forces shook off summer lassitude last night with the appointment and by-election announcements by Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary and Acting Premier.

Mr. Hipel was born March 21, 1890, at Waterloo. He is the president of the manufacturing firm of N. O. Hipel, Limited. He was elected first to the Ontario Legislature Oct. 29, 1930, at a by-election and was re-elected in 1934 and 1937. He assumed the office of Speaker after R. Hepburn's 1934 victory.

Succeeds Heenan

He succeeds Hon. Peter Heenan, Lands and Forests Minister, who temporarily assumed the Labor portfolio soon after the death June 5 of Hon. M. M. MacBride, who was Labor Minister.

Queen's Park reports to-day indicated James Clark, Liberal member from Windsor-Sandwich since Acoern was the favored choice for the Speaker's position. He is Deputy Speaker now.

Soon after Mr. Nixon's announcement of the Toronto by-election, more than 300 Liberals here nominated Aubrey Bond, K.C., as Liberal candidate. No other candidates have been named.

Days Of The Flail And Cradle Recalled By Alex S. Bristow

"If a man can't live with his wife without beating her he has no business being married," was the laconic remark of Alexander S. Bristow, father of thirteen children who celebrated his 86th birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mabel Winslow, 313 Burnham street, this week.

Mr. Bristow is a well preserved vigorous man with a winning personality and with the exception of slight deafness could pass for a man twenty years younger. At a family reunion and birthday party given in his honor at Mrs. Winslow's home, he was the moving spirit in the entertainment and during the day previous he greeted many with warm handclasps who came to wish him many happy returns.

Born in England

He was born in Surrey, England, and came to Canada as a young man 66 years ago, settling in Cavan on the 4th line. He married Annie Lang, and the two lived happily through the years on the farm home. The old fellow expressed indignation at the number of wife beating cases reported through the papers, and remarked "My wife and I lived our married life on a partnership basis, sharing alike the joys and troubles, and I must say we had plenty of the latter. Thirteen children were born of the marriage, nine of whom are still alive, as follows: Mrs. Norman Dunbar, Mrs. Mabel Winslow, Mrs. Ed- Boyler, Mrs. Louis Lebarr, Jr., and Leslie Bristow of Peterborough; William Bristow of Millbrook; Mrs. Harry Blue, North Bay and Mrs. William McMahon, Burchill, Sask.; Mrs. George Todd, Toronto. His wife died 14 years ago. There are 41 grandchildren and 42 great grandchildren.

For the past ten years except

for short periods, Mr. Bristow has lived with his daughter, Mrs. Winslow. He keeps fit by walking and almost every day walks across the Hunter street bridge to the business section and back home. He is an inveterate reader and keeps abreast of the times by reading the daily newspaper regularly and thoroughly, not even needing glasses. The radio in his opinion is one of the finest developments of the age, and he takes considerable pleasure from listening to the old time dance tunes many of which were "hits of the day" in the early farm days out in Cavan. He abhors women singers who "screech" and shows considerable partiality towards the male singers with baritone and base voices.

Farmed in Cavan

He recalls vividly incidents in his early twenties when he lived and farmed in Cavan, and explained that flail threashing was the approved method sixty years ago. "I can remember one year in which I threshed 1300 bushels of peas for farmers in the district, getting five cents a bushel for the work," he stated, and added that he had kept a record of the payments in a little book that year.

When a field of wheat was to be cut, several farmers would get at it using cradles, and a strong, healthy man could cradle three acres of wheat in a day. This according to the Ashburnham man was not unusual, and the strong men of the day often set records far exceeding this total. We made all talow candles we required both for the barn and the house, but coaloil was soon introduced and displaced the candles. He explained that the mould was kept in the kitchen and candles turned out in half dozen lots as required.

Mr. Bristow attributes his good health to the fact that he kept good hours and worked hard, never using tobacco. He believes that despite the fact many farmers are heading to the city he could earn a living on a decent piece of land if he were young today. The great advance in farm implements makes farming an easy task as compared with the handicaps which existed half a century ago, he says.

Waitress Borrows Baby To Help Get Job But Lands In Cell Instead

New York, Sept. 3.

A 19-YEAR-OLD waitress said by police to have thought she could get a job easier if she was accompanied by a child was held today on charges of abducting two-year-old Bobby Daly.

The girl, booked as Miss Lauries March, had taken the boy for a walk with the permission of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Daly.

The mother notified police when Miss March failed to return.

Detective Lieutenant Sam Dribbon said the waitress explained:

"I thought I might be able to get a job much quicker if I carried a baby with me."

Mrs. Arquette had 11 children, six of whom are living. There are 28 grandchildren, 51 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild.

Hastings Rate Increased By 2 1-2 Mills

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 4.—Taxpayers of this municipality will pay 2½ mills over last year due to increased taxation brought about by the new schools act, it was revealed Friday night when the council struck the 1939 tax rate.

51 Mill Rate.

Public school supporters will be assessed 51 mills and Separate school supporters 52½. One mill discount by government subsidy will come off these figures. The 1938 county rate last year was 13 mills compared to 11 mills this year. Last year's figures took in the high school rate but this year a separate 4½ mills will be charged for county high school rate. The figures are as follows: County 11 mills, debentures 10 mills, street lights 4½ mills, relief 1½ mills, public school 9½, separate school 1, village general 10 and high schools 4½.

Hastings has been taken in as a connecting link on the new Cobourg to Norwood highway, Reeve Kelly stated. When the road was originally taken over by the department it ended at the village limits. This was caused by an error in the plans, the reeve explained. A letter of thanks will be forwarded Dr. D. C. Hay, Hastings and Harold N. Carr, Campbellford, thanking them for their assistance in getting the village streets taken in as part of the highway.

Miss Dorothy Park interviewed council in an effort to have more protection given her against outsiders selling garden produce within the village limits. The reeve explained that anyone growing their own vegetables were free to sell them where they wished. "We have an unfair 'deal,' she charged as she said that she was paying a business tax here. "Even the store keepers are buying out of town," she added. "I can't tell you how to get any more protection than you have," the reeve said.

Council refused a group of local youths permission to use the park on Sundays for sport.

Great Piles Of Ore

$5,000, and work is moving along steadily with at least no talk of reducing operations.

So, for the countryside no news continues to be good news, but other people farther afied hear rumors of the investment expanding into the construction of a reducing mill.

Archie Seaton, Smelters' manager at Cordova, to The Examiner the other day the company has made no decision yet about the mine.

"We are going along from day to day," he said, "and I think the company may make an announcement before very long; but when and what it may be I simply don't know."

Mr. Seaton said, contrary to reports of some months ago, he understood the company had no intention of erecting a mill at Richrock in the Hastings-Addington area.

"We are now working at the 1,000 foot level, the drift to the west extending nearly three-quarters of a mile. In fact, you drive over it coming into the village."

As to the quality of the ore, Mr. Seaton had no information—to make public. Ore is assayed right on the property, and the policy of the company, as everyone around the place knows, is to separate the rock as it comes from the shaft, one of the giant piles being graded as No. 1 and the other No. 2.

Naturally the assays disclose the true value of the rock, and because of that fact the popular opinion around Havelock and Marmora leans to firmer belief that more substantial development lies ahead. Of course, that is mere surmise, but the man in the village street argues that Smelters would hardly carry on their quest for four years if they had not received progress encouragement. On the other hand Smelters are a rich corporation, and evidently are willing to toss half a million dollars into the lap of chance to get a look at the thousand-foot level of the rock.

The Depth Doubled.

The old shaft on the east side of the property had been sunk to 500 feet by the old company that threw up their hands years ago. Smelters have doubled that depth, going to 1,000 feet. Pumps are constantly at work, and the property has a healthy appearance, at least to the layman, especially those huge mounds of rock thrust up along the top of the slope to the east from the central office. From several expressions heard the other day the staff likes the Cordova location, and the entire personnel is perhaps more keenly hoping for a favorable official decision than is the public generally.

Corn Belt Farmers To Profit By Feeding

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP).—Farmers who market their corn "on the hoof," and most of them do, figured today they stand a good chance of disposing of much of this year's big crop profitably.

Throughout the corn belt, farmers are concentrating efforts on heavy feeding schedules of meat animals on the premise that factors are favorable for converting low priced grain into cash through hogs and beef cattle.

With the corn-hog ration ranging around 18 in the corn belt today, feeding corn to hogs is regarded as the profitable thing to do. This ration means that it takes 18 bushels of corn to buy 100 pounds of live hog, as compared with 9.5 bushels a year ago, when both corn and hogs were selling at top prices. When the ration falls below 11 or 12, farmers agree it is unprofitable to feed corn.

Another factor regarded as favorable was the low storage supplies of Pork, which latest government figures give as 379,000,000 pounds, compared with 467,000,000 pounds a year ago. Storage supplies of beef were 21 per cent below a year ago, with present stocks at 36,000,000 pounds.

4000 Jap Casualties As Attack Repulsed

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2 (AP)—Severe fighting raged along the Yangtse and Yellow Rivers to-day with both Chinese and Japanese claiming important victories.

Chinese military commanders said their forces inflicted 4,000 casualties as the Japanese tried to advance toward the Yangsin river about 100 miles southeast of Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The Chinese also reported they recaptured Anshan, keypoint for a Japanese offensive toward Teian on the Nanchang-Kiukian railway.

A Japanese column, however, was said to have reached a point three miles from Tiean with the hope of joining forces with another column that was marching from Singize so that both could attack the railway north of Teian.

Some quarters in Shanghai believed the construction of numerous buildings here indicated the Japanese were making a fortified zone to assure Japanese control of the Shanghai area.

Minor Trade Changes Seen In Nazi Pact

LONDON, Sept. 3 (CP Cable).—Minor changes in the Canadian-German trade agreement may result from a flying trip to Berlin by W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Euler said today the changes would not be extensive because both countries agreed it was working satisfactorily. He cut short his European trip "in view of all circumstances," and will return to Canada immediately, sailing tomorrow.

The primary purpose of his trip was to inspect the empire exhibition at Glasgow, where Canada has an important exhibit, so that plans may be made for the Canadian exhibit at the 1939 New York World's Fair.

In Ottawa Mr. Euler's decision to return at once was believed linked with the aproaching conclusion of a new Canadian-United States trade agreement.

Sergeant William Wigg with Constables Rogers and Sexsmith raided a house at 413 Bethune street where it is alleged four men were engaged in a poker game. The four were arrested, and this morning in city court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Steven Melch, was charged with keeping a disorderly house. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until next Friday on $200 bail.

Three charged with being found in pleaded not guilty, and were remanded until the same day next week.

Acting Crown Atorney, F. D. Kerr K.C., asked permission to withdraw a charge of operating a car while his license was suspended against Don. McNaughton, and consent was given. The same charge will be laid again under the amendments to the Criminal Code.

Edmond Quinlan, Oxford street, came before the Magistrate on a charge of vagrancy to which he had previously pleaded guilty. He wished to change his plea to not guilty, but was remanded for another week.

"I've never been guilty of vagrancy, I've often pleaded guilty just to satisfy the Chief. He has been trying to scare me into pleading guilty to this charge," said the prisoner. "Why should I lay up in the county can when I'm not guilty."

Chief Newhall explained that several complaints had been made to the police that Quinlan was abusing his aged mother, and he added the man was arrested and efforts are being made to have him admitted to an institution where he may be given proper treatment for his condition. Magistrate Langley, granted the remand until such arrangements may be made.

Produce Market Is Held At McCracken's

It is a far throw from the days when cottagers on the Kawartha lakes had to transport all their provisions for their summer stay in the north. That today no cottager needs bring anything but his clothing and bedding, was shown on Friday when farmers for miles around attended the last "Farmers' Market" of the current season at McCracken's Landing.

Every Tuesday and Friday during summer months these farmers have travelled early to the market, set their baskets of fruit and vegetables in the sun and waited for their customers to arrive. And come they did—by speedboat and cruiser, by outboard and rowboat. They came from the myriad islands of Stoney Lake, all in holiday garb, the most cosmopolitan clientele any produce marketer could imagine. In winter months they were used to marketing in a hundred different cities of Ontario and the United States.

Market day is a social affair at McCracken's Landing. It is a gathering place for all one's friends and many a cottager makes the trip regardless of whether she needs provisions, because there she will see all her friends and exchange news with them.

Nearly all the farmers selling eggs, butter, vegetables, table cream, fruits, come from the district at hand, but one on Friday had travelled all the way from Norwood. Butcher shops in Peterborough and other centres send trucks to the Landing and do a thriving business.

Those butchers and farmers have certainly changed conditions in the Kawarthas. One farmer said Friday that a cottager had told him he would not stay the summer were it not for the twice weekly market. And all week long provision boats cruise through the waters of Stoney Lake carrying fresh vegetables, canned goods, meats. No cottager need go without any food he is accustomed to when he holidays in the Kawarthas these times.

250 Million in Orders.

Victor M. Drury, president of the plane-making Canadian Car and Foundry Company who is on the proposed slate of directors for the new company, said an estimate could not yet be made as to the amount of the original orders.

It has been reported unofficially that value of the complete orders might reach a total of $250,000,000.

Work on establishment of the plants and obtaining machinery will be started shortly, but it is believed a considerable time will elapse before actual manufacturing begins. Officials of the new company will visit London within a few weeks to complete the financial arrangements. Financing of the central company will be carried out by the companies involved in co-operation with the banks and no public issue of stock will be made.

But Three Days Left For Straw Hats As Labor Day Deadline Nears

(By the Canadian Press.)

Straw hats have three more days of unimperilled existence and school children four of holidays. Monday is Labor Day when Canada celebrates, and after that the straw hat wearer constitutes a potential target for anything. The trek back to school begins on Tuesday.

Meantime, Canadians concentrated to-day on celebrating the long week-end—last of the summer season. It's a time for closing summer homes, plodding back to cities, and thinking of football.

Officially, Labor Day is just what it says—a holiday for labor that was won by years of agitation. But everybody has taken over the occasion and from coast to coast appropriate celebrations have been arranged. Labor will parade and listen to speeches, with perhaps the largest gathering being Toronto's labor parade to the Canadian National Exhibition. More than 10,000 persons are expected to participate.

Monday's celebration will be the 45th in Canada and the United States. Agitation for a legal holiday on the continent was started 56 years ago by the Knights of Labor and other unions. The Knights passed from existence in 184, but the demand in Canada for a labor holiday was almost a political issue. That year the United States Congress provided a Labor Day for Americans.

Canadian Premier Acts.

Sir John Thomson, then Canadian Prime Minister, introduced a similar measure in the House of Commons. It named September 1 as the annual statutory Labor Day and was subsequently passed. Later, the holiday was fixed for the first Monday in September.

The Maritimes will have appropriate celebrations. Trade unions will parade in Quebec and Montreal. Ottawa will observe the day with a sports program and speeches.

Hamilton will have two Labor Day celebrations. The District Trades and Labor Council will hold a lengthy sports program. The rival organization, formed when Hamilton's trade council split, will hold a separate program under leadership of Controller Sam Lawrence.

Elsewhere in Ontario, there will be celebrations at North Bay, Welland and St. Thomas. Windsor has no special celebration listed but the Gold Cup powerboat races in the Detroit River will attract thousands from both sides of the border. Winnipeg has no parade scheduled but there will be celebrations there and in nearby St. Boniface to honor La Verendrye, famous French explorer.

Message Of Death

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 2—(CP)—A "writing" spiders of the type which came into prominence a couple of years ago, wove a message of death at the home of Russel Gortner here. The spider spinning a web on a rose bush, finished the words, "kill my—," but failed to complet the sentence. The design was nine inches long and a quarter-inch wide, Gortner said.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures sagged late yesterday for the fifth consecutive session and again made new lows for five years. Dealings were dull and volume of business small.

At the final bell futures were ⅝ to ¾ cent down, October 60¾, November 60½, December 59, and May 63¼ to ⅝.

Canadian export sales were estimated at 300,000 bushels, including stocks out of Vancouver. Export orders were below those of yesterday and there appeared to be little inducement to stir outside buyers.

Silling, believed largely hedging sales, increased slightly in late trading. Intermarket spreading and other dealings were drab.

Japs Land 5,000 On Yangtse Banks

SHANGHAI, Sept. 3.—(AP).—After a week of intense fighting 5,000 Japanese troops succeeded to-day in landing on the Yangtse river banks 90 miles downstream from Kiukiang.

They began immediately to concentrate on silencing Chinese shore batteries that have menaced Japanese warships and have helped stalemate the Japanese offensive in the Hankow area virtually since the Japanese occupation of Kiukiang July 26.

The Japanese reported they had "definitely broken" the outer defence of Hankow, provisional capital 135 miles north-west of Kiukiang, but categorical Chinese denials asserted counter-attacks had stopped the invaders.

Severe battles raged on the south bank of the Yangtse between Anking, capital of Anhwei province, and Kwelchih as the Japanese tried to wipe out resistance behind the main fronts.

Bombardments by planes and river ships aided the Japanese in making landings. The Chinese continued, however, to hold heights back of the river banks. Dispatches said casualties on both sides were heavy.

Sanguinary fighting continued in other sectors.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE?

THE FAITH OF A PATRIOT

I bought the field of Hanameel. —Jer. 32: 8.

The King of Babylon's army beseiged Jerusalem. Read this chapter with imagination and realise the courage of Jeremiah when he cried: "Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I give this city into the hands of the King of Babylon and he shall take it." No wonder Jeremiah was cast into prison.

Then read the drama of his purchase of the land from his cousin, Hanameel, land which was then occupied by the enemy. Why? "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall be possessed again in this land." But Hanameel clutches the money to his bosom. What good was the land to him? How human. Jeremiah gave his good money for it and the purchase was sealed and delivered. Seventy years later the prophecy was fulfilled.

Some three and a half centuries later, 217 B.C., Hannibal, the great Carthaginian general, is encamped before the city of Rome. He had done the impossible—crossed the Alps with an army and swept into Italy, defeated the picked Roman troops and now stood before the eternal city, expecting to capture it. Hannibal did not fear the Roman troops but the mind of the Roman, who was convinced that Hannibal could not capture Rome. This is what Livy says:

"Two other circumstances also, one inconsiderable, the other important, diminished his hopes. The important one was, that while he lay with his armed troops near the walls of the city, he was informed that troops had marched out of it with colours flying, as reinforcements for Spain. That of less importance was, that he was informed by one of the prisoners, that the very ground on which his camp stood was sold at this very time without any diminution in price. Indeed, so great an indignity and insult did it apear to him that a buyer should be found at Rome for the very soil which he held and possessed by right of conquest, that he immediately called a crier and ordered that the silversmiths' shops, which at that time stood round the Roman forum, should be put up for sale."—Livy Book 26, chap. 2.

You know Hannibal failed and fled into exile, and died by his own hand.

More than twenty-two centuries later came the Great War. France was over-run by German troops. In Sept., 1916, more than two years before the armistice, the following advertisement was inserted in the Paris edition of the New York Herald:

BATTLEFIELD FOR SALE

FOR SALE, piece of land of ten hectares, over twenty acres, furrowed with German and British trenches, right on the Somme battle centre, north of the Bois de Foureaux.

10, Rue St. Louis, Amiens.

We are living in dark days. Fearful forces are arrayed against the liberties and ideals for which our forefathers paid a great price. The spiritual values of truth, uprightness and righteous dealings are at stake. Have you faith in the future?

God is in the Heavens, God is righteous and will in His own good time bring peace and quietness to this weary world.

Perhaps you may be moved to offer this prayer:

Almighty God, from whom all thoughts of truth and peace proceed; kindle we pray Thee, in the hearts of all men the true love of peace; and guide with Thy pure and peaceable wisdom those who take counsel for the nations of the earth; that in tranquility thy kingdom may go forward, till the earth is filled with the knowledge of thy love; through Jesus Christ Our Lord.

In quietness and confidence shall be your strength.

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

The diamond moguls—the great diamond combine of South Africa—complain that they can't sell enough of the precious things. One of their harrying problems is to hold down production because, if ever they loosed their grip, diamonds would be as common as glass.

Out of that situation flashes a remarkable story. A few years ago a South African named Merensky, who had been hunting for diamonds the greater part of his life became convinced that the Orange river, which spills into the South Atlantic ocean off southwest Africa, was carrying down diamonds from some unknown source and throwing them into the sea, and that the sea was washing them back again on the coast.

Merensky organized an expedition and set out across the Kalahari desert—the Great Thirst, they call it—until he came to the sand dunes and salt lagoons of the desolate coastal region. There were no other human beings, white or black, within hundreds of miles. Continual sandstorms blew. Water was so scarce that death by thirst was a constant menace. But Merensky's idea drove him on.

Beach Made of Diamonds

He started exploring the desolate bays along the coast near the Orange river estuary. He found a place called Alexandra bay and took a bucketful of sand and pebbles out of it. Then he washed the contents. And they weren't ordinary pebbles. They were diamonds. That one bucketful was worth $25,000. The beach itself was made not of sand but of diamonds. Merensky made his way back to Johannsburg and proved his claim. But he didn't work it. The diamond combine bought him out for a fabulous sum. The cheque is said to have been about $10,000,0000.

Just about that time one man had a bright idea about Alexandra bay. He applied for permission to start a fish-canning factory nearby. The permission was granted. A factory was put up and the trawlers started working. When a few months later the factory was found to be disused and rusting, inquiries were made. It was found that the trawlers were still working. And they weren't catching fish. They were hauling up gravel from the seabed. That gravel was full of diamonds. The seabed was covered with them.

Now you can't get near Alexandra bay. Electric wire fences encircle it. A big force of armed police patrol is constantly. At night powerful searchlights sweep over it. Some of the surface is being covered in by concrete. Soon all of it will be under concrete. No diamonds are taken from it. The reason is that the moguls can't sell enough diamonds. Such an immense quantity let loose on the market would make diamonds almost as cheap as glass. So the diamonds must wait until the distant day when the world can absorb them at a proper price.

Mines Near Ancient City

Simultaneously comes the news that the legendary gold mines of King Solomon—the gold with which he built his temple—have been rediscovered in the jungles of Rhodesia, near the ruins of what once must have been the great city of Zimbabwe, and exactly where the late John Hays Hammond, famous mining engineer, once told this writer they were located.

John Hays Hammond was a friend of H. Rider Haggard, author of "King Solomon's Mines," and had it from Haggard himself that the tale was not all fcition, but had actually a basis of fact. Much later, in company with Cecil Rhodes, on a gold-prospecting tour, Hammond visited Rhodesia and located to his own satisfaction the site of Solomon's gold.

Now the experts have confirmed Haggard and Hammond. They believe that Zimbabwe was the capital of the ancient empire of Ophir mentioned in the Bible. It was the place where King Solomon's gold came from. They have now found near the ruins the remains of ancient gold mines.

The discovery means that these minest must have been the long-lost legendary King Solomon's mines. If that is so, geogolists believe that somewhere near Zimbabwe there must be another great gold reef like the Witwaters-Rand, where the gold comes from now.

Expeditions are being organized to search for it. If it is found one can hardly realize what it will add to the wealth of the world and how much, indeed, it will add to the power and stability of Great Britain.

Where the diamonds come from This is a view looking down into the Premier Diamond Mine, largest open mine in the world, located near Pretoria, South Africa Diamond magnates must hold down the production of their product to maintain a good price level.

Chest Shut 200 Years Auctions For $260

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Sept. 3.—(CP Cable).—The mystery of the contents of an iron Dutch chest that has lain unoppened for 200 years in Gordon Castle, Fochabers, Morayshire, may soon be solved.

The chest was sold with other antiques yesterday. J. Ducart, Perth dealer, paid £25 for it. He said it might be opened in a few days. Something rolls around inside when the chest is moved, he added.

It was found in the River Spey in 1746, near the spot where the Duke of Cumberland's army crossed the river enroute to the Battle of Culloden.

Samuel—Spiritual Revival

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 4 is I Samuel 7:1-17, the Golden Text being 7:3, "Prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

OF NO MAN in the Old Testament can it be said more truthfully than of Samuel that "he wore the white flower of a blameless life." Of his unselfish life the people to whom he had been a life-long blessing said, "Thou, hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand."

A Call to Repentance

Samuel challenged the people to bring about a genuine change of their hearts as a requisite to God's bringing about a change of their outer circumstances. He pointed out the way of repentance as the way of recovery, saying, "If ye do return unto the Lord with all your hearts, then put away the strange gods from among you, and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines." It was a period of great national depression and distress which invited the attack of the nation's enemies. For their defense Samuel urged them to rearm themselves spiritually, with the result that the people came in penitence and the self-discipline of fasting, crying, "We have sinned against the Lord." To Samuel they appealed, "Cease not to cry unto the Lord our God for us, that he will save up." This was all God was waiting for: "Samuel cried unto the Lord for Israel; and the Lord heard him."

And a study of America's spiritual revival, and the way they have prepared the way for the return of prosperity after depression reveals the same definite relation of cause and effect between a nation's spiritual and economic recovery. History has repeated itself so often in this matter that it is strange that a nation calling itself Christian, as we do, would not try it!

"Ebenezer"

When Samuel's method of recovery by way of revival had brought the nation deliverance he saw to it that the lessons of the depression period should not be forgotten: "Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen and called the name of it Ebenezer saying, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." He did not vainly take to himself the credit for the change of the nation's condition as though he had planned it that way, but he gave the credit to Jehovah and to guarantee perpetual remembrance of this and gratitude for it he engraved in stone the acknowledgment of the nation's debt to God for blessings bestowed. The founders of our nation had much the same idea in mind for us when upon the recommendation of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, they adopted as the Great Seal of the United States a pyramid surmounted by the all-seeing eye of him whom they regarded as having prospered their undertakings, for the words over the eye read "Annuit Coeptis," which is but another way of saying, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Cathedral Musings

We see that the teachings of the various scriptures of the world, in respect to their spiritual significance, are largely couched in symbolical language. Many, who are bibliolaters, will dispute this but none the less it is so. The reason for the use of symbolism is not only to preserve the inner mysteries from those who are not yet ready to receive them but also, and more important, because there is not nor can there ever be, any basis of comparison between things spiritual and things material. Hence direct description is impossible. Not until the spiritual faculties within the individual are awakened and he has perceived within himself, the Truth of the Spirit, has he anything upon which to base his understanding. As St. Paul said, spiritual things can only be spiritually discerned. Even our Lord found it impossible to convey in direct language anything of the spiritual world. He spoke much of the kingdom of Heaven. He likened it to this and to that, but apart from implying that it is a condition already existing within us, needing only for us to become aware of. He said nothing whatever definite in regard to it. This, not because He did not know within Himself, but because those to whom He was speaking, not having experienced the condition themselves would not have understood had He spoken otherwise. There is a very real danger in ignoring this use of analogy and symbolism, in that to read without regard to aught but the literal text, is to get entangled in a lot of materialistic conceptions of That which is altogether opposed to materialism in any shape or form. In this respect, it is easy to see how the letter kills the inner truth. And here we can perceive the benefit of the study of other scriptures beside our own, for their truths are clothed in other forms and the fact that these are foreign to our mental habits sometimes helps us to more clearly see what they are intended to convey. St. Paul told the Athenians that they were too religious, in that they had a multitude of conceptions of God. It is quite possible that much the same thing applies to us, for many are more concerned with what may be termed the correct "idea" of God than with the true inner fundamentals of His Truth.

Named Governor

MOSCOW, Sept. 2. — (AP) — The Comsomol Pravda, organ of the Soviet Russian Young Communist League, announced to-day that an Eskimo named Taian — mighty hunter—had been named Governor of Wrangel Island in the Arctic.

Taian killed 29 female bears with cubs in a single season, and reorganized fox hunting on Wrangel Island so that 416 blue foxes were trapped in one winter.

TRENT RIVER

Mrs. Claud Hawley and daughter Patricia, of Toronto, are holidaying at Rio Vista.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Neale and son have left for Dundas after holidaying at their cottage.

Mrs. D. Innis and sons of Campbellford have been visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis.

Mr. Carl Ellis has returned from Bancroft where he was employed.

Miss Glenna Brown is spending a few holidays with her grandmother, Mrs. J. Hendren at Norwood.

A get-together of relatives was held at "Restholme", the summer home of Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Glover, of Claremont, previous to their departure for their home. A delightful time was spent, fishing, boating and social intercourse. Well-filled baskets were brought by the guests, and contained tempting things good to eat. Among those in attendance were: Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Glover and daughter Helen, Miss Hosie of Claremont, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ritz of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley F. Robins of Lindsay, Mrs. John Black of Peterborough, Mrs. F. J. Stewart of Norwood, Mrs. Willon Wildman of Toronto, Miss Annie McIntyre of Perth, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Richardson, Mr. Fred Richardson of Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hamblin of Norwood.

Miss Lila Engisch, of Norwood, is a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Thompson and family.

Week-end visitors at Killarney were the Misses Mary Hayes and Frances Morgan, of Toronto.

Mrs. John H. Scott attended the funeral of her sister, the late Mrs. Barrons, of Marmora, Wednesday afternoon.

A National Message

The heathen for thine inheritance —Psalm II. No economic competition . . . Return to another thought for a moment, and visualize the Anglo-Saxon world purged of economic competition. There are the beginnings of such a condition of things between the states of the U.S.A.; the Provinces of Canada; the States of Australia; and so on. There is something of internal freedom from economic strife in these great countries; the idea has not yet been realized fully in any one of them. But it has made a start. At least there is free movement of people and goods between the various parts of each country.

Yet the desire to fight in the worlds markets for money gain is still with us in part. This will be purged away within the various parts of the several nations of the Commonworth. But it will also soon be purged away as between all the countries of the world.

"Money" and "price" are taboo in the Kingdom of God. The "Satanic mills" of which Blake wrote in his Jerusalem hymn will be a thing of the past. Production for use, not production for profit will be the order of the day.

National contribution . . . Each country will decide, according to the genius of its people, as to what its own industrial activity shall be. Each people will seek to express its own ideals by the work of its own hands, as far as interior affairs are concerned.

But each country will make its contribution to the general wealth of the world from season to season, and from year to year. The nations will vie with each other in making the contribution to the general wealth worthy of the nation which produces it, and which at the same time draws upon the wealth so contributed by other nations.

National expression . . . Within the various lands, the people dwelling in each will express themselves in architecture, city and country planning, in art, mechanics engineering, and in every way.

No visible line guarded by armed forces, will separate the nations from each other. Yet one will sense the crossing of the national boundaries by the diverse expression of selfhood the various people will have accomplished. Gothic architecture will stand out clearly defined as against Teutonic architecture, and so on.

Now the centre of all this great Commonwealth will be . . . ZION.

Zion. We need not at the moment concern ourselves with the geographical indication, although we agree that ultimately it will be Zion in Palestine. The point is, the centre of the world's administration will be the throne which God has set upon His holy hill of Zion. That is now a going concern. It isn't geographically restored as yet. That promised time is yet to come. t is the centre of the Kingdom over which Jesus Christ will personally rule later, but over which He reigns even now.

Visualize a world, this world indeed, so organized. From the Great Centre of all restored to its original position, the law will go forth to the ends of the earth; and it will be the glory of each people to carry that law to its highest point of efficient administration. This will not be from fear, but from a spirit of emulation, and because of the benefit it brings to all.

Travel....main lines of travel will be developed on a scale not yet glimpsed. On land, on sea, and in the air, the coming and going of the people will go forward like a perfect piece of machinery. Each person, and each public will be served, and will serve in this way.

Once each year the nation, as a nation, will go up to worship and fulfill its duties at the centre of things, and to enjoy its priveleges and honors.

Perhaps the 66 nations which have represented themselves at conferences during the last few years—66 at one time, 52 will remain as separate entities. This would seem to mean there would be a week for each nation to attend and serve at the centre.

Perhaps the amalgamations will reduce the number to 12 nations. So there would be a nation a month for such service, and a month each for such nation to enjoy its priveleges.

These attendances will, of course, be formal. There will be freedom of approach for all to the centre of the Kingdom, over which the Lord our King shall rule.

Each country will be ruled by its own real princes, and natural leaders. There will be nothing of one people ruling over other peoples. In the Kingdom of God will be found that equality which will balance the needs and happiness of the peoples. Princes of the Tribes; renowned of the congregation heads of the thousands of the nations; these will be the rulers of the peoples, under the Divne administration.

(The Heathen For An Inheritance —continued next week).

Enroute To Mexico

Leon Jouhaux, head of the French General Confederation of Labor, and foremost labor leader in France, is pictured as he arrived in New York, enroute to Mexico to attend labor conferences. He will also confer with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and John L. Lewis, chairman of the C.I.O. While Jouhaux was en route to America, Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, struck at the 40-hour week in that country and said that hours must be extended to keep factories running full time if France was to hold her own against other nations. Daladier's action caused two members to resign from the cabinet.

"Looking Back" On This Date

. . . By FRED WILLIAMS

Nowadays when an important job is given by a high official to one of his own family, we call it nepotism But it was apparently all right in "the olden days," because after Lord Elgin had accepted the office of Governor-General of Canada, in 1846, he had to select a military secretary. And on Sept. 3, 1846, he choose his own brother. It is true Colonel Bruce, who had occupied a similar office when Lord Elgin was governor of Jamaica, was a most capable official. He was of great assistance to our first constitutional governor, and he had to accept, for a time, a reduction in pay by coming to Canada. Still he was the governor's brother, and naturally there were people who protested.

Reading over the correspondence which preceded Elgin's acceptance of the governorship, which he did not want and which he was only persuaded to take by personal pressure from Queen Victoria (a mighty good thing for Canada) it is interesting to note that his chief objection was that absence from England might spoil his chances of public life in Britain. He was a Scottish peer and therefore eligible for election to the House of Commons, and had great political ambitions, which he did not wish to abandon. But, like the Great Earl Durham, his father-in-law who had the same objections, he subordinated them to public duty. True, he was given a tacit understanding that on completion of his task in Canada he would be created a peer of the United Kingdom and, therefore, a member of the House of Lords. This he became, sitting in the House of Lords, being a member of a British ministry and having a taste of political life "at home" before he continued his public service as special envoy to China and Japan, and eventually viceroy of India.

As has so often been the case, with other public men, Lord Elgin found himself so interested in his share of developing Canada that he never regreted his early abandonment of British politics to be the Great Conciliator of a divided Canada.

Samuel—Spiritual Revival — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Samuel 7:1-17.

From a small child Samuel faithfully served God and his nation. God talked plainly with him, telling him his will for the nation.

Samuel sharply rebuked the people for their sin in forsaking Jehovah and serving false gods. "Return unto the Lord with all your hearts," he demanded.

The nation repented crying, "We have sinned against the Lord." In answer to Samuel's prayers for them. God gave them victory over the Philistines.

To remind the nation of their debt to God for his help, Samuel erected a stone which he called 'Ebenezer," meaning "Hitherto hath Jehovah helped us." (GOLDEN TEXT—1 Samuel 7:3)

Another Divided Family

Probably there always have been cases where families have been strangely placed, taken to pieces or made to fight their way against odds which seem hard. News travels quickly now; there is more of it readily available than ever before and that may be why we hear of so many of these cases.

Two boys, 17 and 14 years of age, brothers, were in court at Chatham, and that old charge of vagrancy was there to face them. When lads of that age are homeless and friendless we call them vagrants for the want of a better word. To be sure, they were without visible means of support, so that would make them vagrants according to the police blotter.

It appears the mother is a resident of United States, living in Detroit. She came to visit her boys a while ago but could not stay in this country. The boys were born in Canada, so they could not enter United States with their mother.

So that thing which we often enough refer to as the friendly international border becomes something like a barbed wire fence between this woman and her two boys—17 and 14. There may be much about the case we do not know, but it is plain the mother is in Detroit and the boys are wandering around classed as vagrants.

The law of humanity and the law of common sense would say that those three people ought to be united where they could try and fight the battle of existence together. But the man-made law of international boundaries decrees they shall go their separate ways with miles and a river in between.

Who Planned It?

The reports from Philadelphia telling of the investigation following the death of four prisoners who were roasted to death in a punishment cell where steam was turned on full add nothing by way of explanation for the devilish bit of work which was done in that prison.

It has been openly stated that there was knowledge in possession of officials that steam could be turned on in these tight-closed rooms and apparently for purposes of punishment. One of the points difficult to make clear is who gave authority to turn on that steam.

Back of that again is something of equal or even greater importance. Who planned the prison so that such use of steam heat would be possible? It is difficult to believe that any man with a balanced mind would have thought of such a scheme, and how it could have been accepted and passed by those responsible for the construction of the place is something which staggers understanding.

Deliberately planning and constructing rooms in which unruly prisoners could be virtually roasted to death is something which makes the horrors of war look polite in comparison.

Another Door Closed

There is something about the mind of a dictator which is not at all logical. One of the latest orders coming from Rome is that all Jews who have settled in Italy since January 1, 1919, must leave the country within six months. The decree applies even to Jews who have become Italian citizens because citizenship conferred since 1919 has been revoked.

Issuing a decree that the Jews must leave Italy inside of six months is one thing; suggesting to them where they shall go is quite another.

Italy has been expanding her territory. She now controls Ethiopia, and she owns Libya in Northern Africa which is five times the size of Italy. One of the reasons given for this forced growth has been that room was needed for the Italian people.

But in adding to the acreage of Italy there is not an acre for the Jews. Stripped of their holdings in Germany, exiled from Austria, and now informed they must leave Italy. The question increases in size—where will the Jews find a home?

Kent Vs. Perth

There is something like an unorganized contest going on, and it has to do with high corn. It seems to have started when the editor of the Chatham News called upon farmers in Kent county to bring forth corn stalks of greater height than those grown in Illinois. We heard that Adolph Gotsch responded nobly and delivered at the sanctum a stalk of corn which was 12 feet in height. Thereupon he received honorable mention in the News. It was mentioned it was Yellow Dent corn and had been planted on the 24th of May, which was at one time considered the right date for potatoes so they would escape the frosts which were liable to come on the 10th of June. Mr. Gotsch was named as a good farmer.

On the same day we noticed a picture of J. V. Flynn of Dublin printed in the Stratford Beacon-Herald. The settlement around Dublin is just about as Irish as it sounds, but of course that has nothing to do with Mr. Flynn and his corn. He is shown standing by a field where corn grows 13 and 14 feet in height, and Perth county has never been looked upon as so great a corn belt as Kent. So as things stand at the moment the Flynn of Dublin is about two feet up on the Gotsch of Chatham, so it's high time the Chatham News sent out another call—perhaps something like an S.O.S.

A Team For 25 Years

John Blakeley who farms near Lakefield has a team of horses which he has been driving as a team for 25 years. One of the horses, Paddy, is 30 years old and the purchase price of that one was $155. The other horse bearing the name of Dan is 28 and the cost tag on Dan was $125 in a deal.

Thirty years is about the limit in age for a horse and few of them pass that mark; most of them never reach it. But a team that has been worked as such for a full quarter of a century is something so unusual that it can be put in the record or near-record class. The fact that these horses have never had a sore shoulder and are looking in good shape today is probably the reason why they have been able to team it together for so long.

On the farm of Mr. Blakeley there is another team of three-year-olds and they are coming along so they can step in and do most of the heavy work, after which Paddy and Dan will be allowed to take it easy and do only enough to keep them in shape. There may be other horses which have worked together for a quarter of a century with the same farmer but we never heard of them. So to Mr. Blakeley and his team we will have to award the record—at least until one of greater length of years comes to light.

What Other People Think

When summer comes it is generally possible to pick up a story now and then about bathing suits and shorts. Often enough the people who write paragraphs manage to fill up part of their space with light reference to this light apparel.

Probably people who go about with so little covering do so in the belief that it is their own business; perhaps they figure it is recognized as quite the proper thing for summer resort wear.

It may never occur to them that there are people who do not like it. In Leamington Mayor Dan Kennedy reported at the last council meeting that police would have to step in and take action to keep the scantily attired people off the streets. The mayor said for his part he didn't care what people wore but people were raising so many objections that he was forced to do something about it. When folk went down town they did not like to meet groups of girls and young women wearing nothing but bathing attire parading the business streets.

Perhaps those who love to discard most of their raiment have never stopped to consider what other people thought about it, and perhaps it never occurred to them that so many would go to the mayor of a community and complain that he would have to bring the matter to the attention of council and then authorize the police to take action. Truth seems to be that we can't live entirely to ourselves even if we want to.

When Profits Cease?

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, claims that unemployment insurance benefits now being paid in several states are not sufficient to maintain a man and his family decently. Mr. Green does not go deeply into the matter nor does he show how it would be possible to secure sufficient funds to keep a large number of people in what he might regard as a decent standard, especially when they have made no contribution to the fund from which they draw.

No matter what one may desire we always have to come back to that old question of: Where will we get the money? In a normal sense our possession of money comes as the result of the operation of the profit system. One can denounce that system, but we actually have no other. A rural district might exist for a time after suspending the profit system but an urban community could not.

There is another illustration of the desire for more wages than the profit system can produce. United States railways say they are losing money and therefore wages must come down. There are 929,000 railway employees and through their organizations they say they will at once take a strike vote if wage decreases are made effective.

The railways are operated for the purpose of making money. They may be spoken of now and then as arteries of trade and builders of communities, but primarily railways came into existence to make money for those who invested in their stock. They are not making money now; they have been given permission to increase their rates but rate increases as a rule do not build up railway revenues. Increased rates drive business away.

The so-called profit system is not making enough to pay the railway workers what they desire to receive; neither is the profit system providing enough for those who are receiving jobless insurance benefits. People often enough speak of this profit system as something which is wrong and not far removed from being wicked. Truth is we have no other system, and the degree to which it has fallen down in a good many cases shows that it has been often enough wrongly regarded as a source of wealth which had no ending. Profit is what pays wages, taxes, and all other things. Lack of profit is what brings about the trouble mentioned above. Abuse and denounce the system if you will, but remember that so far we have not found a better one which can be pronounced workable.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Let's see—wasn't there something said once in one of our Canadian provinces about the people being paid a dividend of $25 a month.

The lie detector has been demonstrated in Toronto, and the residents who get home between 2 and 3 in the morning are shivering for fear it may soon be used as a household gadget.

Toronto Star says the bathing suit controversy will soon be over for 1938, but will likely be renude in 1939. One like that should call for 30 days and impounding of the typewriter.

We wonder if a hitch-hiker ever thought of a good reason why a perfect stranger, who had provided a car and the gas to make it go, should stop on the road and give him a ride.

One youth in Toronto pleaded guilty to stealing a washing machine from his mother. And we wonder how many times his own washing has been put through that machine free of cost.

Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General, is to be made honorary chief of a tribe of Ojibway Indians at Fort William. That's all right even if it does mean being put on the Indian list.

One critic who returned from spending a month at summer resorts says he can now understand that old saying which the ladies use so much about never having anything to wear.

Report from Peterborough relief office shows that no one has yet paid back any of the relief money advanced here. So that leaves the field wide open to any person desirous of securing a little favorable mention.

Japan gunners shot down a Chinese-American plane. Washington at once protested and Japan replies "It is none of your business." Not exactly the language of diplomacy, but rather the utterance of a man with a gun in his hands.

Man in Windsor 90 years of age is rather disgusted because he puffs after he has walked a block or so. He shouldn't worry for in this age when walking is getting to be a forgotten art there are plenty of folk far removed from the 90 mark who are also puffing after a bit of a walk.

In Saint John N.B., a speaker introducing Hon. Dr. Manion, Conservative leader, referred to him as "the handsomest man in Canada's public life." If his friends want to sour his chances of success all they have to do is keep on referring to him as the winner of a beauty contest.

Suggestion was made at the Ontario Municipal Association that municipalities should be relieved of the cost of preparing voters' lists for provincial elections. That suggestion is so reasonable that the wonder is it has been necessary to make it. The present system whereby municipalities have to pay for the preparation and printing of a list which is used only for provincial elections is a fair enough example of plain imposition.

HE TALKS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Dobber spreads out his advice, he always says the same thing twice, and then repeats it more; he knows how hard times can be cured, just how employment is secured, 'tis but an easy chore.

¶ John Dobber's latest scheme is grand, he'd send the workless to the land, and let them dig a ditch; they'd live like what the pioneers did, in bush land he would have them hid, until they came forth rich.

¶ John waxes eloquent at times, on people cutting birch and pines, and fighting wolves and bears; they'd start out with a fatted sow, perhaps they'd have a brindle cow, a table and some chairs.

¶ John says that honest toil's the thing, from it all wealth and produce spring, he dotes on strength and tan; he glories in the axe and pick, and loafing men just make him sick, they don't fit with his plan.

¶ John Dobber talks an awful lot, and speaks as though he stewed in thought, or that he'd won his fight; I pictured all the toil he'd done, how at the setting of the sun, his back would ache at night.

¶ But what did Dobber ever do, to make his long advice sound true, was he a hungry lad?; John Dobber never stretched his hide, his wealthy uncle up and died—and left him all he had.

Improving Our Social Contacts

By LAWRENCE BROWN

"THE MAIN BUSINESS of life "John Bayne Ascham says" is seeing folks. In city or in village the same law of life holds. Life consists in social contacts . . . and they end either in the enrichment or the impoverishment of the mind or heart.

In conversation it is not difficult usually to persuade a person. Some people can make us feel by their recitations of sordid, dishonest, immoral incidents that the world is so sinful the Battle of Armageddon could happen anytime. We leave such informants disgusted and perhaps more than a little disillusioned.

"Edify one another" Paul wrote to the Thessalonians. Benefit spiritually, improve morally those you meet. This is not to be done, of course, in any self-righteous or over-conscious way.

Be the kind of person, you yourself would like to meet.

Social contacts would be improved if we would strive for the improvement of the self.

Rev. F. W. Robertson wrote that all men have spiritual sensibilities which one may awaken. By deepening our own spirituality we affect others for good. That is not to say we have to eliminate humour, recreation or good fun.

If one so desire he can draw the best out of his friend or call his attention to his baser nature.

When one's interests are few there are only a few subjects for conversation — weather, health, current events. That is if one desires to be impersonal, and if other people are discussed we exceed our rights. They too could criticize our weakness or errors.

Art, music, literature, nature, social problems, religion would be far more constructive and helpful to consider than poor frail humanity.

"If you give a man a coat you have one coat less, but when you give him a new idea or a better grip on life you multiply the treasures of your own life."

That friendship is worthless if it means the forfeiting of any of our ideals, culture or beliefs.

Knowledge is not worth having if to get it one must be deceitful and cheap.

When Christ is the Unseen Listener, the Silent Companion, we build each other up.

FOR THE BICYCLISTS.

Time

FEW YEARS AGO the U. S. public thought of bicycles, like bustles and the Single Tax, as something that went out with the 1890's. In 1932 only 180,000 bicycles were sold, about one-fifth the annual sale before 1900. Since then, however, bicycling has had an astonishing revival. Last year U. S. citizens bought more bicycles (1,300,000) than ever before.

Last week New York's efficient, hard-working Park Commissioner Robert Moses, who has spent over $500,000,000 building parks and boulevards, announced a plan to take cyclists off the streets. Throughout parks and along drives in New York's five boroughs, he proposed to build 58.75 miles of winding, four-lane pedaling parkways, submitted his scheme to the Works Progress Administration for approval.

As part of a 30-month park project, WPAsters will lay hard-surfaced paths, make grade crossings, erect highway signs and red-and-green traffic lights.

GET BUILDING GOING.

(Financial Post, Toronto)

DESPITE ALL THE forms which government "assistance" takes there is no sign yet of a housing or building boom in Canada.

The encouragement to build is lacking. Even existing properties do not draw rents high enough to carry them.

Factors in the situation are "high" costs and wage levels.

But the major factor is high taxation of real estate. This is chiefly the result of Dominion and provincial policies that load upon communities social burdens they have no desire to carry and cannot continue to carry.

The building boom will start when there is clear evidence that taxes are coming down.

More than municipal taxes are involved. The weight of provincial and Dominion taxation is so great that the confidence of enterprisers cannot be inspired.

Reduce governmental expenditures, get taxes down and there will be no need for "assistance" in any form.

RECALLS L. G.'s SPEECH.

(Toronto Telegram)

SIR JOHN SIMON'S speech recalls that delivered by Lloyd George at the Mansion House at the time of the Agadir incident in 1911, when Germany was warned that Britain had a vital interest in the affairs of the world and that British-French solidarity would stand any strain imposed on it from outside. It is a curious coincidence that Lloyd George was Chancellor of the Exchequer when he spoke, as Sir John Simon is today. It may not be altogether coincidence that the minister who gave the warning then was strongly pacifist while the minister who gives the warning today has been accused both of weakness and of sympathy with German aims.

GREAT VALUE OF TREES.

A WRITER IN THE Canadian Forest and Outdoor Life points to the great value of reforestation in this country, by indicating the value of trees. Besides being themost stately and beautiful plants, these huge objects of nature are of great assistance to the agriculturist. As this writer points out, we cannot stop rain and evaporation but we can plant trees which will—

1. Break the rainfall into minute particles.
2. Retard the volume and velocity of the surface run-off.
3. Provide a medium for slow evaporation.
4. Increase or raise the sub-soil water table.
5. Rebuild and hold soil in place.
6. Assist in regulation of each waters in springs and underground channels.
7. Shade and reduce water temperatures along stream courses

• United States Has No Answer

(Christian Science Monitor)

AMERICA has to take this one having no logical defense. "United States," says Mussolini's newspaper, "has first place as an exporting country for pacific speeches — it has first place also as exporter of armaments. Our Japanese friends know something about that. As Japanese they receive sermons from America, as customers they get from the same America whatever they need to meet the situation in China—for pay, naturally."

We could, of course, turn the accusation back to Italy where sermons are scorned from any source which preaches peace or pleads for international morality. But that is beside the point.

The point is that if the United States assumes the privilege of leading the world toward peace, it should forego the dubious profit of furnishing the world with materials of war.

• Warming Up An Old Subject

(Letter in Toronto Star)

SIR: YOUR LAST sentence in a splendid leading article reads: "If all parents in Canada were able to spend $5,000 in cash on rearing each of their children to the age of independence, happy days would indeed be here!"

In Canada it is quite possible for these "happy days" to be experienced, for the problem can be solved, and it simplifies a consideration of the problem to think of the physical, rather than the financial, aspects. The important part is not the $5,000 to be spent; the important part is the food, clothing, shelter and other things for which the money is given.

Now we have an abundance of all these things in Canada, and if there is a lack of anything, there is a productive capacity not being utilized that, if utilized, could speedily supply what is needed. The physical requirements for every child are available but we lack the $5,000.

This lack of money would be an insuhmountable obstacle were it not for the fact that it is a man-made device and can be expanded and controlled through human agency. All money starts its life in a bank ledger and the policy concerning its control is governed by the directors of these private institutions. Seeing that this has been the system for a good many years now, and seeing the unsatisfactory results of this system in matters such as the one under discussion, would it not be a good idea to try a system where the policy controlling the creation and destruction of money would be stipulated by the people through their elected representatives?

In your editorial you point out: "The majority cannot pay (this $5,000). and therefore they do not buy what the children need." This would indicate that the trouble is one of two things. Either these people cannot buy the children's needs because other people have too much money, or else there is a flaw in our cost accounting system whereby a shortage of money in respect to total prices is caused through methods of bank financing.

If the first analysis is correct we need a redistribution of existing incomes through the abolition of production for profit. This is the Socialist analysis and solution. If the second analysis is correct we need the monetary system corrected so that the total amount of money will be equal to the total price of production, this change to be effected by giving every individual his rightful share of the wealth produced. This is the Social Credit analysis of Douglas and his solution.

• Guests Abusing Hospitality

(Galt Reporter)

THE CONVICTION OF two prominent American tourists, at Hamilton, for serious violations of the Traffic Act, is a depressing incident in connection with the usual pleasant affiliations of the business of entertaining visitors to this country. The principal offender was the health commissioner of an Ohio town and his companion was another doctor of equal prominence in his home community. The police action arose out of a traffic offence on the Niagara Highway in which the visiting doctor's car collided with another automobile. The evidence was to the effect that the American car did not stop at the scene of the accident and was chased for half a mile by a farmer on a motorcycle who had witnessed the collision and said that previously the swerving vehicle had forced two other cars off the pavement. The driver was fined $143.50 and his car impounded for three months. The charges were, driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and failing to return to the scene of an accident. His companion was fined $50 on a charge of illegal possession of wine and $2.50 costs for illegal possession of firearms. However sentence in the arms possession case was suspended as it was known that the men had come to Canada with the idea of shooting game.

There are aspects to this case which are decidedly unpleasant and unfortunate. It is always distressing when visitors get into trouble and especially so when those involved are of a class that ought to know the law and ought to have an adequate realization of their responsibility to society. Canadians are desirous of encouraging American tourists to come to this country and we believe that we have the fundamentals to render their stay pleasant. We have strict laws to control behavior and unless these laws are respected, Canada might become a country where visitors might feel unsafe. Canada has gone to great lengths to make law and order a tradition and the result has been satisfactory for we have, probably second to the British Isles, the most law-abiding people in the world. We naturally feel sorry for people like these Ohio doctors who so far forgot themselves as to leave themselves open to the kind of incident that befell them, especially since they are said to occupy positions of porfessional responsibility in their home town and are naturally looked up to for exemplary conduct.

• As A French Paper Views It

L'Evenement (Quebec)

IT SEEMS EVIDENT that before the decision of the Government (concerning a policy of national defence) London had informed Ottawa of the probable eventualities of European politics, as well as of the repercussions it might have upon Canadian life.

In any event, several British propagandists did not fail to point out at that time the insufficiency of Canadian defence in view of the progress of military aviation and submarine navigation. Until the day when Hon. Mackenzie King reiterated the engagement already made to keep the country withdrawn from foreign conflicts, it may be believed that Imperialism still sought to drag the Canadian Government into the adventure of a foreign war.

Since then, in spite of a lying campaign, for purely election purposes, the people have realized the absolute sincerity of the King-Lapointe Government which has categorically denied any intention of raising Canadian troops to go and fight outside of national territory.

And it is because, on this point, the Canadian policy agrees with the United States policy of non-interference that President Roosevelt judged it opportune to recall that the Monroe Doctrine guaranteed to the Canadian nation the co-operation of the American Republic if ever an enemy threatened its coasts.

The promise of continental solidarity in the face of any aggression would never have been made if the Canadian Government had made the mistake of undertaking to mix itself up in the quarrels of old Europe.

ENGINEERING FEAT.

(Industrial Britain)

ONE OF THE century's greatest feats of engineering will be completed in a year's time when a 1,000 feet long bridge will span the Zambesi River.

The bridge is being built by Messrs. Dorman Long at Middlesbrough, and section by section it is constructed at their works there, them dismantled and taken by boat and train to Africa. After a journey of many weeks, the girders and coils of wire will be dragged through what is now 200 miles of jungle.

At the moment, while the furnaces are preparing some steel for the bridge, girders already lie alongside the Zambesi, and electric drills are burrowing their way through the rock on both sides of the river. They are chipping tunnels 40 feet down in the ground to hold the cables.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

HOW IS THE GOLD become dim! how is the most fine gold changed! the stones of the sanctuary are poured out in the top of every street. The precious sons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, how are they esteemed as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter!—Lam. iv, 1, 2.

This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart. . . .

But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus: that ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind;

And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness.—Eph. iv, 17, 18, 20-24.

WORLD GERMANS.

THE BERLIN correspondent of the Sunday Times of London, has given some interesting figures, which are being widely circulated by Nazi organizations, which show the distribution of the German population throughout Europe. The Nazi creed union of all Germans throughout the world under the leadership, if not the administration, of the German government.

Here they are:

Germany Reich	67,000,000
Austria	6,200,000
Czechoslovakia	3,500,000
Switzerland	3,000,000
France	1,700,000
Poland	1,200,000
Soviet Union (Europe)	1,100,000
Rumania	800,000
Jugoslavia	700,000
Hungary	600,000
Danzig	420,000
Luxemburg	290 000
Italy	270,000
Memel and Lithuania	190,000
Belgium	150,000
Netherlands	115,000
Latvia	70,000
Denmark	60,000
Rest of Europe	180,000
	87,545,000

The more this unity of the German-speaking people is stressed, the more likely the Overseas magazine thinks is the making of similar efforts among the largest racial group —the English speaking groups—and the second largest — the Spanish-speaking nations.

BIG WHEAT YIELDS.

(Lethbridge Herald)

GUESS WE'LL have to stop commenting on big wheat yields or we'll overlook some good farmer. Ed Hocking's 42-bushel story hardly got going the rounds before Ben Matkin, another Magrath district farmer, reported a 52-bushel-to-the-acre return in one field, his son Charles an average of 50 on 100 acres, while E. Wintermute of Macleod had 50 bushels to the acre. Looks as though 40 and 50-bushel averages might be common in the good crop districts.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH.

TO WIT:

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT made under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough and to me directed, bearing date the 8th Day of June, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-seven, I am commanded under the authority of the Statutes in that behalf, to levy on the land hereinafter mentioned and described, for the arrears of taxes due thereon, with the costs as hereinafter directed by the said Act. Therefore I give notice that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid I will proceed to Sell, by Public Auction, at the Court House, in the City of Peterborough, on the Fourth Day of October 1938, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the Forenoon, the said Lands or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes, and all lawful charges incurred, in and about such Sales, and the collection of the Taxes.

CARDINALS' SCORING SPREE NETS 11 RUNS IN THREE INNINGS

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LADEEEEZ AND GENTLEMEN, the main attraction of the holiday weekend is the colossal and stupendous baseball offering on Labor Day here. This mighty event will show you the GM-men of Oshawa and the local Petes in dynamic and thrilling action at three o'clock in Riverside Park when that famous C. O. B. L. diamond drama will be unfolded for your approval. It is the sixth showing of the popular serial and might well be the final one. No circus could offer more than this true life tale in action of these highly accomplished and adventurous actors who will fight it out to the finish in a sparkling performance with the utmost at stake while a maddened and packed crowd roars its thunderous acclaim. The show starts at three o'clock, the place is Riverside and the line forms to the right. Hurry, hurry, hurry!

* * * * * *

AH, BUT IT'S GOOD TO get a lot of adjectives off the caved-in chest—and we used to aspire to the vocation of circus barker. We also wanted to be a big league ball player, and a sailor, and a love-story novelist, and a millionaire playboy. But we became a sports writer instead. The pity of the thing! Still, we can't say it lacks excitement—and we get three squares a day and a nightly flop whilst able to shoot a lot of bull. Mixed up with real facts, of course. But where the deuce were we, anyway?

A Pot Of Honey

OH, SURE, THE BALL GAME. Well, it should be a honey of a tilt and ought to pack in a big crowd of fans on the holiday afternoon. Every playoff game to date—and they've been plentiful—between these clubs was a nifty struggle, marked by good baseball, exciting moments and keen rivalry. They don't pull their punches in the playoffs. Can't say how they will stand Monday, not till today's tussle and tonight's protests are reported, but needless to say it will be a crucial contest at this stage of the proceedings. Each team has won two up until today, with one fray being protested. Yep, it's a fine Labor Day attraction for ball fans.

* * * * * *

DOWN IN OSHAWA, they're busy building up another smart junior O. H. A. squad, and this time Tracy Shaw may pilot the pucksters instead of Coach Doc Rowden, the latter looking after the senior team. Several good imports have wended their ways to the Motor City during the summer, we hear, the latest being Nick Knott of Kingston. This lanky 18-year-old wingman helped a lot in bringing the Kingstons an Ontario junior "B" title last winter, after rubbing out our Colts in playdowns. We haven't heard of any new players, junior or senior, looking for a boarding-house in Peterborough this year, not yet, anyway.

Clockmen Quit Ticking

WESTCLOX WERE RUN DOWN last p.m. in Oshawa and the Varcoes rubbed them right out of further competition, using a nifty 9-8 eraser. A grand game, with the losers leaving too many men stranded on the short cushions after outhitting the home outfit, 13 to 8. Couldn't blame Bateman for that. Too bad, but the spinning coin which was tossed to decide the site of the deciding joust in this playdown series seems to have cost the Clockman the contest. Tying run was on base at the finish, but we guess it is still there—unless someone thought to count noses as the disgruntled Haydenites shuffled off the diamond at the windup. Congrats to Scribe Campbell and his battlers—and a couple or three condolences to the locals. Jim Ellis played his best game defensively and on the attack, his final effort being a homer in the ninth with none aboard.

MAPLE LEAFS BEAT LITTLE Harlem, 11-8, last eve to win the Warne Cup and the Southend Softball Loop title before 600 fans. It made three wins in four playoff starts for Manager Hatton and his Leafs, and they earned the verdict, The Harlemites, with two regulars away, made it a scrap and the record southend crowd witnessed a tidy tussle throughout. This loop had a fine season and was well-handled this year. It should really do things in another season, we think.

Words Mftg. Co., Inc.

IN LINE WITH WORK on the new gridiron at the Exhibition Grounds, officials of the Orfuns' Rugby Club are planning on building a big press box atop the grandstand about midfield. Closed in, with glass front, it will seat a dozen pressmen and will have facilities for broadcasting radio accounts of home games. It has also been suggested that the present judges' stand at the Ex. be moved across the field to the south side to handle the overflow of sports scribes. It goes without saying that the place will be cluttered up with newspaper guys at these grid contests, gees from Toronto and all over Central Ontario, as well as Sarnia and Montreal when those clubs play here. Senior football is the best possible sports' advertising agency, both the color of the game and the scarcity of other autumn sports making the papers play it up like a European war scare. Reams of publicity and oodles of radio chatter will go out from here to Ontario and Quebec. We hope the scribes do not outnumber the cash customers, though.

COACH CURLY KRUG lays down the law in no uncertain terms for next week's workouts. They start at six sharp Tuesday eve and players must leave the "Y" by 5.30 and be on hand by six with pads.. et al. Skipping their supper. Curly says he isn't fooling and anyone not complying with this rule can sit on the sidelines and whistle for a berth on the grid squad. It's serious business now and prospects will be weeded out right shortly—so youse guys who have a penchant to play with the senior rugbyists this fall must take your bumps in practise without the evening steak under the belt. Ya gotta be on time! Before the end of next week, a good line on the 1938 edition of the Orfuns will be known, both newcomers and locals. Give us about 50 pounds—English currency, not football avordupois—and we'd try for a spot on the squad ourself!

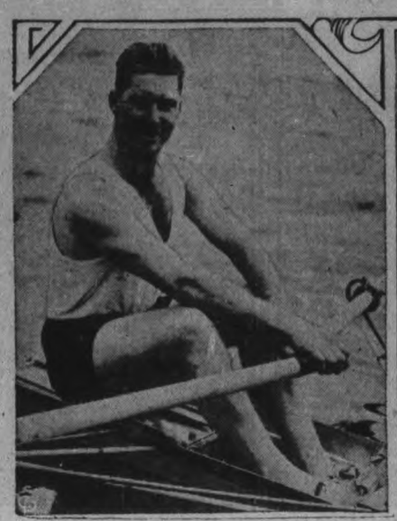
DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Tigers took the first of the Junior City Ball Loop finals from Pirates by a 13-5 count; next one is Tuesday night. . . . Nationals may arrange an exhibition rugby game with Regina; and Baz O'Meara suggests a Thanksgiving Day fray betwixt Nats and Mo'real Cubs. . . . Our first home fixture is Oct. 15th when Balmy Beach comes here. . . . Our very best to Cy Whatley, Petes' peppery ballster, who handles a matrimonial chance today. . . . Lot of lacrosse activity expected locally next week. . . . In loop finals, the Petes beat Oshawa by scores of 3-1 and 5-2, while the GM-men won by 10-5 and 11-10. . . . Tennis dope is listed in this evening's sheet. . . . Much of the Orfuns' hoofing this autumn will depend on the educated toe of DonCrowe. . . . Shaky outfielding and a bit of bad base-running beat Westclox male softballers in Oshawa last e'en. . . . Gridders who come here work for so much an hour on their jobs and intend to stay; no extra coin passed out. . . . What about a boxing show here soon? . . . And alley bowling is just around the well-known corner. . . . Cheerio for a couple of weeks; we're off on vacation now.

Bob Pearse Defeats Australian Challenger



Evans Paddon

Bob Pearce

Bob Pearce the greatest sculler of all time defeated Evans Paddon Australian challenger by five lengths in a sculling race over a one mile course at the C.N.E.

Pearce's Time Betters Burk's Over Mile Course

TORONTO, Sept. 3. — (CP). — Whether Bob Pearce, of Hamilton, world's professional sculling champion, was faster than Joe Burk, of Philadelphia, world's amateur champion, was unanswered to-day despite their victories over different opponents last night under identical conditions.

Pearce and Burk, in different events, raced over a one-mile Lake Ontario course at the Canadian National Exhibition with Pearce completing the distance in 6:04 3-5 and Burk in 6:08 2-5. Sportsmen pointed out neither sculler was pressed and so comparatives times meant little.

Pearce defeated Evans, Paddon, Australian champion, by five lengths. George Cook, New South Wales champion, was third and Percy See, Australian Northern Rivers titleholder, was fourth. The Hamilton resident led from the start.

Burk retained the Joe Wright Sr. Trophy by his victory over three Toronto scullers, Johnny Coulson, Herb Miller and Jim Russell, all of Toronto Argonauts. Burk was five lengths ahead of Coulson, who was second.

Ball Playoff Here Monday

Oshawa GM-men and the Petes tangle on Monday, Labor Day, at three o'clock in the afternoon at Riverside Park. It will be the sixth game of the C.O.B.L. playoff series, which goes four out of seven. At the moment, the Petes and Motor Citizens are tied at two wins each, but there is a game today in Oshawa, and a protest over the third tilt to be heard at a meeting tonight. However, rgardless of who wins today and how the protest is settled, there will be a playoff fixture Monday—possibly the deciding fray for the league championship. The winner goes into the O.B.A. semi-finals and the loser is eliminated in this series.

Owing to today's tussle, it is impossible to figure who will do the pitching for either squad here Monday. Turner or Biddle for Oshawa, while the locals have four slabsmen to pick from: McNally, Kitchen, Whitehill and Jakafby. Aside from Cy Whatley, both clubs should be at full strength and it promises to be another humdinger of a ball game, highly important and between two classy but bitter rivals. With so much at stake, this tilt ought to pack in a record crowd of holiday fans from the city and district, with many Motor City followers coming up for the playoff.

Floodlights Used Western Football

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3 (C.P.). — Western Canada football was off to a good start to-day after openings under floodlights that attracted almost 10,000 fans at Regina and Winnipeg last night.

More than 6,000 fans watched Winnipeg Blue Bombers open the season with a 6-0 victory over Calgary Bronks, while more than 3,000 saw Regina Roughriders get away to a flying start with an 11-0 win over Edmonton Eskimos, newcomers to the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Reg. Threlfall, who came from South Dakota State College to replace Bob Fritz as Bomber coach, presented a magnificently-drilled machine that whipped Carl Cronin's Bronks into submission here.

Roughriders broke through a stubborn Edmonton defence twice for touchdown marches that gave them their 11-0 margin. Leo Danaher, new backfielder from Kansas, ripped over for the first in the second quarter, and Harry Guest, star of Regina's Junior Dales a year ago, skirted right end for the second, midway through the fourth quarter.

Tigers Win First Game Of Playoffs From Pirates 13-5 In City League

Tigers won the opening game of the Junior City Baseball League finals with a 13-5 smirk over Pirates Thursday night. Fine hurling by Sanderson, who chalked up his eighth win of the season, marked the fray. He gave eight scattered hits and three walks while fanning 15. O'Toole on the other mound allowed 10 hits and a walk as he struck out eight, the hits being bunched with errors in the first and seventh. Mortimer, Smith, L. Shea and McDermott led the winners with two hits apiece; and Connelly got three for the losers. Smith hit a long homer to left. A jumping one-hand catch by Dorris was a defensive feature. Second game will be Tuesday at 5.30 in the Exhibition Grounds. The teams:

Pirates: McBride, lf; McKinnon, 3b; Connelly, ss; O'Toole, p; Gordon 1b; Wildman, 2b; Dorris, cf; Bennett, c; Hotrum, rf.

Manager Porter Pinch-Hits Team To Victory

Dick Porter, manager of Syracuse Chiefs, is one International League pilot who can step up to the plate during a game and show his charges how to belt 'em out.

The 36-year-old former major league outfielder, who gave up fly-chasing shortly after succeeding Sunny Jim Bottomley as manager of the Chiefs, is going great guns as a pinch-hitter for his ball club.

He really was showing them last night when he sparked his team to a double triumph over Jersey City Giants by 3-2 scores with pinch blows in both games.

Blanked for Five Innings.

Tom Baker blanked the Chiefs for five innings in the opener, but Porter, batting for old Ray Benge, came through with a single for the second of four hits in the sixth, which, along with an outfield fly, brought in all three Syracuse runs.

In the second game, with the Chiefs trailing 2-1 in the last of the ninth, Porter, batting for Reggie Grabowski, doubled and came home with the tying run on Al Glossop's single. Joe Mack's fluke triple broke up the ball game.

The double win increased the Chiefs' second place lead over the idle Rochester Red Wings to two full games. Toronto, Montreal, and Buffalo also were idle.

In the only other game on the schedule, Newark Bears came up with a crack pinch-hitter of their own in Buddy Rosar as they downed Baltimore Orioles, 13-7 with an 11-run splurge in the ninth inning.

Province's Name Chosen By Queen

VICTORIA, Sept. 3. —(C. P). — British Columbia recently celebrated the 80th anniversary of its christening. In 1858 the name was chosen by Queen Victoria, who in a letter to Sir Edwrd Bulwer Lytton, colonial secretary, suggested the west coast province of Canada be named British Columbia.

New Caledonia was the name first suggested but objections were raised in France, England's queen forwarded a note to Sir Edward which read in part:

"As there exists a Columbia in South America, and the citizens of the United States call their country also Cahambia, at least in poetry, 'British Columbia' might be, in the Queen's opinion, the best name."

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

Supported by mixed rinks from Cobourg and Port Hope, the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club staged one of the biggest Friday night tournaments to be held in many a long day—and if the weather had been a little warmer the attendance might easily have been more than 32 rinks.

A few weeks ago the Peterborough club was entertained by these two visiting clubs and last night was just the 'return' engagement.

President K. Sloane welcomed all the members and hoped that all would enjoy themselves and be glad to come back again.

The winning skips were: A. Harris, Cobourg; T. Mitchell, Cobourg; J. Watson, Cobourg; W. J. Oke, Peterborough; R. Winters, Port Hope; L. Loftus, Peterborough; G. Coleman, Peterborough; T. McArthur, Peterborough; G. Sorenson, Peterborough.

Just as we are writing this article one of our most popular baseball players is being "groomed" for a very important event. Congratulations, "Sy" and the best of luck.

Our bowlers are asked to remember the mixed tournament on the holiday, commencing at 2 p.m.

Two local ladies' rinks won prizes last night at Hastings in Irish trebles, winning first and third. The first-place rink included Mrs. H. Cameron, Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. J. Arnold, winning silver relish dishes; and the third-paces rink was made up of Mrs. L. Riley, Mrs. W. Greenslade and Miss E. Murphy, winning cream and sugar sets.

Finland Building For Olympians

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 3. — (C.P.-Reuters).—The Olympic committee has reserved two hotels with total of 800 bedrooms for the use of newspaper people during the 1940 Olympic Games.

Although no definte decision concerning a site has been agreed upon, an Olympic Village will almost certainly be built at Hertonaes, a short distance from the Olympic Stadium here.

It is also proposed to begin immediately the building of a training college for hospital nurses, which during the Games will be utilized as an hotel with 250 bedrooms and later used for its original purpose.

In view of the inevitable increase in traffic, the State Railways intend immediately placing orders for eight locomotives and 100 railway carriges.

Count Baillet-Latour, president of the Internationally Olympic Committee, has already suggested that each country competing at the 940 Games should send a liner to Finland for use as "floating hotel."

Oshawa Juniors Import Seven

OSHAWA, Sept. 3.—Oshawa's taste of Memorial Cup hockey last spring has made this city a happy hunting ground for good junior hockey players, according to the list of age-limit puck-chasers who have moved here recently. At the present time no less than seven proved juniors are expected to line up with the Generals, whose ranks were pretty well depleted by age-limit graduations this spring. Among the hockey talent expected to play here next season are Jack Drummond, Toronto Marlboros; Gerry Kinsella, Perth; Ritchie, Toronto Marlboros; McManus, Perth; Knott, Kingston; Jud McAtee, and Norm McAtee, both of Stratford. Of last year's Memorial Cup finalists, Billy Taylor, Don Daniels, Maxie Yourth and Scotty Reid are the sole survivors, although there is an abundance of talent available from the local juvenile team that won all-Ontario honors. While no coach has been announced as yet, it is expected that Doc Rowden will again be in charge.

Joe DiMaggio's Hitting Has Played A Big Part In Yankee Fourteen-Game Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (C.P.). — It's safe to walk the streets again around Mulberry Bend and New York's "Little Italy." Joe DiMaggio is rolling.

In those sections of the city's East Side, they take their baseball seriously. And when DiMag wasn't doing so well, fathers went around snarling at bambinos and mothers kept their pots empty of the ravioli.

Then the fans who turn out in the big Bronx ballyard to see New York Yankees play, began to hand Joe their specialty—the Bronx cheer—in huge quantities. And that didn't sit at all well with Joe's "pisanos." They were all set to go into mass action against such unheard of conduct, when Joe saved them the trouble.

Yanks Were in Second Place.

He wheeled out his heavy artillery. And from the time he started to roll again, dates the march of the Yanks out of second place, into a 14-game lead in the American League and a spot where they've all but clinched their third straight championship.

In the 67 games that have constituted the Yankee parade to their commanding position, Guiseppe—the people's choice in Little Italy—has been batting at a .350 clip, has scored 79 runs, driven in 86, and hit 44 extra base blows, 19 of them homers.

He clouted three-for-three yesterday, including homer No. 27 of the season, and drove in four runs in pacing the Yanks to a 6-4 win over Boston Red Sox, which made big Red Ruffing the first 20-game pitching winner of the year in the major leagues.

Average Is Now .338.

Joe's three hits boosted his batting average to .338 for the campaign, and right now he's in a spot where he may finish with the American League hitting championship if such pace-setters as Cecil Travis, Earl Averill, and Jimmy Foxx don't stop fiddling around with the lead.

The Yankee-Sox set-to was one of three games on yesterday's curtailed big league program. In the lone National League engagement, the pace-setting Pittsburgh Pirates spotted St. Louis Cardinals 11 runs in three innings, and then just missed overtaking them as the gas house gangsters pulled out an 11-10 decision. This left the Buca with a 6½-game lead over Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds, deadlocked in second place.

Simmons Stole the Show.

Al Simmons, another better than green hand at the slugging business, stole the show in Philadelphia by leading the Senators to a 4-2 victory over the Athletics. The pounding Pole, who this season has set a new all-time high for a Washington homer hitter, clouted his 20th of the campaign and chipped in a run-making double to back up young Ken Chase's seven-hit flinging.

Keene Gang Clip Wreckers In Exhibition

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 3.—An exhibition tilt last evening at the Havelock park between the Havelock 'Wreckers" Junior "B" O. A. S. A. champs of Eastern Ontario and the Keene softball club, who are in the Intermediate "C" playdowns, resulted in a win for the latter, the score being 12 to 10. Both teams knowing that no title was at stake, did not play the brand of ball of which they are capable. They provided the fans, however, with nine good innings of play.

Brunton on the Wreckers mound and McCarthy pitching for Keene went the full route, the former fanning nine, allowing twelve hits and passing four. McCarthy was credited with seven strike-outs. He was touched for eighteen safeties and allowed three walks.

Keene went into the lead in the very first inings, scoring five runs, to Havelock's two. The local boys were held scoreless then until the sixth innings, the visitors increasing their lead by four more counters. From this point on tide of battle turned and Havelock striving hard to overcome the commanding eight-run lead, drove in eight counters. Keene, however, scored two more runs in the last couple of stanzas to win the game.

"Danny" Pollock, the "Wreckers" shortstop, won batting honors with four safeties in six trips to the plate.

The teams:

Havelock—Bedford, rf; Ketchen, c; Pollock, ss; McCutcheon, 2b; Puffer, 1b; Aboud, cf; Peters, 3b; Haggerty, lf.

Keene—Robertson, cf; Wood, ss; Renwick, 1b; Whalen, rf; Richardson, lf; Brown, 3b; Fletcher, c; D. McCarthy, p; Gall, 2b.

Score by innings:

Havelock	200 003 311—10
Keene	510 121 011—12

Just One Wreck After Another

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 3. — (C. P.). — The Sydney waterfront has heard plenty of hard luck stories, but none yet to compare with the chain of accidents started in 1829 by the government cutter Mermaid. In that year the vessel was wrecked and her captain and crew survived four more shipwrecks before they reached hime.

All hands from the Mermaid were taken aboard the Swiftsure, which foundered three days later. The two crews were rescued by the Governor Ready, which ran ashore shortly afterwards, leaving three crews to be picked up by the Comet. The number of shipwrecked mariners was swelled when the Comet was wrecked.

Finally the combined crews of the four ships were saved by the Jupiter which, of course, ran ashore as she was entering the harbor.

The woman was criminally assaulted and her body thrown into a well.

Going To Races Pays Australia

SYDNEY, Sept. 3. —(C. P. Reuters).—Horse-racing in Australia is becoming increasingly popular. Totalizator takings at Randwick and Warwick Farm, two of the most important race tracks in Australia, amounted during the past year to $87,784 (342,357) on the previous year.

Taxation paid by the Australian Jockey Club during the past racing yer amounted to $95,529 (0372,563), including totalizator and admission taxes, state entertainment taxes and half of the fees paid to the club by bookmakers.

Attendnce throughout the year at the principal race tracks also have shown a marked increase, and as a result, the Jockey Club this year shows a surplus of £10,386 ($40,435) as against a loss of about the same amount in the 1936-37 season.

OSHAWA RUBS WESTCLOX SOFTBALLERS OUT OF PLAYDOWNS

Lose 9-8 Tilt At Oshawa In Third Fray

Westclox men softballers were eliminated last night in the deciding game of the first-round O.S.A. intermediate "A" playdowns in Oshawa when the Varcoes nosed out a 9-8 victory before a big crowd of fans at the stadium. Each team had previously won one game in the series, and the Oshawa outfit now meets the Kingston-Point Anne victor.

It was an exciting tussle all the way through last evening with the locals pulling up from behind in the late stages, only to see Oshawa stage a four-run splash in the eighth to cop the nod. Ellis hit a homer in the ninth to put the Petes within a run of a tie and Currie singled to place the tying run on base with two out. In the seventh, Ellis—who played the best all-around game of his career—slid into the plate but was called out. In the ensuing rumpus, Calladine tried to score but was thrown out by Covert—and the Westclox chances were shot.

Lorne Bateman outpitched Whitely, allowing eight hits and one walk as he fanned two, with Whitely giving up 13 hits and four walks while striking out three. Both left-fielders had a tough evening with bad hops on hits that came their way. Five homers were knocked during the fixture.

Leads Hitters

Currie led the losers at bat with three singles, as Ellis hit a homer and single, Bateman a triple and single, and Carlson a four-bagger. For Oshawa, Daniels topped them with a homer and single, while Whitely and Atkinson had a homer each, and Hall a three-base blow. Fine fielding was shown by Ellis, Dormer and Carlson of Westclox; and Hall, Daniels and Thompson of Varcoes. The defensive work of Hall and Ellis stood out during this deciding struggle.

Joins The Petes

Stalwart inside wing with the Toronto Balmy Beach Club in the O.R.F.U., Bill Irwin, ABOVE, will be in the line-up of the new Peterborough entry in that loop when the season opens. Bill was one of the veteran regulars of the Beach team.

Fatally Injured

VANCOUVER, Sept. 3—(CP).—Stanley Webb, 17-year-old Vancouver youth, was injured fatally while riding on the roller coaster at Happyland Park at the Canada Pacific Exhibition Grounds, last night.

Witnesses to the accident reported to police the boy was "acting foolish" and had been warned by attendants against standing up in the swiftly-moving car. Apparently he struck a protruding bar in the framework and toppled to the ground.

Maple Leafs Gain Title By 11-8 Count

The Maple Leafs won the loop title and Warne Cup by defeating Little Harem in the fourth game of the finals played last night by a 11 to 8 count to take the series 3 games to one. Over 600 fans, the largest to ever witness a south-end softball tussle, saw Little Harem minus two of their stars, go down to defeat to wind it up.

The losers got off to a good start, scoring 4 runs in the first frame on three walks, an error and two hits, but the Leafs countered two in the second, three more in the third to take the lead, and added four in the sixth. Little Harlem scored their other four markers in the seventh, but were unable to push over the necessary runs, Butcher bearing down in the ninth when they made their final bid. He allowed ten hits over the route, walked eight and struck out three, while Dennie allowed eleven hits and walked nine while striking out three. He helped his only cause at the plate, however, having a triple, and double. Hodgson was the other leading hitter for Little Harem with a triple and two singles. Holden, with three hits and Butcher with a triple and a double, led the Leafs at bat. Manager Hatton was the only player to hit for the circuit but he failed to touch second base. He made up for this error, however by his spectacular work in the outfield. Pearson of the Leafs and Conroy, Hodgson and F. Maloney of Little Harlem were the other fielding stars of the game. The Leafs become the first team in the eight years since the league was first organized to win the trophy a second time, they having won the title in 1935 and will likely be back next year in an effort to win out and gain permanent possession of the cup.

Kawartha Tennis

Men's single finals will be played this afternoon between Roy Tranter and Jack Kirkwood with the Bowness trophy at stake. In the third round, Kirkwood trimmed Rolly Hull, 6-3, 6-2; while Tranter finally finished DeGuise by scores of 6-1, 4-6 and 6-3. Results of ladies' singles to date: First round—

Ruth McKee defeated Hazel Jackson, 2-6, 6-4, 6-5; Anne Davis defeated Isobel Duthie, 6-4, 5-6, 6-1; Nan Boorman defeated Gertrude Hamilton, 6-2, 6-1; second round—Mrs. W. Jackson won from Anne Davis, 6-2, 6-4; Doris Ackford defeated Eleanor Stacey, 6-2, 6-0; Margaret Jackson won over Nan Boorman, 6-1, 6-3.

First round ladies' doubles were: Mrs. W. Jackson and Hazel Jackson defeated Kay and Phyllis Lawrence, 6-3, 6-4; Isoel Duthie and Betsy Scott won from Eleanor Stacey and Doris Ackford, 6-4, 6-2; Anne Davis and Nan Boorman defeated Irene Killoran and Norman Shaughnessy, 6-2, 6-2; Vie Davidson and Margaret Jackson beat Ruth McKee and Anna McKenzie, 6-1, 6-3. Later in the evening, Hazel Jackson and Mrs. W. Jackson defeated Isobel Duthie and Betsy Scott, 6-2, 6-3; while Vi Davidson and Margaret Jackson humbled Anne Davis and Nan Boorman by 6-2 and 6-3.

In a late men's doubles classic, played under the lights, Roy Tranter and Yvon DeGuise staged an upset to nose out John Donaldson and C. H. Crowe, 6-3, 2-6 and 7-5. DeGuise lobbed with great accuracy while Tranter volleyed well Donaldson and Crowe made a gallant fight of it but on their play the youngsters deserved the win.

We Noticed

. . . Tuckered up to real importance is a formal version of the shirt-type frock with radiating skirt and most becoming bodice. We saw it in one of the shops, and the shade was a lovely slate blue.

. . . Another lovely frock in a color the shade of red currants was of a light-as-a-feather woollen material, and had a braided leather belt.

. . . A third dress of school-girl simplicity also featured in a George street shop for fall wear, is of wool in a two-piece with gay plaid skirt and smartly bound cardigan top.

. . . "Boy Blue" is a featured novelty color in velvet evening coats, and fuchsia and cyclamen are good colors in dull velvet for evening wear.

Armstrong—Millen

Bethany Tabernacle was decorated with gladioli and ferns today for the wedding of Miss Jean Elizabeth Millen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Millen, who was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Newton Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Armstrong. Rev. W. McArthur officiated.

Wedding music was played by Miss Eileen Fisher, and during the signing of the register, Miss Betty McLeod sang "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of white lace over satin with Peter Pan collar, long sleeves pointed at the wrist, and a long, flowing skirt that formed into a slight train at the back. Her veil of white tulle was arranged in cap effect and caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Premiere Roses.

Miss Dorothy Dodds attended the bride, gowned in pink lace made on princess lines with small pink flowered hat, matching shoes and gloves. Her bouquet was of Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. John Watson was best man, and the ushers were Gordon Millen and Malcolm Latimer.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Kawartha Club for about fifty guests, where the bride's mother received in a gown of navy blue flowered chiffon, with matching accessories, and corsage of roses. The groom's mother was wearing navy blue sheer with matching accessories and rose corsage.

On their return they will live at 168 McDonnell street.

Double Wedding Takes Place Kingston Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Sept. 3.—An interesting double wedding took place Thursday morning in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, when Miss Eileen Catherine Brownell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brownell of Prescott, was married to Dr. George Hunt, Marlbank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hunt, Newburgh, and Miss Helena E. Hunt, sister of Dr. Hunt, was married to Mr. Ambrose Trudeau, Tweed. Rev. Father Whalen officiated, and the wedding music was played by Professor Nourry of Kingston. The soloist was Mr. John Killoran.

The brides were gowned alike in white silk lace over white slipper satin, made on princess lines, the long very full skirts forming fan-shaped trains. The tight bodices had long sleeves puffed at the shoulders, Queen Anne collars, fastened down the back with tiny satin buttons. They wore white tulle veils, finger-tip length, arranged with coronets of seed pearls, and each carried an arm bouquet of pale pink roses and baby's breath. The ushers were Dr. J. K. Regan, Kingston and Ambrose Hunt, Tweed.

After the wedding breakfast, Dr. and Mrs. Hunt and Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau left for a trip to Yellowstone Park, and on their return the former will live in Marlbank and Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau in Tweed.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Man has one power in particular, which is not sufficiently dwelt on. It is the power of making the world happy, or at least of so greatly diminishing the amount of unhappiness in it as to make it quite a different world from what it is at present. The power is called kindness."—F. W. Faber.

✧ ✧ ✧

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we say, "Oh, if I had a lot of money I would make so many people happy. I would do this for this one, and that for the other one. What an amount of good I could do if only I had money."

Yet, there is an immeasurable amount of good you can do with little or no money at all. You can be kind. And kindness does not only consist in giving a dime to a beggar, or giving your old clothes to someone in more need than you.

It doesn't just mean a large contribution to the church or your favorite charity, neither it is just composed of a smile or a nod to your friends and acquaintances.

But it does mean the little forgetting of another faults, of having some coming and going in you, so that kindnesses are not just coming to you, but some also is going from you.

It means to, not judging others too harshly, nor being too self-righteous, because you are just as liable to fall as the next one. And it means giving the other fellow the benefit of the doubt, of looking at things from his or her angle, then you get a better slant on what they are really up against.

Sometimes it means smiling when you feel like frowning, so that you do not make other uncomfortable. Sometimes it means not smiling when a smile at another would hurt and wound them, taking all their self assurance away.

And it is kind indeed not to smile at or belittle another man's religious beliefs, even although you are not a bit in sympathy with them. Kindness shows itself to in forgetting some slight which has been shown you, when the other did not mean it, and sometimes too when they did mean it. Kindness raises you above such trivial things.

Often we have mistaken kindness when a mother does not check her child, so that it becomes a nuisance and a pest to all who meet up with it. And many times it is mistaken kindness to let a person think they are right, letting them barge right into trouble because they trusted to your opinion. That isn't kindness, it's cowardliness.

The curious thing about being kind to others is that you also are kind to yourself, for their is nothing in the world which brings such large returns. The things you do either for good or evil will be remembered for or against you, long after you are gone.

It is not kind to push your opinions at another, for after all, you are only seeing things from your point of view, and that limits your perception considerably. Besides, if you are sure you are right time will prove you so, without hurting another's feelings in the proving.

Unexpected kindnesses are nice to get and nice to give. The word of praise and encouragement, how it speeds one on to do better things. The kindly letter with bits of home news to one who is far away will amply repay you. After all, they have weather in all parts of the world, so why just write of that?

The word of admiration for another's home, or dress, or work, it doesn't hurt you, and it help so much. It is so easy to be grouchy to find fault, to criticise, and it is just as easy and much more comfortable to learn the kindly way. Madame de Stael tells us: "To understand everything is to pardon everything," so be as kind as possible. Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Wear a Hat To Protect Your Hair

Wear a hat outdoors if you want to keep your hair.

The "hatless fad" which uncrops every spring because of the notion that lots of sunshine will stop hair from falling and make it grow faster, is, in reality a major cause of baldness.

"Going bareheaded outdoors is especially harmful in spring and summer," according to a scalp specialist. "While it is true that the hair, like vegetation, grows faster in summer, both the scalp and hair often become seared and bleached by too much sun.

"Harmful effects inevitably result from steady exposure of the bare head to the two kinds of rays, ultra-violet and infra-red in direct sunlight, although both rays are beneficial in moderate 'doses.'

"Sparingly, infra-red rays are a stimulant, especially to the scalp's blood system, while the ultra-violet expertly applied, have a tonic and chemical effect on the scalp tissues.

"An excess of ultra-violet rays, however, dries the scalp and fades the hair. The hair become lustreless and brittle, breaking off or splitting at the ends.

"Erythema (peeling) often starts on the scalp. Unless properly removed the small particles of dead skin clog the hair follicles, retard hair growth and stimulate dandruff.

"Infra-red rays are primarily a very penetrating heat ray. They also tend to fade the hair, and cause over-activity in scalp structure, particularly in the perspiration glands, which means an abnormal amount of toxin thrown into the hair growing structure and on the scalp surface.

"The idea that the sun is a "hair restorer" is neither modern nor scientifically based, as many believe. It dates back to the superstitions of ancient times, when the Egyptians decked themselves in charms and weird lotions and prayed to the sun to regrow their hair.

"The only kind of hats that are harmful are those of the heavy tight-fitting type, and not because they cover the hair, but because they restrict the scalp's blood and nervous systems on which the hair, along with hygiene, is dependent."

One Month At School

When the children troop back to school on Tuesday they are going to be one month later in resuming their studies than the children of No. 7 school in Chandos. It opened on August 1 because of the fact that it closed for a month during the winter.

Placing of signs on the highways leading to Peterborough combining identity and manufacturing and tourist features of the city will be considered by the manufacturers committee as a project for next year.

PAYMENT OF TAXES IN FOUR INSTALMENTS TO BE STUDIED

Special Committee Is Named To Study The Question; Most Cities Have 4 Payments

Ask City Engineer To Make Inquiry Into Compensations

Increasing the number of instalments for the payment of taxes, from three to four, was suggested at last night's meeting of the finance committee of the council, and on Alderman Bradburn's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover, a special committee was appointed to discuss the feasibility of the idea for practical application next year. The members of the committee are Alderman Cotton, as chairman of the finance committee, Aldermen Dutton and Bradburn, Mayor Hamilton and M. E. Shaver, city treasurer.

Alderman Bradburn did not propose himself for the subcommittee, but Alderman Dutton said it was usual for the proposer to be included. Mr. Shaver told the finance committee that at the convention of municipal financial executives recently held in Milwaukee this question of tax instalments had been considered, and in the Canadian section the largest number of municipalities represented there employed the four instalment plan. Only Peterborough and one of the Yorks required payment in three instalments.

Mr. Shaver pointed out that if the four-pay plan were to be put into effect here, the council would have to prepare its budget earlier than in March. The estimates should all be compiled by February in order that the tax rate could be struck, and the tax bills prepared and delivered in time for the suggested first payment in May. Sentiment of the committee was in favor of the change because, it was said, many citizens would find it easier to pay the smaller sums spread over four dates in May, July, September and November.

It was remarked that some persons are forced by necessity to the course, especially in regard to arrears, of making monthly and even weekly payments through the agency of the special collector in his regular calls.

Endorse Resolution

The committee endorsed a resolution by the St. Thomas council recommending to the provincial government that the surplus funds of utilities commissions be made payable to the municipal treasuries. Alderman Dutton moved approval of the proposition, and Alderman Wilson seconded it.

Mayor Hamilton said that Peterborough's Utilities Commission would retire its entire debenture debt by 1947. In the meantime the Commission has been spending comparatively large sums on improvements to the water works plant which was being maintained in exceptionally good condition. The St. Thomas idea is based on the general experience of municipalities in having to borrow for a considerable period during the year, while the Utilities departments could earn a much smaller interest on any surpluses they carried.

Alderman Wilson said the local Commission was making capital investments from time to time for plant improvements, instead of raising the money by issuing debentures.

The discussion did not take the attitude of criticising the Commission's management of the services under its control, but it agreed with the St. Thomas proposal that surpluses earned by public utilities should be transferred to the benefit of the municipality through its general treasurer.

Cost of Compensation

City Engineer Parsons was requested to submit a report on the cost to the city of accidents suffered by municipal employees with a comparable statement of cost under the terms of the Workmen's Compensation plan of protection.

Mayor Hamilton's motion, seconded by Alderman Wilson, was inspired by a communication from the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board pointing out that municipalities fall within the compass of the Act and are liable for the total cost of accidents to their employees. The Board's rate of protection is $3 per $100 of payroll. A memorandum from E. A. Outram, assistant city clerk, estimated that on the basis of this form of protection the cost to Peterborough would be not less than $2,000 a year, as compared with the actual cost of $655.80 last year.

Mayor Hamilton said that the groups of employees would include the men engaged by the Board of Works and Parks Committee, also firemen and police.

Alderman Dutton commented to the effect that although payments on account of accidents might be considerably less than the Compensation Board's charges for protection in some years, a serious accident might incur a heavy bill against the city that would more than counterbalance the saving in most favorable years. The finance committee did not attempt to ponder the question of protection against accidents in a broad manner, deciding to wait for the information sought from City Engineer Parsons.

In the meantime Alderman Bradburn will consult insurance companies as to whether they would issue policies to cover the city's employees, and especially as to whether they would accept awards which might be made by the Compensation Board in the event of accidents.

"In any case the Workmen's Compensation Board decides what we have got to pay an employee who may be injured," Mayor Hamilton said, "and it is just a question as to whether we want to go on as we have been doing or adopt the protection offered by the Board, or buy some other kind of insurance."

Canadian Legion Notes

At the zone meeting at Campbellford on Wednesday the Peterborough branch was represented by 14 of our members. Unfortunately the other branches were not so strongly in evidence, but some important business was got through. It was decided that the next zone meeting would be held at Colborne on Thursday, Sept. 29th, if that date will suit the convenience of the other branches.

At present we have the names of sufficient carpet bowlers to form three teams to enter the City carpet ball league. If any more members wish to join up they had better step lively and get their names entered. Our members and friends are notified that it has been decided to run euchre parties on the Thursday of each week during the fall and winter and the first party will take place on September 22.

The parties will be held in the main auditorium which has been redecorated and the lighting improved. There will be 25 prizes in all. Watch the Examiner for advertisements.

There was a very fine turnout of ex-service men on Sunday last at the decoration parade to St. Peter's cemetery and we think our change of meeting place has been justified.

DARKNESS HALTS GAME.

HASTINGS, Sept. 3. — Darkness halted a play-off game of softball in the local loop last night when Elgin and the Tanners were battling to decide which team was to be ousted. The Tanners were in a fair way of copping the decision when they were ahead 15 to 7. They piled up 10 runs in the third frame, including two homers. A ruling of the cub states that a game must go seven innings to be counted in the play-offs.

Dog Stumps A Judge By Wagging Tail For Two "Owners"

Madison, Wis., Sept. 3.

SUPERIOR Judge Roy Proctor permitted Fanny, an eight-year-old beagle hound, to decide which of two claimants was her owner. A. H. Nichols, one of the contenders, called her, and the dog pranced over to him, wagged her tail and generally indicated she liked Nichols very much. But Oscar Otis, the other "owner," was given his chance. Fanny bounded over to him, licked his hand and wagged her tail again. Judge Proctor sent the case to another court for civil action.

Council Favors No Change In Commissions

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD Sept. 3.—Having investigated conditions at the back of the dance hall on Rear street Reeve C. H. Calver has strongly urged the council to erect a light on this lot as soon as possible. Stating that he had made a tour of the vacant lot behind the building the reeve stated: "If you had seen some of the things I saw back there you would think it was a good idea to have a light."

"It's one of the worst things in my estimation that has ever been brought into the town," said Mayor Long whose home is near the pavilion. "Judging from the number of complaints I have received from people in the district it is time something was done," he concluded.

Regular Session

The council met for their regular meeting on Friday evening when several citizens were present. Harold Dunk, Booth St., spoke on behalf of Harold Nicholos and requested permission from council to connect to the sewer and water mains being laid to the Separate School. Nicholos would be willing to dig the ditch and fill it in if the council would supply the tile he declared. "There are only two other properties on that street that would be served and if he doesn't get it now he probably never will." Council promised to supply the tile.

Grant Anderson once more asked for a deed to the twelve feet of land at the north end of the Trent Valley Cheese and Butter Company but Councillor Dorie, chairman of the property committee, said that the town would not sell it for less than $25. Anderson claimed that two dollars a foot was to much for a "council which is trying to get people to build in town to ask." However when it was pointed out that the cost of making a survey of the lot and executing a deed would leave the town with a net profit of three dollars Anderson acquiesced.

Liability Disclaimed

A letter from the County Road Superintendent A. S. Miller disclaiming any liability for a share in the costs of repairs made to that section of the county road within the municipality was referred to Reeve Calver and Deputy Reeve Locke who said the matter was to be taken up later at the county council.

All thoughts of building a sidewalk to the Potts property were abandoned when Councillor Macmillan reported the cost would be in the neighborhood of $600.00.

Mayor Long told the council that the guns at the armouries had been placed on cement bases and repaired with new stocks for the two machine guns having been made and donated by J. O. Benor.

Asked about lights at the parking lot Councillor Donald replied that seven poles would be erected during the coming week and a total of eight lights would be installed.

Council recommended that the present plan whereby Chief of Police Hardy was on duty the day and Wm. Normington on duty at night remain in force during the month.

Plebiscite Refused.

Stating that he had been approached by a number of ratepayers who desired a plebiscite which would give citizens an opportunity to vote their approval or disapproval of the method by which the public utilities were administered at the present time he presented a motion asking that a vote be taken at the next municipal election when it would be decided whether the present Commission should be supplanted by a committee elected by the council. Mayor Long called for a seconder to the motion but none was to be had.

"Personally," said the Mayor, "I think its a backward move".

"I do think the Water and Light Commission control a large portion of the revenue of our town but it is well handled", contributed Councillor H. M. Donald.

Following the passage of a by-law authorizing the agreement for the building of a sewer and water maine to the Separate School the council adjourned.

Railroad Problem

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—Grey-haired business men with toy trains tucked under their arms tossed another urgent railroad problem into the nation's lap today—should America's model train tracks be 1¼ or 1⅝ inches wide?

"Railroaders from Missouri to Maine "high-balled" into town for the opening of the National Model Railroad Association's convention today.

Produce Market

An open air produce market set perhaps in the most beautiful surroundings ever chosen, has been doing a brisk business on the shore of Stoney Lake at McCracken's Landing. Twice each week the farmers have brought vegetables and other farm products to this spot and the tourists from many sections of the Kawarthas have assembled to purchase a supply. The market is shown above with a view Stoney Lake in the background.

"Ringing" In Vegetables Suspected By Exhibition Board Directors

Several of the directors of the Exhibition declared Friday night they had disclosed what might be called the practice of "ringing," and not in horse racing or in any of the livestock classes, but in the common run of vegetables.

Their first impression during Exhibition week was that some person or persons had combed the countryside for blue ribbon produce all the way from little onions to big pumpkins. They suspected from their own experience in growing things that no one could round up such a comprehensive assortment of prize-winning vegetables as the result of their own gardening. Even then there was some talk of not publishing the prize list for the reason that directors in charge of that class were determined to hold up some of the prize money.

Their sherlocking, they said, had elicited an admission from exhibitor that all the stuff with which he won prizes was not grown on his own land. Accordingly there is going to be some paring of that man's expected receipts.

Nothing was said last night about the financial results of this year's Exhibition. Most of the bills have been received, but the total expenditure is not yet definitely known.

SOME SUNFLOWER.

H. H. Pollock of Trent River has a fine showing of sunflowers on his premises. The tallest one reaches 13 feet 6 inches, not counting the flower. Can you beat this?

BUYS SPECIAL NOZZLE.

The fire, water and light committee with Alderman Juby presiding Friday night decided to buy a foamite jet at a cost of $165 to be used in fighting gasoline and oil fires.

TAKEN TO TORONTO

This district's sole polio victim at the present time, a 13-year-old girl residing at Burleigh Falls, was taken by ambulance yesterday to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto. Her condition is said to be serious.

BERRIES STILL PLENTIFUL

If the frost does not come early there will be a second bumper crop of wild raspberries on the farm of J. J. Armstrong in Otonabee according to a farmer who brought a sample into the office today. The berries were large, and juicy, perfect specimens and the small bush was well loaded, with fruit, some of which had not ripened.

GETS $100 INCREASE.

The Finance committee of the council last night recommended an increase of $100 in the salary of M. R. Sloan, assistant assessor, beginning September 1. Mr. Sloan's salary is now $1,400. He was appointed in July, 1937, at $1,200 with at least some verbal promise that it would be increased to $1,500 within the year.

GETTING READY FOR OPENING

Nearly all the "little red school houses" in the district are undergoing alterations or improvements in preparation for the coming opening of school. Roofs are being shingled or tarred, windows broken during the summer are being replaced, all is being made ready for the return of that veteran destroyer, the school boy.

ON VIEW AT C.N.E.

One of Fred Cripps' most noted pictures, a strange view of the Peterborough Lift Lock, is on view again, this time at the international exhibit of photography at the Canadian National Exhibition sponsored by the Toronto Salon of Photography and the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain. The picture has already won Fred much praise. He has also three character studies being shown at the C.N.E. in a commercial exhibit.

PRAISE FOR CITIZEN.

The name of Joseph S. Bell was mentioned at the meeting of the Finance committee Friday night as a citizen who performs many ogod deeds for which he has no desire for publicity. One of them was his refusal to accept rent payment for the rooms used as the Red Cross Hospital on Hunter street. Mr. Bell wrote the council in regard to a matter that seemed to be in the category of relief rent, but the committee decided there was nothing could be done about it, much as they wished to do so

A LINDSAY BEQUEST

A request from the directors of the Lindsay Exhibition for rental of Peterborough's street flusher for several days of the coming fair was briefly discussed by the Board of Works last night. Alderman Wilson's committee said they would like to assist Lindsay in any way possible, but they felt they had to draw the line at letting the street flusher go that far from home.

BRIDGE CLOSED

Wallace's Point Bridge over the Otonabee River and more commonly known as the first bridge has been closed until repairs can be made to the pier, on which the swing span rests. Evidently the action of the current has undermined the old stone pier which was surrounded with crib work, and it is possible that a complete concrete pier may have to be built.

TULLY A WINNER.

The only Holstein shown by J. T. Tully of Peterborough at the C.N.E. captured the junior grand championship on Friday. His entry, Otonabee Supreme Ormsby Lady, was the reserve grand champion at the Peterborough live stock show two weeks ago. Ormsby Lady was bred on the Tully Farm. About 230 Holstein females were in the competition.

Urge Law Repealed

WOLFVILLE, N.S., Sept. 3. — (CP).—The New Brunswick Legislature was urged yesterday at the concluding session of the Maritime United Baptist Convention to repeal an old statute of the province denying ministers of the gospel the right to sit in the Legislature if elected.

Laborers Placed Money On Winner; Refused To Work

New York, Sept. 3.

AQUEDUCT race track ran into a strange kind of labor trouble yesterday.

Several of the men who handle the infield work refused to work because they cleaned up on Gay Troubadour, the 100 to 1 shot that won the second race, Thursday.

The group bet $27 on him at 100, 40 and 20 with the wager calling for 10 to win, seven to place and 10 to show.

They won $1,480.

Five Sections In Otonabee Under 1 Board

The new school year in the county, opening on Tuesday, will witness one important change from long established custom in the decision of the ratepayers of five of Otonabee's school sections to elect a composite school board, the first group in this district to fall in with the plans of the Department of Education.

The school sections that are joining their forces are Keene, Lang, Mather's Corners, Zion and Providence. The ratepayers of those sections will nominate and elect a board of five trustees to assume the management of the five schools. The nominations and elections coincide with those for the municipal council.

Electing of a Board

One of the men who was fairly active in promoting this advanced idea remarked to the Examiner an ideal arrangement would be to have each school section represented on the Board. There is no way of ensuring that result by the system of elections, and after the period of transition it is likely that ratepayers will no longer think of the schools in only a neighborhood sense. For, the first board it may be that the five trustees will be elected by acclamation. Kene ratepayers occasionally avoid the expense of elections if the affairs of the township are going smoothly, and thye may do so again this year. With that background there would naturally be a desire to avoid thrusting a school board election into the hands of the ratepayers, and if the election was decided at the nominations then it would be easy to give each of the five sections representations on the Board.

Several Otonabee men with whom the Examiner has discussed the break from the old system say they are confident that the results will be so satisfactory that the entire township wil throw in their lot with the originators. And the five school sections that are joined up this year receive $100 each from the Department of Education.

Tester Badly Hurt Eploding Bomb

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 3.—(CP).—Dr. Lyle Streight, 35, of Windsor, remained in serious condition in hospital to-day following explosion of part of a home-made bomb under examination on the Canadian Industries Limited grounds here.

Dr. Streight was injured yesterday by a shrapnel-like piece of lead which was removed in an operation last night. The half-inch particle pierced the bond and lodged in the brain tissue. Doctors said he had a fair chance of recovery.

Streight, a research chemist, was testing a bomb said to have been found Wednesday by John Ulicne on his window sill. Ulicne is an employee of Walker Metal Products Ltd., the scene of a month-long strike.

Streight poured part of the explosive from the bomb into a testing chamber, a four-inch block of lead. With several police officers, he stood 40 feet back when he exploded the dynamite. The blast broke a window 500 feet away and cracked automobile glass 200 feet away. Streight was the only one injured.

South Monaghan Couple Are Honored By Friends Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dawson Both Descendants Of Pioneer Settlers

(By Staff Reporter.)

WALLACE POINT, Sept. 3.—A boy and a girl, principals in a romance that had its beginning more than a half century ago when the two attended the old Brick School a few miles east of Centreville in South Monaghan celebrated the golden wedding anniversary Friday when 200 of their friends entertained at a luncheon and presentation in Wallace Point Hall.

The happy and young looking couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Dawson, both descendants of the first settlers to take up land in the South Monaghan district, and Friday they received telegrams and letters of congratulations from all parts of the province, while in the evening they were felicitated by old and young friends from this district, including many notable figures in the community.

Wilford Dawson is 72 and was born in South Monaghan, two miles east of Bailieboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dawson, his father being the first white child born in Monaghan. His wife was Eliza Fair, and her mother, whose maiden name was Rutherford, were with the Dawsons when they first settled the Bailieboro district.

Went To School Together

Both attended the Brick School, and as the two farms were across from each other east of Bailieboro, the two walked to and from school together. Mrs. Dawson who is 67 today was married when she was 17. "It's ridiculous for people to say one's life is spoiled if they marry too young. I've been very happy all those years and if I had my life to live over again, I would do the same thing, get married young."

The same two original farms still remain in the name of the first owners, and succeeding generations have improved and cultivated them so that today they are among the finest in the district.

Three sons and a daughter were born of the marriage, and the one great sorrow in the family was in 1916 when Walter Dawson, then a student at Ontario Agricultural College died of the 'flu in Guelph. W. W. Dawson, Harold Dawson and Mrs. George Hanbidge, all of Otonabee Township are the surviving members of the family. There are seven grandchildren.

Purse Of Money Presented

Rev. E. W. Rowland was chairman of the program and the feature presentation was a purse of money handed to the happy bride and groom by Mrs. Charles Dawson, a daughter-in-law while Miss May Earle of Millbrook read the address. The money was placed in a black satin purse sent as a gift to Mr. and Mrs. Dawson by a niece, Mrs. Herb Tennant of Ottawa. During the evening tea was poured by Mrs. Edward Dawson and Mrs. George Eagleson of Bailieboro. Friends attended from Listowel, Goderich, Toronto, Bailieboro, Millbrook, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Muskoka, Presquile and London.

Ex-Wardens Pay Tribute

man, both ex-wardens of United Counties spoke during the evening and both paid tribute to the guests of honor, remarking on the fact that it was as unusual for a couple to spend fifty years of happy wedded life on the same farm. Reeve Roy Whittington spoke of the sterling qualities of the couple, and lauded them for their willingness to always help in any venture for the good of the community for any family who had been struck by misfortune. J. J. Duffus, M.P. spoke feelingly of his long association with this family and of their splendid record in the community.

Joseph Fair of Listowel, Charles Wright of Bowmanville and Rev. Dr. D. A. McKenzie of Centreville also spoke briefly during the evening's program. Readings were given by Miss Betty Stewart and Miss Gwendolyne Wilson, while Walter Hanbidge, a 13-year-old grandson presented a large basket of flowers to his grandparents. At the conclusion of the program W. W. Dawson extended thanks to the old friends on behalf of his parents for the many expressions of good wishes. Community singing was a part of the program with Mrs. Harold Dawson at the piano.

Wallace Point hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion, in a color scheme of silver and gold. Golden colored streamers and belsl were festooned across the ceiling and on a long table centred by a three tier wedding cake, silver candles glowed in silver holders. Marigolds, zinnias and golden glow completed the decorative scheme.

OBITUARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Sept. 3.—The death occurred on Friday evening, August 26 of the late Mrs. Albert Hall in her fifty-ninth year after a lingering illness. Mrs. Hall was a great lover of church work and had a large circle of friends.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful. She leaves to mourn her loss five sons, Wilbur, Alex, Roy, Allen and Kenneth, all of Apsley, and two daughters, Susie at home, and Eva of Keene, also two sisters, Mrs. George Gilroy of Coe Hill and Mrs. Couch of Loon Lake; and four brothers, John of Mount Ganline, Dellman McCauley of Shandos, Robert of Matheson, Andrew of Saskatchewan.

Rev. McMulken of Apsley preached the sermon and his text was, "What would Jesus have us do if he was here", a favorite passage of Mrs. Hall. The hymns were: "Jesus, Lover of My Soul", "Breathe On Me Breath of God", and "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me."

Pallbearers were Messrs Arthur Wilson, Harry Wilson, Olie McCauley, Fred Whitmore, Marshall McCauley, Melville McCauley. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the house to the Anglican Church, Lasswade, with interment in the family plot in the Lasswade cemetery.

CHAPTER 33

NOEL KNEW that doctors could not be depended on to keep an engagement right to the minute She had waited an hour for Julian, but she intended to wait a while longer. Something had delayed him, but she believed he would be here.

Now and then Noel saw Laurie cast an anxious eye at her. She managed to smile back confidently. But she wasn't feeling so confident after all, and she didn't intend to wait more than a few minutes longer.

She ordered a cup of coffee to pass the time. It was very hot, so she let it cool. But it hurt her throat when she tried to swallow it, and she finally pushed it away.

Noel couldn't help asking herself two questions: Wasn't Julian coming at all? And if not, didn't he have the decency to let her know?

At last she couldn't stand it any longer. She rose and went up to the register, laying a nickel down with her check.

"Listen, Noel," Laurie said in a low voice, "wait just a little while longer. Something's happened, but he'll be here. I'm sure of it."

Suddenly they both saw Ruth Chester walking across the street. She came into the cafe, looked around, then saw Noel at the register. At once she walked over to her.

"Doctor Paige asked me to tell you that he was very sorry but it was impossible for him to keep his engagement."

Noel looked at her coolly. "Did he give any reason?"

Ruth Chester's dark brows were slightly elevated. "No, he didn't. He merely said to tell you he was sorry."

"Thank you very much, Miss Chester," Noel said then.

"Don't mention it," Ruth Chester returned coolly as she turned and went out, crossing the street again to the Medical Arts.

"She might have added that 'the pleasure was all hers'," Laurie scoffed. "I know good and well she never gave anybody a message she enjoyed more."

Noel merely gave a little shrug. "Guess I might as well be on my way."

"Listen, Noel," Laurie said earnestly, "I'll bet you anything that Doctor Paige asked her to let you know fully an hour and a half ago. He even may have asked her to phone you before you left the house."

"He may have," Noel answered. It was entirely possible that Ruth Chester had taken a malicious delight in letting her sit here and wait for Julian so long.

"She's a darn little cat, if you're asking me," Laurie said indignantly.

"I'm afraid she is, darling," Noel said wearily.

She left the cafe and walked listlessly up Madison toward Main. The sun had gone behind a cloud, which somehow gave the world a much grayer look than it had had before. Very fitting, Noel thought.

She kept walking on, not knowing where she would go, or what she would do.

The next thing she knew, she and Chris almost walked into each other. Chris drew back, saying "Sorry". Then he saw it was Noel, and gave a low whistle. "Why Miss Doran, fancy meeting you here!" He added, "I suppose you are on your way to your luncheon date?"

"I—" Noel hesitated. A flush came into her face. "As a matter of fact," she went on, "my—ere—date didn't materialize."

"Good—then you can go with me," Chris exclaimed, taking her arm. "That is, we can have lunch together. Afterwards I've got an appointment with Carey. I say, this is luck—meeting you like this."

Noel was thinking. She and Chris would go to some nice place, and Chris would order a lovely lunch. And there'd probably be music. And while she wouldn't be able to eat very much, she'd probably lose this cold, lonely feeling which seemed to be clamped like a vice around her heart.

So Chris took her to another arty little place, very bohemian and informal, where he said a lot of writers and artistic people went. There was music. And Noel's heart began lifting a little at a time until she almost was able to augh with real spontaniety.

Chris said, "You're always happy with me, aren't you?"

Noel smiled. "I like being with you. I think you're good for my soul." But when she said that, Noel felt that she had used the wrong word. Chris was good for her ego her poor vanity, which was always suffering a little because of Julian's indifference.

"Well then, listen," Chris was saying, "I'm not going to take no for an answer. I'm willing to wait, as I told you. But we couldn't be so happy together if we didn't have a lot in common. Some day you'll love me, Noel. You'll just have to."

Noel felt tears welling up. Chris was such a dear. But she couldn't give him any false encouragement, so she said, her voice a little choky, "Chris, you deserve the best. I—couldn't give it you."

He grew a little pale, but his eyes were still warm and tender. "Anyway I'm still going to wait. And I'm not going to let you say you won't go to Hollywood. But I know I'll be frightfully jealous of all the men out there who will want to make love to you."

"I wouldn't want them to," Noel answered, and added, "most probably they wouldn't anyway."

"Listen, sweetheart," Chris said earnestly, "I know Hollywood. You'll be a sensation." He stopped, then added with a smile, "That's why I'm trying to get in my claim first."

When they finished lunch and Chris had to go, he said that Breton would have his decision ready by late afternoon. "And it's going to be you. I'm simply positive of that."

Noel looked at him earnestly. "Chris, promise me you won't be too disappointed if—if I decide I can't go."

"I can't do that," Chris said huskily.

Noel looked down at her hands. She still hadn't the faintest idea whether she would accept the Hollywood offer or not, that is, if Carey Breton decided she was the one.

"You're going," Chris said then, giving her a little emphasizing tap on the arm. Then he was gone.

Noel walked over to Front street park, not having anything else to do, and sat down on a bench, gazing out over the river and at Mud island, which several years ago had risen out of the water in a single night. It was grown up now with small reed-like trees. People all over town made jokes about Mud island. Someone was always saying he was going over there and homestead, for nobody knew to whom the island belonged. Also it might at any minute disappear into the river as suddenly as it had appeared over the water's edge.

After about an hour, Noel decided she might as well go on home. Laurie would be there soon, if she was not there by now. They might take in a movie or something.

Afterwards, Noel was very, very glad she had decided to go home. For Laurie was there with news. Julian had come to the De Luxe at 2 o'clock, and had been waiting there since. Once he came up to the register and asked Laurie if she thought Noel was going to geep her engagement. She told him that Noel had been there and waited until 11:30. Then Julian said he had had an emergency but he had asked Miss Chester to come over at once and tell Noel that he would join her at 2, if she wouldn't mind coming back.

So Ruth Chester had lied again!

In another minute Noel was dusting her face with powder, straightening her hair, all with Laurie's eager help, and on her way to the De Luxe, hoping against hope that Julian was still there.

Despite Judicial Rulings That Husbands Are Entitled To A Greater Share Of Goods, Marriage Is Only Happy When On A Straight 50-50 Basis

WHICH one should get the soft end of the matrimonial bargain is a question that has probably been debated with heat and fervor by every married couple in the world. So it is interesting to learn that the problem has at last been legally settled by two distinguished jurists, one of whom has ruled that the husband is entitled to 60 per cent of the advantages and perquisites of the holy estate, while the other contends that 90 per cent is no more than his due.

"The man who brings in the paycheck has done enough," they say, "and the wife should go more than halfway in keeping things running smoothly and making a marriage a success."

Thus perishes woman's fond dream of a fifty-fifty marriage in which the husband would be just as much married as the wife; in which fathers would be just as much fathers a mothers are mothers; in which both husbands and wives would tote the pocketbook, and in which husbands would do half the chore of being little rays of sunshine around the house.

Of course, in reality, few women have ever been optimistic enough to expect to see this vision of an equal marriage ever come true. They have known well enough that when the average man marries he dumps all the responsibility for making a go of marriage into his wife's lap, and that if any adapting and conciliating and walking on eggs around anybody's prejudices and peculiarities is done, she is the one who is going to have to do it.

It is Friend Wife who is expected to make a happy home without any assistance from husband beyond paying the bills. It is wife who is expected to be cook, nurse, baby-tender, financier and diplomat, and keep her husband in love with her and out of scrapes with other women. If that isn't carrying the heavy end of the load, I ask you?

Non one will dispute that the woman who does her own housework and rears a family works harder than her husband does and that her work is more grinding and nerve-wearing than his. No union hours for her. No five or six day week. No holidays. No sit-down strike. She is up before husband in the morning to prepare his breakfast and long after he is snoring in bed at night she is up washing his shirts or darning his socks. And every poor mother is a slave to her children.

No one is to blame for this state of affairs. It is just one of the things that are. But it doesn't go far to bolster up the argument that bringing home the bacon is far more important than frying it, and that a wife should strive nine times as hard to make her husband happy as he does to make her happy.

In spite of all that may be said to the contrary, the only marriages that really prosper are the fifty-fifty ones in which both the husband and the wife give all they have to making it a success and share equally in its rewards. For no marriage can succeed, just as no business can succeed, unless the two partners in it do teamwork.

There wouldn't be so many divorces and so many broken up homes if husbands would go fifty-fifty with their wives in trying to make happy home instead of expecting their wives to do 90 per cent of the work. No woman can make a bright and cheerful home, though she smiles like a Cheshire cat and chatters like a magpie, if in it there is a man who grouches and grumps and finds fault with everything everybody does, or who sits up in a frozen silence that indicts every member of the household for having committed the unpardonable sin.

A happy home has to have a man in it who is jolly and good-natured, who is filled with understanding and kindliness, who is interested in pies and curtains and the baby's tooth and what the neighbors are doing and who does his part toward making the party go.

And there wouldn't be so many young hoodlums who bow their parents' heads in shame and sorrow if men would go fifty-fifty in helping their wives rear their children instead of turning them over to their mothers and feeling they have done their full duty by paying the youngsters' bills. Most mothers do the best they can for their children, but they are so besotted with mother love they cannot see their faults. They are so weak and indulgent they cannot deny them anything. They know so little of the world they do not know how to guide them and the unfortunate boys and girls go to destruction because they have no father's strong hand over them to hold them steady and steer them in the right way.

You can never make marriage a success by making it an unequal bargain. It has to be a fifty-fifty proposition, fair to both sides.

Don't Offend Your Best Friends

What a scene Jill's jagged nerves just couldn't take Jack's good-natured kidding.

If you're a high-strung neurotic type like Jill, you can't expect your friends to forgive your sudden tantrums. You must learn to control them.

But once you master your emotions, you'll have a vivid, sparkling charm that steadier personalities lack. Don't forget that the world's greatest artists, most stimulating leaders have been neurotics like yourself.

If you'd avoid "nerves," don't be self-centred. Instead of asking yourself, "What does this mean to me?" — think, "How is it going to affect all of us?"

Don't bottle up your emotions. Let the lid off sometimes with a good private cry. And develop a sense of humor. Nervousness vanishes like a bubble, before laughter.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf, the shadow boy with the turned-about name, ran across the meadow, and the frog hopped right along with him.

"We'll come to the pond in a minute. It's just on the other side of that wall," Knarf said.

"Ah, very good. Very good, indeed, my friend. I'm getting good and warm. I'll be glad to take a swim in that pond."

Knarf smiled to himself as he ran along. He wasn't taking the frog to the pond at all. In fact, he was going in just the wrong direction. He was out to have some fun with that frog. He was taking him to the garden where there wasn't any pond at all.

At that moment they reached the stone wall. The garden was on the other side.

"Well, we're almost there," said Knarf. "All you have to do is jump over that wall."

"H'mm!....nothing to that at all.

"Just jump over that wall."

Nothing at all. I'll be over it in one hop."

"All right! Go ahead! Hop!"

Frog Looks Worried.

The frog doubled his legs under him and was about to hop when suddenly a worried look came over his face. "Dear me—I've just forgotten something. I'll have to go back."

"Go back? Go back where?"

"Go back across the meadow. I left my green spectacles lying on a stone. That's why I lost my way you know. I can hardly see a thing without my green spectacles. Come follow me."

Knarf did and soon they were at the end of the meadow where the land sloped down. There was a little clump of bushes growing there and right behind the bushes was the old frog pond. Knarf frowned. If the frog reached the pond, all the fun would be over.

"Wait a minute! Don't go that way! I can see your green spectacles from here! Turn around!"

Did the frog do it? Oh no. He just hopped past the bushes and—splash!—hopped right into the pond. And that was the end of Knarf's fun with the frog.

FINDS WATCH

THORBURN, N.S.—(CP).—Duncan C. MacDonald, a miner, thought his watch was lost forever when he dropped it on a coal screen while at work in the mine. He watched it disappear into the crushed and believed it had been destroyed. The surprise came when the timepiece was returned to him with only the crystal broken. It was found in a carload of screened coal.

Wife Preservers

For midsummer parties, hollyhock make lovely decorations. Pick a blossom and a bud. Take all the green off the bud, including the stem. Put stem of the blossom in one of the holes in white part or the bottom of the bud. Then you have a girl in full skirt and peaked hat.—Miss Sarah June Decker.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 4.

Sunday's horoscope is a very happy one for affairs of a social, domestic or sentimental character. It also is very encouraging for those seeking honors, favors, or preferment at the hands of superiors, employers, or those in authority. And while there may be many friendly contacts, there might be one false slip causing anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with important events, probably of a sudden and surprising nature, forecast. These may involve careful dealings with major corporations or influential persons.

A child born on this day may be particularly able, enterprising, adventurous and ambitious, and should rise to place and power, probably through its independence, craft, shrewdness, and diplomacy Its career may be eventful.

For Monday, September 5.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very lively state of affairs, with much mental stimulus and unusual activity in social, romantic or artistic pursuits. All cultural matters, particularly those related to writing, publishing, publicity and invention, and other creative work which might have as its source a mystical or psychological inspiration, should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may count on a very lively year in all intellectual or cultural pursuits. The feminine influence is to be reckoned with, possibly as a spiritual force or creative stimulus, since there are signs of mystical urges as well as inventive and original leads to genius.

A child born on this day may be endowed with a rather unusual nature, with much latent talent for creative work in uncommon lines, scientific, intellectual, or cultural.

BIRTH

FERGUSON—At Nicholls Hospital, Friday, September 2, to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ferguson, of Bethany, (nee Phyllis Gardiner), a daughter, Marylis Joan.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Hughey, of Highland Grove, Ont., wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Edna Myrtle, to Arthur E., second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jobe, Peterborough, wedding to take place the first of October.

DIED

FALLIS—In Cavan Township, on Friday, Sept. 2, 1938, Mary Ann Mitchell, beloved wife of Hiram G. Fallis, in her 64th year. Funeral service will be held at the family residence, Lot 4, Concession 6, Cavan Township, Sunday afternoon, 2.30 o'clock, Standard Time. Interment in Gardiner's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

LONSBERRY—In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Harry Lonsberry, who passed away September 4, 1937.

A smiling way and a pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
She had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.

Some day we hope to meet her,
Some day, we know not when;
To clasp her hand in the Better Land,
Never to part again.

—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heidh and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Heidh.

SAUVE—In loving memory of my dear husband, Joseph Sauve, who passed away one year ago on September 5, 1937.

I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss hm more
As I walk through life alone.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear husband,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I do the same.

—Sadly missed by his wife.

SAUVE—In loving memory of a dear father, Joseph Sauve, who passed away one year ago, on Sept. 5, 1937.

It is lonesome here without you,
There is such a vacant place;
For we never hear your footsteps
Or see your smiling face.

As we loved you, so we miss you,
In our memory you are dear;
Loved, remembered, longed for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.

—Ever remembered by his two daughters and son-in-law, Nellie, Isabell and Kerman.

Mrs. Wilson Keeps Fingers Crossed As $50,000 Miss Canada Purrs On Tests For The Gold Cup

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(CP).—Mrs. Harold Wilson kept her fingers crossed to-day — she said she's had them that way for weeks—and expressed the hope a four-leaf clover built into the $50,000 Miss Canada III would bring the International gold cup to Canada for the first time.

But the bride of less than a year and her 26-year-old husband aren't depending upon luck alone to bring them victory in the classic of power-boat racing, to be raced on the Detroit river Monday. They're depending upon a new racer that can "take" rough or calm water, is "plenty fast" on the straight-away and qualified for the race yesterday with a speed of 70 miles an hour.

Wilson said the boat did "well over 90 miles an hour" in trial spins on Lake Muskoka after its construction at a cost of $50,000 at Gravenhurst, Ont.

Running Like a Charm.

Wilson and his wife-mechanic arrived yesterday from their Ingersoll, Ont., home and lost no time in putting the new craft, owned by Harold's father, A. E. Wilson, through its paces. After setting his qualifying mark over a measured mile, Wilson pronounced Miss Canada III. ran as "smoothly as a sewing machine."

A veteran of power-boat racing at 26, H. Wilson in 1934 won the 225-cubic-inch-class championship of the world. Mrs. Wilson, formerly Lorna Read of Toronto, has ridden as his mechanic for years and was beside the driver last year when Miss Canada II was forced out because of mechanical difficulties. They were were married shortly after the race.

"We've got a real four-leaf clover built into the boat somewhere," said Mrs. Wilson. "We don't know where it is, but it was put in while the boat was under construction. Hope it brings us luck."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

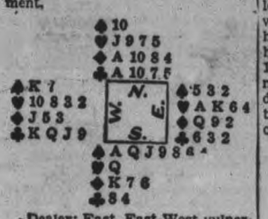
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

TAKING A PEEK

IF THE defender at your left opened a king and thereafter showed up with the jack, you know he has the queen. If he later leads small in another suit, his partner winning with the king, you can bet that ace is at your right. It is almost as clear as taking a peek at their hands. You can by such process obtain information upon which to base squeezes or end-plays of the highest refinement.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

At his contract of 4-Spades South allowed himself to miss his contract by not availing himself of the information given him by the opponents.

He won the lead of the club K with the A and lost the spade finesse to West's K. The club J was cashed by West and followed by the heart 2 to the K of East, who returned the club 6. After ruffing this trick, South cashed two spades and then tried to finesse the diamond 10, which lost to East's Q.

At the eighth trick South should have resorted to a squeeze instead of trying what was no finesse at all. If each opponent held three diamonds and West was protecting the club suit, as his lead would indicate, and East was holding the top heart, the squeeze was the winning play.

At the eighth trick declarer should have led a trump and followed with the remaining two. He would then hold three diamonds in his own hand and in dummy the heart J, diamonds A-10 and club 10. West would have three diamonds and club J and East three diamonds and the heart A. At trick 10 he had a double squeeze on the opponents.

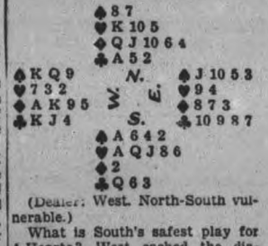
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

What is South's safest play for 4-Hearts? West cashed the diamond K and then switched to the spade K.

Travelling Fur Buyers To Be Curbed

TORONTO, Sept. 3 (CP)—Hon. H. C. Nixon, Ontario Minister of Game and Fisheries, announced Friday it is likely all travelling fur buyers' licences will be abolished north of French and Mattawa Rivers next year because of the uncovering recently of illicit fur buying rings.

Mr. Nixon said most of those involved in illicit fur buying held travelling buyers' licences. He said that should licenses be issued again, although he held it unlikely, they would be granted on a stricter basis to preclude buyers from dealing with anyone but licensed resident dealers.

Mr. Nixon said beaver furs were packed up by Indains and others and collected by airplane by the illicit dealers. He claimed such dealers were "tipped off" by short wave radio as to operation of a government plane which was attempting to track down the dealers.

"The fact that this was the third closed season for beaver brought increased prices and made the illicit trade highly remunerative," the minister said. "On one occasion our plane made a tour of suspected points and found bundles of fur already packed to be shipped out of the province.

Just A Bit Late

"Once our men found a bale of beaver skins worth $5,000. There was every evidence that not more than two days previously an airplane of the illegal operators had called at several points and picked up baled furs, probably mostly beaver. We feel we have made considerable progress in breaking the illegal traffic in fur, and have broken up one of the larger rings."

In the past, Mr. Nixon said, travelling fur buyers licences authorized the buyer to deal not only with resident dealers but with trappers, Indians, settlers and fur farmers. Difficulty was experienced only in those areas of the province where beaver was plentiful. For this reason the government was considering abolition of licences only in that district north of the French and Mattawa Rivers.

CAMPBELLFORD

Failing To Have Permit Cost $100

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.—James McMillan of Havelock, who pleaded guilty to a breech of the L.C.A. was fined $100.00 and $3.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court here Friday. McMillan was brought before the Magistrate last week when it was testified by Provincial Police that he had liquor in his possession which had not been purchased on his permit.

The case against Joseph Akey, Maple street, who appeared under the petty trespass act, was adjourned until Sept. 9 and a charge against Charles McCoy of driving with inadequate brakes was also adjourned.

For overloading his truck Wilfred Spencer, Seymour township paid $10.00 and costs while Richard Gunter of Coe Hill and Ronald Young of town each contributed $15.00 and costs for the same offence.

A charge of improper parking against Samuel Katz, Toronto, was adjourned for one week and three local citizens paid two dollars and costs for failing to stop at through streets as charged by Police Constable G. S. Hardy.

Havelock Board Ousts Trustee

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 3.—The Havelock Public School Board held their regular September meeting on Thursday evening, with Trustees Mrs. Brisbin, Mrs. Nobes, Iles, and Smith present and Chairman Dr. G. H. Gardner, presiding. The new public school principal, W. Duncan, formerly of Balderson, was also present to discuss several matters concerning the opening of school.

Caretaker Robert Buchanan reported that the cleaning was practically completed. Mr. Buchanan asked the board to consider an increase in his salary, in view of the fact that the rest of the staff had already received a raise in pay at an earlier meeting.

On motion of Trustees Smith and Iles, Mr. Buchanan's salary was increased by $100, with the understanding that he resume the responsibility of small repair jobs, which were removed from his duties when his salary was cut several years ago.

The property committee reported that the roof had been completed, but had not been inspected yet by them. The Board instructed the caretaker to get the material to varnish the seats and desks in one of the lower rooms.

Mrs. W. Nobes was appointed to interview J. Parcells, truant officer, to find out if he will be able to carry on his duties with the opening of school. In the event that Mr. Parcell's health will make it necessary for him to vacate the office, the Board decided to ask Mr. John Evans to accept the position of truant officer.

On motion of Trustee Mrs. Brisbin and Mrs. Nobes, the seat of Trustee E. Pirie was declared vacant due to non-attendance.

The board made their usual field day grant to the public school and authorized Principal Duncan to purchase some softballs for use on the playground.

Routine accounts were passed and ordered paid on motion of Trustees Iles and Mrs. Brisbin.

Loyalists Extend Trenches In Lull

HENDAYE, France, Sept. 3 (AP).—Spanish government troops took advantage of a lull in fighting on the Ebro River front in eastern Spain today to extend the fortifications system which enabled them to resist two weeks of insurgent offensive.

Despite suddenly freezing weather which changed the sweltering summer of a week ago into winter, the militiamen swapped their rifles for picks and shovels.

Dispatches reaching the border said a system of trenches was being extended to the rear to give the government forces a broad base as a shock absorber for an expected renewal of the insurgent attack.

Fighting was about at a standstill throughout Spain. A government comunique said tersely, "no activity on any front." An insurgent communique merely listed a few isolated government attacks which it said were all repulsed.

War Hints Keep Stock Prices On Down Trend

TORONTO, Sept. 3 (CP).—With an eye on London where securities have been weak of late, reportedly because of uneasiness over the Czechoslovak-German negotiations, Canadian stock markets took a downward course in the latest period. All indices on the Toronto and Montreal markets show declines in the week.

Monday (Labor Day) will be a holiday on Canadian exchanges and the extended week-end shut-down may have been a factor in tapering off the buying demand, though when the war talk was soft-pedalled on Friday, prices and volume picked up. Trade bulked in the mines with the base metals showing an index loss of 3.70 for the period and the golds 2.65. Industrial shares led with a loss of 3.91 and the junior oils dropped 1.07.

The London gold price advanced strong again but a compensating decline in sterling in terms of U.S. dollars left the price for Canadian gold practically unchanged and the shares of producing companies received little help from the situation. Mining companies have been getting cheques regularly from Ottawa for their gold but there have been no bar shipments out of the country for several months. It is reported, though not officially, that a substantial gold reserve is being built up in Canada for British or foreign account. The Bank of Canada's gold holdings, now around $180,000,000, have shown little change over the last year.

Starts Off With Decline.

The week started with a sharp decline in all groups and through the balance of the period prices churned about with a comparatively narrow range and gradually reduced the loss. The week-end finds Lake Shore and McIntyre down $1.25 and Bralorne, Little Long Lac, Macassa, Macleod-Cockshutt and O'Brien down 25 to 50 cents.

Base Metal leaders posted wider loses than the big golds. Noranda dropped about $5 Monday in light selling and in the succeeding sessions the loss was cut to $2.75. Hudson Bay weakened $1.75 net. International Nickel $1.25 and Consolidated Mining and Smelting is $3 down for the period. The silver share market was dull.

Steels were about the weakest of the industrial list and there were no group gains. Declines in the interlisted leaders reflected the influence of New York. Walkers Common dropped $1.25, Bell Telephone $2.25, Ford A 65 cents and Distillers-Seagrams about 75 cents. Losses in the Steels included $1.50 for Steel of Canada and National Steel Car, $1.75 for Canadian Car and Foundry and $1.25 for Dominion Steel "B."

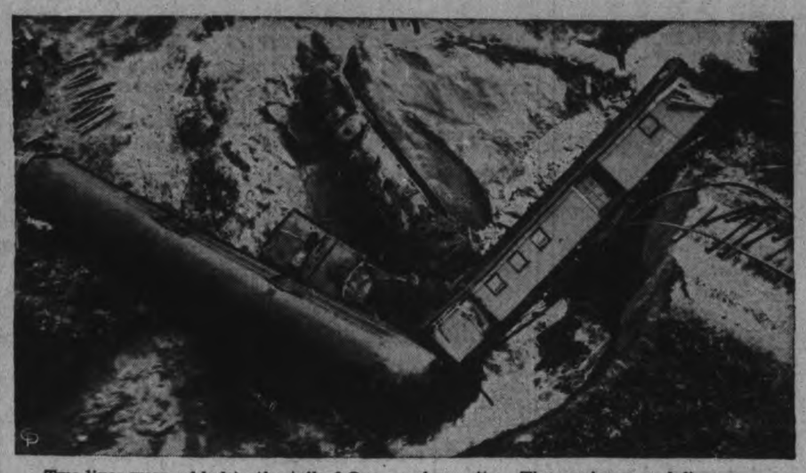
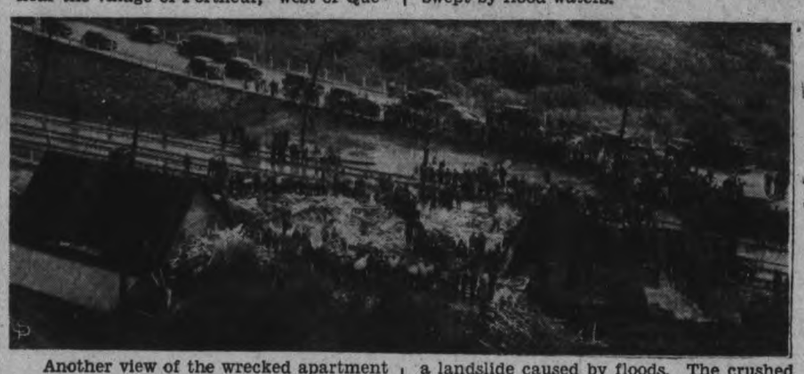
Where Quebec Floods Took Four Lives In Apartm ent House Collapse. Train Crash Kills Two



Two lives were added to the toll of Quebec flood tragedies, when this passenger train crashed into an undermined culvert near the village of Portneuf, west of Quebec city. The engineer and fireman were the victims. Passengers were severely shaken up and many injured. Wreckage is shown piled into the river bed, already swept by flood waters.



Another view of the wrecked apartment house at Ste. Gregoire de Montmorency, Que., where four persons lost their lives in a landslide caused by floods. The crushed and battered dwelling is at the extreme right.

Rescuers search through wreckage of the apartment house at Ste. Gregoire de Montmorency, a few miles east of Quebec City, after a landslide caused by terrific floods had demolished the building. Four persons of the 52 residents died in the collapse. Boulders, earth and trees, loosened by torrential rains, crashed down the 200 foot cliffs behind the structure sweeping it from its foundations. Floods in other sections of eastern Quebec claimed eight other lives.

Wheat Futures Slide Into Five-Year Lows

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3.—(CP)—Winnipeg wheat futures, decreasing their values since June 20, closed 3¾-4¾ cents lower for the week ending yesterday with the October future at 60⅝, November 60½, December 59¾ and May 63¼-¾ cents.

It was the sixth consecutive week of continual declines and the easiness of the past six trading sessions was largely due to tendency of importers to lay back and wait to see how cheap United States wheat would become under the U.S. Government subsidy program before making commitments.

Winnipeg futures fell to the depression levels, breaking into new five year lows while Liverpool's values equalled those of 1935. Chicago prices were near five year bottom levels.

Canadian export sales for the week were estimated at less than 2,000,000 bushels, a small amount in comparison to Western Canada's daily marketings which averaged nearly 5,000,000 bushels daily.

The United States already has disposed of 1,500,000 bushels of wheat order the subsidy program while Poland and Russia are also subsidizing exports.

Political repercussions in Europe also disturbed world wheat markets. The purchase of 14,000,000 bushels of Rumanian wheat by Great Britain was characterized as a move to free Rumania from German economic pressure.

A bright spot as the week closed was an indication of a good inquiry for Canadian wheat as soon as export markets became more settled.

Northumberland Girls Win First At Belleville Fall Fair

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 3.—Radiating pride of achievement from healthy, sun-tanned faces, and happy in the thought of work well done, boy and girl junior farmers of Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland Counties gathered in Holloway street United church, guests of the Belleville Fair Board. It was the annual social evening devoted to the younger residents which followed a strenuous day of competitive judging at the Belleville Fair.

Welcome on behalf of fellow officials and directors of the Fair Board was extended by D. A. Thrasher, president of the Board.

Challenge To Youth

In a challenging address to rural youth, Mr. J. A. Carroll, superintendent of the Horticultural and Agricultural Society branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and guest speaker of the evening, charged his hearers with the definition of the simple word "Drudgery."

"Drudgery," he declared, 'is the state of mind never experienced by workers, who are trying to do their best."

"Think that over," invited Mr. Carroll.

"Think over the fact also, that clock watchers never have happy faces. Contrast the attitude of some of our present day young folk, who find life a stale round of weary chores with the ambition of some of our leading men of the day. Edison and others so engrossed with the work of creating that they were too busy to sleep, almost to eat. They were keen on their work. They counted every moment previous. every moment previous.

When Russo-Jap Warfare Raged

It's old stuff now, but these are the first pictures to arrive in Canada, showing actual scenes from the bloody conflict which raged for a week between Japan and Russia on the disputed border of Siberia and Manchoukuo. Bombs and artillery shells from Russian airplanes and batteries are pictured, TOP, bursting along ridges in the vicinity of Changkufeng Hill. In the other picture Japanese officers study damage inflicted on a nearby Korean village by bombs from a Russian airplane.

CNE Visitors Hit New 4-Year High

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—(CP)—Attendance figures for the Canadian National Exhibition continue to soar with all records for four years now broken, officials announced today. General Manager Elwood Hughes said even the most optimstic estimates for the year were being surpassed.

At the half-way mark of the 14-day show 820,000 persons had been admitted against 605,000 in last year's "Paralysis Fair," 785,000 in 1936 and 810,000 in 1935. Yesterday's Press Day total was 86,000, nearly 17,000 above the four-year average.

Special attention of the C.N.E. today is directed to manufactures, athletics and flowers. Led by Glen Cunningham, world's champion miler, the greatest aggregation of United States track stars ever to visit Toronto will compete in the Exhibition track meet this afternoon.

Real Sprinters On Hand

With Cuningham will come Gene Venzke, New York miler, Joe McCluskey, U.S. steeplechase champion, Howie Borck of New York, John Marion, Jim Herbert, the sprinters Ben Johnson and Donald Lash, and others. They will meet the cream of Canada's athletic crop. Many events also will be limited to Ontario and Canadian trackmen.

With dairy cattle competitions cleaned up yesterday the cattle judges turn today to fat stock. Yorkshire swine and three classes of sheep also will have their turn in the Coliseum's judging rings. The poultry and pet stock show which opened Friday continues.

W. D. Black president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is the speaker at the directors' luncheon.

Dozens of newspapermen, C.N.E. guests Friday, heard a former colleague, W. F. Predergast, now an executive of the Imperial Oil Company, warn against the danger of false or unfair reports in the press. Abuse of the privilege of the press would invite forcible restraint, he believed.

LAKEFIELD

Mrs. Thomas Cooper and her little granddaughter, Lenore McIlvena of Warsaw, returned home on Thursday afternoon after spending several days in the village the guest of Mrs. Robert Bullock.

Word was received here on Thursday, Sept. 2 of the death in Vancouver, B.C., of the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison, Mrs. James Gordon, (nee Stella Harrison) of Vancouver. Mrs. Gordon is survived by her husband, and five children. Mrs. G. Harrison, who left Lakefield on Tuesday, will attend the funeral of her daughter in Vancouver, B.C., this week. Deep sympathy is extended to the family in their bereavement.

Misses Lelia and Verna Burgess of Lakefield, returned on Friday, Sept. 2 from Haliburton, where they spent a week's holiday at Locarno-on-the-Lake.

Messrs. E. H. Brohman, Donald Smith, Kenneth Morris and George Tanner returned from a motor trip through the eastern provinces to Moncton, N. B. They returned through Maine and Vermont, after spending some time in Boston, Mass.

Miss Bessie Dunn spent the week-end in Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Millage and Miss Isobel Millage of Lakefield, spent the past week-end in Toronto.

Misses Doris and Helen Burgess of Lakefield motored to Haliburton on Thursday, returning on Friday.

Miss Bernice Smith of Millbrook, is visiting in the village, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Porter.

OPPOSITION TO NEW TOWN

Fleet Keeps Wary Eye On Channel

Changes In Program Order Both Approaches Guarded

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP).—The Admiralty announced today a last-minute change in the fall cruise program of the home fleet which will insure that both the eastern and western approaches to the English Chanel will be closely guarded during the next fortnight.

Admiral Sir Charles M. Forbes, commander-in-chief, decided to send the battleship Royal Oak and the fourth destroyer flotilla to Portland, the Naval station almost directly opposite Cherbourg, France.

The Admiralty said the change, for which Admiral Forbes was solely responsible, was made to give the Royal Oak a "shakedown" period folowing " a number of changes in personnel, includin a new captain," C. Cantie.

The 10-week fall cruise started to-day. It was described by the Admiralty as "absolutely normal," and will take many craft off the Scottish coast for fleet exercises in gunnery and torpedo firing in the North Sea. (The German fleet began "routine" manoeuvres in another part of the North Sea Aug. 26).

Just Preparing

The Royal Oak will not make an actual shakedown cruise but will remain in Portland to enable the new personnel to get accustomed to the ship before proceeding to Invergordon on Cromarty Firth, where the grand fleet spent the greater part of the Great War period.

Gas Station Yields 2-Gun Bandit $150

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP).—A two-gun bandit was sought by police today as they attempted to unearth clues in the armed robbery of a Joy gasoline station here last night. The gunman cowed two station attendants and escaped with $150 after firing a warning shot that narrowly missed one of the station employees.

The employees, Ernest Renaud, 36, and Edward Richardson, 20, were working on an oil drum when the gunman confronted them with two guns in ordering Renaud to "hand it over." Renaud handed a roll of bills from his pocket.

"Have you got any more?" the holdup man asked. "Renaud then gave him a money changer, containing several dollars in silver.

The men were then ordered into a washroom and ordered to sit down. The gunman then fired a warning shot which passed between their legs and ricocheted off the concrete floor, where it was later found.

BULLETIN

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP).—Norman Curtain, 30, was killed at the Levack Mine of the International Nickel Company today when a chain broke as a construction gang was moving a crusher mantle into a new rock house at the Levack Mine. The mantle fell, fracturing Curtain's skull.

Curtain, a laborer and mechanic, was employed by Fraser, Brace Limited, which company handles construction work for International Nickel. A widow and three children survive him at (319 Simcoe Street) Peterborough, Ont.

Santiago Nazi Uprising Crushed, 87 Die

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Chilean government today asked a free hand for six months because of Monday's rebellion by a small group of National Socialists, who were crushed after 3½ hours of fighting in which possibly 87 persons were killed.

The government blamed and arrested General Carlos Ibanez, a candidate for the presidency, after the rebels were driven from a building of the National University and the 10-storey Workers' Insurance building in which they had established defences.

Ibanez' candidacy in elections scheduled for Oct. 25 is said to be backed by the Nazis (who claim 20,000 members, are without formal affiliation with German Nazis, but have adopted much of the German National Socialist program.)

A stateo f siege, a form of martial law, was declared but a military announcement said the situation was well in hand and it was not necessary to enforce the restrictions fully.

Want Special Powers

The government of President Artuor Alessandri (of the Liberal party, which in Chile leans to the right) petitioned the senate, however, for the extraordinary powers for six months.

Authorities closed the newspapers Trabajo, a Nazi organ, and La Opinion, a left extremist publication.

There was no official list of casualties, but the number of 87 dead was reported unofficially, most of them members of the uprising. At least 80 were arrested. Nineteen police were injured, and at least one was killed.

The revolt began suddenly yesterday afternoon, when in small groups the revolutionists took control of the university, facing the presidential palace ,and the insurance building, at the rear of the palace.

Boy And Girl Drown In Sailboat

Sighted From Plane In Death Embrace Off Clarkson Beach

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (CP).—An aerial search party today located the bodies of Alex Wheelans, 16, and Gertrude Ferguson, 19, in their water-filled dinghy two miles off Clarkson in Lake Ontario. The couple had been missing since Sunday. Clarkson is about 17 miles west of Toronto.

The two were lying in the bottom of the boat, their arms clasped about each other. The mast and sail floated in the water a few yards away from the boat. The boy and girl departed Sunday on a scheduled sail from suburban Long Branch to Hamilton.

Deck Under Water.

Piloted by Clarke Ruse, the seaplane spotted the dighy after a two-hour aerial search of the lake. The boat, almost invisible from the air, was floating but its deck was under water. The rough lake prevented a landing but the spot where the boat was found was marked.

Ruse searched the opposite shore of the lake in vain and turned back in the direction of Oakville. Flying at a height of 1,000 feet, he saw the blue deck of the boat directly beneath him.

The boat was about 1¼ miles from shore. From a height of 50 feet, newspapermen on the plane said they established definitely the young people were dead.

Earlier, William Wheelans of Toronto, the boy's father, gave the two up for dead, saying, "I don't think there's much hope now!" He was weary from searching and loss of sleep.

Lake Waters Rough

A high north-west wind over the week-end whipped the lake. The couple had expected to reach Hamilton by dark Sunday night and spend the night with Wheelan's aunt, Mrs. J. Strewart. She was not advised of the visit and no alarm was felt until last night when Miss Ferguson failed to return home.

The girl's parents said both were excellent swimmers. A week ago Wheelans won a cup at Long Branch for general proficiency in swimming and sailing.

Wheelans was a third-year student in Central Technical school here and had been expected to register to-day for the fall term.

Mrs. Ferguson said her daughter "wasn't keen on the trip." She added the girl had been ill, suffering from a recent back sprain.

Toronto Unpaid Taxes Million Under 1937

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (C.P.).—Finance Commissioner George Wilson reported in a statement to-day that Toronto's unpaid 1938 taxes were $1,064,000 below the 1937 level. Mayor Ralph Day hailed the statement as an "encouraging reflection of business conditions."

Mr. Wilson said 68.81 per cent. of the 1938 levy had been paid, compared with 67.74 per cent. collection at the same time last year. The statement was based on returns of the first two of the three instalments.

Collections amounted to $24,166,846 against $23,739,986 in 1937.

Nazis Rush Navy Feverishly To Match Her Great Army

BERLIN, Sept 6 (AP)—Germany's naval might is growing at a pace to match her feverish rearmament on land and in the air.

More than 80 ships of war are rising in shipyards, are nearing completion or are on draftsmen's boards in the race to develop the Nazi war fleet to full treaty strength.

All the sea strength Germany could muster in 1933, when Adolf Hitler came to power, was 12 torpedo boats of 800 tons, five 6,000-ton cruisers and the 10,000-ton "pocket" battleship Deutschland, armed with 11-inch guns.

When Hitler wanted to impress Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, who made a state visit to Germany last month, he paraded virtually all of Germany's fleet, 117 vessels — battleships, cruisers, submarines, torpedo boats, destroyers and smaller craft.

Under the 1935 naval agreement with Great Britain, Hitler pledged Germany to adhere to a ratio of 35 to 100. Naval experts say that when Germany has built up to 35 per cent of Britain's tonnage she will have a modern fleet capable of defending her vital sea lanes.

Germany began rearming openly in 1935. Since then, under Admiral-General Erich Raeder, the fleet has developed rapidly.

Germany's largest battleships so far are two of 26,000 tons each, the Gneisenau, already in service, and the Scharnhorst, soon to be ready. Each mounts nine 11-inch guns.

Double Chutes Fail Jumper Drops 2,000 Feet To Death

Easton, Pa., Sept. 6.

HARRY DALRYMPLE, 30, of Phillipsburg, N. J., parachute jumper, plummeted 2,000 feet to his death yesterday in view of more than 1,000 persons on the Penn-Jersey Airport. His two parachutes failed to open in an exhibition.

Swastika-Draped German-Canadian Flag Nazi-Run Society Chiefs Charge

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 6. — (CP). — Kitchener's fifth annual "reunion day" of Ontario German-Canadians was held here during the weekend in a setting of Swastika emblems. About 500 attended the final meeting in the auditorium Sunday night.

Mayor George W. Gordon, who sent his regrets at being unable to attend, was criticized by speakers on his absence.

Today the German-Canadian People's Society issued a statement charging the reunion was dominated "entirely by Nazis." It asserted the Nazis "sought to utilize reunion day for spreading their seditious propaganda."

The statement added:

"The background and origin of reunion day is indissolubly bound up with the ideals of democracy and with the best traditions of German culture. Canadian-Germans have found previous reunion days a convenient and gay get-together for meeting old acquaintances and speaking in the language of our forefathers."

8 Escape Death

Eight persons in this open roadster miraculously escaped death on Sunday afternoon when the car struck a soft shoulder of the road and turned upside down in the ditch. Five young girls, hitchhikers, riding in the back, were thrown clear, and missed the trees shown in the picture. Dorothy Dolan of Peterborough received a broken ankle. Jack Gardner, Jim Parks and Albert Todd, who were in the front seat, suffered only a few scratches.

U. S. Quintuples Anti-Aircraft Defences With $10,000,000 In Contracts

Washington, Sept. 6.

THE WAR Department is quintupling United States anti-aircraft and Government ordinance Factories.

Officials said today contracts awarded in the last few days for various parts will, when the parts are assembled, give the army more than 330 new anti-aircraft guns and gun carriages. The present strength is under 70 guns.

The new equipment will be sufficient for a total of 32 regiments, including those already equipped.

The guns, which sent 3-inch shells as high as 30,000 feet, can be hauled from point to point at speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

France Fills Famed Maginot Line With Hordes Of Reserves

In the Maginot Zone, North Eastern France, Sept. 6.—(AP).—Tens of thousands of troops and thousands of tons of military equipment arrived in Northwestern France and vanished into the Maginot line to-day.

All corps commanders on duty at general headquarters in Paris were instructed to return to their commands. Leaves were cancelled throughout the army and air force.

The order summoning an undisclosed number of her 8,000,000 trained reserves to the colors was announced as hundreds of thousands of Nazis gathered in Nuremberg, Germany, where the French feared Chancellor iHtler might issue an ultimatum to Czechoslovakia, a French ally, seeking to force maximum concessions for autonomy seeking Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

France's border population talked of little else besides the calling to the colors of an estimated 300,000 reservists to "watch for trouble from over there."

"Over there," to Frenchmen in the Maginot zone, means the German side of the frontier where the new Siegried line was manned by Germany's crack troops.

Few Troops in Sight.

In the main streets of Metz, Verdun and other Maginot zone centres there were fewer troops visible than usual. The answer was that all leaves were cancelled and that the troops remained in the underground fortifications and garrisons of the Maginot zone.

Troop trains brought thousands of these centres, but most of them dropped off at tiny hamlets which are only dots on tourist maps but of vital importance on military maps.

"He"—that means Adolf Hitler in the frontier zone—"would think a long time if he knew what waits under these fields," said an officer near the border.

The highways and byways of the Maginto area showed travellers who knew what to look for that France's north-eastern frontier was on a war footing.

Just One Warning

Whenever civilian motorists stop on the roads in certain regions armed soldiers suddenly appear from the middle of apparently deserted pastures and tersely order the travellers on.

"We only warn you once," the sentries say.

Since last Friday activity on the Maginot roads has been particularly heavy. Whole truck trains of supplies come and go. All along the roads little groups of soldiers returning from leave are marching back to their posts.

"Reserves do not take the highways," an officer said. "They get off their trains and step right into the line."

Sentries seen along the roads were a cross-section of the forces which France now has in the Maginot zone. There were bearded Algerians in dusty grey tunics; regular fortress troops in small blue uniforms and blue berets, all with gas masks in tin boxes at their hips; husky dark Moroccan troops with khaki turbans; conscript soldiers in horizon blue uniforms; Central African troops with red sashes around their waists; and tall, broadlshouldered Senegalese sharpshooters.

Gas To Gas a Skunk Finds Victim In The Stewardess

Galt, Ont., Sept. 6.

HOSPITAL authorities reported improvement today in the condition of Mrs. J. Murphy, stewardess at the Waterloo Golf and Country Club, who suffered carbon-monoxide poisoning when fumes from an automobile exhaust pipe, used to "gas" a skunk from under the clubhouse, seeped into the kitchen.

Mrs. Murphy will be kept in hospital a few days. She was rushed there after becoming suddenly ill and a pulmotor was used to revive her.

Labor Weekend Toll 396 In U.S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (A.P.). — The labor week-end death-toll in the United States this year climbed to 396, a survey showed to-day, as compared with 391 for the 1937 week-end.

Jammed highways and bathing resorts accounted for most of the tragedies, but the automobile was by far the greatest single death-dealer. At least 278 persons were killed in motor car mishaps; 44 were drowned.

The figures also included 18 suicides, 11 homicides, and 45 miscellaneous fatalities.

California and Ohio, with 33 deaths each, led the grim parade. Ohio alone had 30 auto fatalities. There were 32 violent deaths in New York State, 29 in Michigan, and 23 in Illinois.

Fenelon Motorists Held After Girls Hit

PORT CREDIT, Ont., Sept. 6—(CP).—Leonard Long, Toronto, was arrested late Sunday night by traffic officer William F. Forman on a charge of failing to return to the scene of an accident.

Officer Herman said a car driven by Long struck two girl cyclists, Dorothy Travener, 18, of Alderwood. Gladys watson, 18, of Alderwood. Miss Tavener suffered a fractured leg and cuts and bruises about the face and arms. Her companion escaped with a sprained right foot and abraisions over the left eye.

Long and Richard Newman of Fenelon Falls, who was the owner of the car were held pending further investigation as were three passengers: James Newman, Ronald Gillis and M. Armstrong, all of Fenelon Falls.

Safe Crackers Fail To Find Lakefield Cash

Amateur safe crackers are blamed by police for an attempt to rob the safe in the C.N.R. station at the village of Lakefield early Sunday morning, which failed and the thieves left taking only a tin box which was empty. The safe contained a considerable sum of money and a number of express money orders, and under a sheet of paper on the desk in the office was other money.

Broke Office Window.

Entrance was gained to the office by smashing a small window in the bay off the station platform, and this permitted the window lock to be released. The bandit cut his hand on the window as the combination of the safe was liberally smeared with blood and there were a few small drops of blood on the floor. A piece of iron pipe was left lying on the floor of the office, and baggage tags which had been in the tin box were strewn around the office.

Tommy Sullivan who lives near the station discovered the broken window and notified Chief Constable Hendren who in turn phoned W. W. Yale the station agent who was at his cottage near Young's Point.

Safe Stole Few Years Ago

A few years ago robbers broke into the station and carried off the safe, smashing it open and taking the contents which amounted to several hundred dollars in cash and negotiable money orders. The safe was found on a side road near Bensfort Bridge. Last Spring robbers followed the same procedure and got $1200 from the safe at the Lakefield Creamery, and abandoned the steel safe near Young's Point.

C.N.R. Constable Ray Morden of Lindsay and Chief Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield are working together on the case.

Spain's Heir Bleeds To Death As Girl Piles Car Into Pole

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6—(AP)—The Count of Covadonga, 31, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, bled to death today from cuts about the head suffered in an automobile accident.

The injuries in themselves were not severe but the Count's condition was complicated by haemophilia, the hereditary disease of the Battenberg's which causes excessive bleeding and prevents the blood from coagulating normally.

The former heir to the throne of Spain died in a hospital about nine hours after the accident, in which his companion and driver of the car was a night club cigarette girl, Miss Mildred Gaydon, 25. They had been friendly for sime time.

Burglar Uses Pole Hooks Watch Off Bedroom Stand

Edmonton, Sept. 6.

THE FISH-POLE burglar, latest, type night prowler, made his appearance here recently. E. McLaughlin believes the "fisherman" flicked the watch off a bureau with a hook on the end of a long pole.

Bacteria Gobble Up Carbon Monoxide To Spoil Old Time Fire Test

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 6 (AP). — Two United States Bureau of Mines explosives experts declared today that ordinary bacteria have been fooling fire-fighters and possibly causing a great many deaths over a period of years.

The commonest test used in determining whether an underground fire is completely out is the measurement of the amount of carbon monoxide in the air, Dr. G. W. Jones and Dr. G. S. Scott of Pittsburgh, Pa., told the American Chemical Society. Carbon monoxide always is generated by a burning fire.

However, recent tests showed even though the monoxide gas was absent the fire still was burning steadily, it finally was determined that bacteria on rotting timbers and on the coal itself were eating up the gas practically as fast as it came from the fire.

The presence or absence of carbon monoxide cannot be relied upon as the sole criterion of whether fires in mines are out, they declared.

Hitler Ignores Czech Case In His Proclamation, Not Ready To Fight, He Hints

Boasts Germany Can Feed Self For Years, Never Be Starved In Blockade Again, Wants Higher Production Before War

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 6 (CP).—Chancellor Hitler ignored Czechoslovakia in his proclamation today to the 10th annual Nazi congress, disappointing observers who had hoped for an inkling of Germany's intentions in Central Europe.

Almost his whole 5,000-word proclamation dealt with the inner condition of Germany, particularly economically, which the Fuehrer assured his followers was so healthy that the nation "will be without worries for food for years to come."

Hitler warned that Germany could no longer be brought to heel by an economic blockade such as that which reduced the nation to virtual starvation in the closing months of the Great War.

He hinted Germany was not yet economically ready for war and would not be until its production had been raised to higher levels.

"In a general manner, German economy is constructed in such a way that it can at any moment subsist independent of other countries. Henceforth the idea of blockading Germany may be buried as an absolutely ineffective arm," he said.

No Foreign Peters.

"With the energy which characterizes it the National Socialist state draws upon the experiences of the Great War. As before, we will maintain the principle that it is better to restrain ourselves if necessary in this or that domain than to be dependent on foreigners.

"Above all, the supreme decision which guides our economic action will be—the security of the nation before everything else. Its economic existence, on its own vital basis and in its own vital space, must therefore be fully and materially assured.

"Not until then, will the German army be ready at all times to take the liberty and interests of the Reich under its strong protection. Then Germany will be extremely valuable for everyone as a friend and ally.

"If I pronounce these words, I do it with the knowledge that politically and economically the era of Germany's isolation is past."

Wants No Alliances.

Through the voice of District Leader Adolf Wagner, who read the Fuehrer's proclamation in Congress Hall, Hitler repudiated any intention of forming a pact with foreign Powers.

"I have never had nor have this intention," the Chancellor declared.

The statement was cheered thunderously.

Instead, he declared he was offering the people a "greater Germany"—referring to the absorption last March 13 of Austria—and the nation of 6,500,000 Germans (of Aus-

Czechs Anxious On Reaction To 'Last Offer'

PRAHA, Sept. 6 (A.P.). — The Czech Government anxiously awaited reaction to-day from two quarters to its sweeping concessions to the German population of the Republic.

The first question was: "Would this 'last and ultimate offer,' formulated at a 4½-hour Cabinet session last night, satisfy the Sudeten German Party which in long negotiations has been insisting on a decree of autonomy amounting almost to independence?"

The second question: "How would the Czechs, who have been aroused to nationalistic fervor by the patriotic press, receive the news of a Government retreat under German pressure?"

In quarters close to the Government it was contended that Czechoslovakia had sacrificed much at the insistence of her friends and allies.

It was known that both Great Britain and France, earnestly striving to avoid war, had urged Praha to make all possible concessions.

Outcome Uncertain.

But while the Sudeten Germans were elated and the Czechs were worried, neither had a substantial basis for judging how the situation was altered by the Cabinet meeting last night.

The Government had not revealed details of its plans, and the Sudeten German Party had not indicated whether it would take less than its original demands, which included primarily the recognition of the Sudetens' right to profess the Nazi ideology.

After the session in the Hradchany Palace, residence of President Eduard Benes, the ministers issued this communique:

"In a meeting to-night (Monday) attended by the President of the Republic, the Government united upon definite suggestions which in the next day or two will be presented to representatives of the Sudeten Party."

A Foreign Office spokesman said the suggestions would be the Governments final concessions.

The Cabinet reviewed the international situation and heard reports of military developments in France, but there was no indication whether military measures were discussed.

Government circles hinted many of the Sudetens' eight points were met half-way, but it was believed demands that Czechoslovakia abandon alliances with France and Russia were definitely refused.

Czechs Make Another New Offer

Concede 3 Sudeten Main Requests; Likely Be Accepted

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(CP).—The Praha correspondent of Reuters News Agency reported from a "usually well-informed source" to-day an outline of the Czech Government's new offer to its Sudeten German minority.

The agency said the offer approved by the Cabinet Monday took the form of several "principles." These it stated, are considered to satisfy the demand of the Sudeten negotiators for preliminary acceptance of their own principles prior to continuance of the talks about rights to autonomy.

The principles were listed as:

1. Recognition by Praha of territorial autonomy of the Sudeten German region of Czechoslovakia.

2. Recognition of full equality of Sudeten Germans in the Czechoslovak state.

3. Recognition of the equality of the German language as the official language in the Sudeten area.

These principles were being communicated to Ernst Kundt, Sudeten leader by Premier Milan Hodza to-day.

Acceptance by the Sudetens was regarded as practically certain, Reuter's said, because the three principles mentioned are essential features of Sudeten Chief Konrad Heline's demands outlined in a speech some months ago.

Means Complete Liberty.

The Reuter's dispatch continued: "Territorial autonomy will give the Sudetens complete liberty they have demanded to organize their affairs after their own wish.

"Point two, the quality of status, has been one of the chief demands of the Henleinists. It will give the Sudetens special recognition as Germans, no matter in what part of the country they live.

"Equality of language has for long been an ardent aspiration of the Sudeten party.

"Despite allegations by the Sudetens that they have been victims of terrorism and oppression, it may be said they have been permitted to organize themselves very thoroughly in the smallest details of life in their own area.

Plans Well Laid

"The party has a regional system of government already organized to take over administration as soon as their demands are granted.

"For some time past they have been organizing what may be described as "shadow" ministries dealing with principal subjects of government. The announcement yesterday that the party decided to create an office of public health, wherein doctors and others would be registered, is characteristic of the thoroughness of their plans.

"The Sudeten Germans also have their own police organization which is modelled on the German S. S. (German Schutz Staffel Guards.)

"In addition large numbers of motor vehicles are registered and at the service of the party in the same way as the Nazi party in Germany has a motor transport system affiliated to it."

Costly Jitters

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 6 (AP).—Frank Borden got excited about the likelihood of parole after five years in Illinois Prison, and he walked away yesterday— a day too soon. Warden Joseph Ragen, who remarked he'd have to classify the departure as an escape, said officials had expected favorable action on a parole for Borden at a hearing to-day. The Warden said he believed a case of joyful "jitters" caused the convicted robber to leave.

Road Group Out To Open Country Up

BIGWIN INN, Ont., Sept. 6 (C. P.). — Function of the Canadian Good Roads Association "is the constructive task of opening up channels of social and commercial intercourse and making this country readily accessible to travellers from every part of the continent," Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews of Ontario said in a speech prepared for delivery at the association's convention here to-day.

Opening the organization's 24th annual convention, Mr. Matthews congratulated the association "on the opportunity to help build a deeper national consciousness throughout the Dominion." The task and spirit thus commended were contrasted with conditions in less happy countries where advances in communications created barriers of misunderstanding and fear, where road programs were designed for aggressive military purposes or for wholesale evacuation of great cities if threatened by air attacks.

Before beneficial changes in highway control and improvement could take place, the Lieutenant-Governor continued, the leadership of a trained minority must point the way. This function had been fulfilled admirably by the association.

Over 450 Attending.

The convention brought to this Muskoka Lakes area more than 450 delegates—largest number in the association's history except where large city populations made it pos-

Deer Seen On Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Sept 6.—A party in a car driven by Mrs. William McCaw of Belleville, while driving to Bancroft on Thursday afternoon, saw a doe with her two fans on Highway 62, about 18 miles south of this village. The three were frightened by the car and ran up the road ahead of it for about half a mile, then disappeared into the woods to the left of the road.

Songs Of Industry

MOSCOW, September 6. — (A. P.). — Soviet bards have decided to sing more emphatically about heavy industry. At a conference of poets and composers it was decided to produce, among other inspirational choruses, a "Song of the Smelters," a "Comsomol Metallurgical Song" and a "Song of Subway-Building."

Soviets Train Youngsters In Art Of Sniping

An important defence measure for a beleaguered town is the use of snipers, which Soviet Russia is going in for in a big way. Pictured ABOVE are members of the Society of Air and Chemical Defence at Vitebsk, organized with the avowed intent of training snipers in their hazardous task. These young men and a woman seem adept at handling the rifles.

Want Less Propaganda

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (A.P.). — The United States Government ordered to-day that all agents of foreign governments register with the State Department. The law was designed to give this country better control over the activities of propaganda agents and other representatives, including Americans paid by other nations, even though indirectly.

Fire And Flood Sweep Japan With High Loss

TOKYO, Sept. 6.—(AP).— Fire and flood swept Central Japan today in the wake of a 87-miles-an-hour typhoon which left at least 10 dead and destroyed property over a wide area.

Fire broke out in the City of Takaoka, at the base of Noto Peninsula, at dawn and quickly levelled more than 2,000 dwellings, public buildings and schools. Osaka reported 15,000 homes were flooded. At Kobe 31 ships were sunk or damaged.

The typhoon swept over Shikoku Island and Honshu, the main island of Japan, yesterday and reached the Japan sea this morning. A typhoon of lesser intensity Thursday caused at least 175 deaths in the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

Sudden Death Hits 39 Over Canada In Long Labor Day Weekend

Ontario Leading With Toll Of 22

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (CP) — The waning summer season left a trail of 39 fatalities across Canada in the wake of its long Labor Day weekend. Ontario alone turned in a toll of 22 with 12 of the victims dying in a series of motor mishaps. Three Ontarians were drowned. Falls, explosions, a hunting accident and an electrocution accounted for several other deaths. An Ontario farmer was gored to death by a bull.

Quebec had a death list of nine, five persons having drowned, while in British Columbia two drownings were reported and two in Manitoba. The Maritimes recorded three violent deaths, two in New Brunswick and one in Nova Scotia. Saskatchewan had one.

More than a hint of winter was in the air for Labor Day, traditionally the last outdoors holiday of the season. Also observed in the United States, the day sent thousands of American tourists pouring across the highways of the Dominion. Such border points as Sarnia and Windsor in Ontario reported record movements of automobile traffic.

50 Unions in Parade

Labor leaders sounded traditional messages as crowds gathered in many centres, notably at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition where more than 50 unions were represented in the parade. Sports events were general features.

At Winnipeg, the bi-centennial of the arrival of the explorer La Verendrye at the forks of the Red and Assiniboine Rivers was celebrated with a six-mile parade. Five thousand paraded at Halifax, while 17,000 turned out for the Labor Day opening of the Saint John Exhibition in New Brunswick.

The weekend marked the end of summer holidays for school children and sent many holidayers hurrying back to their jobs. The accident list was the longest in many years. Last year Ontario recorded only 10 deaths.

The Death List

Ontario:

Waterloo—Olivia Kaiser, 45, struck by automobile.

Kingsville — Rosemary Thorpe, eight, fell beneath trailer attached to father's car.

Milverton—William Lindsay, 70, gored to death by bull.

Windsor—Doulas Sears, 19, drowned in Detroit River off Belle Isle.

Timmins—Martin Harkness, 49, drowned in Clear Lake when canoe upset.

Sarnia—Mrs. S. J. Arnold, Lansing, Mich., car hit culvert.

Ashton—Duncan Fisher, 32, shot by friend in hunting accident.

Toronto—John Timlak, 30, killed in dynamite explosion during highway work.

Elmira—Stanley Aberle six, killed by truck.

Port Arthur—Alexander Ansenau, 29, and Bertha Ahl 18, Nipigon, died in head on crash. Victor Lalla, 50, Port Arthur, struck by street car.

The absence of any word on Czechslovakia undoubtedly was disappointing to the 45 foreign diplomats who had accepted Hitler's personal invitation to attend the Congress. They had an island of frock coats in the sea of uniforms in the packed hall.

Besides his brief denial of any intention of aligning Germany in a pact, the Chancellor's only allusions to foreign affairs were an evident reference to Italy's newly-begun anti-Jewish measures and a denunciation of the "International Jewish world enemy."

Hitler linked the "Jewish virus" with the "world pest" of Bolshevism.

"More threatening than ever," he said, 'the Bolshevist danger of destruction of nations rises above this world."

With 21 Italian Facists in the audience, headed by Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the Fascist party, the Fuehrer lauded the "mutual spiritual conception" which "leads us more and more humanely together."

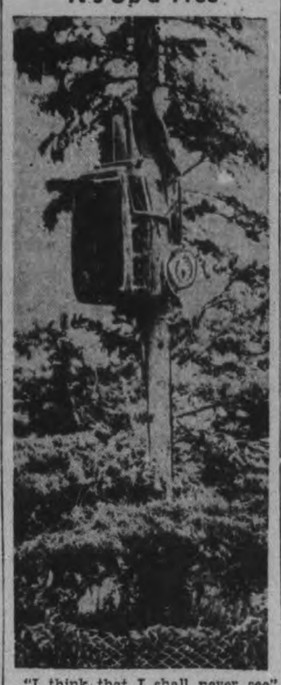
He expressed joy that "another great European power, shares the same conception and with admirable determination has drawn the most far-reaching conclusions."

Great Germany, its inner strength, and the annexation of Austria provided his main themes.

Germany's house is in order, he declared, and he advised the democracies to follow her example if they wanted to revive world trade.

The proclamation was the formal opening of the Congress. Only the belief in the German soldier and the "steel core" of German farmers and laborers, Hitler said, gave him courage to carry on his fight for the liberation of Germany in the face of many difficulties.

It's Up a Tree



"I think that I shall never see" ....and if we were paraphrasing the second line of Kilmer's famous poem, we'd say—"An auto rolling up a tree." But this would be poetic license, for the auto isn't actually rolling. It was hoisted on the tree 40 feet from the ground by Garage Mechanic B. A. Pietri, of Wilson, N.C., who has grown weary of hauling wrecked autos from this particular section of the highway. This is supposed to be an object lesson to motorists, but it only makes them determine to have their glasses changed or to cut down on the cocktails.

Face Badly Cut As Man's Head Hits Windshield

Seven stitches were required to close cuts in the face of Eddie Roach, 581 Elm street when his head crashed through the windshield of a truck in which he was a passenger on Saturday evening. The driver of the truck, Jack Primeau, King street, was thrown clear of the vehicle when it collided with the rear of another car owned by W. C. Faulkner of Omemee.

According to the police report the Faulkner car was proceeding south on George street when another car shot across George street on McDonnel at a high rate of speed ignoring the stop sign. Faulkner jammed on his brakes to avoid a collision and the Central Ontario News truck following in his rear, and driven by Primeau, crashed into the back of the Faulkner car. Primeau shot out of the cab by the force of the impact and Eddie Roach, who was sitting beside him, was catapulted through the windshield.

The accident occurred shortly after one o'clock on Sunday morning and Police Sergeant William Wigg was practically an eye witness to the mishap. Roach was treated for the facial cut and leg injuries

Ceylon Looks To Emergency

COLOMBO, Sept. 7— (C.P.-Reuters).—A scheme for co-ordination of all transport in the British island of Ceylon in the event of war or other emergency has been worked out.

Tentative measures have been taken to conserve oil and fuel by stopping omnibuses playing between distant towns served by railway and by using them in areas where there are not railway facilities.

Plans have been formulated also for control of food and tentative food controller appointed.

The question of shipping to transport rice in an emergency was also satisfactorily settled. Ceylon is almost entirely dependent on outside countries, especially Burma, Siam and Saigon, for her rice supplies.

With The Boy Scouts

On Thursday last Scouter Sturrock, chairman of the Apple Day campaign, got together his colleagues and named the various committees to carry out the work. Some discussion took place as to the part of the boys and it was decided to hold a meeting to carry out the discussion to its fullest extent on Wednesday of this week at the rooms of the local association.

The meeting will be under the leadership of Commissioner John T. Hornsby and it is hoped that every leader will attend and bring up the various points as it seems to affect his group. Don't forget, Wednesday, Sept. 7 at 7.30 p.m.

All Saints' Cub pack held its first meeting on Friday last and only about half the pack attended. Akela will expect to see all the Cubs back in the Grand Circle next Friday.

It is with pleasure we announce as new assistant for the pack in Miss Donna White, who expects to be with the pack for some time to come. Miss White will be known to the Cubs as Rann—Welcome and good hunting, Rann.

Akela took the pack through several new games and a splendid program is being prepared for the future.

All Cubs who have tickets for the group quilt draw, please bring them with you next Friday along with any money you have or hand them before Friday to Mrs. Dunford, 236 Rubidge street, across the road from the Parish Hall.

Nine scouts with the scouter from St. George's group camped recenly for a week at the T.A.S. park, and were greeted on the first night by a heavy storm, but for the balance of the camp had good weather. The Rev. Mr. Gault visited the camp about midweek and stayed with the boys for the balance of the camp.

A. S. M. Siddall with Mrs. Siddall and Mrs. Brown visited the camp both Friday evening and Sunday.

The St. George's Cubs will hold their first Hall meeting at 6.30 p.m. Friday whilst the scouts will gather at 8 p.m. All boys are asked to be on hand.

The sixers council of St. John's Cub pack met last Friday at the home of Akela to draw up plans for Fall activities. A. C. M. Florence Lemmings and 12 boys were present.

A feature of the meeting was a pack questionnaire, the answers to which yielded some useful and interesting information.

George Gray, who is now a second year Cub and holds several proficiency badges, was promoted to sixer of the Blue Six after having been a second for some months.

After several games Akela and Baloo served refreshments.

All Cubs who are enrolled as members of St. John's pack please take notice: The first meeting of the fall and winter activities will be at 6.30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9th in the Parish Hall. Those Cubs who are not present and who do not send in some notification to Akela of their intent to return will forfeit their position in the pack and their places filled from the waiting list.

The pack will held a paper collection on Saturday, Sept. 24. All friends of the pack who have paper which they would like collected on or before that date please phone Frank R. Pammett 3606w or give your name to one of our Cubs. Your co-operation is appreciated.

Yes, sir, nearly all the troops are getting under way again this week and it is hoped that the year of 1938-39 will see much progress in scouting in Peterborough.

It is only with the interest and co-operation of both boys and leaders that anything can be accomplished. Let us get together as boy to boy and man to man and place scouting on the high grade in our fair city.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Prejudice is a rank weed of rapid growth. Let yourself dislike a person, and you will shortly find that it is impossible for that person to do anything that is right or seasonable in your sight."
—O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends:

Isn't there a lot of truth in this quotation? Prejudice can see no good in another. Nothing they say is right, or we think they do not say it in the right way. Nothing they do is right, for we are annoyed whatever they may do.

But, there are those who make us prejudiced against our will. We have been willing to treat them right, to act decently with them, to play the game. Yet, when they seem to go on the principle of "me, myself, and I our feeling turns to disgust and we turn from them in all things.

I hope I have never excited that feeling in another, for it is not nice to feel that way, nor to be the cause of it in another. And it could so easily be avoided, if each considered the other and stopped thinking of themselves all the time.

I have said before, and I say it again, that not one of us live to ourselves alone. What we are, what we do, how we act and react, each and everything affects those we come in contact with, to their benefit or hurt.

And so, if you feel that certain people are prejudiced against you, examine yourself to see what in you caused this. It doesnt come out of thin air, something you have done must have caused it.

If you go around pushing your form of religion down people's throats, it turns them from you and your religion. If it is your politics you shove at them, your form of housekeeping, your design for living, you will raise prejudices against you.

If you are always right and the other fellow wrong, watch out for your are courting the very thing you won't like. If you want others to help you with your load, but turn thumbs down on them, prejudice will rear its head against you.

Its an intangible thing sometimes. People get on your nerves, but if you were asked you could not give a satisfactory reason for this. On the surface they seem to be trying to please, but there is a something which make you recoil from them, and there is a reason although you cannot put a name to it. And the reason I think it, underneath all this willingness to please lies utter selfishness. They do not truly want to please you in any detail, but simply get you in a good enough humor to please them.

Sometimes, of course, there are those who become prejudiced against others because they have better living conditions, or are better workers, or more popular. So it is well for those who are gifted to pull back a little so as not to excite this ignoble thing in anyone else.

It is so easy to let pride bring prejudice in its train, so easy to persuade ourselves that the gifts we have, came from our own efforts and not from God. And when we act like that, we turn others against us, so that they see no good in us at all.

But, and if, you find yourself accumulating too many prejudices against others, stop and examine yourself and see if you did not take the wrong turning as you came along the road of life. You cannot be right all the time and the other people wrong all the time.

Maybe the fault lies a lot in yourself because you want everyone to think as you do, to live like you, to share your opinions, and if they dont, then you let prejudice rule you. Think it over.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK J. DRAKE.

The death of Frederick J. Drake, 228 Dublin street, occurred on Sunday, following a short illness. He was in his 68th year.

A resident of Peterborough all his life, he had been engaged in the cartage business until ten years ago when he retired. He was a member of Knox church.

Surviving are one brother, George Drake of Rochester, N. Y., and one sister, Mrs. Matilda Murray of Chicago, Ill. His wife, Mary Ablan, died in 1929.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 6

A rather intriguing day is read from the governing stars. Matters may prove to be under an atmosphere of subdued excitement or a peculiar sense of repression owing to rather subtle undercurrents. This may be due to a vivid imagination, to emotional urges or may even be prompted by some rather singular or mystifying correspondence with a woman.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of rather peculiar or unusual experiences that may prove intriguing or mystifying because of subtle or inexplicable elements. This might have to do entirely with intellectual, mental or psychic processes or studies.

A child born on this day may have a kind disposition and may devote itself to study of the occult or mystical. It may be given to the contemplative life rather than to material objectives.

For Wednesday, September 7

The astral indications are for a rather sudden and precipitate move or journey on this day, which may not have a very happy reaction on the state of mind. The upheaval may not be a welcome one and may have devastating results.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden upheavals, or a quite unforeseen journey that may have a disruptive influence on the general state of affairs. There may be a surprising turn in money matters, with some opening for loss through loans, but with an upturn in property values or a lagging investment. Elders and friends may have influence. Cultivate them.

A child born on this day may be the adventurous or romantic type, with leanings toward the occult and ancient studies. It may attract friends among the elderly, although it may be considered eccentric and difficult.

PAUL F. SISE

Paul F. Sise, Montreal industrialist is expected to head the organization of Canadian manufacturers which will handle construction of bombing airplanes for the British war office in Canada. It is expected that the organization will build at least two assembly plants and that parts made in factories across Canada will be shipped to these stations for final assembly. Mr. Sise is president of Northern Electric Company.

Sideswiped Car Hits Veranda

Two local young men escaped injury on Saturday night when their car was sideswiped on a curve of the road north of Lakefield village and went out of control, winding up halfway through a verandah on the east side of the highway.

The two men, R. C. Thirnbeck, 525 McDonnel street and E. Smith, 541 Gilchrist street, were driving south on Highway 28 when the accident occurred. The house where they crashed is owned by Trueman Jewell and the family had just come home when they heard the noise. The car was jammed solid between the verandah steps and the corner of the structure.

Mrs. Jewell and Constable Wallace Hendren talked with the two boys and Constable Hendren stated neither one had any sign of liquor on them. They slept all night in the car as a downpour of rain commenced a short time after the accident, and on Sunday morning, later a friend towed their car home.

The Same People Pay

Before the Ontario Municipal Association concluded its fortieth annual convention it passed a resolution favoring a provincial tax on all fire insurance business written in Ontario. The tax would be collected by the provincial government and then forwarded "to the municipalities in which the policies were written."

It is not likely the municipalities had any special desire to tax insurance apart from the desire they have to secure more revenue. All business is so highly taxed at the moment that we doubt whether fire insurance companies would absorb such a tax. If they did not then the increase would have to be passed on to the people buying insurance. The claim that such revenue should be used to help defray the cost of fire fighting organizations means little. It would mean that people who carry fire insurance would be called upon to pay a tax which would go into the general funds of the municipality and those who carried no insurance would not be called upon to pay the tax.

There is another way in which such a form of taxation would work unfairly. Mr. A is a farmer living ten miles from Peterborough. He wants to place some insurance in his farm buildings and he does business with some person he knows in the city. According to the proposed plan that business would be credited to Peterborough city, because the policy would be written here. So Mr. A might in time find himself having to pay a tax on that policy which would come to the city coffers, whereas there would be not the least justification for Mr. A to pay one cent to the city of Peterborough as he would be paying his county and township rates where he lived.

If municipalities are feeling the pressure of increased expenditure and the consequent need for more revenue—and they are—then they are in exactly the some position as most of the people who collectively constitute the municipality. If they do put on new taxation through a levy on insurance policies then it means they are merely asking the people who are hard pressed now to pay more. The fact that it is a new tax does not mean that a new set of people are going to pay it. It means taking a new jug to the old well which has already been pumped pretty low.

Why Cattle Huddle

A Peterborough lady was saying the cattle out in the fields seemed to be friendy because she noticed so often they were all standing close together. She had been driving through the country a good deal in recent days and had noticed it. When she was informed that cattle had always done that during the fly season she smiled in an indulgent way as though some one were trying to lead in a bit of a joke and place it on the chair beside her.

When this lady received the information that cattle go into a closer huddle than usual when the flies are bad she was receiving an explanation which was probably as close to the truth as one could come. A farmer informed this paper when questioned that the stock would do more standing together in fly weather than at any other time. Standing that way gave them protection against flies, although those which are on the outside of the group would secure only half the protection. He said he had noticed horses standing beside each other in the same kind of weather but facing in opposite directions. Then it was that the tail of one whisked the face and front part of the other.

Possibly no one could give an adequate explanation of why cattle stand in groups in fields, but protection against flies sounds sensible and logical. Sort of a co-operative movement which serves a good enough purpose.

He Cannot Have Peace

Hitler may claim he desires peace but the chief obstacle to the peace which he may desire is Hitler himself and also the form of government which he has set up in Germany.

When one man sets himself up as the ruler of so great a territory as Germany, and when he becomes the visible and tangible token of all power and authority, then he must do something to justify the size and extent of the position he has taken, and he must also chart a course which will keep the people assured that their leader is going to take them to newer and better places. He must be able to do more and promise more than the form of government to which they had formerly been accustomed.

The building of a greater and a stronger Germany was and is the spectacle and the hope which Hitler dangled in front of his people. That is why he took Austria; that is why he aims to take Czechoslovakia. He simply has to do such things in order to keep himself in the position of dictator and deliverer. Were he to cease from such work and content himself with the ordinary business of routine government, the passing of laws and the collection of revenue and such, then he would have placed himself in a position where people would quickly conclude that the fire had gone out and that Hitler had come to a dead end.

The very native of the position into which he has hoisted himself makes it altogether and entirely imperative that Hitler shall always be in the position of going to bring a new log to put on the national fire. We do not believe it would be possible for a man maintaining his position to live at peace with the world or to deeply desire peace. He has taken a position where it is necessary for him to keep on going; he must make his own people believe the world is against them and that their safety is at all times in danger. Because he is in an unnatural position himself he must in order to protect himself keep all his people in the same unnatural position.

If Hitler saw a fair chance of winning more territory by going to war then he would go to war. The very nature of the position which he has carved out for himself makes it impossible for him to be a man who desires peace. If Hitler settled down to ordinary routine of government he would be through. And no person knows that better than does Hitler himself.

The Premier Annoyed

Premier Angus MacDonald of Nova Scotia is annoyed because several newspaper writers have been visiting his province and writing for their papers of their impressions. One writer visited the fishing villages, talked to the people there and went into their homes and he wrote that 10,000 people were on the verge of starvation. The other writers seem to have found conditions somewhat similar.

Premier MacDonald takes exception. In his statement he claims 10,000 is an exaggeration, and the person who wrote that figure could not possibly have accurate knowledge of the situation. He would have to rely on information he secured from others and at best the figure would be nothing more than an estimate. And so on.

It is quite likely any writer sent on such an errand would have to depend on information he received from others. If he had gone to the offices of the government, as Mr. MacDonald suggests should have been done, he might never have heard mention made of the word "starvation." But when he visited in the homes of the fishermen the word seemed the right one to use.

Dr. A. T. Barr of Peterborough spent a month in Nova Scotia, and when he returned the Examiner talked with him. Dr. Barr stated the condition among the fishermen was in some cases desperate. Their work was hard and dangerous and the returns they received from the sale of their fish were entirely inadequate. He had also been informed that the use of trawlers was spoiling the supply for those who had to go out to sea and depend on lesser equipment. We do not recall that Dr. Barr used the word "starvation," but he had visited some of the fishing villages and had come away with the fixed impression that life for the fishermen was a hard and an unfair struggle and the rewards were painfully scanty.

Possibly the Premier of the province does not relish the idea of writers entering his bailiwick in order to tell of the misery of the people. He would prefer them to deal with scenery and mists and tides and fruitful fields and the kindly treatment the tourist receives. But the fact remains that the fishermen along his coast are a hard-pressed lot of people and there are many of them who are never far removed from that stage which we refer to as starvation.

As It Was On The Tenth

We have followed with some interest reports of a horse deal which wound up in a Western Ontario court. The case has been heard and adjourned and it looks as though it was to go through that process again. It has all the ingredients of a case such as would have brought work to a stop on the Tenth Concession. If ever a horse deal got to court in the nearby village then every person went. The squire who presided was an obliging man and when a horse case was on he would hold the hearing in the village hall instead of the little office down below. Then all the farmers could get in and listen and then liked the squire on that account. No person was doing much work along the Tenth when a horse case was on, and the reason was that every farmer considered himself a good horse trader while the truth was that a good many of them were not.

This recent case has to do with an animal that has the heaves, and the claim is that the horse when sold was sound in wind but developed the heaves a short time after from eating musty food and living in a dusty barn. And argument on such a case would be very much to the liking of the people along the Tenth and we dare say farmers today would like to sit in and hear that point argued out.

Grandfather was a horse trader and he was also an upright man. He never indulged in strong language and he held some sort of an office in the church down at the corner of the Broken Front Road. That may be why he always liked to get his horse deals put through early in the week; it would give his conscience a chance to get into working order before Sunday.

Grandfather held that no horse could be cured of the heaves. He didn't care how much the hired man read out of the government books. Heaves could not be cured, but they could be fixed for the time being, and the "time being" was generally the period when grandfather was doing some trading. He was satisfied he couldn't cause a horse to get rid of the heaves and so the best thing was to get rid of the horse that had the heaves.

The heaves is something like a man having the asthma, only when it gets worse and chronic it is called the heaves. The real cause we never did know, but it was blamed on wrong feed and a poor stable with a good deal of dust. Grandfather could always tell by looking at the flanks and watching the twitch in the abdomen. He could always tell without waiting to give the animal a bit of exercise and a drink of water and then waiting for it to wheeze and cough. He could scent a case of broken wind a long way off.

When grandfather was going to trade a horse with the heaves he always starved the animal. He had a notion that with an empty stomach and intestines the heaves could be kept pretty well in the background while he talked about the other fine points in his horse. On the other hand if grandfather was doubtful about a horse some person was trying to trade to him he would insist on letting him have all the water he wanted to drink and then he'd give him a bit of exercise, and it generally worked.

If he found he was stuck for a time with a horse with broken wind he used to make rules that were hard as iron and that horse never was to have any clover hay. Its food had to be dampened and the horse always had to have its water before the meal and never after. And he was also strong in the belief that molasses was good for a horse troubled with the heaves. He'd nurse that animal along and not work it much until the belief would be generally spread along the Tenth that the horse was sound enough. Then it was that grandfather would generally have one of those spells which always indicated he was thinking it was high time to do some more horse trading.

We couldn't help thinking when reading a short account of that vexed horse case in the Western Ontario court that the former residents of the Tenth Concession would in their day have gladly knocked off work and gone to listen to the arguments.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There was a man selling liniment on the market here recently, and apparently it would cure anything that ailed anybody. When a man has something like that he ought to go in for politics.

If tourists had been as plentiful in the country a few years ago as they are today we have a suspicion we might have made some money by renting the corn crib for an over-night cabin.

California doctors report a case where a man's eyes are turning to stone. It is said to be a rare disease, but we thought we noticed something like that in the eye of the banker the other day when he suggested we drop in and explain a few items to him.

Jim McClennaghan, physical instructor of the Y.M.C.A., is leaving the city and will be associated with the Y.M.C.A. at St. Catharines. Much could be said about Mr McClennaghan, but it can all be summed up in the few words that some person in St. Catharines knows how to pick the good ones.

"To settle a bet will you state whether the Empire State building in New York is twice as high as the Bank of Commerce building in Toronto." Empire State building is 1,248 feet and the Bank of Commerce is 475. So the New York building is twice as high as the one in Toronto and then has a margin left of 298 feet.

LAMENT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When planting time was coming near. I figured what I'd grow this year, I thought I'd use my brains; I'd grow tomatoes in my field, and trust to gain a goodly yield, by sunny days and rains.

¶ I'd plant whole acres so I would, and work them like I really should, I bought a stack of plants; I'd scuffle with my steady steed, I'd also have enough to feed, my uncles and my aunts.

¶ I'd catch the early market too, of goodly dollars make a few, each pound would bring a dime; I thought then in the merry spring, I'd be a new tomato king, and loaf in winter time.

¶ I found when my tomatoes grew, that I had started nothing new, that came to me quite plain; for I drove round and I could see, and it was plain as mud to me, that others did the same.

¶ I've got tomatoes by the load, I've got them boxed along the road, I've got them red and green; I've got them big and got them small, I've seen the prices limp and fall, the likes I've never seen.

¶ No chance to be tomato king, like I had planned in merry spring, it is no road to fame; when I went in so big and strong, I found it out before so long —the others did the same.

May Be Called To Give Battle

(By F. D. R. in Brantford Expositor)

THE CZECHS AND the Sudeten Germans still continue to occupy the centre of the stage as far as the present European drama is concerned.

In this regard, Ralph W. B. Izzard, writing from Prague, Czechoslovakia, the capital, tells of the six men who are at the forefront in that land.

Dr. Eduard Benes, the President, was a star football player as a young man when a broken leg put an end to his activity in this regard.

His mishap led him into the student ranks and he became a professor forming a close alliance with his former history master, Professor Masaryk, in the formation of a Czecho Slovakian Secret Independence movement.

Masaryk became an outlaw abroad and after the war had broken out Benes kept in touch with him by splitting postcards in two, inserting code message and then joining the pieces together again.

When this means of communication ultimately became too dangerous, Benes used to make journeys to his associate by using forged passports but he finally became a suspect and he had to make himself scarce by going to Paris.

After the foundation of Czechoslovakia, Masaryk was the first president and later went into semi-retirement and Benes became the busiest foreign secretary in Europe. He is described as one of the cleverest intriguers of his day.

Now he is president and still remains the supreme wire-puller.

✧ ✧ ✧

NEXT TO HIM is Dr. Milan Hodza, the Premier. The son of a county parson, he is spoken of as a man of undoubted ability.

Another doctor, Kamil Krofta, is the present foreign minister and it is related that his every action is dictated by the President. For relaxation he plays both the piano and violin.

Conrad Henlein, Sudeten German Party leader, has cultivated some of the mysticism with which Hitler has surrounded himself but no one doubts that he is the supreme voice of the party.

It was his idea that by organizing all the German gymnastic clubs in the Sudeten area into one compact body he would have a nucleus of young men which could later be converted into a powerful political force.

Herr Ernst Kundt is the live wire of the Sudeten organization and a subtle debater. Son of a poor washerwoman, he was already supporting her and some relatives when war broke out.

Afterwards by tutoring and newspaper articles he paid his way through a university course. His services are said to be invaluable to Henlein.

Also of lowly birth is Wenceslaus Jaksch, 41-year-old leader of the German Social Democrats, a skeleton party, on which, however, the hopes of the Czechs enforcing their will on the Sudetens depends.

Jaksch is one of many children born to a poor workman in a cottage in the Bohemian Forest. While his schoolfellows were playing cowboys and Indians, he sat at home with his books.

He devoted his life to politics, and his rise in his party has been rapid. He would never be taken for a leader of men and his chief strength lies in the devastating irony of his oratory.

And what of the Czechs themselves? How do they behave while all these statesmen discuss the fate of their country?

Prague's Man in the Street goes about his business with rather more nervous tension than usual, carefully hoarding away pound or dollars, if he is lucky enough to get them.

After the partial mobilization of May, all males of eligible age awake with the realization that they can be called away from their families or work to fight.

SHE SAID "NO."

(Christian Science Monitor)

WHILE reconnoitering in Westmoreland County, Virginia, General Washington's officers came upon a team of fine, sleek horses being driven to the plow by an elderly Negro.

"Hello, good fellow," one of the officers called out, "we must have those horses. They're just what we've been looking for."

Without paying any heed, the venerable man turned and began to plow another furrow. When he returned, the officer again demanded the horses, but all the plowman would say was, "Better see Missus! Better see Missus!"

The officers repaired to a neat farmhouse near by and knocked upon the door, where they were greeted by an elderly woman of grave but kindly charm. They repeated their demand.

"Upon whose orders are you acting?" demanded the lady.

"Upon the orders of our chief," they replied.

"Your chief?" the householder exclaimed. "Who is your chief, pray?"

"General George Washington, Commander of the Revolutionary Army," ane of the officers replied grandly.

"You go back," replied the lady with a smile, "and tell General George Washington for me that his mother says he cannot have her horses."

MUST IMPORT FOOD.

(W. L. Clark, in Windsor Star)

SINCE 1914 THE arable land acreage in Great Britain has been reduced by 3,000,000 acres. And much of the tillable soil has lost considerable of its fertility.

So scarce is land, Great Britain has to import:

50 per cent of the food consumed by cows that give the nation milk.
75 per cent of the wheat.
50 per cent of the meat.
90 per cent of the butter.

Those figures show what Great Britain is up against for food. The British Navy has to keep the sea lanes open or Britain will starve.

• When A Teacher Works for $500

(Fergus News-Record)

A LETTER WRITTEN by a rural school teacher to the Midland Free Press is interesting, because it tells something of the expenses that a teacher has and proves pretty certainly that $500 a year is not sufficient salary. That is the amount the writer of the letter was getting and may be regarded as the usual minimum in many parts of Ontario.

First of all, three percent is deducted for the superannuation fund before the teacher gets her pay. She then receives $485 a year. She works for 10 months, receiving $48.50 a month. Out of that she pays $20 a month per board; $1 a month for papers needed for extension courses; $2 bus fare; newspaper, magazines, $1; insurance $4; clothes etc. $10. This leaves $10.50 for all other purposes. Some of it may be needed to help out at home, but very little is available for that or any other purpose, because the teacher must take a summer course under certain circumstances. The summer course requires a fee of $10; text books $5; examination fees $2 and board which is not less than $7 a week in the cities, besides other city expenses such as car fare.

How any girl can save enough out of that $105 a year is more than we can figure, but apparently they are expected to do so. This teacher explains that after four years' teaching time on her interim certificate, the teacher must pass two subjects a year at the university to extend her teaching time. She must have eight subjects for a second class certificate, then two more years spent in summer courses. It is obvious that a girl clerking in a store at $10 a week is far better off than the teacher at $500 a year and she hasn't had to spend money on an expensive education either.

• Developing A New Peach

(St. Catharines Standard)

THE PEACH HARVEST is on, and the crop is magnificent. These Vedettes, Valiants, Veterans and Vimys, weighing from a half to three-quarters of a pound each, glorified grapefruit size, are a delight to the eye and a sinecure for the picker.

This writer visited one orchard yesterday where an order for a thousand baskets was being filled, with girls hand-sorting and packing the fruit. The grower is one of the most progressive in the district, and pointed out three rows in his orchard, which he said he intended to replace with the new Fisher peach. He had ordered 125 young trees, all he could get, and there is a romance in that development. The Fisher peach will ripen by August 1, and the grower predicted that Howard Fisher, the discoverer, would make $100,000 in royalties because of his discovery. Why prospect for gold?

Mr. Fisher, as has been told before, saw a branch of ripe fruit on a Valiant tree, all the rest of the fruit was green. He developed from that branch a new variety, now patented as the Fisher, and it will lengthen the marketing season for fine peaches by weeks. It is a notable contribution to the industry.

A plum orchard was also visited, the branches bearing down almost to the ground with the fruit. These plums, known as Reine Claude, are to be packed and shipped in 24-pound, well-strapped containers, to England. The boat sails September 9, and cargo space has been arranged. The grower declared he would have a better return on his plums than his peaches.

• Can't Pay Big Bonus On Wheat

(Regina Leader-Post)

BUT THE WHEAT facts might as well be looked in the face. Wheat is now worth less than 70 cents a bushel on the open market. This is at Fort William. This means that it is worth about 54 cents a bushel in the Regina area. It is worth a little more east of Regina and a little less west of Regina, the net price being determined by the freight rate.

This means that to pay a dollar a bushel at the elevator would mean a bonus of about 45 cents a bushel and it is just a plain statement of fact to say that no Canadian Government is going to bonus wheat to that extent in a world in which there is more wheat than the markets will absorb.

The business of growing wheat in Western Canada is not an easy one. The business of finding markets, in the present world situation, is even harder than growing the product. We are faced with the hard fact in Western Canada that the best the grower can hope for is a small bonus from the Dominion in a year when the world price may appear to be too low. Big bonuses are out of the question.

• London Paper Called Pro-Nazi

(From Time and Tide, London)

ON JULY 18 Lord Rothermere published an article on Czechoslovakia in the Daily Mail. The article is full of gross inaccuracies, and is accompanied by a map which misrepresents the Czechs as forming no more than a kernel entirely surrounded by a German population. The article makes out, amongst other things, that the Czechs are a minority in Czechoslovakia—which is, of course, sheer nonsense; they are a majority.

Wickham Steed, who knows something about Central Europe, wrote Lord Rothermere a private letter in reply to the article. A series of letters passed between them, which has now been published in several newspapers. The correspondence is of interest because it shows that the Daily Mail is owned by a man who has adopted all the catch-phrases of Nazi propaganda. He refers to Czechoslovakia as "a monstrosity of a country" (does he object to the absence of concentration camps?) and to the "Moscow-owned Prague Government."

Lord Rothermere was first turned against the Czechs by the Hungarians, who received him like a prince some years ago and turned his head with their flattery. The visits of Lord Rothermere and of his son, Esmond Harmsworth, are, perhaps, the supreme grotesque of post-war journalism (they were inimitably dealt with at the time by the Morning Post). The Hungarian public was led to believe that Lord Rothermere could do something to get the frontiers of Hungary changed. It did not realize that the Daily Mail, despite its large circulation, has no political influence whatever, and that Lord Rothermere's incursion into Hungarian affairs had no significance at all.

CHINA WILL MISS HIM.

(Lemuel F. Parton, in New York Sun)

STIFF-NECKED, hard-boiled Gen. Alexander von Falkenhausen, German sparring partner and coach for the Chinese generals, stirred excitement in Shanghai by predicting Chinese victory. He says, "I feel sure that China is gaining a final victory and that Japan will fail in both war and peace."

The general and all others of the German military mission to China are homeward bound, suddenly recalled by their Government, although their contract, with $12,000 a year for Gen. von Falkenhausen, was to have run until 1940. To him is attributed the major Chinese strategy of the last year, particularly of the last few months. From the first he urged the Chinese to feint, draw the Japanese farther and farther in and ingest them gradually.

The general, 59 years old, is of lean and angular countenance, thin lipped, with thick-lensed pincenez and eyes like instruments of precision. He is a native of Silesia, the son of a general, educated at the Prussian Military Academy. He fought on all fronts in the world war and was regarded as a master tactician.

UMBRELLA FOR TWOPENCE.

(Manchester Guardian)

A NEW SERVICE has been introduced by the Southern Railway Company for the benefit of a limited section of its public. Passengers can now go to any of 30 specified booking offices on the company's system and ask to be provided with an umbrella as well as a cheap return ticket.

If you are a season-ticket holder the clerk takes particulars from your ticket, hands you an umbrella, and charges twopence for two days' use, and an extra penny for every additional day you keep it. If you are not a season-ticket holder you give your name and address and deposit half a crown.

WOULD FIRE FOREMAN.

(Leonard Lyons, in New York Post)

DOUGLAS CORRIGAN'S forthcoming autobiography will include this note — that if the California welding-foreman who was Corrigan's factory boss hadn't been so critical Corrigan wouldn't have resigned and never would have made his flight.

When Corrigan first revealed this in London he confessed that he still was jobless and would accept none of the offers being tendered him.

"But I'd like to take one job," he told me. "I'd go back to that factory, on one condition—on condition that my foreman is fired."

To The Editor

THE BAND

Editor Examiner:

Sir; I was more than surprised in reading in your columns the piece about the Peterborough Ranger's band and its band master who has proved himself very efficient for a great many years. Also great credit is due him in his training.

If there is any blame in the Exhibition Music it would be better told that the Board do not pay a home band enough to give full time to the music although they have been known to pay a very large sum to bring a band to the Ex. One has only to see the large crowds at the Sunday evening concerts, among which is a large number of tourists. One should not speak so rashly of a band master untill they know the circumstances.

ANGLO-AMERICAN TREATY

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

Negotiations of a mutually satisfactory trade between Great Britain and the United States is evidently proving a task taxing the capacities of those laboring with the problem. It is probable that, because of almost insuperable obstacles that have been uncovered, the treaty will be less broad in its effect upon trade than was originally estimated.

Successful Regatta Is Held At Curve Lake Reserve Tilting Contest Is Hightlight

Labor Day saw the last of the regattas for 1938 when the Curve Lake Indians held their annual water sports, combining it with foot races, a ball game and dancing competitions to make it one of the most complete and successful of the current season.

A strong cross-wind bothered aquatic stars during the meet but no event had to be cancelled, although entries in some were small. Starting shortly after 1 o'clock standard time the water sports lasted until past five, when a softball game between the Indians of the Curve Lake and Rama reserves was played. Foot races followed and in the evening there were special dancing contests at a largely attended ball.

Highlight in the entire afternoon's events was a tilting contest between veteran paddler Herb Cardwell and Amos Irons of Curve Lake, standin the bows of canoes. When the two, each assisted by his paddler, took to the water first they battled for two or three minutes, neither able to spill the other. Then Irons' weapon, a long pole with a rubber fist fastened to its end, broke and the event was halted. Twice again they returned to the battle, once resting after they had jousted for more than five minutes. The third time they returned to the assault Cardwell's weapon was broken and the match called off, a tie. The long joust was unusual because one smash from the rubber fist is nearly always enough to cause a man to lose his balance and topple into the water.

Newcomers.

The regatta saw several newcomers to aquatic fame, particularly in the women's events, although Herb Cardwell and Doreen Deyell of Wallace's Point still tallied in a great many events. Six Taylors of Curve Lake, John, Steve, Clayburn, Richard, Merritt, and Stan, were point winners; Lottie and Mamie Johnson of Curve Lake won points in women's events.

Regatta results were as follows:

Men's Single Canoe for Amateurs —1, Herb Cardwell (Neill's Shoe Store); 2, John Taylor, Curve Lake, (Agnew Surpass Store); 3, William Knott, Curve Lake (J. J. Turner).

Ladies' Crab Race—1, Lottie Johnson, Curve Lake (Northey's Drug Store); 2, Mamie Johnson, Curve Lake (Soden's Book Store).

Men's Gunwale—1, Herb Cardwell (M. E. Knox, Jeweller); 2, Clayburn Taylor, Curve Lake (Lillow-Walkwell); 3, John Taylor, Curve Lake, (Pratton's Hardware).

Ladies' Single Canoe—1, Doreen Deyell (Dixon's); 2, Flossie Selleby, Hiawatha, (George Robertson).

Ladies' Double Canoe—1, Doreen Deyell and Flossie Selleby (Lynch's Drug Store); 2, Bertha Knott and Mamie Johnson (McBride and Franks).

Men's Double Canoe—1, Dave Wilson and Doug Mortimer, Wallace's Point (Peterborough Canoe Company); 2, Stan and John Taylor (Dutton's Nut Shop.)

Ladies' Gunwale—1, Lottie Johnson (Elliott's Drug Store); 2, Bertha Knott, (J. Steinkrauss).

Mixed Tandem Canoe — 1, Herb Cardwell and Doreen Deyell (Leonard's Hardware); 2, Amos Irons and Mamie Johnson (Mason's Grocery Store).

Mixed Tandem Gunwale—1, Doreen Deyell and Herb Cardwell (Selkirk's and Kresge's); 2, Bertha Knott and Dave Wilson (Bud Williams and Bond's Drug Store).

Tilting contest—Draw between Herb Cardwell and Jack Deyell, and Clayburn Taylor and Amos Irons.

Boys' Double Canoe, 16 years and under—1, Austin Taylor and Dalton Jacobs (H. B. Rye); 2, Aubrey Coppaway-Clarence McCue (Chown's Hardware and Playmor Sports).

Toronto Girls Win Tourney Held In Hastings

HASTINGS, Sept. 6.—The Robt. Simpson Co., of Toronto, were the winners in the girls' softball tournament held here yesterday. Hastings were second prize winners and Uxbridge took third. Teams were entered from Wallbridge, Hastings, Toronto, Uxbridge, Keene and Warkworth. The affair was sponsored by the local ladies' softball team and business men, and proceeds will be used for a community Christmas tree for needy children, this winter.

Hastings defeated Wallbridge 20 to 5 in the opener, when they scored 16 times in the first innings. Simpson's of Toronto then defeated Uxbridge 9 to 1 in a fast game. Capsey, Simpson's hurler limited Uxbridge to 4 hits as she struck out 11. Hastings defeated Warkworth 4 to 1 in the next game with Madeline Thompson holding Warkworth to 4 hits, with 5 strikeouts.

Keene and Simpson's met in the semi-finals with Simpson's coming out on the long end of a 10 to 3 score. Keene collected 4 hits from J. Stone, Simpson's pitcher. M. Snowden for Keen allowed 10 hits.

Uxbridge and Keene, two one-game losers met, with Uxbridge taking a 4 to 3 decision, knocking Marilyn McCarthy out of the box in the fourth. Uxbridge then defeated Warkworth 10 to 8 to take third prize.

Simpsons and Hastings met in the finals with Simpsons taking an 11 to 2 victory. Simpsons scored 7 times in the first innings. They made it 8 to 0 in the second before Hastings scored their first 2 runs. Trinkwon homered in the fourth for Simpsons to make it 9 to 2 and 2 more for Simpsons in the fifth finished the scoring.

Capsey, pitching for Simpson's pitched a no-hit game, all Hastings runs being scored on errors. She had 7 strikeouts and passed 2. Simpsons collected 9 hits from Madeline Thompson, Hastings pitcher. She struck out 4 and walked 4.

Apples 60 P.C. Normal

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 6.—(CP).—The Georgian Bay apple district will produce only about 60 per cent of a normal crop this year, but quality is high, according to current reports. The apple area, centred around Thornbury and Clarksburg, will produce an estimated 55,000 to 60,000 barrels.

C. B. Shaver Wins Tombstone Trophy

Last Saturday saw one of the longest entries in the weekly sweep for the season. The competition was for the Tombstone Trophy. C. B. Shaver won the trophy finishing on the eighteenth with three strokes on hand to nose out C. V. Elliott who had two strokes left at the finish.

Three players tied for second place in the sweep, Stan Payne, Terry Hall and H. F. Bradburn, all these players finished in the eighteenth hole.

The novelty prizes were won by J. H. Vernor and C. B. Westbrooke.

The lefthanders vs. the righthanders match will be played on Sept. 11, instead of the 10th.

Labor Day Sweep

A variety sweep was the contest for the holiday.

The prize for the best gross went to O. A. Degraw who shot around in 79 in spite of the heavy wind.

Playing in the afternoon W. E. Lloyd shoe a nice 93-27—66 to cop the prize for the best net.

Jim Wharry and Harlow Cutting share the prize for the most birdies both had one each. Most one putt greens prize was won by H. J. Bradburn with a total of 8 one putts. Best score on the par three holes went to J. T. Gentles with a score of 17. D. J. Diplock won the most sixes prize having a total 8.

Brintons Beat C.C.F. Team

The Brinton soccer club had sweet revenge upon the C.C.F. on Saturday afternoon, when they trounced them by the score of 7 to 0 in the semi-final of the Duffus Injured Players' Cup. In a previous cup tie game the Politicians eliminated them.

A Poor Start

Right from the kick off, the Brinton made tracks for the C.C.F. citadel to rattle in two smart goals through the efforts of Stan Clark who was occupying the pivot position. Then the Politicians transferred the play to the other end when Art O'Halloran completed the eleven; while the Brinton's had only ten men. Time and again, the Jobe and Henwood wing would break through the Brinton full backs to compel Adams, Brinton goalie, to save terrific drives. This was followed up by net passing and smart combination by Lang who missed the upright by inches from ten yards out. Just before the interval, Richardson accepted a pass up the field by Jones, at full back, who dribbled his way towards goal to allow his centre man to make the score read at the interval, Brinton Athletic 3, C.C.F. 0.

Loser Fell Away

On resuming, the play was confined to mid-field for a while until a sudden relapse on the part of the Politicians permitted the Brinton team to concentrate upon the defence and awaiting the breaks that eventually came their way thereby adding to their score and going into the final of the Duffus' Injured Players' Cup. Brinton 7, C.C.F. 0.

Brinton — H. Adam, goal; E. Jones, full back; A. Downer, Asa Downer and J. McLeod, halves; D. Leether, J. Richardson, S. Clark, H. Castle and G. Downer, forwards.

C.C.F.—W. Denisen, goal; G. MacDonald and A. O'Halloran, full backs; H. Clapham, F. Dyer and F. Meyette, halves; S. Henwood, E. Jobe, Matthew Lang, S. Jones and R. Smelt, forwards: sub, E. Denisen.

Tranter Captures Tennis Title Kawartha Club

Roy Tranter won the F. W. Bowness Trophy, emblematic of the men's singles championship of the Kawartha Tennis Club, for the second successive time when he pulled out a five-set win over Jack Kirkwood on Saturday afternoon.

Winning the first two sets, only to have Kirkwood tie up the match and then jump into a fifth-set lead, Tranter was forced to call on every shot in his repertoire in order to snatch the contest out of the fire and walk off the courts in possession of the cup again. Complete scores were 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 8-6. Throughout the marathon struggle, Tranter's most lethal weapons were his well-timed forehand drive and a slamming forehand volley. His service was not particularly strong, but it remained fairly consistent until the fifth set. Kirkwood's service, on the other hand, was exceptionally good in spots, his ground strokes were fair enough, but he allowed himself to be caught out of position and off balance on too many occasions. And being trapped many times in his own mid-court, he was an easy prey for Tranter's hard passing drives.

Wins First Two.

During the first two heats, Tranter seemed to be completely master of the situation. In the third canto, he coasted a bit while Kirkwood began to find himself. In the fourth set, Tranter seemed determined to finish it off, but discovered that, by this time, his opponent had gotten up full steam and was giving a much smoother performance than formerly.

After squaring the match at two sets all, Kirkwood stepped out and took the first three games of the final set. The fact that Tranter's service fell apart at this point helped his opponents' cause along nicely. Score was four to one before Tranter seemed to shake himself from his apparent lethargy. His shots regained their timing and he captured the next two games. On his own service, Kirkwood pulled away again and made it 5-3, and the match seemed to be just about over. But Tranter, never once showing any sign that he was being hard pressed or looking at all like a beaten man, fairly blasted his adversary off the courts with smashing volleys and clean-cut drives. Kirkwood took one more game, his own service—including a couple of fine service aces—but the champion's forcing shots polished off his rival rather quickly in the final two games. Rolly Hull officiated as umpire.

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Don't let them spoil your Summer

It sometimes seems as though those spiteful Rheumatic twinges in your joints bring you up with a jerk deliberately—just when you're specially enjoying yourself. How often the prods of pain catch you the very minute you bend over at work or play. Don't listen to pessimists who say there's no relief from Rheumatic trouble with its Uric Acid crystals that prick and pain. You can help dissolve these crystals, and curb Rheumatic pain.

Wealthy people "take the waters" at some European Spa. Nothing better for those who can afford it. For those who can't there's a simple remedy of a similar nature. Fynnon Salt is its name—a name echoed gratefully by many Rheumatic sufferers.

Take a ½ teaspoonful in a glassful of water every morning. It liberates Sodium, Potassium and Lithium—a combination of 'Salts of the Earth that help disperse Uric Acid and remove from your system the poisons that cause it. Take Fynnon Salt, the enemy of Rheumatic pains, and see how fine you feel, how soon pain goes. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt. 75c at all druggists 27

Peterboro Club Wins 86-60 On Labor Day

The Peterborough Club played St. Edmund's C.C. Toronto at Nicholls Oval on Labor Day. The Clubs are old rivals and of late years, St. Edmund's have been the winners but on Monday the locals turned the tables and won by 26 runs—86 to 60.

The visitors batted first and found Dyer's bowling very difficult; only Turnbull 19, Lee 13 and Shaw 10 made any show, the captain's final analysis being eight wickets for 16.

The home side win was due to the batting of Lawrence, J. Ball and Gore. Three wickets fell for two runs, but Lawrence and Gore added 23, but five wickets were down for 25. Upon J. Bell joining Lawrence the pair won the match putting on 38 runs together, Lawrence going in with the score standing at 2 for 1 and stayed until 63, showing stubborn defence and punishing the loose ones severely and getting the day's high score of 37.

The executive and players of the Peterborough Club were keenly disappointed by the default of the Toronto West Indians who were due at the Oval on Saturday. Special efforts had been made for their reception and entertainment, photographs would have been taken and there was to have been a dinner in the evening. By the second post Friday, the secretary received a letter from the West Indians secretary that they were fulfilling their engagement on the following day, but on the Saturday morning he received a telegram saying they could not make the trip and all arrangements had to be cancelled.

It was then too late to give the public notice of the default and the club regret if any spectators made a fruitless trip to the Oval. The local club had gone to Toronto on July 2 to play the first of the home and home matches which had been arranged.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

FRED CRAIG

IT ISN'T OFTEN THAT a pinch-hitter column writer gets a break like being able to start in his first day with some championship chortling but thanks to Manager Eddie Murphy and his fast-moving ball club we are able today to do a little whoopee stuff at the expense of Oshawa. Yes sir, the Petes spent the week-end by taking two well-played ball games from the twice-Champion GM-men and as a result the Central League pennant, mythically speaking, is floating proudly over the homesters' clubhouse. The battling Petes, minus three regulars, started the victory parade by going into Oshawa Saturday and beating Jake Biddle 4 to 2 before the startled inhabitants and they came back here Monday and to the delight of the largest crowd in years clubbed their way from behind and captured the title 4 games to 2 by defeating the former champs 6 to 5 in the first extra-inning affair of the current season.

* * * * * *

CENTRAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIPS are not so plentiful around this berg that we can afford to pass this one up without some loud rejoicing. To be exact we have won the title only three times in the nineteen seasons the league that Jake Solomon built has been operating. We did get another courtesy title ten years ago when the League did not have a campaign and the Petes were given a bye but actually the only years we really captured the loop pennant were in 1920 when Lornie Rose, Hap Harrison and Howard Kirn were the pitchers and in 1935 when Russ Kitchen, Bill Calladine and Archie Deyell did the heaving. The 1930 team went to the Ontario finals to be beaten in a three game series by Hamilton Plowites, the 1926 outfit with Al Heckman and Jeff Hardill as gunners also lost out in the finals to the Hamilton Oskies and Knotty Lee's 1935 flag winners failed to get by the Toronto G and W club in the second round.

* * * * * *

IT IS NOT HARD TO FIND lots of folks to give credit for the clean cut victory over Oshawa in this year's playoff series, for most of the squad have had a prominent part at one stage or the other. Lefty McNally won two mighty useful victories, Charlie Kearns has been the spark plug of the outfit by reason of his consistent hitting and speed on the bases, Eddie Starr, Bob Doll, Al Clark, Manager Eddie Murphy, Bill Calladine, in fact the whole outfit have been great but in one writer's opinion at least a big bouquet of orchids has to be handed to the forgotten man of the Petes, none other than Eddie Whitehill who has spent most of the summer in the bull pen or pitching for batting practice. It was Whitehill who was sent in there Saturday in what was really the crucial game of the season and the little right-hand curveballer really went to town, stopping the Oshawa power houses in great style. True he was relieved in the seventh and Rus Kitchen gave a grand relief performance but notwithstanding the fact that he did not finish the game Whitehill's work was a big factor in the victory.

* * * * * *

THE GUNNER DID NOT GET official credit for Saturday's win but the fortunes of baseball made that up to him Monday for when McNally faltered in the game here in the latter stages it was. Whitehill who was sent in to stem the tide and a real job he made of it, blanking the visitors for the last three innings and holding the enemy until the Petes found time to break through Jack Turner's service to win the million dollar game in the tenth.

* * * * * *

MANAGER EDDIE MURPHY WAS carried off the field by enthusiastic fans at the end of Monday's game and he deserved to be. Up twice in the clutch, with two out on both occasion. Murphy came through with hits that drove in the tieing run in the eighth and the winning marker in the tenth. And the fans should not forget a few rounds of applause for Al Clark who led the Petes attack in the Labor Day affair, drove in three runs and opened the assault on Turner in the tenth that finally culminated in a Peterborough win. As a matter of fact if Eddie Starr had been able to produce a good sacrifice bunt in that frame Clark would have had the satisfaction of carrying the winning run home as he would have scored easily from second on Bill Caladine's long single.

* * * * * *

IT IS AN OLD SAYING THAT A BALL club is no better than its reserve strength. The Petes showed Saturday that there is nothing wrong with them in that respect for they went into Oshawa with Manager Murphy, Cliff Cadd and Cy Whatley all missing and proceeded to play errorless ball in winning a 4 to 2 victory Al Clark shifted over to shortstop, that mighty fine young infielder Bun Kingdon covered second smartly and Bill Calladine, best utility man in the loop, took over the first basing to the King's taste. Calladine has so far this season played third, second, first and the outfield for the Petes and looked good in every position.

* * * * * *

THE PETES WILL NOW tackle the Toronto winners, either the Danforth gang or the G. and W. club in the first round of the senior O. B. A. A. playoffs but there will be no action on that front until next week. It is likely that an exhibition game will be arranged for Riverside Park on Saturday to keep the Murphyites moving along at the speed that has carried them to three wins in a row over Oshawa and to the Central Ontario title. No matter which Toronto team wins out there will be one former Peterborough player in action against his old club mates for Bud Murray is with the Danforth and Ken Long with the G. and W. outfit.

THE UNITED STATES RETAINS possession of the Davis Cup for another year but it is a fairly safe prediction that the American hold on the tennis laurels will not be much longer than that if Don Budge makes his expected leap into the monied ranks. The Yanks are in identically the same position as was Great Britain when Fred Perry was carrying the mail. When the great Perry elected to cash in on his tennis ability the British team ceased to be a contender and we fancy that the departure of Don Budge from the American Davis Cup team would leave Uncle Sam about as badly handicapped. Without his two victories in the singles this year the Americans would hardly have beaten Australia and if they have to face Quist and Bromwich next year without the hard-hitting red head the Davis Cup may be back within the British Empire twelve months hence.

* * * * * *

THE OFFICIAL STANDING OF THE lacrosse group has been received and shows the Peterborough outfit at the top of the heap with a lead of five points over Brooklin. The Petes have won seventeen, lost five and tied three for a total of 37 points while Brooklin's record is fifteen wins, eight losses and two ties for 32 points. Brampton have won 13, lost seven and tied two for 28, while East York with 26 points and Long Branch with 10 wind up the group. The playoff arrangements bring the Petes into action against the Woodbridge club of the other section and the first game will be staged in Woodbridge on Tuesday September 13 with the return game in Peterborough on Thursday September 15, total goals to count on the two games.

* * * * * *

BILL JACKSON'S COLLEGIATE juveniles passed off the O. B. A. A. stage after a brief but not inglorious appearance during which they gave St. Mary's, the Toronto juvenile title holders, quite a battle. The opening game of the series in Toronto was a 2 to 1 win for the Saints and they came back here Saturday to clean up the thing in two straight by winning 7 to 3. The P. C. I. crowd helped to beat themselves in the local fixtures by some costly defensive slips for they outscored the classy Toronto kids in the matter of earned runs. The Collegians have had a good season and are to be thanked for helping to keep hardball alive in the minor ranks.

* * * * * *

ALTHOUGH THE OSHAWA-Peterborough series was a hard fought tussle and the teams battled for every point hostilities ceased as soon as the winning run crossed the plate Monday and the Oshawa players ran over to the Petes bench to shake hands with their victorious opponents and to wish them luck. It was a tough game for the GM-men to lose for they apparently had a winning lead in a fixture in which victory meant another chance for them to hold the Central title for another year. There will likely be some changes in the Oshawa battle array next season, for the veterans of the club are showing signs of slipping badly and will have to be replaced.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM AND DOSE—Felicitations and all that kind of stuff to the boss of this column Cece Perdue who is honeymooning. . . . It was a case of too much Eddie for Oshawa Monday. Eddie Whitehill stopped the GM-men attack, Eddie Murphy supplied the hits that chased in the tieing and winning runs and Eddie Starr carried both of those important markers home. . . . Cincinnati Reds carved two games off the Pirate lead Labor Day and are now only 4 games back. Personally we can't see why they are all battling so hard for a chance to get murdered by the Yanks in the world series. . . . Crowd at Monday's game here was reminiscent of Jake Solomon's palmy days when the fans payed four bits to see senior ball and liked it. . . . Peg Hurst and Jubenville were the Oshawa goats in the final game. Hurst played Murphy's drive in eighth badly and Jubenville was pulled out of position when the Petes manager tapped the winning hit through in the tenth. . . . Local lacrossers will practice tonight at 7 o'clock and every player is expected to be out in praparation for the playoffs. . . . The Petes footballers will be hard at it all week. It will be a case of drill, ye terriers, drill, from now on. . . . And that looks like the day's quota. Take it away, boys.

Australia's Two-Man Team Fails

Here are the principals in the Davis Cup finals which have just seen the United States team triumph over Australia's two-man team by 3 matches to 2. The boys from down under won the doubles and Jack Bromwich defeated Bobby Riggs, America's No. 2 player, in the singles, but the great Don Budge won both his singles matches and Riggs' defeat of Adrian Quist supplied the winning American margin. ABOVE are Jack Bromwich, unorthodox Australian ace, LEFT, with the all-conquering Budge at the RIGHT. TOP CENTRE is the other Australian, Adrian Quist, and BELOW him Gene Mako, LEFT, and Bobby Riggs, the other members of the American team.

Budge Holds Cup Foot Faults Cut Quist Hopes

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP).—The glittering Davis Cup, symbolic of world team tennis supremacy, remains in the United States for another year, and the maligned foot-fault has reared its ugly head again.

When Donald Budge had finished with Adrian Quist of Australia by scores of 8-6, 6-1 and 6-2 the match that settled the challenge round out a the Germantown Cricket Club yesterday, Frank Hunter, an old American internationalist, said, "Gee, it made me feel like I was in Paris again."

Hunter referred to the fact that after the French had won the big trophy from the United States 11 years ago, challenging American teams complained that French line judges were extremely valuable in the French Cup defence.

What happened yesterday was that an American line judge, one Harold Le Bair of New York called a series of disconcerting foot faults against Quist at the exact point in the opening set when the little Australian was blazing hot and threatening to give the world's top amateur a trimming.

Crowd Gets Mad.

Whether Quist in any circumstances could have licked Budge and carried the challenge round to the final match between Bobby Riggs and Jack Bromwich is subject of serious doubt, but the decisions cost the invader whatever chance he had and made the crowd of over 9,000 fighting mad.

The referee had to calm them down twice.

Harry Hopman, captain of the Australians, didn't complain. He said he thought Quist was foot-faulting. What the crowd and several prominent American tennis officials complained about was the way La Bair waited until the most crucial points of the all-important first set. It broke Quist's confidence so completely that he proceeded to lose his service eight straight times, possibly a record for big-time tennis.

Budge's tennis had been so indifferent on the previous day, when he and Gene Mako lost the doubles match to Quist and Bromwich by 0-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, that there was active fear he would lose to Quist. Some experts still thought after the match that Quist might have pulled it off, but for his service lapses.

The Vital One.

As things turned out, Budge's victory was the vital one, because Bromwich beat the tar out of Riggs in the concluding singles match, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2, giving a final winning margin of only 3-2 over the scrapping Aussies.

Unless another singles star at least the equal of Riggs is uncovered before next summer, America's chances of holding off the 1939 Australian challenge will be slimmer than drugstore ham. Such a player isn't in sight now, nor does anyone know who will replace the Budge-Mako doubles team.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB. MARTIN

Over one hundred bowlers from the Peterborough club participated in tournaments held in Peterborough and in other lawn bowling centres throughout the Central Ontario district—and not only did they help, by their attendance, to support the outside tournaments, but they were successful in capturing major events at both Cobourg and Port Hope.

Billy Jeffries, playing his schedule rink, was successful at Port Hope in winning the Nicholon File Company Trophy, and H. Northrop's and R. Payne came first at Cobourg doubles and captured the beautiful Bickel Memorial Trophy. These trophies have been here before, and it seems that they must just come back.

At Cobourg.

Forty pairs were entered, with eight pairs from Peterborough—H. Northrop and R. Payne, first and the Bickle Memorial Cup; J. Sedgewick and C. Sedgewick, fourth for high single game.

At Port Hope.

Seventeen rinks made up the tournament, with seven from the Peterborough club — B. Jeffries, E. Spurway, T. Doughty, and W. Jeffries won the Nicholson File Trophy; while a rink composed of J. McLaughlin, J. Fitzpatrick, L. Loftus, and H. Freeman was fourth.

At Peterborough.

Sixteen mixed rinks turned out—the largest Labor Day entry on record. The winning skips were: W. G. Walker, G. Tremaine, E. Coleman and F. Brown.

Warmer weather is hoped for tomorrow night so the rained-out mixed tournament of August 18 can be played. On that night there were 20 entries, and it is hoped to have more. Get up a rink and be out at 7 p.m. and join the boys and girls.

Londoners Take Nats Twice To Tie Series

(By the Canadian Press.)

When comebacks are talked about it might be a good idea to give a bit of thought to London's senior inter-county baseball nine, which seemed on its way out against Stratford Nationals in the league playoff final after losing the first two games but now definitely seems on the way in by taking a doubleheader to tie the series.

The Londoners turned the trick yesterday, defeating the Nationals 2-1 at Stratford in the morning and then blanking the Nats 1-0 in an afternoon game at London. The morning game was played before 1,800 while 2,955, a new intercounty attendance mark, were at the London contest. To make the comeback more remarkable the Londoners were outhit in both games. The Nats got seven blows to two in the first contest and six to three in he second.

Dominion Foundries and Steel, champions of the Hamilton and district senior Amateur Baseball League, defeated Niagara Falls Brights, champions of the Niagara District League 2-0, to take a one-game lead in their playdown series. It was the first game between the two teams.

Plan To Paint Bridge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 6. — The Campbellford bridge is to receive a coat of aluminum colored paint according to appropriations made at the last session of the county council it has been learned. The work is to commence immediately on the county owned portion of the structure. The old paint will be removed and the fresh coat applied entirely by local labor.

Whitaker Club In Winner By 33 Runs

On Saturday Whitakers played the Eglinton C.C. on the Upper Canada College Grounds in Toronto and won a well-contested game by 33 runs, the final score being Whittakers 119, Eglinton 86. The local team batted first and showed consistent batting through the side. B. Roberts and T. Jones 12 gave them a good start. Smith 21 and Colbran put on 42 for the 4th wicket and at 105 Colbran was out for the side's high score of 31 including five boundaries. Wild not out (15). B. Bailey 12 helped to raise the total to 119.

On Eglinton going to bat only Clark (49) met with any success, going in first he was 9th out but only Marshall (12) gave him any help and the innings closed for 86.

Hamilton and Colbran bowled unchanged—the former took 5 wickets for 42 and Colbran followed up his batting success by taking 5 for 39.

Does Your Breath Broadcast—"I WEAR FALSE TEETH"?

Play Safe—Be Sure—Use Polident

Most people who wear plates or bridges suffer from a special kind of bad breath. Dentists call it—"denture breath."

You won't know if you have it—but it can spoil your happiness. Friends will shudder—people avoid you! And the worst of it is that ordinary brushing cannot prevent it. Neither will mouth washes. For the odor comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum soaks up germs and decay bacteria and causes a vile odor that you cannot detect.

One thing can stop "denture breath"—and that's Polident! This new brushless cleaner has won the approval of thousands of dentists. Users say it's a blessing.

Polident not only purifies false teeth—but also removes all stain, tarnish and deposits. Makes breath sweeter—plates look better and feel better. Costs only 40¢ at any drug store and lasts for many weeks. Money back if not delighted.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

PETES WIN CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE TITLE 4 GAMES TO 2

1,800 Fans On Holiday See Petes Capture Title In 10-Inning Bang-Up Game

Peterborough won the sixth and decisive game of the Central League playoffs on Monday at Riverside Park before 1800 wildly excited fans in a tense ten inning contest featured by timely hitting on the part of the Petes and a gem of a relief pitching effort on the part of Gunner Whitehill, who went to the assistance of McNally in the eighth and stopped the motorists for the balance of the game, his curve ball again as on Saturday being too much for the slugging visitors to solve. The Petes took the series 4 games to 2 to cop the Central Ontario title.

The hitting of Kearns, Clark and Murphy featured the attack of the home forces, the "slugger" continuing his terrific series, hitting with three for five. Clark contributed for ringing singles driving in three counters while Murphy supplied the timely blows that propelled both the tieing and winning runs across the pay station. For Oshawa:—Foley and McGarry were the leading hitters with three blows each.

Fielding features were supplied by Foley, Kearns and Cadd all of whom made sparkling catches.

The Winning Run.

The winning run in the tenth came when Clark led off with his fourth hit, and was forced at second on Starr's attempted sacrifice. Starr advanced to third on Calladine's single to right centre, after Doll had filed out to Hurst, and scored on Murphy's timely single past Jubenville on a hit and run play. The second sacker going over to cover second as Caladine started to steal and Murphy rapping the ball through the vacant territory to win the ball game.

The Petes after leading 2 to 1 at the end of the third found their lead disappearing in the next frame and by the time Oshawa's end of the seventh was reached the G-M men were in front 5 runs to 2. The Petes came back with two runs in their half to close the gap and in the eighth garnered another marker to sew up the game. Neither team scored in the ninth and after Oshawa had filled the bases with two out in the tenth only to have Wallace ground out to Clark to end the frame. The Petes put together the winning counter in their half of the inning.

Oshawa Score First.

Oshawa started the scoring in the first when Foley singled with two out and went to second on Clark's bad throw to first and scored on Jubenville's single.

The Petes took the lead in the third. Cadd opened with a single but was caught off first. Then McNally doubled and Kearns singled and stole, both runners scoring on Clark's single. It was Foley who again registered for Oshawa in the fourth. He walked, stole second, went on to third when Starr's throw hit him and scored on Jubenville's outfield fly. In the fifth the G-M men took the lead again when Turner blasted a triple to the score board and rode home on Foley's single.

In the seventh the visitors scored a brace and looked to have the game in hand. Wallace started things with a single. Hurst bunted a fly trying to sacrifice, but the trouble-some Foley came through with his third hit, Jubenville followed with another single to score Wallace and Foley scampered home on a fly by Matthews.

Petes Get Pair.

The Murphyites came through with a pair in their half to close the gap. Murphy walked to start the frame and Burton singled, the two advancing on Cadd's out. Singles by Kearns and Clark sent the counters across.

McGarry opened Oshawa's eighth with a double and Whitehill relieved McNally. After Dalton had sacrificed the relief pitcher struck out Turner and Wallace to retire the side.

The home brigade tied it all up in their half. Eddie Starr opened with a single, went to second on Doll's sacrifice, and to third on Calladine's infield out. Manager Eddie Murphy came through in the clutch with a hot shot double to left which ripped by Hurst as he tried to make a shoe string catch and Starr scampered home with the marker that sewed up th game.

Neither team moved a wheel in the ninth, but Oshawa made a real bid in the tenth. With one out Bennettt and McGarry singled, Miller batted for Dalton and hit weakly to Whitehill for the second out. Turner drew a pass to fill the bases, but the dangerous Wallace could produce nothing better than a tap to Al Clark, who threw him out.

The Petes then proceeded to win the ball game as already described.

Minor League Baseball Sensation

Taking the play away from all other minor league stars (and more than a few major league ones, too) is Virgil Trucks, ABOVE, sensational pitcher with the Andalusia club in the Class D Alabama-Florida League. Nobody calls him Virgil, of course. He is affectionaly known to the fans, and not so affectionately to opposing batters, as 'Firetrucks' and all he has succeeded in doing this year is send 413 ambitious batters back from the plate via strikeout route, to smash all minor league and most major league marks. The 19-year-old fireball flinger has been signed by Detroit Tigers of the American League.

Bombers, Riders Stay Undefeated As Former Take Eskimos 33-8 And Regina Shuts Bronks Out 9-0

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6.— (C. P.). — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Regina Roughriders are undefeated in the Western Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, each with two victories. Interest centres on the first meeting of the two teams in Winnipeg next Monday.

Quarterback Art Stevenson lead the Bombers here last night in a fourth-quarter offensive that netted three touchdowns and topped a 33-8 victory over Edmonton Eskimos. Roughriders kept pace in Regina by defeating Calgary Bronks 9-0.

Bombers made 17 first downs to Edmonton's five, gained 260 yards rushing to Eskimos 26 and completed eight of 15 forward passes for a total gain of 145 yards against Ed-Edmonton's six of 13 passes for 69 yards.

4,000 spectators saw the game.

Crashing through Calgary's defence last night, the Roughriders were convincing in their 9-0 triumph before 4,500 spectators.

Newest additions to the Regina outfit, Howard Cleveland and Leo Danaher sparked their mates to victory. After Griffing and Bill Brokovski blocked successive kicks by Bob Campbell in the second quarter, Regina recovered the ball on the Galgary 24-yard line. Cleveland ploughed nine yards on a lateral around left end and then Danaher plunged to the three-yard stripe. Cleveland repeated his left end lateral thrust to cross the goal line for the games only touchdown.

Toronto Team Beats Locals

P. C. I. were eliminated in two straight games of the first-round O.B.A. juvenile playdowns, St. Mary's of Toronto rubbing them out by a 7-3 score on Saturday afternoon before a slim crowd in Riverside Park. Local errors cost the Jackson squad the game, as the homesters had three earned runs against two for Toronto. It was an interesting struggle, though the visitors piled up a big early lead and looked like winners all the way.

Fowler hurled three-hit ball and fanned 14 in a fine showing for the Saints, while Foster was reached for 10 safeties as he struck out three. Both were a trifle wild in spots, and Foster hurt his own cause with three costly errors near the start of the struggle. His support was wobbly at times too while Toronto backed their twirler up in good style. Connelly, Craig and Moorehead were the only Collegians to hit safely. Gresko, Stewart and Chapman had two hits each for the winners, Gresko banging out a triple, while Fowler and Staynor hit a double apiece. The box score:

Leafs Drop Two To Bisons By Run Each

(By the Associated Press.)

It begins to look as though the first division of the International League and the corresponding berths in the playoffs are set.

Newark, Syracuse and Rochester have been safely ensconded in the first three places for weeks but Buffalo had a fight on its hands with the up and coming Toronto Maple Leafs. The bisons put an end to that yesterday when they whipped the Leafs in both ends of a double bill 4-2, 4-3.

The victories just about assurel the Bisons a place in the playoffs, but the other first division teams—except the Newark Bears—failed to play up to form in the Labor Day double bills.

Syracuse, after having an easy time with the Baltimore Orioles all year, dropped two to the aroused flock, 7-5 and 3-2, while Montreal downed Rochester 9-4 and 7-2.

Newark took two from the Jersey Giants, 7-6 and 13-6 to extend its streak over the Giants to nine straight and establish an edge of 17 to 5 in the season's series.

Hitting was light around the league but Newark's potent batters didn't have to hit. The Jersey City hurlers served up 25 bases on balls in the two games.

Russ Kitchen Stops GM-Men In Fifth Game

OSHAWA, Sept. 6.—Minus the services of three players at the start of the game, due to the centre-aisling of "Cy" Whatley, member of the Peterborough C.O.B.L. team, the Liftlock City team presented a rearranged line-up here Saturday and then proceeded to play inspired ball to defeat Tracy Shaw's GM-men 4 to 2 and so take their third victory in the title series.

Later in the evening, at a meeting of the C.O.B.L., the protest lodged by the Peterborough club, concerning an alleged interference play in the third game of the series at Oshaway, won by the homesters, was thrown out when President Max Swanston cast the deciding vote, upholding the decision of the umpires who gave their versions at the protest meeting. Kingston "Ponies" were not represented at the meeting.

Great Pitching

Two great displays of hurling by Eddie Whitehill, who was the surprise starting pitcher for the Petes and a splendid job of relief hurling by lanky Russ Kitchen, who stopped the GM-men cold in the 7th inning, were the deciding factors in Peterborough's victory on Saturday.

"Gunner" Whitehill, throwing a tantalizing knuckle-ball hook and keeping his pitches on the corners, held the GM-men almost helpless until the 7th inning, allowing only four hits in the first six frames. A single by Wallace and another by Foley, gave Oshawa their only run in the first six innings as Whitehill coasted along, apparently taking things easily at all times and getting the benefit of air-tight support from his mates.

In the 7th, with the score 2-1 for the Petes, the GM-men finally got to Whitehill. Matthews walked to open it up and then with one out, Dalton singled. Matthews scored from third, on Biddle's fly out to Kearns. Wallace also singled, sending Dalton to 3rd ahead of Kearns' throw and Wallace took 2nd.

Kitchen to Rescue

Russ Kitchen took over the mound duties at this stage and after three-straight balls to "Peg" Hurst, proceeded to strike him out, to end the inning and rally.

Kitchen retired the GM-men in order in the 8th, fanning Rowden and he struck out Matthews to start off the 9th. Bennett singled but was forced by pinch-hitter Miller. McGarry, also a pinch-hitter, singled to raise the hopes of the home fans but Kitchen forced Wallace to pop up to Calladine and the game was over.

Outside of two snappy double-plays, the homesters were very lax in defensive play and Peterborough won the game on two unearned runs. A wild throw into centre by Bennett, followed by Foley's bad throw to 3rd, allowed Doll to go from first to home in the 6th and then after Oshawa had tied the score in the 7th, Petes won the game in the 8th.

Deadey singled and was sacrificed to 2nd. Doll drilled one past Rowden and Hurst, out in the field, missed the ball, Deadey scoring and Doll going to 3rd, from where he scored after an outfield catch.

In all, Jake Biddle allowed only six singles, and only in the 8th did the Petes get more than one a frame but the errors were costly.

4th Place Brampton Pulls Surprise, Rubs Out Mimico 13-9 To Enter Semi-Finals

(By the Canadian Press.)

Title ambitions of St. Catharines Athletics and Orillia Terriers—looming large while they ran one-two all through the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior schedule—faced a new threat to-day.

From a fourth place team in the regular race, Brampton Excelsiors have become a surprise team in the playoffs. Orillia will need all the cunning of its Dominion championship years to stop the growing power of the young Excelsiors in semi-finals.

St. Catharines, Orillia and Brampton have all progressed through the first round of playoffs by winning in straight games. St. Catharines stopped Hamilton-Burlintgon Combines, taking the second contest 16-7 at Burlington last night after winning the first 15-2. Orillia drubbed Fergus 22-8 in a home game last night after winning 1-15 at Fergus and Brampton finished off Mimico 13-9, after snatching the opener of the best-of-three round 11-9.

Brampton and Orillia will meet for the right to play St. Catharines, leader at the schedule's end, for the title Orilia won in 1937. Into the semi-finals the Excelsiors will carry new scoring strength, led by Moe Thompson who got five goals last night.

Mimico Ties at the 4th

Mimico jumped into an early lead, but Thompson scored twice as Brampton drove ahead to a 5-4 advantage at quarter-time. The Excelsiors never were headed after that, but Mimico caught them at 9-9 in the fourth. Again Thompson paced their comeback with two goals and Matt Gowland and Anthony got others to make victory certain.

St. Catharines' handy triumph was not gained easily, for the Combines fought bitterly and penalties were frequent. George Hope of the Athletics was helped from the floor with a head cut that required eight stitches. While Harry Jamieson was serving a 10-minute penalty for his part in the squabble that resulted in Hope's injury, St. Catharines scored four times.

Some 1,400 fans turned out to watch Orillia resume its bid for the Dominion title won by Terriers in 1934, 1935 and 1936. They saw the home club turn on brilliant combination, Rusty White was missing from the Fergus line-up because of his injury.

The Shooting Was Real

YAKIMA, Wash. Sept .6. (AP).—The white man's portrayal of "winning the west" was a bit too realistic for Jim Looney, an Indian. He filed suit for $2,725 against sponsors of a pioneer celebration, charging that when the shooting was over he had 45 shotgun pellets in his body. His horse was dead, too—from eating mouldy hay.

Labor Day Crowd At C.N.E. Biggest In Years

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(CP).—With its 350 acres of grounds swept clean and tidy after the greatest invasion in year the Canadian National Exhibition turned its attention to the problems of Empire. On Labor Day 226,700 persons beseiged the grounds, leaving tons of litter for the army of overnight sweepers.

Hon. R. J. Manion, elected leader of the National Conservative Party at the Ottawa convention in June, will address the C.N.E. directors and their guests at the British Empire Day luncheon today.

Trotters and pacers from the leading Ontario stables open a four-day meet this afternoon with the 2.27 pace and 2.24 trot. Thirteen horses are entered in the pace and five in the trot. To-morrow the three-year-old futurity for pacers owned, foaled and trained in Canada will be raced for an estimated purse of $3,500.

Judging of Hereford and Aberdeen Angus cattle opens in the main ring of the coliseum. On Monday Shorthorn and dual purpose Shorthorn cattle champions were named and judging of Tamworth swine and Clydesdale horses was completed.

Biggest Sweep.

The Labor Day crowd, believed the largest since 1931 when 232,00 were admitted, taxed the capacity of buildings and grandstand and at times jammed in an immovable mass in the midway. Ambulances and first aid men were kept busy all day long attending persons affected by the sun and the crush. Chilly weather in the evening cut down the crowd.

Labor leaders from the United States and Great Britain spoke at a rally following a parade of labor units from down totwn. Louis G. Hines, director of organization for the American Federation of Labor, condemned the Committee for Industrial organization for the split in the labor ranks in America. His criticism of the police of John L. Lewis were heard in silence by a small crowd which gathered about the band stand.

Eby Edwards, British Miners' Federation official, pledged for solidarity in the trades union movement. Not in great personalities but in great principles lay the hope of labor, he said.

Lead Uncle Sam's New Naval Squadron In Atlantic

Here is the United States light cruiser Philadelphia, flagship of the new scout squadron which Uncle Sam will station in the Atlantic ocean for the first time since 1932, thereby evoking speculation as to just what the old man with the whiskers has in mind. Some say the shift is caused by the European crisis; others that it is a direct result of President Roosevelt's intimation that Canada could expect a measure of protection from her southern neighbor; and others that it is merely a prelude to naval manoeuvres on the eastern seaboard. The squadron will consist of seven cruisers and seven destroyers and will be commanded by Rear Admiral Forde A. Todd, inset.

sible for local registrations to swell the attendance. Five business sessions will be held before the convention ends with the annual dinner on Thursday night. Hon. F. M. MacPherson, British Columbia Minister of Works, presided over today's opening.

First of the scheduled papers was one by R. M. Smith, Ontario Deputy Minister of Highways, on road building in the British Isles and Continental European countries. Other papers were prepared by C. M. Upham, engineer-director of the American Road Builders' Association, and A. Paradis, chief engineer of the Quebec Highways Department.

Germany a Leader

Mr. Smith noted in his paper that these countries made enormous strides in road building in the last half-dozen years. On the continent, the military factor in the expension was obvious. Germany made the most progress, its "autobahnen" for motors being the only models of their kind.

Cross traffic is impossible on the new German roads, access is permitted only at intervals of 15 to 20 miles. All are located on new rights-of-way. Advertisements, poles and other disturbing factors are prohibited.

The decided trend in recent years to low-cost surfacing of roads was emphasized in Mr. Upham's paper on "the effects of modern equipment on road construction." Mr. Paradis discussed the problem of locating highways with present-day traffic requirements in mind.

More Highway Types

With more attention paid to planning based on economic surveys, Mr. Upham noted there developed a demand for a broader field of highway types and more efficient construction methods.

While traffic volume and speeds continued to increase, the impact on the highways was not as great due to improved weight distribution and use of larger diameter, low-pressure tires.

This direction in surface wear, combined with steady improvement in drainage methods and increasing knowledge of soil stabilization, has made possible greater use of local materials and development of various mixes into serviceable, low-cost surfacing. By combining the correct soil graduations and obtaining proper moisture content, materials might be mixed to form the densest possible combinations for base construction of low-cost surfacing.

As a result, low cost bituminous mix was the predominant type of construction on state highway systems in the United States in 1937.

Severe Electric Storm Hits Bancroft Killing Cattle and Uprooting Trees

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Sept. 6.—The severe electrical storm which passed over this district, last week, caused considerable damage. In the vicinity of Maynooth five cattle were destroyed by lightning; three on the farm of James Shields, and two belonging to Frank Peaver. In Turriff, a hurricane of about five minutes' duration, uprooted giant maple and pine trees, snapped down telephone poles, and lifted roofs from some barns and small buildings. The greatest damage was done on the farm of Patrick Mallory.

The roofs were torn from the borns near the house, although the house was not damaged. A tree just a few yards in front of the house was uprooted. Havoc was wrought in Mr. Mallory's hardwood bush by the wind which swept through leaving in its wake great trees either uprooted or snapped off a few feet from the ground. Telephone connection in Turriff was severed by several trees falling across wires and dragging them to the ground. Two large trees just beside Turriff station were blown down and fell across the railroad track. Section hands had to remove the trees before the train could proceed southward on Thursday morning. Large trees which had fallen across the road leading from Highway No. 62 to Turriff had to be removed to

Back From Berlin

British On Top In Air Mileage

LONDON, Sept. 6 —(CP).—Wings of Britain's commercial airplanes soared to great achievements last year. For instance more than 4,500 miles of internal airlines planes flew 3,300,000 miles, carried 161,500 passengers and handled 4,300 tons of freight without a serious accident.

Annual report of progress of civil aviation also showed the British Empire continued to rank foremost in regard to air route mileage in regular operation. The figure for the Empire stood at 80,000 and services over about two-thrids of this total route mileage were operated in the dominions and colonies. Of this two-thrids Canada had 14,000 miles of routes in regular operation. Corresponding figures for other leading nations including possessions were: United States, 63,600; France, 38,750; Germany, 31,900; Italy, 19,450 and Netherlands, 19,000.

Only four fatal accidents in which United Kingdom regular passenger services were involved occurred to Imperial Airways aircraft. For every fatal accident 2,150,00 aircraft-miles and approximately 10,000,000 passenger miles were flown.

During 1937 the total number of registered aircraft in the Empire rose from 2,899 to 3,140; commercial pilots increased from 6,787 to 7,500 and licensed ground engineers from 2,674 to 3,000.

Imperial Airways and associated companies flew 4,200,00 miles compared with 3,300,000 miles in 1936. They had a freight record of 6,277,000 ton-miles while they also had a record of 22,738,000 passenger-miles.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAN MARCH.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6.—Following a lengthy illness death claimed Mary Lisk wife of Mr. William March of Campbellford on Friday Sept. 2. The deceased who was in her forty-eighth year succumbed in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough. Surviving her besides her grieving husband are her mother, Mrs. F. Lisk of Trenton and one brother, H. Lisk also of Trenton.

Highly regarded by many she assiduously helped her husband in the restaurant and confectionery store which they operated in this town for the past fifteen years, having come here from Havelock.

The funeral was held from the home of her brother, Mr. H. Lisk of Trenton on Sunday afternoon and interment was made at Sidney Cemetery.

THOMAS FOLEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, SEPT. 6. — There passed away at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, Thomas Foley of Bird's Creek. Mr. Foley had been in poor health for several weeks and was removed to the hospital a few days before his death.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, formerly Margaret Brown of Maynooth, four daughters, Mrs. Ernest Boyle, Mrs. Robert Carswell of Maynooth, Patricia and Lyla at home, and two sons John and Emmet at home; four sisters, Mrs. Maurice O'Neill and Mrs. Jos. O'Neill of Toronto, Mrs. Chas. Authorson of Kingston, and Mrs. John Hontoon of Lindsay.

The funeral was held on Friday to Our Lady of Mercy Church, Bancroft, where Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. L. J. Kennedy. Interment was made in the R. C. Cemetery.

The pall bearers were, Messrs. Geo. Poff, Maurice Coe, Jos. O'Brien, Jos. Flynn, Alex. Munro and Charles Brown.

MRS. SARAH HANCOCK.

Daughter of an old Clarke Township family, Mrs. Sarah Hancock, relict of Thomas Hancock, died here on Monday, September 5, in her eighty-third year. Mrs. Hancock was born at Newtonville on January 25, 1855, and spent most of her life in South Durham, coming to Peterborough eighteen years ago. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Carr, and two sons, C. J. Hancock of Smith Township, and C. H. Hancock of Ottawa, also by eleven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren, and her sister, Mrs. Annie Henry of Orono, and brother George Cooper, also of Orono.

Mrs. Hancock had been in failing health for some time, largely due to her advanced age.

The funeral on Wednesday afternoon will be held from her late residence at 345 Dublin Street at 1.30 o'clock to Newtonville, service at the home here and also at Newtonville United Church being conducted by Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church.

It's a Very Sick Anteater Being Fed

Dither is sick. Dither is that pile of stuff in the corner of this cage in the Bronx, N.Y., zoo. Dither is the zoo's anteater and there is no doubt about his illness for he has passed up his regular rations of raw hamburger, ants' eggs and evaporated milk. So Dither is now on a liquid diet.... Perhaps Dither will get some measure of consolation from the presence of his nurse, Miss Caroline Dunkleman, shown feeding him through a length of tube. What could make an anteater sick anyway?

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

PROTECTION

For the man with young children, heavy responsibilities and an income scarcely sufficient to meet the many demands upon it, an Imperial Life policy will provide the family protection that will mean peace of mind to him as the breadwinner.

It will insure the necessities of life for his loved ones should anything happen to him. It will also provide a cash fund or income for his own retirement years.

Such a policy provides a savings plan that works, yet calls for deposits much smaller, probably, than you think.

"FINANCIAL SECURITY THROUGH LIFE INSURANCE," by Paul Speicher, an international authority, is an interesting book which should be read by everyone who plans to provide financial security for himself and family. Your local Imperial Life representative will make a copy available to you without cost.

Storm Damage Light

A storm which brought heavy rain and a strong wind early Sunday morning, did little damage in the Peterborough district. A large willow tree at the George Street wharf was blown down and part of it fell on top of the harbormaster's office. Some trouble was encountered in the telephone communications but the damage was soon repaired.

More Huckleberries

Harry Seahaver and Bill McNott had a large supply of huckleberries on the market Saturday and they were perhaps the largest seen this year. The men say they were picked at Kosh Lake and that there are still plenty of the berries in that locality. They sold at seventy-five cents a large basket.

Douro Social Attracts Large Crowd

(By Staff Reporter)

DOURO, Sept. 6.—The lawn social at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, on the holiday attracted as large a crowd as usual, in spite of a little shiver in the wind toward evening. Women of the parish made their main contribution in a chicken supper, and also in stocking some of the booths, and the men took charge of an afternoon of sports in a field down the road. The combination was as successful as ever.

Softball Tournament

Included in the field program was a softball tournament that started with a burst of enthusiasm, zoomed along with considerable argument mixed with the rooting, and finally towards sunset ran down as the zest wore thin from a wide margin of runs in the finals. The Growlers defeated the Silver Nines by 12 to 2 in an unfinished game. Both teams were from Peterborough. That last clash was nearly as one-sided as the score by which Silver Nines trimmed the "Little Harlem" aggregation from the south end of the city. The "Herlems" won their first two games and objected to being thrust into the elimination stage, but they finally consented, and were soon in trouble. They piled up a big inning towards the end but it was too late.

In another section of the field the horseshoe doubles went along all afternoon, first prize money going to the famous Roseneath pair, Crowe and Marsden, who apparently are all set for the fall fair engagements. Girven and Fairbairn of Lakefield finished second, and Martin Coughlin and Fred Walsh of Douro third. The consolation prize went to Payne brothers of Warsaw.

Results of Races

Results of some of the races were as follows:

Police Probing "Alky" Drinking

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 6.—Acting on complaints, Constable W. Wellman arrested a young man here Sunday morning, said to have been "very much" under the influence of rubbing alcohol. A second man was said by the constable to have been in the public park Sunday afternoon unable to move from effects of the alcohol.

The constable is carrying on an extensive investigation in an effort to learn the source of their purchases. "I intend to stamp out the drinking of rubbing alcohol in this town. They get drunk on that stuff and the hotels are blamed," he said.

Decoration Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 6.—Decoration and memorial services were held on Sunday afternoon at Merrill's Church and Cemetery. Rev. M. L. Hinton of Castleton was the speaker. The Circle members rendered excellent music for the occasion under the direction of Mrs. S. Thackeray, organist.

More steel is being used in Germany than ever before.

Chatty Bandit Takes Victim For Ride After Robbing Him

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 6.

A BANDIT who addressed his victim my name and took him riding for many miles in the country after robbing him was sought by police today.

Leslie Zolomy returned to his gas station at Beach Road and Ottawa streets from a drive at 3.15 a.m. today and was putting his money in the safe when a man climbed out of the grease pit and covered him with a revolver. He forced Zolomy to give up his money and then ordered him to get into his car, climbing into the back seat himself. Zolomy was compelled to drive nearly to Beamsville, where the bandit made him get out, took the car and sped off in the direction of Hamilton.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY KEARNS

The death of Mrs. Mary Kearns, former resident of Peterborough, occurred at Weston Hospital at midnight Saturday following a short illness.

She was born in Emily township, daughter of the late William Sullivan and Margaret Hickey, and resided in this city for a number of years before moving to Weston about 18 years ago.

She is survived by one brother, Dennis Sullivan of Peterborough and one sister, Rev. Sister Felicitas of Vancouver.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the residence of her brother, Dennis Sullivan, 540 Downie street, to St. Peter's Cathedral for Requiem Mass at 9 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Masterson sang mass at the cathedral and present in the sanctuary was Rev. J. J. Maloney of Sacred Heart Church. Grave side prayers at St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore, were said by Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Ennismore.

FRANCIS ERNEST JOYES

The death occurred early Sunday morning at Nicholls Hospital, after a lengthy illness, of Francis Joyes. He was in his 56th year.

The deceased was born in Brixton, London, England, and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Miller Joyes. He came to Canada in 1907 and since then has resided in Peterborough. He has been an employee of the Canadian General Electric company for the past 26 years, in the capacity of foreman.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, Ena Jean Stewart, three daughters, Maude, Catherine and Myrtle, and twin sons, Stewart and Stanley, all at home; also four brothers, Charles of this city, Edward, Alfred and Arthur, all of Essex County, England.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence at 247 Burnham street to St. Luke's Anglican church, Rev. N. H. Noble officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. MARY JANE FINNIE

Death came on Sunday to one of Peterborough's oldest and most highly respected citizens, in the passing of Mrs. Mary Jane Finnie, 211 Barnardo avenue. She was in her 91st year.

Her funeral, largely attended by many friends and relatives, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from St. Paul's Presbyterian church, with the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiating. Previous to the funeral the remains rested at Comstock's Funeral Home at 305 Water street.

Mrs. Finnie was one of St. Paul's most active workers, besides being its oldest member. She was active in the work of the Ladies' Aid and the Women's Missionary Society, always eager to be of assistance in any way possible. Deeply religious, she was faithful in attendance at prayer-meetings and church services and a loyal supporter of the minister. Her passing closes a life time of service to her church and community. She was the type of woman to whom the Presbyterian church at large owes much of its strength.

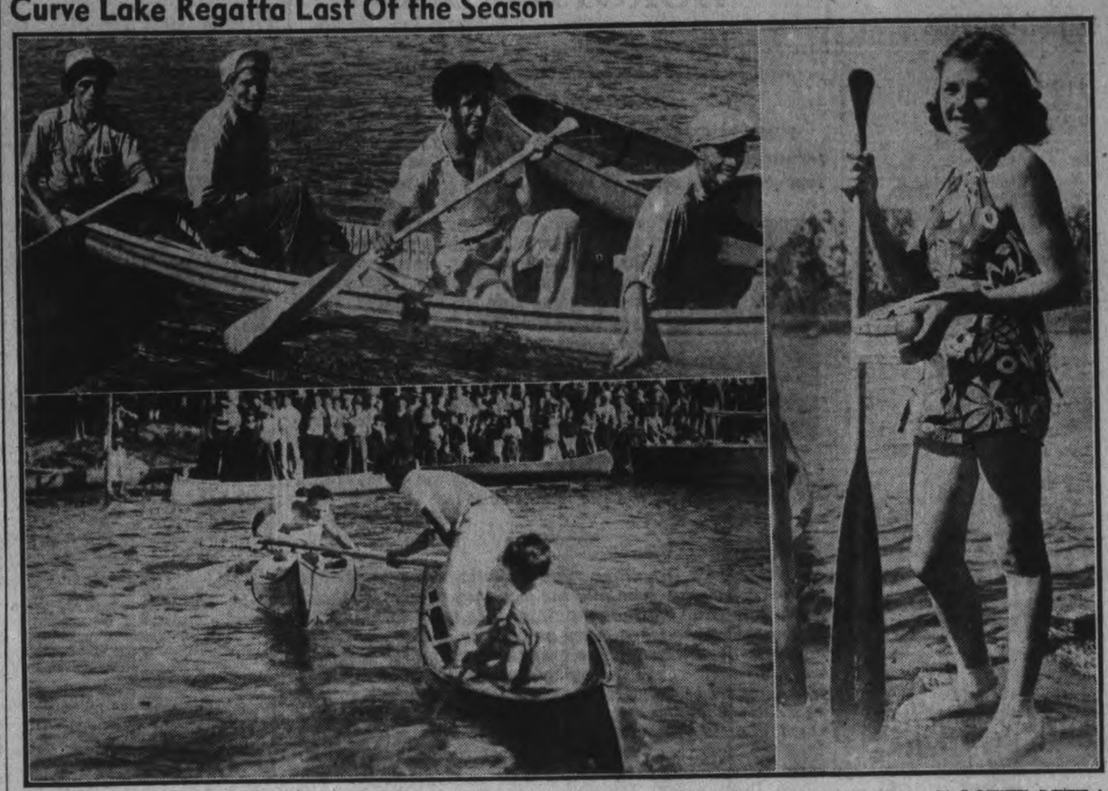
She was born in South Monaghan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Moncrief. Her husband, Edward Finnie, is deceased. She was the oldest member of St. Paul's church here and one of its most active workers.

Surviving are one son, Herman of St. Catherines; two daughters, Mabel, and Maude at home; one brother, John Moncrief of South Monaghan; and one sister, Mrs. William Morrison of South Monaghan. One son, George, and one daughter, Mrs. J. W. F. Hall, are deceased.

KILLED BY SAVAGES

CANBERRA, Australia—(CP). — A native constable was killed and another seriously wounded when savages attacked a New Guinea patrol in the upper Leron River area of the Morobe district. Reinforcements restored order.

Curve Lake Regatta Last Of the Season



Last of the regattas in the 1938 season was run off at Curve Lake in a chill breeze on Labor Day before a crowd of several hundred people, many of them tourists from the United States. Competition was among the keenest to be witnessed at any regatta this year, athletes battling a strong cross wind on most courses. Six Taylors from Curve Lake were point winners in many events. At TOP LEFT are four of them, winners in the war canoe race. They are Steve, Clayburn, John and Richard Taylor. At LOWER LEFT is the outstanding event of the games, a tilting contest between Herb Cardwell of Wallace's Point and Amos Irons of Curve Lake. They battled for half an hour until Cardwell's jousting stick was broken, and the event called a draw. Cardwell is crouched facing the camera. At RIGHT is Lottie Johnson of Curve Lake, winner of the women's crab race.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters

Y.W. CAMP CLOSED.

The Y.W.C.A.'s camp Inglestane on Stoney Lake closed its doors for another season on Saturday. Officials said it was one of the best years in the entire history of the organization.

COMPETING AT C.N.E.

The Peterborough team in inter-county competition at the Canadian National Exhibition Wednesday is composed of Marion Beatty and Alice Burns of Otonabee, Irene Kidd of Indian River and Mary Barrie of Asphodel.

TO DISCUSS GARDENING.

John A. Smith, George Benton, Frank Biddle and several other members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society are going to Bailieboro tonight to discuss plans and flower gardens with some of the residents of the highway community.

LAST REGATTA HELD

A sure sign of fall, less fallible than the cold weather of the last week, was the last regatta of the season, run off at Curve Lake Indian reserve on Labor Day. When a Wednesday afternoon or any other week holiday passes by without any water sports in this district, it's a sure sign old man winter is in the offing.

DRUNK IN CHARGE.

Jack DeCarlo, 543 Parnell street was charged before Magistrate Campbell in city court today with being intoxicated in charge of a motor vehicle. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week. DeCarlo was arrested at six o'clock Monday night at the intersection of George and Charlotte streets by Traffic Officer Bud Clarke, and it is said to have been in a borrowed car.

TWO CARS DAMAGED

Early Sunday morning two cars were involved in a collision on Park street, south of the Ovaltine plant, and both vehicles were damaged. According to the account as given by the drivers to Provincial Constable David Silvester, a car driven by Orval Craig, Aylmer street, struck another car in the rear, which is owned and was driven by James Hoy, 44 Monaghan Road. No person was injured.

CLOTHES-LINE THIEVES BUSY.

For the second time within 12 months thieves cleaned a clothesline at the home of Mrs. Ethel Primeau, 7 Charles street in Ashburnham on Saturday night. They took a caracul fur coat and other articles of apparel. On the first visit several months ago, several pairs of women's stockings were taken. Police made regular trips to the jungle on Burnham's Point close by but not even one transient was in the regular haunts.

LIBRARY HOURS.

Commencing Wednesday, September 7th, the Juvenile Department of the Public Library will be open from 9 until 12 in the morning and from 3 until 6 in the afternoons.

MIDNITE SHOW POPULAR

Cool weather failed to lessen the attendance at the two theatres here Sunday night when midnight shows were held. At the Capitol, a line-up of patrons stretched from the ticket booth south to Turner's Store a few minutes before the midnight hour.

GARDEN RAIDED

Mrs. E. Alberico, 560 Donegal street reported to the police over the week-end that some person had raided her garden in the rear of her home Saturday night and carried away, 45 canteloupes. The thieves stole almost the entire crop of the luscious melons.

A RAIN PROOF RADIO

Answering a telephone call from an Edinburgh street resident early Sunday morning Police Sergeant William Wigg, found a table model Marconi radio lying on the lawn and evidently the machine had been there through the heavy rain storm. Investigation revealed that the radio had been taken from the Johnston Tire and Battery Store on George street. Some person had climbed the barricade around the store, built after the recent fire, and carried off the radio. The dousing from the rain did not affect the set as it produced fine reception when hooked up at the police station.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC UP

Holiday traffic over the C.P.R. was considerably in excess of Labor Day a year ago, T. G. M. Jamieson reported this morning. The bulk of tickets sold on Friday and Saturday with others on Monday, mostly for Toronto.

SAYS BETTER BUSINESS

"Friday's business was the best we've had in many months," Robt. Grafstein of the Silk Shoppe remarked to the Examiner today. "Business has been improving for some time, but Friday was very good."

ANOTHER FINE MUSKIE.

Cleve Deymond, C.N.R. dispatcher at Lindsay is the champion fisherman of the town. Over the week-end he landed a 21-pound maskinonge at his summer home near Pleasant Point. He had quite a battle subduing the fighter when he got it into the canoe as it threw the hooks and started to jump around the boat.

STILL MORE FISH

Nelson Davis, 272 Rogers street joined the army of successful fishermen this morning when he landed an eight pound muskie at the C.P.R. Bridge in the Otonabee River. He was using a Williams jointed plug. Provincial Constable David Silvester hooked a dandy nine pounder near the Mark Street wharf in the Little Lake and landed it after a brisk fight. It was the first lunge he has caught during the eight years he has been stationed in Peterborough.

COUNCIL MEETING.

City Council meeting for September will be held this evening, followed on Friday night by a Relief Committee meeting.

SEASONAL CHANGES.

The straw hat season ended on Monday, not that it amounted to much this year anyway; and the oyster season arrived in some of the stores along the main street.

BICYCLES STOLEN

Six bicycle owners reported to police on Saturday night that their machines had been stolen between six and 10 o'clock and before Sunday night four of the six had been recovered by city officers During the past few weeks there has been an epidemic of such thefts and police believe it is the work of a gang of youngsters who merely take the bicycles for a spin and then abandon them.

HOLIDAY HILARITY.

Seven customers faced Magistrate W. A. Campbell in city court this morning charged with being drunk over the holiday. Two were dismissed, one laid over a week and the other four paid fines. A fine looking, well dressed youth, one of the seven, told the Magistrate he was 17 years of age and that he had obtained wine from the Wine Store by saying he was 21 years of age. He was six feet tall and looked older than he was. The Magistrate gave him a stern reprimand for his foolish action and fined him $13 and costs.

MOTORED 2150 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baptie returned home during the week-end from an extensive motor trip during the last two weeks through seven states. Their 2150-mile itinerary took them down through New York and Pennsylvania and over the Skyline Drive to North Carolina and Virginia. They spent three days in Washington and returned by way of Philadelphia, up the Delaware to Stroudsburg, and the Hudson route to Saratoga Springs.

"MAN".

"Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for "First Church of Christ Scientist," Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee . . . O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man that trusteth in three." (Psalms 84: 4, 12) Selections from the Bible included the following from Isaiah 43: 6, 7) "I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following. "The scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God. Matter is not that likeness. The likeness of Spirit cannot be so unlike Spirit. Man is spiritual and perfect; and because he is spiritual and perfect, he must be so understood in Christian Science."

Weights Over Six Pounds

The great-grandfather of the fightenest tribe of game fish in the Kawarthas has at last been captured. He is a small-mouthed black bass, and tipped the scales at six pounds, nine ounces, a record that in the opinion of veteran fishermen has not been equalled in the past twenty years in local waters. The lucky fisherman is Rae McWilliams of 570 Bolivar Street, and he hooked the bass while casting in the Otonabee River midway between First and Second Bridge. Proof that this is a member of the small-mouthed variety may be seen by the fact that the jaw of the fish does not extend beyond the eye, that is back of a straight line drawn vertically through the eye. The fish is being mounted.

Rae McWilliams Lands Black Bass Which Weighs Over Six Pounds

THE GREAT grandfather of small mouthed black bass has been caught at last and he tipped the scales at six pounds nine ounces two hours after being taken from the water.

The fighter was landed after a brisk twenty minute battle by Rae McWilliams, 570 Bolivar Street at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon on the Otonabee River, midway between first and second bridge. McWilliams was casting from a canoe using a pointed perch plug manufactured in this city by George Williams and the bass was securely hooked in both the upper and lower jaws by separate treble hooks. He measured 22 inches in length and 18 inches in girth and was a perfectly symmetrical specimen.

There were four people in the canoe at the time, A. R. McWilliams, Rae's father and the latter's sister, May McWilliams with her girl friend Margaret Taylor of Toronto.

George Robertson and George Williams of Peterborough who are veteran fishermen saw the bass on Saturday evening and agreed that it belonged to the small mouthed variety. The owner is having it mounted as a permanent souvenir.

Constable Hears Noise In His Home Finds Drunk Asleep

Hastings, Sept. 6.

WHEN Town Constable William Wellman investigated a noise he heard in the dining-room of his home at an early hour on Sunday morning, he found an inebriate snoring peacefully in his favorite rocker. Peanuts were tramped into the floor and two old boards were in a corner of the room.

The intruder said he started for the constable's house shortly after midnight to report the theft of his watch, but could not remember how he got in nor offer an explanation for the peanuts or boards.

The Rambling REPORTERS

MANY U.S. CARS.

Overheard at the Curve Lake Regatta on Monday:

One American tourist to another: "Do you know if this is the only road out of here?"

Second tourist: "As far as I know it is."

First tourist: "I was afraid of that."

Despite the washboard road cars from nearly a quarter of the states in the Union were present, outnumbering Canadian licences.

REEVE BOSTS PICNIC.

If all the visitors at the Douro picnic on Monday were as helpful as Reeve Wellie Caldwell of Chandos, P. G. Towns wouldn't have much to worry about. Reeve Caldwell engaged Alex. L. Elliot, M.L.A., in a conversational session, interrupted by a young lady selling tickets for a draw. Presumably the two men don't "see eye to eye" politically, and that may have been one influence prompting the Reeve's suggestion that he'd buy two tickets if Mr. Elliott took four. "You're not going to stump me on that," Mr. Elliott remarked, and the girl disposed of six tickets in one sale.—T.

Firemen Called To 3 Small Fires

The cold snap over the holiday brought its renewal of calls to the Fire Department. Three blazes were reported during the week-end, none of them serious.

On Saturday afternoon a small roof fire caused by sparks from a chimney, broke out at the home of H. C. Sootheran, 455 Gilmour street. Damage was negligible. A defective fireplace at the home of Stanley Darling, 308 Margaret avenue, brought firemen hurrying on Sunday night shortly after eleven o'clock. The blaze burned through the mantel and caused $50 damage. This morning overheated pipes in the basement of an apartment house at 293 King street caused considerable smoke damage to two apartments.

Shot From 40 Feet Off Magician Catches Slug In His Mouth

Fort Erie, Ont., Sept. 6.

PIFF PAFF POOFERS from Canada and the United States closed a three-day convention today with Magician Ted Anneman, New York, mystifying a crowd of 1,000 by apparently catching a rifle bullet in his mouth.

Police Chief Andrew Griffin marked the bullet and later identified the slug which Anneman spit out after a British Army Rifle was fired at the magician's open mouth from a distance of about 40 feet.

Hurried Exit Made

HASTINGS, Sept. 6.—Front street shoppers here Saturday night were seen to hurry from in front of a store after a car had parked at the curb near there. A curious newspaper correspondent decided to investigate the reason, later to his regret. Radiating from the car and permiating the atmosphere was a distinct odour of pole cat. The motorist evidently struck the little animal on the road.

Eight Miraculously Escape Injury When Light Car Completely Overturns

EIGHT PERSONS miraculously escaped serious injury on Sunday afternoon when a light roadster in which they were travelling struck a soft shoulder on a curve in the east end of Lakefield village and turned over in the ditch.

Dorothy Dolan, Ashburnham received a broken ankle and Della McMahon Maniece Avenue, a cut hand. All of the others escaped unhurt.

The car said to have been driven by Jack Gardner of this city with Albert Todd and Jim Parks in the front was owned by W. Cowling of Peterborough. Gardner borrowed the car to take a spin and near Lakefield the five young girls, out on an afternoon hike were given a ride by the men. Three girls sat in the rumble seat and the other two sat with their back to the cab.

Chief Hendren of Lakefield investigated the accident and arrested Gardner, on a charge of reckless driving. He was later released on bail.

Car Collides With Truck Load Of Cattle

Edward Faulkner, Omemee escaped with minor injuries shortly before noon today when his car was demolished in a collision with a truck loaded with cattle on the Lindsay Highway, half a mile east of Fowler's Corners.

The truck with seven head of cattle and two calves was owned by Melville Moncrief, R. R. 2 Peterborough and was being driven by Dennis Acreman, who was about to take the cattle to Toronto. Acreman had driven out of the Moncrief farm lane and was just started west when the Faulkner car struck the left rear dual wheel. Faluikner's car went into a spin and stopped in the south ditch, facing in the opposite direction to which it had been travelling. One cow was thrown from the truck and injured, and the universal and drive shaft were snapped off.

The Faulkner car was extensively damaged, the entire front assembly being pushed back several inches. The radiator was demolished front axle and front left wheel smashed and the windshield broken. Faulkner was driving east at the time and was taken in another car to the office of Dr. Earle in Omemee for attention. Provincial Constable Gordon Broughton investigated.

Girl Receives Injury To Leg

Fern Cruikshank, 18, of 324 Sherbrooke Street received cuts on her legs above the knee and over her eye Labor Day afternoon when the car in which she was a passenger swerved off the road near Selwyn and struck a culvert. When the crash came the door of the car flew open and Miss Cruikshank was thrown out. Jack Robson driver of the machine escaped with scratches. The accident happened when he was trying to avoid striking another machine. Miss Cruikshank's father, Hugh Cruikshank was in attendance at the Oshawa-Peterborough ball game and was paged and told of the mishap that his daughter had sustained.

When 50,000 workers left Bradford, England, in one day for a week at the seaside they carried $2,500,000 in their pockets.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 34

ON HER way back to the De Luxe, Noel walked fast. The truth is, she almost ran. But when she was within a few yards of the place, she slowed down and caught her breath. Then she walked in the cafe is if she had merely strolled in casually.

Julian was standing near the register, looking over a paper. He was the only one in the cafe aside from the proprietor. When he saw Noel, he threw down the paper and walked toward her. "So we didn't miss each other, after all? This is great. I'd about given up hope."

Noel said "Hello", a little shakily, realizing that she was still breathing rather too rapidly.

Then Julian took her arm and they were going out to his car. The sun was shining again, a little uncertainly perhaps, but quite gaily at that. And there were many hours left yet before it would be night.

Noel stole a glance at Julian's dark face. A wave of happiness swept over her. It was wonderful to be walking here beside him in the sunlight.

But she couldn't help seeing that there was a look of strain on Julian's face. "You look tired," Noel said.

He smiled. "I was—but I'm not now."

They reached the car. Then Julian said, his voice husky. "Rather a hectic morning. An operation at 10—an emergency, and too late, I'm afraid."

The look on his face went straight to Noel's heart. She made up her mind she must make him forget his work for a little while.

She said, "I'm going to drive, and you are going to sit beside me quietly, and not talk too much. You must try to relax."

"I'd like that, Julian answered. "It will give me a chance to look at you all I want to."

"You probably find the scenery more interesting," Noel retorted gaily. "We're going to the river—our river, aren't we?"

Julian nodded. "And I just remember that I forgot our lunch."

"We'll find a hamburger joint," she told him with a laugh.

Noel drove through the sleepy Sunday streets without any traffic problems at all. "I never noticed how quiet the city is on Sunday," she said. "Nobody seems in a hurry. People actually take time to be polite. I adore it."

"So do I," Julian said, relaxing against the seat. Then he said abruptly, "You've changed a lot, Noel. I fully expected you to be angry because I disappointed you. And here you are giving me your sweetest smile, and looking like a Botticelli angel—"

"Pul-lease," Noel laughed.

"I can't understand how Ruth got things so mixed up," Julian went on thoughtfully. "She knew I'd be in surgery at 10. It seems very strange that she didn't phone you and deliver my full message. It isn't like her at all to forget things like that. She's always so—"

"Yes, I know," Noel began supplying, "She's always so efficient." She gave a laugh and the veiled irony in her voice made Julian look at her in sudden surprise.

"She really is, Noel. This is the first time I've ever known her not to get things exactly right. She was probably in a hurry and didn't realize how important it was to me."

"Im quite sure she didn't," Noel said with another throaty little laugh.

"You don't actually believe she would do a thing like that on purpose." Julian asked incredulously. He was feeling puzzled by Noel's light banter.

"No, no, of course not!" Noel exclaimed, looking at him with widening eyes and uplifted brows.

She was thinking that there were times when Julian was deliciously naive. But then, she knew, that even the most brilliant of men were often obtuse when it came to women. She found herself looking at Julian and laughing again at the puzzled expression on his face.

"You women!" Julian exclaimed with mock contempt.

"After all," Noel went on, "it doesn't matter what she did, or why she did it— now. But if you had been there waiting for me, and I hadn't found it out eventually as I did through Laurie," she stopped, and gave another throaty laugh, "well, that would have been different."

"Wasnt it lucky for me that Laurie was there?" Julian queried seriously.

"Lucky for both of us, you mean," Noel said, and speeded up the car.

It was almost 5 oclock when they reached the place on the river where the rowboat was beached and everything seemed to be waiting for them.

They leaped from the car and ran a race for the oars. Julian reached them first. "Please let me have them," Noel begged.

Julian shook his head. "No, I always 'row my own boat,'" he said. He brought the cushions and soon had them arranged in one end. "Now you just sit here and relax," he told her.

"And look at you?" she came back.

"Well, if you prefer the scenery—?" Julian let the sentence hang in mid-air.

As soon as Noel was seated among the cushions, he gave the boat a push and stepped lightly in. "Shipmate ahoy! We're off."

Noel sat there watching the play of his brown muscles as he skillfully handled the boat. He had taken off his coat and was wearing a thin polo shirt with the collar open, showing the fine line of his bronzed throat. The expression on his face was one of vast contentment, mingled with something of the glee of a small boy on a holiday. "Great, isn't it?" he asked.

"It's wonderful," Noel said with sincerity.

"I keep asking myself," Julian began, "how much longer it's going to last?" Noel asked, though she felt she understood what he meant.

Julian let the oars rest in the locks for amoment, and looked at her. "How much longer you're going to keep on with this masquerade? If it goes on much longer, I shan't be able to tell which is the real you, and which is the one—you're pretending to be."

"You still refuse to believe I'm in earnest?" Noel let her hand trickle in the water and did not look up.

"A girl like you," Julian began seriously, "does not do what you're doing except from boredom or curiosity. It's too fantastic."

"So you think there couldn't possibly be another reason?" she asked slowly, still not looking at him.

"What other reason could there be?"

"There might be any number and all of them important," she parried. Then changed the subject. "Look, the sun is going down. I wish it wouldn't. It seems like a kind friend. Isn't it beautiful shining so faintly on the water?"

"Yes, very, but I still prefer looking at you."

"You wouldn't turn a poor working girl's head, now would you, mister?"

Julian ignored this. Then Noel exclaimed like a happy child. "I do believe there'll be a moon. We'll stay out here and wait for it."

"Listen, child," Julian drawled softly, "when that moon comes up, we'll be home and safe in our chaste little beds."

"Oh, will we?" she taunted. "Who's afraid of a big — yellow moon?"

Then Julian said with his whimsical smile. "I'm not taking any risks on being out here on the moonlight with you. The moon does queer things to people like me."

"You're afraid you might make love to me?" Noel's voice was light and teasing.

"Perhaps," Julian came back in a voice as nonchalant as her own. Then he said unexpectedly, dropping the oars again and letting the boat drift, "Theres plenty of room on this seat for two."

"Oh, but I'm so very shy— don't you remember?" she teased.

"But there isn't room enough where you're sitting for both of us," Julian went on.

"No, there really isn't," Noel agreed demurely.

"Then it stands to reason that you should come down here and sit beside me. If I moved up there, the boat would very likely capsize."

"Well, to save us both from a watery grave—" Noel moved carefully until she found herself beside him. "Now, you stick to your rowing, she said with a husky laugh.

But Julians arm already was around her. "I made a solemn vow that you'd go back to town completely and thoroughly unkissed," he said, and added, "but you see how it is. You're absolutely the most tantalizing, the and most irresistible girl I ever knew." With that, he put his lips against hers, and kissed her with an almost savage and hungry passion.

It was a long, long kiss.

When Julian released her at last, his eyes were serious. "What am I going to do about you, Noel?"

"The answer is really quite simple," she said demurely.

Julian shook his head. "There isn't any answer," he said in a voice that was almost bitter. And added, "There never will be."

DOROTHY DIX

Love Nests Are Never Permanent And It Is Always the Woman Who Is Left To Face Life Alone And Pay The Price When the Man Flees

DEAR MISS DIX—My lover and I are both married and separated from our mates. We have been living together for four years. He seems to love me, and I love him so much that when I am away from him I just seem dead, but when I suggest to him that we both get divorces and marry he goes up in the air, saying: "We are just as good as married. What's the use of going through all that?" Don't you think that if he really cared for me he would marry me to stop the gossip about us? We have lost all of our friends. His insurance is made out to his wife and his family, so if anything would happen to him I would be utterly penniless. The worry of all of this is killing me. What shall I do? Go on hoping he will change his mind and marry me, or leave him and try to start anew a life that is so mussed up?

DESPONDENT.

ANSWER:

Surely there is nothing more pathetic in the world than the optimism of women and the way they can befool themselves into thinking that the thing they want to happen is bound to happen when every probability is against it. The angels in heaven must weep over the poor, pitiful girls who wear out their youth in hoping and praying that the men they have set their hearts upon and who have never noticed them will by some miracle fall passionately in love with them, and over the neglected wives who hope against hope that the husbands who have tired of them and forsaken them will come back to them.

And, most of all, the angels must weep over the poor, deluded women who have thrown away everything for love and who go on hoping that they can persuade the men for whom they have sacrificed so much to marry them.

You are one of these victims of women's fatal optimism, and the sooner you rouse yourself up from your pipe dream and face reality, the better for you. Evidently your lover does not intend to marry you and never intended to do so, or else he would have taken steps long ago to legalize your relationship.

The man who persuades a woman to enter into a liaison with him, holding out a vague some-day marriage prospect to her, shows by that very act that he regards their affair as merely temporary; but he has it in his mind at the time to leave her when he gets tired of her, and that he does not propose to give her any hold upon him or his property. Otherwise he would marry her honestly and openly, and give her a decent place in society.

The longer you stay with this man who refuses to marry you or make any provision for you, the worse off you will be when he leaves you. You will be wise to try to make over your life if you can.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a widower in love with a woman some years my junior and she is in love with me. She would like to marry me, but her mother will not consent, as she wants her daughter to remain single and stay with her. She has no objection to me personally. The woman is in her thirties and thinks that if I should marry some one else, because I am lonely and need companionship and somebody to make me a comfortable home that it would prove that my love for here is not as deep as I profess it to be. She thinks my love for her should keep me single, and her solution of the situation is for me to get a housekeeper and still devote myself to her. What do you think?

A. E. O.

ANSWER:

I think the lady wishes to eat her wedding cake, so to speak, and have it still. She wants to keep you dangling on a string and enjoy the thrill of your love-making and your presents and attentions, and give nothing in return. Pretty selfish, I'll say.

But I don't think you will miss much in not getting her, for evidently she is not only not in love with you but is one of the celibate-minded women to whom marriage does not appeal. If she was a normal woman, of 30, and saw what was probably her last chance at a husband, she would grab him, mother or no mother.

Anyway, a man is foolish to marry a woman who thinks more of her mother than she does of him. He will always run a poor second to Mother, and that is something few men enjoy. Better look around for a lady who believes more in reciprocity in love.

DEAR MISS DIX—Is it proper for girls to call their employers by their given names? When I call my husband I can hear the phone girl say: "Jim, your wife wants you." When we go out and meet any girl in his employ she will call out: "Hello, Jim." I claim that business and familiarity do not mix and that these girls would not act that way if he was not familiar with them. What would my husband think if every clerk I met called out: "Hi, Mary," to me?

A DISGUSTED WIFE.

ANSWER:

It is certainly very bad form and detracts from an employer's dignity for him to address his girl employes by their first names or to permit them to call him by his. Even when a man's sister works for him they should Mister and Miss each other in business hours. But you are taking the matter entirely too seriously. Probably your husband's freedom with his employes means nothing except that he is one of the hail-fellow-well-met sort who treats every one with familiarity.

DEAR MISS DIX—A girl who works in the same office I do lives on a street that is on my way to work and because I got tired of picking her up and told her I wouldn't do it any more she cried to the boss about it. He asked me what about it and, of course, I have to pick her up again. What now?

ON THE FENCE.

ANSWER:

You certainly are in a predicament, but watch out. A girl with that kind of persistence will get you if you aren't careful.

This Swag Valance Makes Itself

What beautiful draperies! Graceful, up to the minute, easy to make!

Secret of their charm is the clever swag valance. No shaping! No pleating! It's a straight, unlined length of sheer material—gauze, chiffon, marquisette, net, or fine voile—drawn through "festoon rings" (see circular sketch) screwed to upper corners of window casing. Rings hold fabric in place and you adjust folds to please yourself.

Interesting color contrast between valance and draperies is especially smart; ball fringe adds a gay note. If draperies are beige or gray, choose a contrasting color for valance that harmonizes with room scheme—bronze-green, plum, claret, or cedar-rose combine gorgeously with neutral shades.

You'll find diagrams and step-by-step directions for all kinds of easy-to-make valances, draperies, curtains in our 32-page booklet. Valance boards, cornices. Styles for every type of room. Fabrics. Color schemes.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of NEW IDEAS IN MAKING CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

KNARF AND Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, were talking to their good friend, Mr. Punch.

"We went to the seashore today with the children," Hanid told Mr. Punch.

"And do you know, something?" Knarf broke in. "We heard the waves speaking. Only we couldn't understand what they were speaking about."

Mr. Punch smiled. "Yes," he said, "the waves were always speaking. But it's pretty hard to understand them. They speak their own language. It's wave language. It takes quite a while to learn."

"THEN YOU LISTEN VERY CAREFULLY"

"And do you know it, Mr. Punch?" Hanid asked.

He nodded. "Oh yes,. I learned to speak wave language when I was a sailor."

The two shadow children looked at him in surprise. "A sailor! We didn't know you were ever a sailor!"

He knows Language.

"Yes, indeed. I was a sailor all right. I did lots of things, too. But let me tell you how I learned to understand wave language. It's really quite simple. Anyone can learn to understand it as well as I do. All you have to do is follow the rules."

"What are the rules? Tell us, please."

"Well, the first rule is to walk along the seashore and look for a shell—a nice deep shell. Then you put the shell to your ear and listen very carefully. You'll soon hear a low murmuring sound. Do you know what that sound is?"

"What is it, Mr. Punch?"

"It's the echo of what the waves are saying. Now that makes everything very simple, you see. For all you have to do is to understand the echo and—presto! you know exactly what they say."

"But how can you understand the echo?" Hanid finally succeeded in saying. "That's just as hard as understanding the waves, isn't it?"

"Perhaps it is for some folks, but it wasn't for me. Just keep listening. By and by you'll understand all right." With that Mr. Punch looked at his watch. "Dear me! It's getting late. I guess it's time we were all in bed."

And he smiled again and off he went to bed. Now what do you think of that?

Morrow—Foote

The marriage of Leona May Foote, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foote, 196 Perry Street, to Jack Frederick Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrow, 563 Walnut Street, was solemnized at one o'clock on Saturday at St. Paul's manse, with Rev. A. T. Barr conducting the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in navy blue sheer made with full, buffant skirt, short puffed sleeves and a wide taffeta sash. Her bridal bouquet was of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Helen Morrow, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, wearing a frock of wine corded silk with short puffed sleeves and black suede accessories. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

Mr. Toby Wells was best man.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold compact and to the best man a leather wallet.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother received in a gown of navy blue flowered chiffon. The groom's mother was wearing navy blue sheer with matching accessories and rose corsage.

Afterwards the bride and groom left by motor for Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a green dress with luggage tan accessories, and sand blanket cloth coat. On their return they will live at 221 Dublin Street.

Butler—Overs

Vari-colored gladioli decorated the altar of St. Mary's Church, Barrie, for the wedding at nine o'clock on Labor Day morning of Florence Bernadette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Overs, who became the bride of Mr. Patrick Eugene Butler, of the Bank of Toronto staff, Peterborough, and son of Mrs. Butler and the late Owen Butler, Cobourg. Very Rev. Dean J. M. Clair officiated, and Mr. Stuart Cauley, Peterborough, nephew of the bridegroom, played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white chiffon velvet made on princess lines, with cowl neckline buttons down the back, and short train. She wore a matching Juliet cap and a shoulder veil, and carried Joanna Hill roses. The maid of honor, Miss Alice Overs, Toronto, sister of the bride, wore dubonnet velvet with square neckline, shirred sleeves, buttons down the back, and matching velvet handmade toque. She carried blue cornflowers.

Mr. Kenneth A. Butler, Rochester, N.Y., was his brother's groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, wearing navy sheer, with corsage of Sunburst roses, and the bridegroom's mother, black lace with corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling, the bride donned a French model black wool suit with black accessories.

Guests attended from Detroit, Rochester, Toronto, Peterborough and Cobourg.

✧ ✧ ✧

Bacon—Grady

An early Autumn wedding was solemnized on Monday morning, September 5, in Sacred Heart Church, when Mary Yvonne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grady, Lock street, became the bride of Roy Francis Bacon, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Bacon. Father O'Brien officiated at the ceremony.

The church was tastefully decorated with gladioli, and during the service wedding music was played by Mr. John Armstrong, church organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was becomingly gowned in white satin made on princess lines with short train. Tiny buttons fastened from neckline to waist at the back, and the bridal veil of fine net was caught with a coronet or orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of American Beauty Roses.

Attending the bride were her two sisters, Rita and Agnes, the former in bouffant pink net with pastel blue trim, the latter in blue net with pink trim in matching style. Both wore shoulder-length veils and carried old-fashioned nosegays.

Attending the groom was Mr. Joe Collins, and the ushers were Mr. Wm. Grady, brother of the bride, and Gerard Connelley.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast for forty guests was held at Walkerfield house. Receiving with the bridal party was Mrs. Grady, in orchid printed chiffon with picture hat of black taffeta and corsage of gladioli, and Mrs. Bacon, mother of the groom, in a graceful gown of black suede lace and matching hat, and corsage of roses.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Bacon left on a motor trip to Detroit. The bride's going-away ensemble was a suit of fine grey wool with black lamb trim, black hat and matching accessories. On their return they will live at 225 Crescent street.

Cecil Perdue Weds Vivian Whitmore

A Labor Day wedding of much interest took place at nine o'clock Monday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, when Miss Vivian Whitemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Whitemore, Apsley, became the bride of Cecil, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Perdue, Sutherland street. Rev. J. Walsh performed the marriage, and Miss Margaret McCabe presided at the organ. During the ceremony Mrs. D. Campanaro sang Millard's "Ave Maria," and during the signing of the register "This Is My Prayer For You."

The bride wore white suede lace made in redingote style over satin, with Queen Anne collar, and a long net veil which flowed gracefully from a halo of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book from which rapture roses fell in cascade effect, and wore white kid gloves and slippers.

Miss Phyllis Perdue, sister of the bridegroom, wore a toe-length pink chiffon gown fashioned in princess style, with black buttoning and open-crowned halo hat of robins-egg blue, blue lace mittens and slippers. She carried a bouquet of Premier roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Oscar Perdue.

A wedding breakfast at the home of the bridegroom's parents on Sutherland street was attended by the immediate family. Later the couple left by motor for Detroit and other points. For travelling the bride wore a dress of hunter's green crepe with cowl neckline, and accessories to match. On their return they will reside at 199 Hunter street.

Dora H. Beatty Weds Peter McArthur

Gladioli, ferns and palms made a decorative setting for the house wedding of Dora Helen Beatty and Peter McArthur, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. McArthur, Weller street, at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Beatty, Homewood avenue, on Saturday afternoon. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church conducted the ceremony, and the wedding march was played by Miss Edith Guiry.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a toe-length dress of white sheer over satin, with white satin shirred jacket, and lace mittens. Her white tulle veil fell softly from a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of deep red Bettertime roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Patricia McCarrell, wore a toe-length gown of pastel blue taffeta with shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of pink Butterfly roses.

Mr. Cyril (Cy) Ney of Midland, Ont., was best man.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about 35 guests.

Mrs. C. Weston, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. F. C. Dawe presided at the tea tables. Mrs. Beatty, mother of the bride, and Mrs. T. McArthur, mother of the groom, received, the former wearing a gown of cream lace with corsage of roses, and the latter in an ensemble of black crepe with tricorne hat and corsage of tea roses.

Later the bride and groom left by motor for points in the United States the bride travelling in a frock of beige crepe with matching accessories, and coat of parisand. On their return they will live in Peterborough.

Entertains in Honor of Daughter

Mrs. J. S. Chambers entertained at a delightful informal trousseau tea on Saturday, in honor of her youngest daughter Ruth Beryl, whose marriage to Herbert Bronson Cowan Jr. takes place the latter part of this week.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Fred Chambers, of Windsor, Miss Chambers' sister-in-law, little Diane Copping and Shirley Chambers welcomed the guests, the former in frilled crepe-de-chine, and the latter in pale blue taffeta with small pink appliques. Both wore twin bows of blue ribbon in their hair, and blue socks.

The tea table was arranged with a lace cloth, centred with a silver basket of asters, the same shade as the lighted sunlight tapers. Mrs. H. B. Cowan Sr., mother of the bridegroom, poured tea, and Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson was in charge of the ices. Tea assistants were: Mrs. Stan Pogue, sister of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Richard Cowan.

Vari-coloured gladioli and asters were used effectively as decorations.

In charge of the trousseau rooms were: Mrs. R. H. Wickett of Port Hope, and Miss Margaret Deyell of Toronto, linens and gifts; and Mrs. Brian Copping, personal apparel.

Helen Bray Weds Stanley Andrews Westwood Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 6.—St. Michael's Anglican Church at Westwood was the scene of an interesting wedding Saturday afternoon. Helen Bray, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bray, Birdsalls, became the bride of Arthur Lewis Stanley Andrews, Norwood, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Andrews of Newport, Monmouth, England.

The Rev. R. E. Lemon, rector of Norwood and Westwood Anglican churches officiated. The church was prettily decorated with gladiolli, asters, sinnias, snapdragon and fern. Miss Winnifred Carpenter of Toronto cousin of the bride played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, Miss Dorothy French of Peterborough sang "Because."

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

She wore a gown of white silk lace over satin, designed on Princess style with leg of mutton sleeves and a train. Her veil was of silk net and was in halo shape with satin applique corners. The cap was trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Edith Bray, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her dress was of pink net over taffeta trimmed with blue flowers and full skirt. She wore a pink picture hat and pink accessories. She carried a bouquet of briar cliff roses.

Mr. Ronald Webster of Norwood was groomsman. Charles Bray, brother of the bride, and Alfred Reed of Birdsall were ushers. Each had in his lapel a white carnation.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the cremonies. Mrs. Bray received in a gown of navy and white silk crepe with white accessories.

The bride's travelling costume was a green crepe dress with brown cape and accessories. On their return from a trip they will reside in South Dummer.

Among out of town guests at the wedding and reception were: Mr. and Mrs. John A. French, and Leslie and Dorothy French, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carpenter, Mrs. Samuel Carpenter and Frances, Irene Tinney, Helena Davies, Evelyn Carpenter and Maurice Dickson all of Peterborough; Miss Winnifred Carpenter, Toronto.

Funeral on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence. Rev. N. H. Noble officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

DRAKE, Frederick J.— On Sunday, September 4, 1938, Frederick J. Drake, 228 Dublin Street, in his 68th year. Funeral on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water Street, Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

BENNETT—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. W. Bennett, who passed away on September 6th, 1937.

When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet, alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If she only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache,
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Sadly missed by Husband and children.

BENNETT—In loving memory of a dear sister, Mrs. W. Bennett, who passed away on September 6th, 1937.

In all the world we shall not find
A heart so wonderfully kind,
So soft a voice, so sweet a smile,
An inspiration so worth while,
A sympathy so sure, so deep,
A love so beautiful to keep.
—Sadly missed by her sister—May.

Bill Lee and Clay Bryant, Cubs—Pitched team to 3-0 and 4-3 triumphs over league-leading Pirates, Bryant turning in six-hitter.

Spud Chandler and Bill Dickey, Yankees — Chandler scattered A's eight hits in 5-2 opener; Dickey's 26th homer, with man on, produced deciding runs in 6-3 night-cap.

Harry Craft and Red Barrett, Reds—Craft's eight-inning homer won first game from Cardinals, 4-3; Barrett pitched seven-hit ball in 4-2 second game.

Gene Desautels and Pinky Higgins, Red Sox—Former drove in three runs with triple and two singles in 14-4 rout of Senators; Higgins, after bagging pair of triples in opener, led Sox to 8-6 triumph in night-cap with doubles and single.

Cliff Melton, Giants, and Al Hollingsworth, Phillies—Melton hurled three-hit, 7-0 shutout in opener; Hollingsworth fanned seven as Phils took second game, 4-3.

Howard Mills, Browns, and Billy Rogell, Tigers—Mills hurled four-hit ball and drove in deciding run as Browns won, 3-2; Rogell's triple with bases loaded earned Tigers split with 9-3 victory in six-inning night-cap.

Charlie Sutcliffe and Lou Fette, Cubs—Rookie's double featured winning four-run rally in 5-4 defeat of Dodgers, while Fette gave Bees sweep by scattering 12 hits for 5-3 win.

Odell Hale and Frankie Pytlak, Indians—Led team to 6-4 and 4-2 triumphs over White Sox, Hale with homer and double in opener, Pytlak with three singles, one was bases loaded, in second game.

49 NOTICES 49

TORONTO, August 24th, 1938.

In compliance with the requirements of the Act respecting the Survey of Lands, Chapter 232, R.S.O., 1937, Section 17, Notice is hereby given, that the Survey to define the South Boundary of the Township of Methuen across Concessions V. to XII., both inclusive; the West Boundary of the said Township across Lots 1 to 20, both inclusive, and the Front Angles of Lots 11 to 20, both inclusive, in Concessions V. to XII. in the said Township, has been performed by Ontario Land Surveyor J. W. Pierce of Peterborough, who has filed the returns of this Survey in triplicate, in this Department.

On the Fifth Day of October, 1938, at 10.30 a.m., the returns of this Survey will be considered, and if necessary, a Hearing of any objections that may be filed before that date, will be held at the Parliament Buildings.

In the event of no objections being filed, the Survey will be confirmed in accordance with the provisions of the Act, above mentioned.

A copy of the Surveyor's Report and Plan may be seen at the Township Clerk's Office in Havelock or at the Office of the Surveyor-General, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

PETER HEENAN,
Minister of Lands and Forests.

Reds Take Cards For Pair 4-3, 4-2 To Close In On Lead As Bucs Drop Twin Bill To Cubs

By Bill Boni
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Pittsburgh Pirates, who stumbled around for weeks without suffering any damage beyond that to their self-esteem, to-day awoke to the fact that the law of baseball averages, as well as the Reds and Cubs, are catching up with them.

Emerging from yesterday's holiday festivities on the short end of two games with Chicago, the battered Buccaneers also discovered that their National League lead had been cut by two full games. For while the Cubs were whipping them 3-0 and 4-2 decisions from the Cardinals—a combination of circumstances which left Cincinnati only four games off the pace in second place and Chicago five games away in third.

It is a situation which threatens to become even more unpleasant for Pie Traynor's pennant-aspiring crew. For one thing the Reds getting their second wind coming down the home stretch, have won eight of their last nine, while the Pirates have taken only one out of five.

For another, the Pirates still have nine games to play with Cincinnati, two of them this week. For a third, the Reds' pitching staff should be strengthened any day now (perhaps to-day) by the return of Johnny Vander Meer, and for a fourth, if a fourth is needed, that same staff is getting along right nicely without no-hit John.

Three Unearned Runs.

Even the breaks went against the Pirates, except at the box office. An overflow crowd of 42,545, largest of the day's total big-league attendance of 179,560, at Forbes Field saw the Cubs score three unearned runs to take the first game despite Ed Brandt's five-hit pitching job. They then won the second on a ninth-inning ground rule double by Carl Reynolds and Hank O'Dea's single.

Four of the other bargain bills also resulted in clean sweeps. In the National League, Tot Pressnell was charged with both defeats as Boston Bees turned back Brooklyn Dodgers 5-4 and 5-3.

In the American League the Yankees beat the Athletics 5-2 and 6-3; the Red Sox wallopped the Senators 14-4 and 8-6, and the Indians won their sixth and seventh straight, over the White Sox, by scores of 6-4 and 4-2. The Yankees victories were the 14th of the year for Spud Chandler and Monte Pearson, while Lou Gehrig broke his own major league record and tied Babe Ruth's lifetime mark by topping 100 runs driven in for the 13th straight year.

The Giants, after Cliff Melton had pitched a three-hit, 7-0 shutout in the opener, got no better than an even break with the Phils, who took the nightcap 4-3 as Al Hollingsworth struck out seven. The Tigers and Browns also split, St. Louis winning the first 3-2 on Southpaw Howard Mills' four-hit pitching and Detroit the six-inning nightcap 9-3 in which Eldon Auker got credit for the victory before a line drive by Beau Bell knocked him down. The submarine baller had to be carried from the field.

Bill Terry's Giants Are Still Built Around Mighty Mel Ott

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—The Giants are coming back and though they may not come far enough this year to pass the Pirates the ball club is fighting desperately for every game. Whatever else happens to the team there will be one man always trying, always battling to win, with zeal of a college sophomore who is determined to make the varsity, and the same enthusiasm. What though the Giants' pitchers' arms suddenly fall off, and the infield folds up like a tent in a blizzard, there's still one guy they can't stop, the Little Giant, Mel Ott.

Ott, who is having his greatest year at 29, his thirteenth season in the majors, is red hot despite the fact he has been shifted from outfield to infield and back again to meet the needs of dire situations. If it came to a pinch, he could catch. It's too bad the kid from Gretna can't pitch.

"A Friend of McGraw's"

John McGraw got many ball players through his friendships, and Ott came to the Giants that way. A

MIGHTY MELVIN

He's not very old and not very big but the Giants have been building around slugging Mel Ott for a good many years.

Louisiana lumber man who was "a friend of McGraw's" spotted young Ott catching in the canebrakes. Ott was exactly 15 years old at that time, fresh out of short pants.

When McGraw first saw Ott back in 1925, he thought he was being kidded. But all that was corrected after he watch the kid bat. Mel picked up a club, walked to the plate, lifted his right leg high in the air and smacked a batting-practice pitch right up into the seats. One of the coaches on the bench remarked, "Oh, ho! a lift-leg hitter, huh?"

McGraw turned, with a characteristic sneer. "Yeah, but if a player can hit like that, I don't care if he wraps his right leg around his neck"

As a matter of fact, McGraw wasn't crazy about Ott's habit of cocking that leg, but he was crazy about Ott. He watched Ott catch three or four times, then told him to go and get an outfielders' glove and practise catch flies. Ott didn't say a word. He carried out every order that ever was given to him, without offering an excuse. He became an outfielder just as wholeheartedly as he had tried to catch.

No Farm for Mel.

McGraw might have farmed him, as he did most youngsters who came to the Giants, but he liked to have Ott around, so he kept him with the club through the season of 1926, mostly on the bench, watching and learning. The next year Mel began to break into some ball games. Though he confessed that he ate his heart out on the bench those first two years, he never let "the old man" know how crazy he was to play.

Ott became a full-fledged Giant in 1928, though he was only 19 years old. From then until now he has been in nearly every game the club has played. He hit a high spot in the 1933 world series with the Senators when he blasted the ball for an average of .389, leading the attack that routed the Senators in four games out of five.

Now that Terry is looking ahead to replacements in 1939, Ott is the man around whom he plans to build. Just as Ott was the man McGraw used as a nucleus for a new ball club when the fading Giants dropped a world series to Washington in 1924. Just as Ott was the man Terry counted upon most when he took over the Giants from McGraw.

He should have five or six more good years in the majors, some of them fine years such as he is having now. Terry banks on him as the "boy veteran" of great days to come.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

WELL WORTH THE COST

WHEN DECLARER is void of the suit in which dummy has a string of secondary honors, he wishes the player at his right had the higher one which is out against him. In that event, he could capture it with a ruffing finesse. When the man at his left has the big card, no such play is possible. It may be worth while, at that, to let him win a trick so as to set up the suit to obtain several discards.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

On this deal, West started the bidding with 1-Diamond and North and East passed. After a 1-Heart bid by South, West passed and North called 1-No Trump. South then bid 3-Hearts and North went to 4-Hearts.

West cashed the diamond K and switched to the spade K. Declarer won with the A and immediately gave up a spade to West, who returned a trump. South won with the J and ruffed a spade. He then ruffed a diamond to get back to his hand for another spade ruff. After drawing trumps, he lost two clubs, and was set one trick.

A better play would have been to lead to the heart 10 and play the diamond Q, tossing a club. If West held off, the suit should have been continued, and another club gotten rid of. The diamond 10 would then have provided a spot to discard one spade with the club A as an entry to it.

Havelock Honors Mrs. E. Mathieson

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 3.—A number of the neighbors and friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Mathison, of town, held a "bon voyage" shower in her honour on Wednesday evening. The guests arriving by ones and twos at her home, completely surprised Mrs. Mathison, who sails Sunday from Montreal, on the Duke of Bedford, for Glasgow, Scotland. Mrs. Mathison who has been in Canada for the past twenty-six years is returning to her native country to live with her brother and sister.

Mrs. Mathison was the recipient of several nice gifts from her guests during the evening. An "Anatomy" contest was won by Mrs. H. T. Mathison.

Among those present were Mrs. H. Wing, Miss M. McBurney, Mrs. D. A. Forde, Mrs. F. Clarke, Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. O. Hubble, Mrs. W. Rose, Mrs. A. Aboud, Mrs. M. Isaac, Miss M. Seeney, Mrs. H. B. Puffer, Miss E. Wright, Mrs. H. T. Mathison, Miss Bette Mathison, Mrs. H. Davies, Mrs. G. Rigby, Mrs. Dewey.

The Ladies' Aid of Knox Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Mathison was a member, also held an afternoon tea in her honour when they presented her with a very beautiful steamer rug.

Broccoli Sold Nickle Bunch On The Market

"The blue green fields of broccoli," an errant phrase from some otherwise forgotten reading, was called to memory on the market Saturday by an apparently large supply of this vegetable of the cabbage family than has been seen of late.

Broccoli is a comparative newcomer to the local market, seeming to insinuate itself hesitantly as if dubious about finding buyers. It may be growers as a whole have been introducing it, or possibly gardeners of Italian descent have included it in their planting. Those who can remember an Italian past may tell you that across the Adriatic the English broccoli is considered the finest. Local stores have been selling it, mostly to persons, perhaps, who decline to give houseroom to a cabbage. At any rate it bears the approval of the best hotels, and you could buy enough for a family of four or five for five cents.

So, a bunch of brocolli for a nickel, seems to deserve primary mention from last Saturday's market which was loaded again with tomatoes and various other products that have grown not wisely but too well for the producers' profit. They say you cook broccoli as you do cauliflower, serve with sauce or whatever you prefer. After all broccolis of the common family of cabbage, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, sauer-kraut and so on.

If producers had some way of publicity, even occasional signs, the public would be more quickly acquainted of week-end features, but probably that pace in outdoor selling will have to wait until the market as a whole moves indoors, if ever.

250,000 Cabbage.

Herb Doig's son had a few of the 250,000 cabbabe they have grown this year in North Monaghan, and obviously that is a deal of cabbage —8,000 to the acre. Copenhagens, Flat Dutch and Danish Baldheads. They trucked a load of 150 dozen to Toronto on Friday. Growers generally were selling cabbage at five cents for heads that would fill a peck measure. This has been a cabbage year, big sound stock that should encourage the sale of corned beef when the cooler weather sets in. There is no immediate prospect of a scarcity of cabbage for the next twelve months; in fact the main job ahead is to get the big harvest sold.

Melons Plentiful

Canteloupes or muskmelons at 40 cents for a sixteen quart basket was another Saturday feature. It is doubtful whether the market ever before turned up so many melons and of such exceptional size. Even the price was astonishing, a big melon for five cents, and bigger ones for ten cents. Six for twenty-five cents was another quotation. And Norman Moncrief was selling watermelons, some of them twenty-five cents each, and almost as big as the pride of Mississippi

These are lush Saturdays on the market. Tomatoes 50 cents a bushel, six quart basket for 15 cents and the eleven quart size for 20 cents. Corn 10 cents a dozen here and there; and elsewhere evergreen corn for 15 cents. Vegetable marrow 5 and 10 cents each; Hubbard squash 5 to 20 cents; summer squash and other varieties of the squash family, if you desired to break away from the old favorite.

Peppers five for ten cents were another bargain; potatoes 15 cents a peck; cucumbers 2 for 5 cents; pickling onions 10 and 15 cents a quart; large onions six quarts for 20 cents. And apples were 25 cents a basket.

Incidentally, and turning to the decorative aspect of meals, Herb Cardwell had another big showing of gladioli at 35 cents a dozen, including the smoky Bagdad, and another beautiful variety "Frank J. McCoy." A sharp reminder of summer's passing was the offering of elderberries. They say the elders make a potent potation. Whether that is true or not it might fit in with those Bagdads and all the rest of it including chickens at 20 and 25 cents.

Eggs were firmer at 27 to 30 cents the dozen, and butter had regained strength, selling from 25 to 28 cents. And like the last rose of summer, there were a few baskets of huckleberries. If permissibly this was a column of recommendation honey would be mentitoned up near the top; prices were unchanged; and finally try a bunch of the "broc" next Saturday.

Twins Doll Up For International Twin Convention

These two pairs of twins are dolling up for the twin's convention which gets under way in Chicago soon and which is expected to draw 5,000 sets of twins from all over the world. Joseph and Alfred Seror are the couple hauling off the face foliage along the TOP, while the two lovelies who seem to agree that tulip time is here, are Rose and Esther Setzer. Both sets of twins are Chicagoans, but which is which and who is who we just couldn't figure out. And when 5,000 sets of twins get together in one town —well we figure there'll be a goodly number of Windy City habitues lining up to sign the pledge.

Ross Rutherford And Bride Honored

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Sept. 6.—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rutherford, near Omemee, on Friday evening to honor their son Ross W. Rutherford and his bride (formerly Mary Ruth Tully, Reg. N.), whose marriage took place recently.

Dancing and cards were enjoyed, and later the popular bride and groom were asked to take the seats of honor, when an appropriate address was read by Miss Christina Connell and little Rolleen Endicott and Norma Skuce made the presentation of a handsome clock and silver basket filled with sweet peas.

The groom replied on behalf of his bride and himself, thanking their many friends for the gifts and extended an invitation to visit them in their new home in Lindsay, everyone joining in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

Lunch was served by the ladies, concluding a pleasant social evening, arrangements for which were in charge of Harold Bannon and Clinton Endicott.

Location Predicted Of Next Quake

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Sept. 7—(CP)—The next signs of seismo-volcanic activity in the West Indies will probably appear in Guadeloupe, St. Vincent or one of the intervening island of the Windward and Leeward groups, according to a report by A. G. McGregor received here. Mr. MacGregor was geologist to the Royal Society expedition which investigated volcanic disturbances in Monserrat.

The last major earthquake, in November, 1935, is believed by the scientists to have marked the beginning of the decline of the Montserrat disturbances. The shock was recorded over a large part of the world.

Noting the history of West Indies earthquakes, Mr. MacGregor has found the tendency of the centres of disturbances is to swing back and forth along an arc between Guadeloupe and St. Vincent. The last appearance of seismic activity in Montserrat in 1937 was mild. Hence the scientist believes the next disturbance will be among the islands farther south.

Milky Way Club Is Entertained

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Sept. 6. — On Saturday afternoon Mrs. William Nill and Miss Audrey Nill were hostesses to a group of girls, members of the C.G.I.T. and the Milky Way Club, at a corn roast held on the spacious lawn of their farm home, one concession north of Cavan Village.

During the afternoon the girls played a variety of group games. The bountiful and delicious supper was served on the lawn, corn playing an important part in the menu.

After supper a vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. Donald Tinney for her excellent leadership of the Milky Way Club during the year. With the thanks the girls voiced their hope that Mrs. Tinney would continue her leadership in the new project to begin this fall. The girls also thanked Mrs. Nill and Audrey for the enjoyable afternoon. Those present included Mrs. Donald Tinney, Mrs. Leslie Pritchard, Mrs. Kenneth Braithwaite, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Sutton, Misses Jean and Joyce Trumpour, Mary Richards, Norma Gillis, Nan Fallis, Gwenyth Staples, Dorothy Armstrong.

Oldest Member Of 155th Battalion Dan O'Connell Returns To Marmora To Join Legion

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Sept 6.—On March 27th, 1916, a sixty-year old passenger on the C. P. R. taking a leisurely —ride-fare paid—espied a recruiting sergeant on the platform of Bonarlaw (then Central Ontario) Junction. He alighted from the train and giving his age as 42 asked the sergeant if he might enlist His accent was Irish and the fact that he had seen service in Zululand, Egypt and India meant that there was fighting blood in his veins. Strange to relate, however, Daniel O'Connell, had not seen service in the South African War, because as he intimated, even the Irish like respite from warfare at times.

The sergeant at Bonarlaw, however only saw before him a man of erect figure who might develop into a good soldier. He did not know the past history of this promising recruit neither was it revealed to him that O'Connell's great-grandfather, out of respect for the Flag had fought under Wellington at Waterloo and his father had also seen active service in the Abyssinian and Crimea Wars as well as in the Indian Mutiny. So O'Connell was accepted as a recruit in the 155th Battalion Canadian Infantry, a company of which was stationed in Marmora under Capt. C. A. Bleecker.

He gets To France.

Eventually after a period with a Canadian Army Medical Corps Unit, O'Connell through being classed as medically unfit found his way into the Merchant Marine.

Zeal for the flag inspired me and I was determined to reach France," he said. "I was satisfied when I got so far as Poperinghe though I was detected there as having deserted the Merchant Marine and sent back."

While in the Merchant Marine O'Connell was thrice torpedoed and when his ship was in Dunkirk Harbour on November 27th, 1917 he was blown up by a 17 inch shell.

"Was I wounded? I should say so," he remarked as he returned to Marmora late on Friday evening to revisit old comrades for the first time since the War. He is now in his eighty-second year and says. "I am the oldest living member of the 155th Battalion and don't the boys about Belleville know it?" although the odd local former member of the 155th might forget O'Connell, the latter has not forgotten them and he hopes to meet them all in the course of this week which he is spending in the village.

Joined Army at 14.

Out of a lengthy biographical sketch which he furnished the Examiner with in fluent speech, the following particulars are most interesting. He was born in Cahirciveen, County Kerry, Ireland in 1857 and in 1886 came to Toronto seeking employment. His military career commenced when at the age of fourteen, he joined the Royal Artillery as trumpeter. Then he was with the British Forces in the uprising in Zululand in the years 1879-1880. He saw service in Egypt 1882-1883 and successively in India in 1883-1886, after which he came to Canada.

Since the War he has tried, to use his own words, "to eke out a living in different parts of the Province as a painter," being in receipt of no pension for disabilities received. Added to war time disabilities, he now has failing eyesight.

His application for membership in Marmora Branch of the Canadian Legion has been received and his initiation will take place at a meeting of Marmora Branch, No 237 next Friday evening. President Wilbert Bedore, Capt. C. A. Bleecker and Past President P. Gray were the first ex-service men for him to renew acquaintances with. The recruiting sergeant Sam Smith gave his life in the Great War.

SUDETENS BREAK OFF NEGOTIATIONS

No Secession By Czechs Says Britain

Oppose Praha Giving Nazi Germany Any Sudeten Land

LONDON, Sept. 7—(CP-Cable)—The British Government opposes secession to Germany, of Czechoslovak territory occupied by the Sudeten German minority, it was stated officially tonight.

Whitehall took the unusual step of issuing a statement divorcing the Government from sentiments expressed in an Editorial this morning in The Times (Independent.)

The statement said:

"The suggestion appearing in The Times this morning to the effect the Czech Government might consider as an alternative to their present proposals the secession of a Fringe of the Alien population in their territory in no way represents the view of his Majesty's Government."

Premier Heads for London

Prime Minister Chamberlain will leave Scotland for London tonight, it was announced today. It was understood here he would confer with the foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, on the International situation.

The Foreign Office received from its Praha Legation an abstract of the latest Czech proposals and now is considering them. They were receiving particular study by Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, who does not know definitely whether he can go to Geneva next Friday for the League of Nations assembly meeting as he had planned.

Meet All Demands But One.

They were considered to give satisfaction to all of the demands of Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, except his demand for the full exercise of National Socialist methods for Czechoslovakia.

In this connection The Times commented that it would plainly not be possible for the Praha Government to accept, "for it would create an entirely heterdox state within a parliamentary, republic and would transfer the personal allegiance of the Sudetens from the head of the state in which they lived to the head of a neighboring state.

"There are also demands for reorientation of the foreign policy of the country which no government could accept at the dictation of a minority," the editorial went on.

"It is natural enough that the Sudeten Germans should be unwilling to assume the position of having to fight, if war were to break out, on the same side as the Russians and the Frenchmen against their racial co-nationals; but a group which composes less than a quarter of the population can hardly expect to control the foreign policy of the other 78 per cent. while also challenging, internally, their whole political outlook."

Can Go No Farther.

The Times said the Czechs were ready to go "very far indeed in Power Shortage Threat In Case Of War Has Roosevelt Seriously Worried

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 7.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT said today the possibility of an electric power shortage in the event of war constitutes "a serious threat to the national security of the United States."

This statement was made in letters designating members of a special committee Mr. Roosevelt named to seek "definite ways and means" of providing emergency power facilities.

In letters to members of the committee, the President said that reports to him regarding the supply of electric power in event of a national emergency "have given me much concern."

The reports were made by the War Department and the Federal Power Commission in response to a request by the President last March.

Veritable Spy Craze Sweeps Border As Both France, Germany Fight To Learn Other's Moves

Two Nazi Lines Of Forts Already Complete And Third In Full Swing

STIRING - WENDEL (At the French-German border) Sept. 7.—(AP).—Both France and Germany clamped a rigorous "anti-espionage" campaign on top of their military activities on opposite sides of the frontier where two armies today awaited the outcome of the Czechoslovak crisis.

In Germany the campaign resulted in a border control. Travellers crossing from Saarbrucken to Stirring-Wendel told stories of being searched by German frontier guards, and some said they were forced to strip for the search.

In France a counter-espionage campaign was marked by the sudden appearance of large numbers of road workers who could be seen throughout the zone of the Maginot line, France's border defences, busily digging up and filling in country roads which apparently had no need of resurfacing.

Many counter-espionage agents were posted near entrances to the Maginot underground fortifications. Their job was to check and watch each passer-by, in a car, on a bicycle or afoot.

New military measures in northeastern France and heavy reinforcement of garrisons led to a veritable spy craze in an area where tales of espionage are rife.

How many have been arrested recently will not be known for some months, for espionage now is dealt with secretly by military police and courts alone.

Three Lines of German Forts.

Despite the strict watch on the German side of the frontier, French officials placed much credit in reports which leaked through and according to which Germany's Siegfried Line at the border is only her first defence.

Her second or "Hindenburg Line," the French heard, ends about 10 miles back from the northern frontier. A third and nameless defence line is supposed now to be under construction on the northern banks of the Rhine.

Both the Siegfried and Hindenburg Lines, French reports indicated, are designed to be little more than temporary blocks against invasion and to permit the main part

50 Watch Trainer Beat Wolves Off With Bucket

Kane, Pa., Sept. 7.

DR. E. H. McCLEERY, owner-trainer of Northwestern Pennsylvania's famed wolf pack, credited an old bucket today with saving him from possible death or injury by two snarling wolves.

Dr. McCleery beat off the onrushing wolves by using the bucket in the manner a lion tamer uses a chair while 50 holiday spectators watched. Keepers destroyed the animals.

Dr. McCleery has maintained the pack of 43 wolves for 10 years. He has been attacked many times, once requiring hospital treatment.

All Marseille Dockmen Are Mobilized

PARIS, Sept. 7—(AP)—The government tonight announced mobilization of all dockworkers at the Mediterranean port of Marseille, vital link in the French system of defence.

This step, placing an estimated 5,000 longshoremen under military discipline and control, followed a cabinet decree putting the port under military jurisdiction.

The mobilization of workers will be effected under the law for the organization of France in time of war which was voted by parliament on July 11.

Marseille, gateway by which troops and supplies enter France from her African and Asiatic possessions, has been tied up on Sundays and holidays by stevedores' refusal to work on those days.

More Troops to Maginot.

PARIS, Sept. 7—(AP)—A new military order issued by the war ministry today sent trained infantry reserve troops into the Maginot line at the frontier opposite Germany for a 21-day period.

The order notified reserves—their exact number was not determined—to report immediately for duty at the same concentration points where they finished their regular two-year military service only three weeks ago.

The instructions were received shortly after the government announced its "requisition" of the Port of Marseille, placing under military counsel the most important Mediterranean inlet for French African troops and supplies.

The order was said to concern only infantry fortress troops of the second class—the lowest military class. (The Maginot defences generally are said to be at normal garrison with 100,000 men but officers in the zone say that 350,000 would be a conservative estimate of the garrison's present strength. This figure did not take account of the new order.)

The instructions came as a surprise to most reserves, and they telephoned each other in a flurry of excitement to plan leave from their jobs, to which they had just returned after the regular period of service.

War Chiefs Silent.

The War Ministry declined to discuss the order. Sources close to Premier Daladier had said that specialists called on Sunday and Monday, technical experts in various branches, would be sufficient to bolster the Maginot Line as a precautionary measure against any emergencies arising out of the Czech-Sudeten minorities dispute.

Charge Czech Government Has Lost Control As Deputies Attacked

Praha's "Last Offer" Proposals Reported Completely Unacceptable To Be Rejected Without Hesitation

PRAHA, Sept. 7 (CP).—The Sudeten German Party broke off negotiations with Czechoslovak Government on the disputed autonomy question today after receiving reports that Sudeten deputies had been assaulted by Czech police.

Party officials were studying the text of the latest government concessions, handed them earlier in the day, when they heard of the clash at Moravska Ostrava, near the Polish border.

They immediately notified President Benes, Premier Milan Hodza and Viscount Runciman, British unofficial mediator, that negotiations would be discontinued pending a thorough investigation of the incident.

The party issued a communique stating the Czechoslovak Government "is no longer sufficiently master of the situation to begin successfully at the present time detailed negotiations and to bring them to a calm conclusion."

First dispatches received here said the Sudeten deputies were attacked by police while investigating treatment of Sudetens in the Marisch Ostrau jail. One of the deputies was said to have been struck with a riding whip.

A report received by the Sudeten Party said the police sought to arrest the deputies, but that aroused townspeople spirited them off.

Proposals Unacceptable

PARIS, Sept. 7 (CP).—Havas News Agency in a dispatch from Nuremberg today quoted high Nazi quarters as asserting that Czechoslovakia's "last word" proposals to settle the Sudeten German autonomy question "were completely unacceptable" and would be rejected "without hesitation."

The dispatch added: "Indications that the Sudeten Germans, acting on advice of the Third Reich, would refuse flatly all compromise with Praha were seen following an important conference between Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and Konrad Henlein, leader of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German minority."

It was not known in Nazi circles, the dispatch said, whether Henlein had seen Chancellor Hitler since the Praha Government gave the minority its new proposals.

But high quarters among the Nazis affirmed that the government's "fourth plan," understood to embody most of Henlein's eight-point program, was "completely unacceptable," Havas added. These sources were quoted as stating the proposals only proved that the Czechoslovak Government had not abandoned its "bargaining methods."

Clash Near Polish Front.

LONDON, Sept. 7—(CP)—Reuters news agency reported today that two Sudeten German deputies had been maltreated in an incident with Czechoslovak police at Moravska Ostrava, in Czechoslovakia.

Duce To State Stand.

ROME, Sept. 7—(A P)—Premier Mussolini is expected to state the Italian position in the German-Czechoslovak crisis in a speech to be given at Trieste perhaps on Saturday.

Well-informed sources said the address would be "important." Political sources said today they thought Il Duce might express himself on the Jewish question which involves a decree ordering Jews entering Italy since 1919 to leave the country.

Conant Condemns Trial Hold-ups But Clears Crown In Lindsay Case

TORONTO, Sept. 7—(CP)—Delays in court procedure will not be countenanced by Attorney-General Gordon Conant, he announced today, in absolving, however, the Lindsay Crown Attorney of responsibility for holding up a recent trial.

James Johnson, charged with a criminal offense, was held in Lindsay jail from Aug. 9 to Aug. 26 when he was acquitted and there was considerable public criticism of his detention for such a long period.

As the result of an investigation ordered by the Attorney-General's Department, Mr. Conant today issued the following statement:

"The facts in this case do not justify the statement that the accused was kept in jail and his trial delayed on account of the absence of the Crown Attorney. There were delays which, although regrettable, were evidently unavoidable on account of the absence of witnesses. Bail for the accused might have been arranged or facilitated. But apparently neither the accused nor his counsel asked for bail.

"Although this constitutes one of the unfortunate and regrettable cases that arise from time to time, I cannot find that any particular blame attaches to any person. I repeat, however, for the benefit of all officers engaged in law enforcement that there must not be delays or any other impairment of procedure likely to inconvience either the accused person or witnesses."

Co-operative societies in Denmark now have nearly 2,000,000 members.

County's Payments For Students Attending P.C.I. Exceeds Board's Statement Council Told

Discrepancy Reported By Alderman Gordon At Meeting Of Council

"I'm not afraid of hurting anyone's feelings there," Alderman G. N. Gordon declared at last night's meeting of the city council in reference to a motion he advanced instructing the clerk to write the Board of Education for an explanation of an alleged disparity in the Board's accounting.

"Their statment for 1937 shows that they received $16,784 from the county council for fees of county children attending the Collegiate," Alderman Gordon explained. "But, I discovered that the county council paid the Board of Education the sum of $19,202.65, a difference of about $3,000. As I understand it, the county council pays half the amount around June 1 and the balance on December 31. But in their financial statement for 1937 nothing appears as an amount owing to the Board. There is nothing showing as a bill payable and due. Then when they make out their estimates we have to pay what they demand, and it seems to me they have $10,000 they can use for anything they need, and it is not disclosed. They are required to work under the fiscal year."

Mayor Hamilton remarked that a friendlier approach to the Board would be by a personal request for information to the difference in the amount of money reported as received from the county council, as compared with the council's report of their payment to the Board.

Alderman Cotton endorsed the "Suaviter in modo" idea, and at that stage Alderman Gordon declared he didn't care whether the feathers of anybody associated with the Board were ruffled.

"What we ought to do is cut them down about $10,000 when they bring in their estimates," he added.

Finally, Alderman Gordon agreed not to press his resolution for the time being. "I have done my duty in calling this council's attention to it," he commented, and presumably somebody in the meantime was going to ask the financial department of the Board of Education about the reported discrepency.

British Work List Down In August But Up On Year Ago . .

London, Sept. 7.

THE MINISTRY of Labor announced yesterday that registered unemployed on Aug. 15 totalled slightly less than the month previous, but were almost 500,000 more than a year ago at the same time.

Figures showed 1,262,343 wholly unemployed, 439,024 temporarily unemployed, and 57,875 normally casually employed.

The total of 1,759,242 was 14,874 less than a month ago and 451,000 greater than a year ago. The sum included 1,613,593 applicants for the dole.

Think Hitler To See Henderson

Believe Dictator Not Informed Of British Stand

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler told Germany's conscript labor army today that its spades, "being wielded in the east, north and south, but especially in the west"—on France's borders—were playing a vital part in defence of the Reich.

"You are fighting for the defence of the Reich and its independence," he told 40,000 labor conscripts as he stood in pouring rain.

His speech was the climax of the annual labor rally at Zeppelin Field, main event of the third day of the annual Nazi party congress.

Most of his audience interpreted his reference to the work of labor battalions "especially in the west" as a public admission that they have been perfecting Germany's fortifications facing France.

"Your spade creates new soil besides securing the old," the Reichsfuehrer declared. "Your spade is being wielded for securing and maintaing the Reich."

Before speaking Hitler stood for 90 minutes to review the march past of the 40,000 youthful Labor conscripts. Bad weather did not prevent 100,000 spectators from witnessing the spectacle.

Greetings From Sudetens

From the grandstand hundreds of voices rang out: "We Sudeten Germans greet the Fuehrer of the Germans"—voices from the Germanic minority in Czechoslovakia over which Hitler has declared himself protector.

Meanwhile foreign diplomats attending the congress looked forward to the Reichsfuehrer's reception for them later today, many believing it might be the occasion for an important meeting between Hitler and the British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson.

Solution of the embittered Czech-Sudeten conflict, in the opinion of reliable observers, may hang on a chance meeting at the Nazi Party rally in festive Nuremburg to-day.

Henderson the Key?

The fate of Czechoslovakia, these men said, may depend on whether Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, gets and takes an opportunity to talk to Chancellor Hitler at the reception for diplomats attending the congress.

They insist Chancellor Hitler has not been informed fully and officially of Britain's decision that she might have to fight to defend the Czechoslovaks if they are attacked to further the Sudeten German minority demands for autonomy from Praha.

The German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, is believed here not to have told Hitler of the full gravity of the message Sir Neville took from conferences with the Cabinet in London last week.

Canada Has Billion Tied Up in 410,000 Miles Of Road

BIGWIN INN, Ont., Sept. 7—(CP)—Canada's investment in roads exceeds $1,000,000,000 and the total mileage is more than 410,000 of which 180,000 miles are surfaced, revealed Theodore G. Morgan of Montreal in an address prepared for delivery today at the Canadian Good Roads Association Convention. Mr. Morgan is chairman of the Association executive.

Also scheduled for today's discussions were several technical papers on road construction. J. M. Breen, chief of the technical staff, Canada Cement Company, Montreal, H. E. Gray and J. E. Myers of New York, prapared them.

Mr. Morgan said Ontario leads all provinces in modern roads having 5,000 miles of permanent pavements out of a total mileage of 75,000. Its expenditures had been large but brought results. It was estimated good roads meant a saving of $45,-

Red Goggles On 3,000 White Leghorns Make World Rosy, Ends Fights

North Caldwell, N. J., Sept. 7.

THE MYSTIFYING spectacle of 3,000 white leghorn chickens at the Essex County Penitentiary's poultry farm wearing red goggles was explained today by Warden Floyd Hamma, who said the rose-colored glasses had stopped fighting which had resulted in the death of 10 per cent of his leghorns in a year.

Guards in charge of the poultry farm found a harmless peck causing a slight scratch immediately was transformed into a death fight by the sight of blood.

If the chickens saw red all the the time, the keepers thought, this felonious tendency might be curbed. They devised goggles of a small strip of leather fitted with red isinglass and wired to the beak. Since the goggles were put into use there has not been a fatal fight among the leghorns.

Find Fever Aids Rats Think, May Be Step In Evolution

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 7. —(A. P.)—Ten thousand years in brain evolution and improvement is made in 90 minutes in white rats by giving them fevers of four to five degrees.

The heat, in two-minute periods daily for 45 days, distinctly raised the intelligence of several rats in experiments conducted at Temple University by Hubert C. Hamilton and reported to the American Psychological Association today.

The rats were not only more intelligent on fever days, but the effects on their brains lasted for 30 days more, the report said. The tests were made by having the animals solve a maze of blind alleys.

The experiments support a belief of scientists that acquiring warm blood was one of the most valuable forward steps in evolution. In the beginning, as seen in the history of fossil bones, the earth's creatures

Altitude Aids Eyston Make His 345 Mark Only Been 293 At Sea Level

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 7.

HIGH SPEED goes hand-in-hand with high altitude.

J. Cecil Alter, United States Government meteorologist from Salt Lake City, said today Sept. George E. T. Eyston's world land speed record of 345.49 miles an hour, set here Aug. 27, would have been only 293.66 m.p.h. if he had run his giant facer at sea level

Air density makes the difference. At more than five miles a minute, barometric conditions are a definite factor. At sea level atmospheric pressure is 29.9 inches. Here it is 25.6 inches.

Eyston declares the greatest factor in his choice of this course is tire safety. In the early morning hours the salt is cold to the touch. It keeps the tires cool and lessens the driver's greatest fear—blowouts.

Drowned Youth Tied To Boat But Girl Missing

TORONTO, September 6. —(C.P.) —Two homes were grief stricken today as preparations were made to search for the body of Gertrude Ferguson of suburban Long Branch who apparently drowned with her childhood sweetheart in the chilly water of Lake Ontario.

The 19-year-old girl is believed to have been swept overboard from a 14-foot sailing dinghy in which the battered body of Alex. Wheelans, 17, of Toronto, was found late yesterday after an intensive, eight-hour search by air and surface craft, No trace was found of the girl's body.

"My only boy," was the sad, terse comment of William Wheelans as he looked upon the body of his son. He had spent part of the day out in a search boat and the best of it just standing silently beside the water and watching.

In the Ferguson home, Mr. and Mrs. James Ferguson tried to put up a brave front before their other children as search for the missing couple was taking place. Later when the body of young Wheelans was found, Mrs. Ferguson cried.

"That's the end. There's nothing to do but go home—without our Gertie. But wherever she is she will be at peace."

Learn Lad Drowned.

An autopsy on Wheelans body indicated the youth was drowned, although his head and body were cut and bruised. Part of Wheelans clothing was missing and he was found lashed to the bottom of the boat in which he and the girl set out on a week-end cruise to visit his aunt, Mrs. James Stewart, at Hamilton.

The partly-submerged craft was found in rough water a mile off shore about a mile east of Oakville. Lifesavers said the youth had lashed himself down after removing the mast and wrapping the sail. First intimation of the tragedy was given by Pilot Clark Rouse. Observers in his plane said they saw both people embraced in each other's arms on the bottom of the boat, evidently dead or unconscious.

Unable to land in the choppy water, Rouse returned to Toronto and notified lifesavers who located the craft with its gunwales only a few inches above the water.

Just a year ago, the Ferguson girl had been invited to accompany William Birch and Viola Guy of Long Branch on a canoe trip, but she refused. Both her friends were drowned on the trip.

OBITUARY

HATTIE G. RAYMORE.

Word has been received in the city to-day of the passing of Miss Hattie G. Raymore at 138 Indian Road, Toronto. Miss Raymore was well known to many in Peterborough, a frequent visitor with her sister, the late Mrs. W. S. Scates, Hunter street west.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. B. O. Britton of Gananaque, and a brother, Charles T. Britton of Toronto.

Funeral service is being held in Toronto on Friday at 3.30.

MRS. THOMAS B. HENRY

Mrs. Thomas B. Henry, 14 Brown street, died at her home this morning (Wednesday) after an illness that lasted two weeks. She was in her 79th year.

A resident of Peterborough for the past 35 years, she was born in Hope Township, the daughter of the late William Lockington and Essie Clisdell. She was one of Knox United Church's oldest members.

Her husband, Thomas B. Henry survives, as well as two daughters, Mrs. D. W. Byers of Lakefield and Mrs. A. W. Hickman of Peterborough; and one son, William T. Henry of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence. Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES E. FINNIEMORE

A former well-known resident of Lakefield died in Toronto on Monday in the passing at her home, 26 First Avenue in that city, of Mrs. Charles Finniemore, formerly Edith Griffin of Lakefield, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Finniemore who was in her 59th year was the daughter of the late Jonathan Griffin of Lakefield and lived a great part of her life in that village. She had many friends there and throughout the district who will regret to learn of her death.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from the family residence Toronto to Little Lake Cemetery and it is expected the funeral cortage will reach here at 1.30 o'clock.

MRS. MARY MADDEN.

The death of Mrs. Mary Madden, whose home was in Otonabee township near Stewart Hall, occurred at Nichols Hospital on Wednesday morning after a month's illness. She was in her 73rd year, had been an active worker all her life and was highly respected in the community.

A native of Beamsville, Ontario, she had lived in the vicinity of this city for the past twenty-two years. Her husband, Albert Madden, predeceased her five years ago. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian curch here and of the Order of the Eastern Star, No. 161.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. S. Mounteer of Detroit, Michigan and Mrs. William Chambers, of Otonabee township.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 10 o'clock from the Funeral Home of D. Belleghem and Sons, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's church, officiating. Interment will be at Churchville cemetery.

MRS. MARY JANE LEE.

Following an illness of nearly three months, the death of Mrs. Mary Jane Lee, Smith Township, occurred rather suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Skitch, 231 Dublin Street, on Tuesday evening. In her 90th year, Mrs. Lee was one of the district's oldest residents, and was a life-long resident of this area.

Still possessed of all her faculties despite her advanced age, she was remarkable for her activities. She was the daughter of the late Andrew Tully and Mary Calvert, was born in Smith Township on October 16, 1848. She was held in high esteem by all who knew her, was a woman of fine Christian character, and a member of Trinity United Church. She was happiest when busily engaged in doing something for others.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides a host of friends, four brothers: Thomas Tully of Vancouver, Edward Tully of Bowesmont, North Dakota, Andrew W. Tully of Maynooth, Ontario, George Tully of Culross, Manitoba, and four daughters: Mrs. Frank C. Hooper of Edmonton, Alberta, Mrs. Adam Cox and Mrs. W. F. Skitch, both of Peterborough, Ada Lee at home, and one son, W. Russell Lee of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Skitch, 231 Dublin Street, Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. A. E. KENNEDY

The funeral took place to Lakefield Cemetery on Tuesday afternoon of a very old and highly respected resident of Smith township in the person of Mrs. A. E. Kennedy, widow of the late Alexander Edward Kennedy who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Graham, Smith on Saturday last, aged 83 years. Mrs. Kennedy was born in Princeton, Ont. but had spent most of her life in Smith township and in the village of Lakefield. She lived with her husband on the farm near Buckhorn for many years and afterward the two were residents of Lakefield for 12 years. On the death of her husband eight years ago, Mrs. Kennedy went to live with her daughter Mrs. Graham.

Surviving relatives are two daughters, Mrs. Graham of Smith township and Mrs. Gilbert Northey of McLeod, Alta., and one son, C. E. Kennedy of 253 London street.

Rev. Mr. Stewart, Wesley church officiated at the funeral. The pallbearers were three grandsons, Percy, Earl and Orton Graham and three grandsons-in-law, Harry Tamblin of Peterborough, Stewart Tedford of Smith and Ernest Bolton of Douro.

Chinese Swing Battle Tide Along Yangtse

SHANGHAI, Sept. 7—(AP)—Chinese reports said today the tide of battle south of the Yangtse River had turned in their favor.

The defenders were said to have pierced Japanese lines six miles southeast of Juichang and forced the Japanese to retreat leaving 300 dead after fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

Juichang is 25 miles west of Kiukiang, Yangtse base for the drives on Hankow and Nanchang. Sixteen miles northeast of Teian on the bitterly - disputed Kiukiang-Nanchang railroad, the Chinese reported they had driven the Japanese from a strategic hill on the shores of Poyang Lake.

These dispatches said the invaders lost 400 men and large amounts of munitions there.

However, the Japanese reported they were approaching Teian from the north with a stream of Chinese soldiers and civilians fleeing before them.

Foreign reports from the area predicted the imminent fall of Teian, 35 miles south of Kiukiang and about 55 air miles north of Nanchang. Teian is a major objective in the Japanese drive toward Nanchang, a Chinese air base.

Canada's War Shaft Slowly Takes Shape

OTTAWA, Sept. 7 (CP).—Behind a gray board fence across Wellington street from the Parliament Building's east block, Canada's towering national war memorial is slowly being erected 12 years after the design was originally selected.

Located in downtown Ottawa on the Plaza, which looks like it has been bombed from the air due to excavation and demolition connected with the new city beautification plan, the 70-foot memorial will face south to the Rideau Canal and the famous driveway. Backdrop for the huge memorial is the Parliament Buildings, the Ottawa River and the distant Gatineau Hills.

From a public works department shack furnished with a couple of chairs and a rough table, Sydney March, one of England's most noted architects and sculptors, directs the erection of this symbol of the nation's tribute and remembrance.

Two brothers, Percival and Walter, assist him wth the memorial originally designed in 1925 by their younger brother Vernon, who died three years later after winning the competition for the best design sponsored by the Canadian government.

To the March family, which includes three other brothers now employed in their Farnsborough, Kent, England, studios where the Canadian work was created, this monument marks the peak of its achievement in the Dominion. Other works by the March studios include the Champlain monument at Orillia, Ont., and the United Empire Loyalist Memorial at Hamilton, Ont.

The structure when finished will be a granite arch topped by bronze figures of Victory and Liberty with a military group passing through the arch at the base.

Quebec faces the major task of rebuilding its main highways to elliminate by relocation its narrow and winding rountes. Both Ontario and Quebec are engaged in opening up their northern mining areas by building highways which will aid greatly in production of mineral wealth. The Maritimes and Western Provinces are making road progress consistent with their resources.

Mr. Morgan deplored the too-frequent instrusion of political consideration into such matters as location and sound construction of highways. The taxpayers now realized a good road was a permanent investment and not an extravagance, that a poorly-built road was no economy but a constant liability, he said. Many of today's vexing problems will find their solution in improved highway transportation and to build adequate roads is a challenge to the Nation's Statesmen.

enses. Alderman Gordon renewed his attack on the system which, he asserted, made no distinction between places that properly belonged in that category and others that had nothing more than a box of ice or a refrigerator.

"Theres a bunch of dumps that shouldn't be recognized when it comes to granting these eating house licenses," Alderman Gordon charged. "They sell a few cones of ice cream, some hot dogs and soft drinks, and they take a few bets on the side. And they get away with almost anything on Sunday when legitimate places are closed up. They sell magazines, pipes, chewing tobacco, hamburger steak."

Mayor Hamilton said he agreed that some effort and plan should be put forth to differentiate between those places and the others that are actually eating houses."

Alderman Dutton said there was room for a lot of consideration, but was in favor of some careful approach to the subject.

Alderman Juby added his conviction that some places receiving licenses went beyond all limits intended by the council. Grocery shops had to close at seven o'clock, but some of the opposition eating houses carried canned goods that could be sold after that hour.

"When I brought this up some time ago the Chief asked me why I didn't lay a complaint. I didn't think that was up to me. Why shouldn't the bylaw be enforced.

Alderman Dutton said he had seen in some places serving meals endorsement signs issued by the Ontario Government. "We could write the Government and find out what they require of such places as a condition to qualifying for these signs."

Should Draft Plan.

When Mayor Hamilton read the list of five or six applications for licenses, the first one mentioned was the "A & P" store. Ald. Gordon said that if they were selling ice cream or meals they should get into the legitimate business of running a grocery store. "I'd refuse them. It isn't fair for them to be giving meals."

Alderman Cotton argued that if the council was going to deal with this question they should not go at it in a hit and miss manner, but should draft standard rules and regulations for their guidance whenever an application for an eating house license was received.

The S. S. Kresge store was next mentioned, and Alderman Gordon urged "thumbs down on them."

"If this thing keeps on you might have lawyers in the eating house business," he said.

"Some of them are in it now." Mayor Hamilton observed. "I believe some of them serve afternoon tea."

"Would it be good business to deny one and grant another?" Ald. Dutton enquired.

A majority of the members supported the more cautious method of dealing with a problem which they all agreed existed, and Alderman Cotton's motion, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, granting all the applications last night was carried on a division of five to four.

Alderman Cotton followed up that expedient with another motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker, requesting the legal committee, of which Alderman Gordon is chairman, to study the "eating house question," get all the information they can and prepare a report for the future guidance of the council. It was adopted without opposition.

Ald Gordon Wrong.

Secretary of the Board of Education G. H. Thompson answered Alderman G. N. Gordon's complaint regarding fees received from the county council. "He doesn't know what he's talking about," he said.

Alderman Gordon claimed the board's statment for 1937 showed they received $16,784, whereas the county council's figures were $19,-202.65. The total, $16,784 was the correct one, said Mr. Thompson. In March of 1937 the county council paid the board $6,784.50 for the first four months ending December 31, 1936. In December of 1937 they gave the board a cheque for $10,000 on account of moneys owing for 1937. The amount, $19,202.65, was for 1938 and was based on the figures for 1937. It has not yet been paid in full.

Seagulls Point Fishermen To Dodge Body

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—The long hunt for the body of 21-year-old Daniel Dodge, heir to an automobile fortune who drowned in Georgian Bay August 15 as he was being taken to hospital following a dynamite explosion, ended today. The body was recovered shortly before 8 a.m. E.DT..

Wes Ryder, Little Current fisherman, and A. Bateman, a carpenter at this Manitoulin Island port about 200 miles north of Toronto, found the body about a half mile from where it was reported to have gone down. They qualified for the $1,500 reward offered by the Dodge family for recovery of the body.

An hour later the youth's body was brought ashore and carried to the hotel where for 23 days his stepfather, Alfred G. Wilson, has directed a search estimated to have cost several thousand dollars a day. Climax of the hunt occurred just when Captain Simon Lake, submarine inventor, was preparing to search for the body with a new type submarine.

Body Mud Covered

The body apparently had just come to the surface. It was covered with mud from the bottom of the channel and fishermen said if it had been awash more than an hour the mud would have been cleared away.

Dodge, his skull fractured and one arm torn off by the dynamite explosion at his summer camp, either jumped or fell from the boat as he was being taken to hospital from Kakawong, about 10 miles distant. Injured also were his bride of two weeks, the former Ann Laurine MacDonald, daughter of a Gore Bay tugboat captain, and Lloyd Bryant. Both have since recovered.

Bateman and Ryder were guided to the floating body by seagulls. They heard the birds screaming and saw them flapping over one spot in the water. Then they saw a floating object. Soon they could distinguish the outlines of a body.

were cold blooded. They were mentally dull.

Radio Used on Humans

Dr. Hamilton produced the brief fevers by use of short wave radio. Human beings have been treated with radio and other forms of artificial fever, but no one has looked to see whether their mental qualities improved. The fever treatment is so "rough" that it is confined to sick persons.

Several of the fever treated rats lost their tails. There is an old idea in evolution that man once had a tail. Loss of the rats' tail might come from the fact that tails ordinarily receive a scanty blood supply, and the probability that the warmer blood circulated into their tails at higher than normal rates.

Dr. Hamilton said that although the intelligence gain has yet to be explained, it may be due to improved circulation. A better blood supply might reach the brain at least temporarily he asserted.

Think Hitler

One usually informed diplomatic quarter said he had a basis for believing the German Foreign Minister was using chiefly pro-German and anti-Czech reactions of isolated sections of British opinion in interpreting the British attitude to his superior.

Therefore, diplomatic sources here reasoned, unless Sir Neville gets a chance personally to speak to Hitler of the situation the German Chancellor may make his final and possibly most important speech of the Nuremburg rally, September 12, in the belief Britain would not interfere with force to block his aims toward Czechoslovakia and the 3,-500,000 Sudeten German minority there.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7. —(C. P.)— Short-covering and Canadian wheat export business estimated at nearly 1,000,000 bushels swung Winnipeg wheat futures and most other grains more than a cent higher today. At the final bell wheat prices were: 1⅛-1¼ cents higher, October 59, November 59⅝, December 58⅞ and May 62¾-⅞.

A seven day downward trend which placed futures at lows untouched in five years was blocked chiefly by unsettled European political news based on the Czechoslovakian crisis.

All course graines except flax scored gains of a cent or more with southern interests buyers of barley and rye. Flax which slumped five cents yesterday continued weak and near the close was off ½ cent.

of the German Army to establish itself solidly behind the Rhine.

From Karlsruhe to the Swiss border, these sources said, a third line runs inland to the Black Forest. It was reported in France that a major part of the German labor corps now is in service, working on the third line.

Not only had the counter-espionage agents taken to road repairing, but they also become tramps or pack-on-the-back hikers.

"Never in 50 years," said a cafe proprietor at Bitche in the heart of the fortified zone, "have I seen so many well-fed-looking tramps on the road to Lorraine."

Kennedy—McGarrity

The Church of the Sacred Heart was decorated wit Gladioli and Ferns on Monday, September 5, for the marriage of Ann Mary McGarrity, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGarrity, 614 Lock street, to Lawrence Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Kennedy, 84 Douro street, Father C. Maloney officiating. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Armstrong.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a suit of blue taffeta with matching hat and accessories. Her bouquet was of roses, gladioli and maidenhair fern. Miss Marie McGarrity attended her sister, wearing a blue sheer frock with white accessories, and carrying a bouquet of roses and gladioli.

Mr. Jack Kennedy, brother of the groom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast was held for about thirty guests at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. McGarrity received in a gown of blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of gladioli. Mrs. Kennedy, mother of the groom, also received, wearing black satin with corsage of yellow daffodils.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will live on McDonnel street.

Delightful Bon Voyage Party Is Held

A delightful little surprise party was given Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. James Dutton, 239 Stewart street, by the ladies of St. Paul's Church, who gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. J. Cuthbertson, who have recently returned from thirty-two years' labor in the foreign field in Formosa, and who leave shortly for London, England, from where they plan to carry on their work permanently, and Mrs. Cuthbertson's sister, Mrs. Dutton, who is returning to England with them for a few weeks' visit.

On behalf of the friends present, Mrs. Martin Chenhall presented Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbertson and Mrs. Dutton with a gift of books to wish them bon voyage, and Mr. Cuthbertson acknowledged the gift in a few brief words of appreciation. During the evening a sing-song was enjoyed, and the gathering was dispersed with prayer by the pastor of St. Paul's church, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

Havelock Girl Married In Grace Church, N. Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (Special).—In the Chantry of Grace Church, New York, Miss Mabel A. Inkster, Havelock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Inkster, was married to Mr. Reginald Edward Frewen of Glenlea, Devonshire, Bermuda. The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie, rector, performed the ceremony, at which the couple dispensed with attendants.

It was in the same church in 1887 that Morton Frewen of Sussex, England, uncle of the bridegroom, married Miss Clare Jerome, sister of the first wife of the late Lord Randolph Churchill.

After the ceremony a small reception and wedding breakfast were given at the Brevoort Hotel, New York. Mr. Frewen and his bride sailed today (Wednesday) on the Queen of Bermuda to make their home in Bermuda, where the bridegroom is a master at the Saltus Grammar School.

Mrs. Frewen studied at Campbellford, and was graduated from the Royal Victoria Memorial Hospital in Montreal. Her husband is the son of Captain Edward L. Frewen, R.N., and Mrs. Frewen, of Brickwall, Northam, Sussex. He went to Winchester School in England.

Mildred Murphy Is Autumn Bride

An early Autumn wedding was solemnized on Monday morning, September 5, in St. Peter's Cathedral, when Mildred Irene, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Edward Murphy, Park street, became the bride of Adrian Francis Devlin, eldest son of Mrs. Devlin and the late Francis Devlin of Douro. Rev. Father Grant officiated at the Mass. The church was prettily decorated with Gladioli; wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard, and Mrs. D. Campanaro was solist.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. F. Driscoll, was becomingly gowned in blue lace over taffeta with matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of pink butterfly roses.

Miss Florence Murphy, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore pink chiffon over taffeta with matching accessories. Her bouquet was of talisman roses.

The little flower girl, Marilyn Lewington, was charmingly dressed in a toe-length frock of pink net over taffeta, pink satin ribbon-trimmed. Her hat was fashioned in the shape of a rose, and she carried a basket of carnations and fern.

The best man was Mr. David Devlin, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at the Kawartha Country Club for about fifty guests, including the Rev. Father Grant, Peterborough, and the Rev. Father Carol, Norwood.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a mother-of-pearl rosary; to the best man a tie clip; and to the flower girl a silk taffeta purse.

For travelling the bride wore navy blue chiffon with accessories to match. After a brief trip to Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Devlin will live in the city.

Clergyman's Advocacy of Marriage Under a Contract At Stipulated Number of Years Plan Fails To Take Children Into Consideration

A CLERGYMAN has devised a ten-year-plan marriage that he believes is the solution of the divorce evil. He proposes that marriages be made by civil contract for stated periods, ten years for the initial term, with renewal of the contract at five-year intervals thereafter at the pleasure of both parties.

He contends that this arrangement will tend to prevent the hasty break-up of marriages that are so common nowadays when husbands and wives can call it a day and quit whenever they lose their taste for each other. Also, he thinks that husbands and wives who have lived together for the term agreed upon in advance would have adjusted themselves to each other and be likely to renew their contract, even if they had not been particularly happy together, on the principle that it is better to endure the ills we have than fly to those we know not of.

Of course, there is nothing new in the theory of the trial marriage. Many optimists before this have toyed with the dream of marriage bonds so elastic that they could be taken off and put on at pleasure instead of being a steel chain that is riveted on for keeps, but nobody has ever been able to materialize the vision into a satisfactory working proposition. Marriage seems to be one of the things that you have to stick to and work at if you make a success of it. It is nothing that you can pick up when you are in the mood for it and drop when you are tired of it.

However, let the facts in the case be what they may, no one can deny that the idea of the short-term marriage is full of allure, as they say in Hollywood. For one thing, it takes away from marriage that cold and clammy life sentence feeling that turns every bride's and groom's feet to ice and makes their knees shake under them at the altar as they suddenly realize what they are letting themselves in for. Undoubtedly it is the fall motive in marriage that makes many men and women want to break out of it, and the reason so many husbands and wives fight like cats and dogs is because they feel they are tied together until death shall them part.

Probably nothing else gets on the nerves of husbands and wives so much as the sense of the awful finality of marriage. They could stand almost anything for a little while, but the thought of having to endure each other's faults that rub them raw as long as they live drives them mad. The man thinks: Have I got to look at this eyesore for the next forty years? Have I got to listen to her nagging until I get so deaf I can't hear anything? The woman thinks: Is death the only respite from having to watch John eat his breakfast egg? Have I got to hear him tell over and over again a million times what he said to the boss and the boss said to him and about his golf score until I perish of boredom?

And then they either rush to the divorce court, or settle down into a marriage that is sheer martyrdom. But they could meet the situation with philosophy if they knew there was a time limit on their sufferings and that in a few years they would be freed from their obnoxious partners.

Undoubtedly also the short-term marriage would make better husbands and wives in those cases in which men and women were satisfied with their mates and desired to keep them. The trouble with most marriages is that it is too sure. A husband does not feel that he has to treat his wife with the same consideration and politeness that he shows his secretary because she can't give notice and quit if she doesn't like the tone of voice he uses in speaking to her. Nor does a woman feel that she has to doll herself up for her husband and yes-yes him and take his criticism meekly as she would her boss, if she had a good job, because he can't fire her for talking back to him and being a sloppy housekeeper.

But far otherwise would it be if the ten-year contract was nearly up and a husband was getting anxious about whether his good looking, clever and capable wife was going to renew her contract or not. Or if the wife who had a husband who was her heart's desire was wondering if he was going to sign on the dotted line again. There would be no taking of each other's good qualities for granted then. They would be on their tiptoes trying to sell themselves to each other.

BUT, and there is always a "but" that wakes us up in every pipe dream, what about the byproducts of marriage? The children. It is bad enough for them to be the victims of divorce as they are now, but they would be a thousand times worse off if they never had any stable home and were just thrown in with the trade when their parents swapped partners every ten years or so. And that lets the trial marriage out.

Isobel McBride Is Bride Of Edward Luke

The marriage of Miss Isobel Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McBride, 183 Stewart street, to Mr. Edward Luke, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luke of Celina street, Oshawa, took place at nine o'clock Labor Day morning, September 5, in St. Peter's Cathedral, Father V. Asterson officiating.

Gladioli and fern were used as church decorations, and the wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a frock of navy sheer with short tucked sleeves, a velvet doll hat, navy accessories, and a corsage of roses.

The groom's sister, Mrs. S. Lightheart of Oshawa, attended the bride, wearing a printed sheer dress with navy accessories and corsage of roses. Mr. J. Baldwell of Oshawa was best man, and the ushers were Ted and Archie McBride, brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to about thirty guests at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. McBride received in a navy crepe ensemble with corsage of summer flowers, and Mrs. Luke, mother of the groom, was wearing navy sheer with flower corsage.

After a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Luke will live on Stewart street. For travelling the bride donned a grey tweed coat with wolf trimming over her frock of navy blue, and wore navy accessories.

ONTARIO PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

The Conference Committee held a meeting at the home of Miss Florence Hutchinson, Sheridan street last week.

The meeting was attended by all members, and Rev. Canon Robertson opened the session with prayer.

Each convenor presented a written report on the work accomplished. Miss Hutchinson, billetting convenor, reported a total of 180 billets to date. This number will be greatly added to when the branch committees for billets start out again on their rounds.

Reception and Transportation convenors reported considerable work accomplished by their committees, reporting also the various appointments resulting from their meeting of Sunday afternoon. In addition to previously mentioned members on these committees, Ken Gibson of St. George's and Les. Dyer of St. John's branches have been given duties to assist in the work of these committees.

Mrs. Dorrell, catering convenor reported three more menus received for the Saturday evening banquet for the approval of the Provincial Council.

The publicity convenor reported the work accomplished by this part of the committee's work, promising action regarding the souvenir booklet in the immediate future.

Miss Queenie Hope, programme convenor, discussed various methods for entertaining the delegates on the Friday evening of the Conference with the committee.

After discussing the work in general, and certain "reminiscencing" by the committee members, refreshments were served by the hostess and Miss Hope expressed the thanks of the committee to the hostess and her mother.

When People Get Killed

Labor Day always provides one of those long weekend holidays, and because so many people are free for part of Saturday, and all of Sunday and Monday they are inclined toward going greater distances than usual. They probably feel it is the last long weekend of the outdoor season and they are going to make the most of it.

That may explain why 40 people were killed in Canada and 407 in United States. That is a total of 447. If a liner had gone down with such a death list the newspapers would have been getting out extras. If some new form of plague had made such an inroad we are certain the governments would be ready to do something about it. But when it is the result of holiday traffic and holiday adventure we accept it as something which is not far removed from being routine.

Actually there is no pleasure in travelling on any of our most travelled highways on a Labor Day. Leaving Bowmanville on that day at 6 o'clock in the afternoon an Examiner man counted 902 passing cars before reaching Welcome, where No. 2 highway splits. There was just an endless parade of cars, all of them anxious to get along as quickly as possible because in many cases there would be long miles yet to go. There were those who were so impatient to be away that they were weaving their way in and out. They were having no pleasure or relaxation and they must have been making things desperately uncomfortable for others who were riding with them. Coming at times to the top of a hill there would be seen a line of cars both ways as far as vision was possible.

People do not go away for a week-end holiday with the idea of being killed or taken to some strange hospital, and yet that is what happened on the Labor week-end. If one had opportunity to see 447 funerals passing in a line it might do much to visualize just what the people on this continent had done when they went out for a holiday and a good time. Experience has brought us to the belief that there is no pleasure or relaxation or enjoyment on a much-travelled highway on a Labor-day week-end.

This Seems To Be Wrong

The Halifax Herald was doing some investigating to see who made money out of the fish which are caught almost at its door. On the day the reporter went out to ask questions so staple an article as fillets of fresh-caught haddock were selling for 25 cents per pound, but if the purchaser desired to take the whole fish the price would be 14 cents a pound. So that established the price which the consumer was paying in a city where haddock ought to be cheap if proximity to the source of a good supply has anything to do with the prices.

The next step was to go and ask the men who were engaged in catching the fish, and in a way they would fit into the class we call primary producers. Of course they had nothing to do with the production of the fish, but it is their business to provide themselves with equipment and take all the risks connected with bringing them to the market. On the day when the retail price was from 14 to 25 cents per pound the Herald found the fishermen had been receiving 1 1-2 cents per pound for their supply of haddock. The wording of the story leads to the belief that it was one of those "take it or leave it" prices because it was stated "they were being compelled to accept" such a price. The compelling force would come from the fact that had to sell their fish because they needed the money, and also because they could not find a higher or better market in which to do business.

Perhaps there are good and sufficient reasons why there should be such a spread in prices but from 1 1-2 cents paid to a fisherman to 14 and 25 cents paid by a consumer, and with no express charges, looks so wrong that explanation could not possibly make it right.

A Private Affair

The Chatham News tells about George Graham, a farmer of 73 years who lives near Merlin. He decided to go to the hospital in Chatham for an operation but he did not want the relatives to know anything about it.

As a rule when a man of 73 is going to undergo an operation of any kind it is a matter of some concern not only to the patient but to all the relatives. It is not merely a period of concern but somewhat of an event in the history of the family. There would be considerable preparation and all such.

Mr. Graham merely left home and told no person. Then as though moved by the idea that they might be worrying he sent a post card saying he was working on a construction job at the hospital. Meantime the relatives had asked police to start and search for the absent George Graham. They did so but without success.

When the "construction job" post card was received inquiry was made at the hospital, and by that time the operation was over and it was reported Mr. Graham was doing nicely. Perhaps it was a little hard on the relatives, but not bad for a man of 73, and quite a change from the usual habit of talking about one's operations both before and after they take place.

Hurts Our Wheat Sales

The most recent address coming from Hitler says that Germany has plenty of food supplies and cannot be brought to heel by a blockade. He intimates that production can be increased in Germany to the point of making the country self-sufficient. At best that is to be doubted. Long before Hitler was heard of the German people had acquired the habit of working the land with an intensity the like of which is unknown to Canadian people.

That desire of European nations to be self-sustaining has caused a deal of trouble the world over. It has interfered with the movement of our wheat. Canada can grow better wheat than Germany, France or Italy, and it would actually be more profitable for these nations to buy wheat from us. Fear is what interferes with the free movement of wheat—fear that in case of war the supply may be cut off. That is why those nations try to grow their own.

The dealing between nations for diplomatic purposes also plays its part in selling wheat. Right now it is reported that Britain has placed orders with Rumania for 400,000 tons of wheat at a price of $10,000,000. The reason for placing that order is said to have been to create a favorable feeling in Rumania and to offset the bid which Hitler is making for the friendship and active co-operation of Rumania. Canada would gladly sell 400,000 tons of wheat to the British market, but for diplomatic reasons it seem advisable for Britain to purchase that amount elsewhere. So the selling of our wheat is not merely a matter of business, but something which is keenly influenced by the fear of war and the working out of diplomatic plans to gain favor with other nations which have wheat for sale.

For The First Time

You could see them almost any place in the city on Tuesday morning. No—not the children who were going back to school, but the ones who were starting for the first time.

The ones who were going back to school had a way of their own; they knew what it was all about because they had been there before. But it is different with the little folk for whom life's clock has turned sufficiently to place them in the school age.

Always it seems it is mother who goes along the first day, nor is it exactly a matter of routine. Mother has to go along to mark the official start; possibly has to find the right room and the right teacher and have the right name written down.

Mother and child do not intend to be conspicuous when another little one starts for the first time—but somehow they are. They generally go hand-in-hand. They stand carefully on the edge of the curb if there is a car coming. And all over the country they would be doing the same thing; the older ones finishing in the higher forms and the little ones beginning where the first door opens.

Experts have a faculty of picking our educational system to pieces and telling what is wrong with it, and taxpayers also have the well-developed habit of objecting to the high cost. But such things combined or apart meant little—perhaps nothing at all—to mother and the child who is just starting. The little one has made a start and there is a fresh tie between the school and the home and the parent and the teacher. It is an old process but somehow it is always new. How many mothers walked to school with the latest recruit on Tuesday morning we do not know, but the number was great and the picture attractive.

A Chinaman Noticed It

A Chinaman who has been in this country for some years and who has a fair enough knowledge of speaking the English language admits he finds some difficulty when he comes to write it. "You people make so many of your words by merely adding another letter at the left." When he was asked to explain just what he meant he did so.

He took the simple word "eat" and after writing it placed the letter "h" in front and made it "heat" and after that placed a "c" at the left and made it "cheat."

Changing eat to ate he then placed an "r" in front and made "rate," and then put a "c" at the start and made "crate."

We do not know how many people who have spoken the English language always have noticed the way in which so many of our simple words contain several other words which are in no way related. It makes an interesting study if one cares to pursue it with pencil and paper.

Stable has in it table and able.
Chair has hair and air.

Take your pencil and paper and try it some day and you will probably find what the Chinaman did. It is interesting.

Made The Village Quiet

A resident of a village in Western Ontario, a quiet place now, was telling the Examiner a few days ago what a busy place it used to be around the railway station and yards. The conversation was taking place on the station platform and there was not any evidence of activity. At that time of day there was no person in the station. His story of busier days was like this:

"My father used to be in charge of the railway wood yards and at that time the engines burned wood. There were three or four men working there all the time, and the farmers around the district always had a ready market for their wood because the railway always wanted more. There was a time when there were two draymen in business here, and one of them kept three teams busy. Most of the goods for the stores came by freight or express, and there was always two drays at the station to bring or deliver baggage. In the station there was the agent and there was a night and day operator, also a baggageman, and generally a man at the freight shed. It is not too much to say there were a dozen men who were kept busy right around here at that time in connection with the operation of the trains. Today there are just two. I should have added to the list the two men who drove the buses from the hotels to meet the trains and take the travellers and their grips away. If you were here when the mixed came in this evening you would see for yourself. Time was when this platform used to be pretty well filled when the trains came and went, but now there is just the one passenger coach at the end of a string of freight cars."

There are villages all over the country where the same story could be told. Everything and every person then came or went via the station and the train. Today most of the movement is on the highway via truck and passenger car. Our informant was not certain if the change was good for the village merchant. This he said:

"Years ago a man in business had to carry a good large stock, but today he knows if he is out of anything he can have a truck from the wholesale deliver it to his door in a few hours. In that way his investment is less, but he also has to face the competition which comes from the highways. The same highways which made it possible for the wholesale truck to call at his door will also make it possible for people to go and trade elsewhere. I know there are not so many stores and fewer people working in the ones which remain. The change has been complete and it has not been a good thing for the village. It's a quiet place now."

In conclusion he waved his arm again toward where the railway wood yard used to be, pointed to the yard where they used to ship pigs and cattle and remarked that most of them went by truck now, pointed also to half a dozen iron rings in the edge of the station platform where draymen and the hotel buses used to tie their horses. The change was probably inevitable, but it does look as though the village had received the short end of the deal when the change was taking place. A large number of busy villages is better for the country than a few busy cities.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Most men are thoroughly convinced there is plenty of room for improvement in the other fellow.

During the summer the walls of the court room at Hamilton have been painted, but to the man who hears he has lost his case they will still look drab.

We read in the Sault Ste. Marie Star that in 1889 there was but one bath tub in that place, but the article did not say what became of it.

We read that the decision for peace or war must come from Hitler, and we can think of a couple of dozen people to whom we would prefer seeking the making of the decision handed.

Highway casualties in Ontario are down 42 per cent so far this year in Ontario. One might be tempted to write a good deal about such a matter, but for the moment we are content to allow that excellent statement speak for itself.

C. C. Middleboro, city solicitor and clerk of Owen Sound, used a nice phrase when describing the increased pressure on the taxpayer to provide additional revenue: "The goose that lays the golden egg is getting smaller. How much smaller it can get and still lay larger golden eggs is a problem for experts other than I."

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Now that the school bell rings once more, I'll dig in harder than before, that's how it looks to me; Wee-Angus will get harder stuff, his question will be growing tough, not like they used to be.

¶ It use to be a simple thing, for I could answer anything, I knew it all by heart; he couldn't stick me with a sum, before he knew I'd have it done, he thought that I was smart.

¶ I've never told him, per'aps it's queer, his sums get tougher every year, to me they're rather new; and some of them that he brings home, I like to take them off alone, they're all that I can do.

¶ He talks of places on the map, he's got to know just where they're at, in long and foreign word; they puzzle me a little bit, for I can honestly admit, they're things I've never heard.

¶ And now and then there's fractions too, I find them rather hard to do, I've worked on them at night; I figure things of every kind, and toward the end I'm apt to find, my answer isn't right.

¶ When Angus takes on harder stuff, it's me that finds the work too tough, I have to take it slow; I fear some day the time wil come, when I'll be stuck about his sum—because I do not know.

Wealth of World Going Into Arms

EVERY TIME, DAY and night, your watch ticks to show the passing of a single second, each of the big nations of the world has spent upon armaments sometimes a man's whole daily wage, sometimes a whole week's wages.

This is the appalling situation twenty years after the finish of the war to end all wars. The world apparently learned nothing from that awful conflict. It is estimated that in 1937 the world spent upon armaments nearly three times as much as was spent in 1913. And in that year 1913 men predicted there would be a world war because nations could not be draining their financial life blood away endlessly upon arms without seeking to make use of them.

In 1932 a last despairing effort was made, under the auspices of the League of Nations, to bring about some measure of disarmament. It was a ghastly failure. Each year after that the expenditures on armaments rose and rose without cease. Here is the tale, which shows why people are groaning under tax burdens (when they are allowed to groan—something forbidden in totalitarian states):

1932	$4,300,000,000
1933	4,500,000,000
1934	5,100,000,000
1935	5,600,000,000
1936	5,800,000,000
1937	7,100,000,000

The figures given are in gold dollars. For the year 1937 $4,600,000,000 was spent by Europe and $2,500,000 by the rest of the world outside Europe. Of the 64 countries whose expenditures are given in the above figures in 1937, seven great "civilized" nations spent 56 per cent of these vast sums. Between 1932 and 1937 Europe increased its expenditures on armaments by 80 per cent while the rest of the world increased by 57 per cent.

The great difficulty nowadays in estimating what is being spent upon armaments is the secrecy totalitarian states are enabled to maintain.

In more democratic countries this is impossible. Budgets have to be submitted to Parliaments and expenditures have to be detailed by cabinet officials, and then approved by the legislators. It is thus that Great Britain is known to have embarked upon a five-year rearmament program which is to cost $7,500,000,000.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE LATEST figures on armament budgets for some of the larger nations obtainable by the League of Nations division which studies these matters, are given below. Comparison is made for the years,

	1937	1932
Belgium:	$48,537,720	$32,643,468
Great Britain:	$1,274,546,000	$429,754,500
Czechoslovakia:	$91,948,150	$55,991,730
France:	$260,292,000	$270,546,250
Italy:	$313,267,500	$248,941,800
Japan:	$313,267,500	$284,941,800
United States:	$993,200,000 estimated 1937-38)	$641,600,000

The last figures given on Germany were 617 million marks for the year 1931-32 and 894,300,000 marks for the year 1934-35. They have probably gone soaring far ahead of that since. The figures for 1937 for France apparently show a decrease, but there was probably a very large increase covered by supplemental budgets.

It has been estimated that, if the world had really gone the limit in disarmament, the money spent on arms in the past five years could have been used in doing away with all slums, erecting magnificent hospitals and clinics creating great public parks and recreation grounds, new and modern schools, splendid municipally-owned apartment houses for people with a modest wage—and at the same time the taxes upon the peoples of the world could have been greatly reduced.

DEAD OR JUST SLEEPING

(Edmonton Journal)

THIS (Aug. 22) is the third anniversary of the election that made Mr. Aberhart premier of Alberta. It is being celebrated in order to show that Social Credit is not dead, so the weekly publication edited by one of the members of his cabinet, Mr. Maynard, has stated.

But, if Social Credit is not dead, certainly the people of Alberta hold very different opinions of the movement now than they did when they placed Mr. Aberhart in control of their affairs on August 22, 1935.

His promises, on the strength of which they took that step, have not been fulfilled and there is not the slightest reason to suppose that they will be at any time. Twice the period that he said he might require for the payment of dividends has elapsed.

SILVER WINGS

On Silver Wings to Sunset Camp
We crossed the bay,
Our hearts—too glad with love and song
That happy day.

In dreams tonight we laugh and romp
The hills once more,
We wade along the pebbly beach
Or trail the shore.

To Gannon's Narrows waft a wish
O'er friendly foam
Too loath to leave we watch Eastview
Till waves roll home.

How lazy sweet that summer's day—
That silent bliss
To understand unspoken words—
No joy like this.

When day is done while memory holds
My lovely things
I'd breast the bay to Sunset Camp
On Silver Wings.

BOSS MUST SALUTE

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

Now that the deputy minister of National Defence is a major-general, he is entitled we suppose, to a punctilious salute from the chief Col. Ian Mackenzie, when the latter wears a uniform.

JUST LIKE HIM

• In the Days of Yukon Riches

PORTLAND, ORE. — STORIES of "sucker claims" which made millionaires out of seemingly gullible tenderfeet in the Klondyke 40 years ago enriched the annual convention of the Aslaka-Yukon International Sourdoughs.

The sourdoughs are the men who stayed with the Alaska-Yukon gold rush long enough to become inured to its hardships.

T. G. Wilson, one of the old timers, told how a Captain Johnson—none recalled his first name—piled up his schooner on the beach near Nome.

Disgusted he traded the stranded craft for Nome's current "sucker claim."

Johnson spent several days drowning his misfortune at Nome's numerous barrel houses and at length decided to investigate his claim.

That night he came back jabbering incoherently about gold. He had his pockets full of it. The next day he re-visited the place and took out $50,000 in 24 hours. The "sucker claim" ultimately netted more than 12 million dollars.

F. A. Morrow of Milaukie, Ore., who crossed treacherous Chilkoot pass the day after a snow slide killed 20 gold seekers, said Dawson, the Yukon gold settlement, had a "sucker claim" that changed hands for as little as a couple bottles of whiskey before some newcomer decided to make the most of his bad bargain and sink a shaft. The claim paid out nearly one million dollars.

Most "sucker claims" were just that, Morrow said, and were valueless but every once in a while an inadequately tested "diggings" got a reputation for barrenness and was kiaked around for months before somebody tested it intelligently and struck it heavy.

Wilson, selling supplies at a place on the Kougrock river, was visited one chill night by "two Swedes who spent their last cash for a sackful of provisions" and started out toward the river.

Five hours later they came back with that giddy look in their eyes, Wilson said.

"How much flour you got?" one asked.

"Twenty sacks," replied Wilson, at $25 a sack."

"We took it all. How much whiskey?"

"One case at $15 a bottle."

"We took it all. By damn, we took it all."

They had uncovered a nugget deposit in a shallow creek bed opening into the river and had taken out $15,000 almost as fast as they could pick it up.

• Paying For A Telephone Call

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,— SOME TIME ago, I had occasion to compare cost of telephone service in Canada with the cost of obtaining similar service in other countries. Such as comparison, on a valid basis that would mean something, is difficult to obtain. The purchasing power of money is different in various countries and the average income of the people is different so that comparisons of costs on a gold basis would be meaningless. After considerable thought on the subject I decided that a real basis for comparison would be obtained if it were ascertained how many minutes the average paid skilled laborer had to work to pay for one exchange call. These rates of labor, rates for service, etc., were obtained and the results were as follows:

Place	Minutes Worked per Call
Rome (Italy)	16.2
Berlin	12.0
Paris	10.4
London	7.6
Sydney (Australia)	6.8
Toronto	1.76
